CFA, Dairy Farmers Seek Appeal On Oleo

Ask For Privy Council Decision To End Confusion

Joint Application Made By Federation and Affiliate

Ottawa, March 1 (CP)— The Canadian Federation of Agriculture and its affiliate, the Dairy Farmers of Canada, have applied jointly for leave to appeal the margarine question before the judicial committee of the privy council.

The Supreme Court of Canada ruled last December that legislation banning the manufacture or sale of possession of margarine and other butter substitutes was illegal. The court upheld the bar against importation.

Mr. Hannam said it had been "a matter of regret" to the federation that the question had not been taken by the Federal government.

The legislation governing margarine had been submitted to the Supreme Court for purposes of clarification.

"Instead of achieving a clarification of the matter the Supreme Court decision . . . seems to have succeeded only in creating further confusion in respect to it."

During the fact that legalized sale of margarine, decided by the Supreme Court, was unfavorable from the view point of the dairy farmers, the Federation attached it on other grounds.

In a statement distributed at a press conference Mr. Hannam said the decision divides authority over margarine between the federal and provincial governments; all the five judges give grounds for their decision, each with each other as to reason; the judgment leaves "a serious element of uncertainty" as to the status of other farm legislation.

A unanimous Privy Council decision would remove all uncertainty, Mr. Hannam said.

He hoped that the appeal would at least produce a decision on which agricultural programs could be established under uniform Dominion statutes.

Missing Child Found Dead In Old Well

Stratford, March 1 (CP)—Billy Wood, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Wood, missing since four o'clock Monday afternoon, was found dead early this morning in an old well about a mile from the child's home.

County Coroner Dr. M. J. Fraser said this morning death was due to shock and drowning.

Search for the missing child was one of largest in this district in many years. It was started with neighboring farmers and by dark had enlisted aid of more than 100 men including a party from the Perth Regiment.

Existence of the well was unknown to the searchers. A member of the party, Clarence Innes, fell into the well at about 11 o'clock Monday night, while walking through the field. Considered with snow it was more than 15 feet deep and almost full of water. The man was unhurt.

Members of Stratford fire department, using grappling hooks, probed the well and the body of the child was found.

Man Dies on Train On Way to Hospital

North Bay, March 1 (CP)— A man with a fractured skull died aboard a train here today. Expired early today shortly after the train had pulled in from Cochrane.

With his wife at his bedside and a nurse in attendance the injured man was being taken to Wellesley Hospital in Toronto.

He was 57 years old, married 40, and it is understood that he was injured Sunday afternoon at a camp near Timmins when a log rolled off a truck and struck him on the head.

NOTED MUSICIAN DIES

London, March 1 (AP)— Sir Stanley Marchant, 65, principal of the Royal Academy of Music since 1936, died here today in prayer at the jubilee thanksgiving service for King George V and Queen Mary in 1935. He was knighted in 1943.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, March 1 (CP)—Synopsis: Clear and very cold weather tonight over most of Ontario. In southern sections skies are cloudy and temperatures are near normal at 5° to 15 degrees Fahrenheit. A slight disturbance over Northern Manitoba will move across Northern Ontario . . . Cold Wednesday. Some light snowfalls and milder temperatures.

Another disturbance over Colorado is causing considerable cloudiness and rain over the Central United States. This precipitation is expected to reach south of the Lower Lakes as the associated disturbance takes an eastward course towards the Atlantic on early Wednesday.

Hunt for Youth Who Tells Father He Stabbed Man

Toronto, March 1 (CP)—Police are combing the city today for a 15-year-old youth who admitted to his father that he had stabbed a man in a running house quarrel Monday night. Roy Morell, 49, a painter and decorator, is in critical condition in hospital with at least five wounds believed inflicted with a hunting knife.

Police said the youth arrived at the home of his father Monday night and calmly announced that "I've stabbed Roy." He asked his father Morell's blood-stained leather jacket, the hunting knife and then so clean was the "killing parlors" The milk was handled so carefully that it was delivered to the home of Morell and reached the consumer.

Milk is not for humans, are on ration in England, he reported. Dairy cattle get priority over beef cattle for food.

Misuse of Sleeping Pills Claim 1000 Lives Yearly in United States

By HOWARD W. BLAKSLEE

New York, March 1 (AP) — Sleeping pills kill about 1,000 persons every year in the United States.

There has been a steady, post-war rise in these deaths. More serious than the deaths, it indicates, is the widespread use of widespread penalty for misuse.

The pills are dangerous. Their disturbuies are one of the 10 most widely used drugs. Used by doctors they do not cause even accidental deaths. There are about 30 varieties in the market, and about 1,500 others that could be made.

If you fear your approaching operation, the surgeon gives you a sleeping pill, and you stop worrying. Many persons become dull, but ending the worry is the tip on the potent powers of barbiturates.

The pills quiet nerves, prevent epileptic convulsions, relieve St. Vitus Dance and convulsions of rabies. They are antidotes for the convulsions of strychnine, cocaine and some other poisons. They are one of the world's most valuable medicines.

Many States have laws permitting sale of sleeping pills only on a doctor's written prescription. But bootlegging gets around these laws in big cities. People start taking them without the doctor's advice for many reasons, some lionest.

"My doctor takes sleeping pills Why shouldn't I?"

Or a newspaper writer started She took them daily for three years. Her mind deteriorated until she was unable to identify close relatives.

The medical records there are numerous examples of mental disorder. And always there is a temporary mental slow-down, so that some health authorities say the barbiturates are often safer taking pills for a few nights.

TWO BULGARIAN PASTORS PLEAD GUILTY TO CHARGE

Information Said Given To Chief Accused

Sofia, March 1 — (CP)— Rev. Zdravko Bezlov, 28, 10th and youngest accused in the treason trial of 15 Bulgarian Protestant churchmen, testified in court today that he had delivered military information to Rev. Ivanov Ivanov, general supervisor of the Bulgarian Methodist Church and chief accused.

Both Bezlov and a Baptist pastor, Ivan Stanilov, 44, who was the first accused to be heard this morning, pleaded guilty.

Thus the first 10 defendants to be heard have each entered such pleas. Two others have pleaded guilty in a steady procession during the day.

Stanilov told the court he had gathered economic and political information but had not been aware that it was intended for a foreign power.

He said this information had been given to Rev. Nikolja Naumov, president of the United Evangelical churches.

Naumov, on the first day of the trial, said that all information he received from other patros had been given to the Americans.

Bezlov told the court that the information he had given to Naumov included military and import and export traffic in Danubian ports, the harvest, and the attitude of the peasantry.

He asked the court for mercy and leniency.

Bezlov, who was then heard, told the court that in early 1945 and later during that year he had been on a military course for reserve officers.

While on leave in January, 1945 he had met Ivanov, who told him he was interested in conditions at his military school.

Bezlov, a Methodist, said he gave Ivanov news on several occasions about the school and its personnel.

Amazed at Advanced Mechanization in U.K.

Brantford, March 1 (CP)— Elliott Moses, manager of the Canadian Cockshutt plow plant which turned recently from England, said yesterday he was amazed by the plowing team which covers the British farms.

He said the team's month-long stay in Great Britain Moses said he was there so often as to be "walking parlors" The milk was handled so carefully that it was delivered to the home of Morell and reached the consumer.

Milk is not for humans, are on ration in England, he reported. Dairy cattle get priority over beef cattle for food.

United Church Called Upon to Help Meet Needs of Elderly People

Toronto, March 1 (CP) — The United Church of Canada was called on today to help meet the needs of elderly people.

The call came from Rev. Dr. R. C. Chambers, associate secretary of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service, who said today in his annual report that the church must bring its influence to bear on civic and government agencies to make more provision than in the past for accommodation for citizens of advanced years.

Said Dr. Chambers:

"There are many factors which make this problem of accommodation and care very acute: Housing shortage, high cost of living, high rates in homes for the aged, thoughtlessness and indifference on the part of children, insufficient remuneration in the case of old age pensioners and other factors.

"A United Church medical doctor in an Ontario city told me that he estimated that in 75 per cent of the calls he attended of aged people, the real trouble was not illness but loss of vitality. The doctor said most of the aged persons were ill from a form of insecurity, low income, lack of proper care and attention."

But another report presented today to the Board of Evangelism and Social Service said that in one respect the lot of the elderly was improving.

Rev. Dr. J. R. Mutchmor, secretary of the Board, said that, in certain parts of Canada, "most adequate" payments were being made to old age pensioners.

Also in the social field, he saw improvement in industrial relations, fewer strikes, improvement in hospital and prison care and good administration of Unemployment insurance.

Of the United Church's own members, Dr. Mutchmor said:

"Fewer of our people have money in beverage alcohol company stocks. There is a slight decline in social drinking in United Church homes. There is a more serious approach to marriage, a deeper sense of its sacred obligations and a more realistic view of the casual and the flippant."

Dr. Mutchmor mentioned what he considers danger spots in the national picture.

Seasonal unemployment is somewhat higher in the fay west and east. Many thousands of parents with small incomes and families with young children cannot make both ends meet. Inflation is still with us."

Dr. Mutchmor said that the church must remain the defender of the faith. She must continue as the conscience of the state.

"It is not a day of ease but of toil. It was created by love the church. As she enters more vigorously into the problems and responsibilities she will be misunderstood and maligned."

Thousand-Mile Mercy Flight Begun Carrying Doctors, Drugs To Stricken Folk in Northland

Winnipeg, March 1 — (CP)— A ski - equipped R. C. A. F. Dakota aircraft took off from Edmonton Field here at 9.40 a. m. EST today on the first leg of a 1,000-mile mercy flight to Chesterfield Inlet, N. W. T., to take doctors and medicines to victims of a mysterious ailment ravaging the northland. The sickness already has claimed 10 lives.

The plane was scheduled to land at Churchill about 2 p. m. EST and push on to the inlet, weather permitting. Aboard the Dakota are five doctors, headed by W. J. Wood of Winnipeg, regional supervisor of Dominion Health Services.

The doctors said they planned to stay at Chesterfield Inlet a minimum of two days. But it is believed they will likely be there four or five days.

Besides the dead, 25 others were said to be stricken with the disease, whose symptoms included rapid and severe paralysis. Medical officials said there was possibility that two separate diseases were causing the epidemic— food poisoning, resulting from a dead caribou meat, and a virus-caused nervous disorder.

The plane will land at Chesterfield Inlet on an airstrip, marked by bags of coal or oil drums, returning to Churchill after depositing the doctors at the outpost.

The medical authorities expect-

Clear, Cool Weather Greets Entry of March in Ontario

Toronto, March 1 — (CP) — Clear, cold—weather heralded the arrival of March throughout most sections of Ontario.

Only in the northern Lake Bay area was there a hint of milder temperatures, and Moosonee, with a high of 34 above, thought it must be spring.

Nippy northerly winds blasted through the southern portion of the province carrying with them the promise of more snow and low temperatures. In the area south and east of Georgian Bay roads were drifted, and in the Toronto district, as by Hamilton four blow slackened early today.

Lambkin in B. C.

British Columbia which has experienced its worst cold-spell in years, reported no further deaths and welcomed March with the usual lambkin conditions in Canada.

Many other parts of Canada, besides Southern Ontario, weren't so sure the lion rather than the lamb walked in on thurn last night.

Colder air pushing eastward from the Prairies brought snow and low temperatures to the Toronto area and surrounding southern counties.

Warmest spot during the night was at Prince Rupert, north of Vancouver on the Pacific coast, where a minimum mercury count of 40 for today was recorded itself chalked up the highest maximum for today with a 52.

Cold Spot While River

Cold spot for Canada was White River in Northern Ontario where a low of 35 below scattered all thoughts of a lengthy March entry. Other areas of the north, along the southern tip of James Bay, had mercury readings between zero and 15 below. Moosonee was the only reporting station to later. Quebec City experienced a warm sun melting snow in the streets.

Maritime temperatures ranged around the freezing point for both maximum and minimum readings. Cold point during the night was Moncton with a mere 13 degrees. High today was predicted for Yarmouth, N.S., where 37 above may be expected.

DREW-ST. LAURENT HONG-KONG FEUD MAY FLARE TODAY

Sequel to Sharp Exchange Yesterday

By JOHN LEBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 1 (CP)— Renewed warfare over the Hong Kong issue—whetted by a slap at Prime Minister St. Laurent's part in that explosive case—appeared due to erupt in parliament today.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, was to try to table his 1942 "Hong Kong letter" as a basis of the charge that Mackenzie King, and barring a surprise reversal of seven-year policy by the government a new scrap was in prospect.

It would be a sequel to a sharp edgy-tempered exchange yesterday between Mr. St. Laurent and Mr. Drew traded a round of accusations against each other.

The flare was plainly likewise into its most uproarious phase by the time these swift developments:

1. The Prime Minister accused Mr. Drew of "irresponsible and unwarranted" statements in a speech Saturday at Montreal.

2. Mr. Drew counter-attacked by charging that Mr. St. Laurent in 1942 —when he was Minister of Justice—had had neither the "courage nor decency to withdraw" the defence counsel's repudiation charge laid against Mr. Drew for his statement critical of the handling of the Hong Kong expedition.

3. Mr. St. Laurent said he "completely and unreservedly" denied the Hong Kong reference.

4. Mr. Drew, declaring Mr. St. Laurent had used wartime censorship to block publication of a letter showing the present prime minister's "indecent and improper" use of the letter, by which he was justice minister, said he would table the letter written to the former prime minister.

Later, he said outside the House it was not celebrating Mr. he wrote July 11, 1942, and which the government since then has consistently declined to table in parliament.

Both leaders were in obvious anger as their exchange steamed up. However, Mr. Drew said, though he grew so wrathy that he

Man Runs Amok, Slashes Self In Weston Hospital

Victims Said in Serious Condition from Wounds

Toronto, March 1 — (CP) — Armed with a razor and a knife, a 55-year-old janitor at suburban Weston Sanitarium today attacked and wounded a nurse, a patient and a woman employee, hospital officials reported.

The man, identified by police as Samuel Care, 55, was said to have inflicted serious injuries on himself and is not expected to live.

Two of the victims were identified as Eleanor Cavanaugh, a nurse, and Mamie McLellon, a cleaning woman. Name of the patient was not disclosed.

All were in serious condition in hospital with multiple stab wounds.

Hospital authorities said they were unable to explain the reason for the attack other than that the man had "gone out of his mind."

Care had been a resident employee at the hospital for the last three years.

Three Weapons Seized

Police said they took a razor blade, a paring knife and a paring knife from him.

He had slashed his wrist and attempted to swallow the knife, Chief Constable R. Alexander said.

Mr. Alexander said he did not think charges would be laid since Care was "in pretty bad condition and may not recover."

Dr. A. Wicks, hospital superintendent, said he believed the attack was premeditated. He said Care had left a note explaining his action and a will disposing of his personal belongings.

The attack occurred while Care was cleaning one of the corridors. He suddenly turned and stabbed Miss McLellon, then ran to a ward and attacked a patient.

When the nurse tried to stop him, he slashed her with a knife. When police found him he was locked in a private-sitting room bleeding profusely from throat and wrist wounds.

Deny Bootleg Milk Unsafe for Use Is Being Sold

Toronto, March 1 (CP)— W.H. Wilmot, assistant manager of the Toronto Milk Producers' Association, last night denied a report that "bootleg" milk which is unsafe for human consumption is being sold in Toronto.

The charge was made yesterday by L.B. Kelly, manager of farms from untested cows and unsanitary barns was being purchased by Toronto distributors many creameries and cheese processing plants and sold at regular retail prices.

Mr. Wilmot said there had not been any sale of bootleg milk in Toronto in 25 years. All extra milk can be disposed of in the city only under supervision of the City Health Department, he said.

PLOT TO KIDNAP ACTING PRESIDENT OF CHINA AVERTED

Shanghai Paper Says Wholesale Arrests Upset Plans

Shanghai, March 1 (AP)—Shen Pao, Shanghai's second largest newspaper, reported today that a plot to kidnap acting President Li Tsung-jen and overthrow the Nanking government's government was averted by wholesale arrests.

The newspaper said the plot involved underground workers and Marshal Li Chi-shen's Kuomintang (government party) revolutionary committee and Communist agents.

It was to have been staged two weeks ago, said the newspaper.

A Nanking dispatch to Shen Pao Feb. 18 first hinted of the plot. It said Shih Heng, representative of Li Chi-Sen on the government committee, had been detained by secret police.

Shen Pai said Men Shih-Heng was a member of a "five-man action group" in charge of execution of the plot.

Men is the husband of Chin Shiu-Ching, delegate from Chungking to China's national assembly. She has been under house arrest by government police for two years.

Besides kidnapping the acting President, the newspaper said, the plotters planned to seize a number of other officials, including Yeng Sohin, mayor of Nanking.

Bass Drummer Bidden Farewell By Pipe Band

Belleville Pipe Band held farewell party the other evening for one of their members bass drummer, Percy Thomson, at the Lanthorn Inn on the eve of his departure for Toronto. The affair was under direction of Pipe-Major J. Browning. The party enjoyed a short program of tunes and band, all in uniform, played together with bass drummer Thomson for the last time. The drummer has been a member of the "Kilties" for the past three years. Towards the close of the evening a presentation was made to Mr. Thomson on behalf of the band.

K. Shulman Takes Over J.A. McNabb Store in City

After 22 years in business in the city associated with the J. A. McNabb Company from Front Street, and later as manager of the store, Mr. Ed. Shapiro has purchased the business to retire from the business.

The new managing director and president of the local firm is Kenneth Shulman, of Owen Sound, who for the past 11 years has been associated with the General Trading Co. of Canada.

Although he expects eventually to return to Montreal, Mr. Shapiro plans to remain here for the next few months until his son completes his senior matriculation at the Collegiate.

Regrets Leaving

In retiring from the J. A. McNabb firm Mr. Shapiro expresses his regret in being forced to give up his association with the firm and at the same time expressed appreciation for patronage given the store during the past two decades.

Mr. Shapiro has been in the clothing business for the past 50 years and came to Belleville from the head office of the J. A. McNabb company in Montreal. Mr. Shapiro has also been associated with the firm for many years ago Mr. Shapiro took over a major interest in the store and became store manager and president of the firm.

Mr. Shapiro has taken an active interest in social and welfare affairs. He is past president of the Belleville Kiwanis Club, was director of the Y.M.C.A. for a number of years, is a former member of the local parks board and is a member of the Masonic Lodge.

During the war he was associated with the Argyll and Light Infantry (Reserve) and retired with the rank of lieutenant.

Same Merchandising Policy

In taking over the management and presidency of the J. A. McNabb store, Mr. Shulman points out it would be the policy of the firm to maintain the same high quality of merchandising that has been carried on by the firm in past years.

Mr. Shulman is past president of the Chamber of Commerce at Owen Sound and is a former member of the Kinsmen Club of that city. He is married and will make his home in the city as soon as accommodation is available.

Veterans With Most Points Will Have First Opportunity For Churchill Heights Houses

Belleville veterans of the last war who can qualify with the most number of points for overseas and other service will be given the first opportunity to buy the veterans' housing units in Churchill Heights, it was revealed at city council Monday evening by Mr. A. L. Vandervaart of Trenton, housing administrator for Wartime Housing.

Mr. Vandervaart appeared before council because of persistent rumors which had circulated that many local veterans would not have the opportunity to rent the houses.

"The veterans' houses will be allocated on a point system," stated Mr. Vandervaart, "and the veteran with the highest number of points will get the houses.

Belleville veterans meet the requirements, then they will get the houses."

He denied the rumor that a veteran would have to be earning $165 per month before he would be rented a house, and that this earning was the mark which they "shoot at" but reliability was the factor which was taken into consideration.

On a question from one of the aldermen Mr. Vandervaart replied that he had applications for the 108 houses but none of the houses had yet been allocated to veterans. The houses will be completed approximately 30 days before the 180 days from completion date of occupancy. He pointed out that the houses were owned by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and were rented according to ability to pay. Belleville veterans would be given preference—if they qualified.

Asked by Ald. Hollinger what chances there would be of getting additional wartime houses in the city in view of the fact there were 312 applications for the 108 houses, Mr. Vandervaart declined to answer.

He said that at one time he had over 500 applications for the houses. New applications have been mailed out to all of these veterans and but 312 had replied.

Slippery Streets Cause Accidents Of Minor Type

Snow-covered streets which turned into a glaze of ice under the wheels of traffic, were responsible for a series of minor motor accidents about the city last evening as vehicles had difficulty in negotiating grades and in stopping at street intersections.

Most serious of the several accidents occurred this morning on West Moira Street when a truck proceeding down the hill was unable to stop in time and crashed into the side of a second truck making a U-turn opposite Grills' Garage.

The truck owned by the Mott Lumber Company had delivered a load of lumber at the fire hall under construction on Moira Street and was making a U-turn when it was struck by the truck owned by Grills' Dairy which could not stop on the slipper street. Damage amounting to approximately $100 resulted to the front end of the Mott truck while the right door of the Mott truck was damaged.

Through traffic on West Bridge Street hill had considerable difficulty in negotiating the grade last evening and there were a few tie-ups as the motorists were forced to back down the hill. North Front Street hill and Victoria Ave., were also difficult to negotiate until the city sanding equipment got on the job.

How many boys, young men, or men of middle age are there who are interested in model engineering as a hobby?

That is the question to which two local model engineering enthusiasts, Percy Gelsthorpe, 25 Lewis Street, and J. H. Rafarel, 34 Donald Street, would like to have the answer.

For the above men, one a "live steamer" model locomotive enthusiast, and the other who leans to model electric train engineering, are anxious that a model engineering hobby class. Potential hobbyists need not limit their interest to model locomotive engineering, but will be welcome to try any branch as long as it is model engineering.

The two hobby enthusiasts are not interested in any personal gain, but are willing to give every assistance possible in getting potential hobbyists a start.

A radio engineer with Northern Electric, Mr. Gelsthorpe turned to model engineering as an "escape" hobby and after becoming more or less proficient in wood carving and gasoline engine building became a model locomotive enthusiast. Mr. Rafarel's interest also lies in model locomotives but he sticks to 'electric models. He is with the Hydro Electric Commission.

Has Built Three Models

Mr. Gelsthorpe has been building "live steam" model locomotives for about five years and has built three models, to scale and complete in every detail. One locomotive, a model of a New York Central engine, is six feet long, weighs approximately 220 pounds and is powerful enough to pull ten or a dozen adults on passenger cars.

He has another C. P. R. engine, while still another model is in course of production in Mr. Gelsthorpe's rather complete basement machine shop where he spends a good deal of his spare time.

Every one of the model locomotives are complete to the smallest detail. They are coal burning, have conventional tenders, steam operated whistles and electric lights.

Mr. Gelsthorpe does not expect that all tyro hobbyists interested in model building will start off as a "live steam" model locomotive builder, but he and Mr. Rafarel are willing to give instruction in model building covering anything from model cars and airboats, gasoline engines or locomotives.

Like to Start Others

For his own part Mr. Gelsthorpe is secretary of the Toronto "Live Steamer" Club and has so much fun building and operating models that he would like to see such a hobby class started in Belleville. "I am willing to do my part to get a class started," he says. "If there is no one interested, then that is all I can do."

In his own back yard on Lewis Street Mr. Gelsthorpe has over 100 feet of track on which he operates his model locomotives. Next summer he hopes to extend his track to a 300-foot circle. Already a fine summer time hobby backyard is the delight of neighborhood youngsters with a yen for playing at trains.

In order to create interest in the formation of a hobby class, Mr. Gelsthorpe will have his New York Central model locomotive in the display window at Walker's Hardware on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Model engineering is ideal for becoming acquainted with others with the same interest, according to Mr. Gelsthorpe. "I can go to any large city in Canada or the United States and in a half hour be in some enthusiast's basement discussing model engineering," he laughed.

The idea of a local hobby class in model engineering is to create good will among those interested and also for an exchange of ideas, he said.

County Court

Five-Month Term For Trenton Man

Found guilty of the theft of $25 from the County Registry Office while he was in the employ of the county jail, Gerald Ellis of Trenton was sentenced to five months in jail by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Ellis appeared today in county magistrate's court for judgment on the case. Evidence in connection with the case was heard some weeks ago.

Ellis was charged with taking the $25 from a cash box in the Registry Office when he had been detailed to act as waiter at the building attending the furnace.

Fined for Assault

Joseph Clarke, College Street, was fined $50 and costs when he was found guilty of assaulting Grant Shilly after surviving a month long diet of flour and water in the snowbound Kamano River district about 100 miles from here. Climaxing a four-month trapping expedition they were rescued from a deserted Indian village, 120 miles from this Northern British Columbia port by a police rescue vessel.

Refundable Savings Cheques Start Going in Mail Today

Refundable Savings Cheques for 2,250,000 Canadians will start going in the mail today, it was announced by The Honorable J. J. McCann, M.P., Minister of National Revenue. This early opening and the co-operation of the Post Office Department should assure that all cheques will reach their destination before the deadline date of March 31st. It will take the entire month to distribute such a large volume of cheques, and therefore taxpayers should not be disappointed if their cheques do not arrive until towards the end of the month.

Once the distribution of cheques has commenced, it will be impossible for the Taxation Division to deal with individual inquiries until after March 31st when the distribution of cheques will have been completed.

Can be Cashed Immediately

Although all Refundable Savings Cheques are dated March 31st, arrangements have been made so that they may be cashed immediately on receipt. The Department of Finance has also arranged three weeks ahead of schedule in the national task of getting the cheques into the hands of their owners.

The Department has checked hundreds of thousands of addressees in advance, wherever every effort has been made to see that each cheque will arrive at the proper address. The mailing is the last operation of a tremendous task.

One group ir the Taxation Division has been working overtime at the rate of 40,000 each working day since January 1st. Another group has been making 3,500,000 interest calculations. Still other groups have been responsible for the verification of accounts and addresses. The biggest single task has been the checking of addresses. Almost one million Canadians who are entitled to cheques have moved during past five years. Countless women who were single when they got married and several changing companies, and Robert G. Mac-Mullen, 50, president of Lobano Mines, Limited.

The Ontario Securities Commission said the irregularities took place when the two men were acting as transfer agents for Consolidated Gold Corporation of Sutherland is president—and several other mining companies.

The arrests followed the arrest last week of William Hanford, 66-year-old former broker who held on $10,000 bail on fraud charges involving the same transactions. He is accused of obtaining $35,000 by forging a 300,000-share gold mining stock agreement.

Kinsmen Club Celebrate 29th Anniversary

The 29th anniversary of the founding of the Kinsmen Club in Belleville was marked by the regular bi-monthly dinner meeting of the local club held Monday evening at the Hotel Quinte. Commentations from the National president, and from "Hal" Rogers, founder of Kinsmen, were read at the meeting.

Guest speaker for the evening was Harry Curtiss, Kingston, who kept the club members in jovial spirit with his many witticisms and story telling deluxe. The speaker was introduced by Kin Harry Hall. President of the club, Kin Frank Lang, presided.

Kin "Shiller" Lloyd spoke briefly on the Kinsmen Band, stating that the boys' uniforms were expected to be ready in approximately three weeks. Also four new drums were being provided the band, which was expected to be ready for its first public appearance during the latter part of March.

Inspection Nudges Sheet Metal 5-4

The winners fired home a pair of goals in the first period from Howie and Lapinette with the former making it 3-0 early in the second period. Sheet Metal roared back to the offensive with three goals and the score was tied going into the third period.

Inspection, paced by Vance surged to a two-goal lead midway through the frame and Noakes got one of them back to make the score 5-4. There was no more scoring during the game, and it ended that way.

There were no penalties until the third period when Prout drew the only misdemeanor, a major, of the game.

Lay 22 Charges Against Two Miming Men

Toronto, March 1 (CP)—Police Monday laid 22 charges of forgery uttering and theft in connection with the removal during the past five years. Countless women and children were the victims who have new addresses but new names as well. The Department of Finance, Ottawa, and 10 million owners of Refundable Savings Certificates.

All Will Benefit

Every section of Canada will benefit from the return of these Refundable Savings. For example, the Province of Prince Edward Districts will receive over 600,000 cheques each and over $40,000,000 will be paid out in each of these two areas. Other large districts will receive cheques as follows: over 300,000 cheques will be paid in an amount of over $30,000,000 and Winnipeg, where over 150,000 cheques will be mailed totalling over $10,000,000. Other centres will receive amounts in the same proportion to their population.

IN MEMORIAM

LLOYD—In loving memory of dear Mother, who passed away one year six years ago today.

My one regret in death we miss you
No one knows the bitter pain.
Only God knows how much we miss you,
And how we long to see you again.
In our hearts your memory lingers
Sweet and fair as flowers in May.
There is not a day dear Harold,
That we do not think of you.
Always remembered by sister and brothers, and mother. 9c1

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, March 1 (CP)—Slight selling pressure began to trickle down early gains in mid-session on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Industrials opened strongly, weakened and then tightened slightly in the very light action. Base metals were well ahead in early dealings but tended lower from their high points. Western oils and golds climbed slowly.

Volume for the first three hours was 310,000 shares, about 64,000 shares less than yesterday's similar period.

A few utilities edged towards fractionally in the industrial groupings. Several early gains were wiped out towards noon and only a comparative handful showed changes.

Base metals showed the strongest advances although selling pressure began to cut into the gains.

PRODUCE MARKET

Grade A large are in good supply on the egg market, but other grades are in short supply. Prices are unchanged. Country shippers quoted graded eggs cases: Free: Grade A large 43; Grade A medium, 42; Grade A pullet 40; Grade B 40; Grade C 34. Wholesale to retail: Grade A large 46-47; Grade A medium 43-46; Grade A pullet 43-44; Grade B 44; Grade C 37.

Butter solids, unchanged. First Grade 68; second grade 67.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, March 1 (CP) —Prices on the livestock market here up to noon this morning as Saturday's advance. Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing service were: Cattle 600; calves 100; hogs 400; lambs 70. Left from yesterday's trading were 400 head.

Choice weighty steers were $19.50-$20.50 and good light steers sold at $18-$20. Good heifers sold at $16-$19.50 and plain steers and heifers sold downward to $15. Canners and cutters sold at $10-$12. Trade generally was slow with a few selling at $16.50-$18. Choice fed yearlings were $22-$23 with mediums downward to $19. Plain stockers sold at $15-$16.50.

Calves were steady at $23-$30 with plain to medium vealers at $16-$16.50.

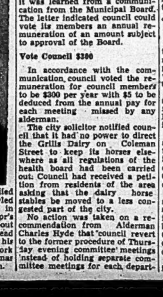
Hogs were steady at $21 for choice and $20.50 for grade B1. Sows were $23 dressed.

HOGS

Toronto, March 1 (CP)—Hog prices were 50 cents higher a hundredweight at $23.50 in Brantford, unchanged at $23.75 delivered at Hull, in markets reporting today. Straiford reported prices still unsettled.

Nudist Admits Slaying

Washington, March 1 — (AP)— A smiling nudist admitted to police Monday that he shot his wife to death and buried their infant daughter alive in a shallow grave in nearby Virginia. Police said Charles Francis Holcomb, 40, told them he loaded a pick, shovel and pistol into his car last Thursday, then drove his family to a deserted area about 20 miles from Washington. Police said he shot his wife twice — in the back of the head and again in the body when she moved.



Collections Harder Say Agency Men

Toronto, March 1 — (CP) — Business is getting tough, if the volume of work done by debt collection agencies is any indication. The annual convention of the Ontario Association of Collection Agencies was told Monday that their members had more business in 1945 than in any year since 1932. Delegates agreed that they have to work harder to collect their money this year than at any time during the war years.

17-YEAR-OLD YOUTH CHARGED WITH MURDER

Leo Parent, 17, Cornwall, Ont., who was arrested by Ontario provincial police and taken to Brockville, Ont., for questioning in the death of Michael Dennis Skelton, 72-year-old gardener who died in hospital last weekend from a severe beating about the head.—Central Press Canadian.

Michael Dennis Skelton, 72, died a few hours after he crawled 200 yards from his shack in Brockville to a neighbor's home. He was battered about the head with a heavy lead pipe. Youth charged with his murder had been out of work since his father died Christmas eve.—Central Press Canadian.

Council approval of the proposed juvenile and family court was given Monday night despite no support, was made at council Monday evening and this in view of the fact that no appropriation had been made for the court at this time the year's estimates were struck.

Unappropriated revenue expected from sales and leases of land from plumbers' licenses would be set apart to defray expenses of the juvenile court, it was voted.

The measure did not go through, however, without considerable discussion on the part of councillors. There was no objection to Alderman Tice declared the proposed measure to set aside money from sales and licenses to be "unconstitutional."

Juvenile Court

In support of the measure, however, Alderman Duffy pointed out that there was obligated to provide funds for the juvenile court as same is laid down by the approved of the court. Mayor Ellis Storey suggested the recommendation may have been improperly worded. "It is a measure to set up what it was one permitted to provide for the juvenile court in the estimates," he said.

Alderman Clarke pointed out that as there had been no appropriation for the family court the money could not be provided for. It was pointed from where it was being received. "We have not done it before and we are not going to do it now unless we get going on record," he said.

Alderman Ketcheson wanted to know how much more money council could find if they could call an appropriation for the juvenile court out of the hat so to speak. He very definitely in favor of the family court but are we going to continue all year voting money like this?" he asked.

Alderman Clarke replied that approximately $700 "unexpected" revenue would be obtained from signs and a like amount from plumbers' licenses, making up proximately $1,500 in all. The juvenile court would not be in operation until the summer and it was considered this amount would be forthcoming.

On a recorded vote all council members but Aldermen H. J. Allin supported the recommendation. Mr. Allin still claimed the earmarking of funds was "unconstitutional."

No Action Taken

No action was taken on a request from the local planning board asking that the full minor details on the new sub-division plan for the old people's home property be changed. Alderman Armstrong pointed out that the property had been surveyed and plans had gone forward to Toronto for approval and it would be impractical to hold the plan up longer.

A further request from the planning board for the property on the old people's home property south of the highway be reserved for "preferred industry" was referred to the planning committee for further consideration.

A resolution from the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital suggesting that the location of the new industry being south of the highway would be prejudicial to the hospital, was filed.

The city solicitor will be asked to determine if Market Lane is a public thoroughfare. The recommendation was tauted by the traffic committee, the chairman of which indicated the city would be in the market for the parking of trucks on this street if it were a public thoroughfare.

Members of city council have been receiving pay for attending committee meetings when this procedure is against regulations, it was learned from a communication from the Municipal Board. The letter indicated council could vote its members an annual remuneration of an amount subject to approval of the Board.

Vote Council $300

In accordance with the communication council voted the remuneration for council members to be $300 per year with $5 to be deducted from the annual pay for each meeting missed by any alderman.

The city solicitor notified council that it had no power to direct the Grills Dairy on Coleman Street to keep its horse clear, where as all regulations of the health board had been carried out. Council had received a petition from residents of the area asking that the dairy horse stables be moved to a less congested part of the city.

No action was taken on a recommendation from Alderman Charles Hyde that 'council revert to the former procedure of Thursday evening committee' meetings instead of holding separate committee meetings for each department as at present. He claimed the new system had been given a fair trial and had not been found satisfactory.

Alderman Hardy pointed out that the new system had worked satisfactorily because the finance committee had been concerned while Alderman Brown felt that under the new system committees not on committees were not being made fully acquainted by council business. He thought that until matters were more fully worked out council should revert to the former procedure.

Alderman Thomas and Alderman Lummis felt the new system had not been given a sufficient trial and considered it should be continued at least until the summer months of council.

Also on recommendation from Alderman Hyde council rescinded a former resolution which would have moved Miss Ashton from the city clerk's office to the treasurer's office. It was felt the whole matter should be further discussed by a committee of the whole and that 'City Clerk- Wilfred Holmes should be consulted on the matter before action.

In opposition to the recommendation of Alderman Hyde it was felt that the city clerk's office was "over-staffed" and that the assistant clerk should be given the opportunity of earning his salary. Lights in the Parkwood Heights and Churchill Heights will be taken from No. 2 Highway route through the city, these to be replaced by standards of the new type now in use in other sections in the downtown section of the city. Foundry Street was designated a by-pass route thereby utilizing through traffic on Church Street.

Approve Walk

Council approved of the type of pedestrian walk over the railway on Frank Street as suggested by the C.N.R. The work is to be carried out by the CNR with the assistance of City Engineer Charles Mott.

Council deferred action of the sale of $170,000 public utility debentures pending a joint meeting of the utility commission and the finance committee of city council. The meeting will be held to ascertain if the commission will give any assurance that debentures will be retired out of water profits.

Further the public utilities commission is to incur no obligation or undertake any work until an agreement is arrived at between the city and Ontario as to the retirement of all debentures issued, or which may be issued for the Ontario Power.

The invitation of Mayor McCallum of Belleville to Mayor Harold S. Storey to be his guest at the Canadian National Sports Show to be held in Belleville was received.

The request of the L.O.L. No. 274 for a grant in connection with the 12th July celebration to be held in Belleville this summer was referred to the finance committee with the suggestion be taken on a like request from the Ontario Historical Society.

Proprietor of the Avon Jewellery, Mr. Mazey, appeared before council and presented architect's plans for his proposed new factory building to be constructed on a site in the former Old Peoples' Home property on Bridge St. Mr. Mazer assured council he would construct a building suitable to council and would be ready to build as soon as weather conditions permit. There will be no smoke from the factory as it will be run by hydro.

The required property with a frontage of 150 feet and average depth of 220 feet, was sold to Mr. Mazer at five cents per square foot, or $3,300.

Pass Anti-Noise By-Law

Council passed an anti-noise by-law which will give council power to deal with any request for the use of loud speakers for advertising purposes and will not be left to say on whether noisy wedding party receptions will be permitted.

A by-law awarding the contract for the painting of the Bridge was referred back for further consideration when it was made known that Mr. Bridge could not secure the necessary bond. His tender for $22,000 was the lowest tender submitted.

The plumbers' by-law was also referred back when it was pointed out by Alderman Ketcheson that matter should be carefully considered. This by-law governs restrict competition and be a deterrent to free enterprise and would possibly increase costs to the consumer, he said.

Asks Removal of Inequalities Resting on Indian Population; Case Predicts New Government

By GGEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 1 (CP)—Oil and Indians gave the Commons Throne-Speech debate a Western flavor Monday.

Two Alberta members—Joseph Dechene (L—Athabaska) and Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary East)—called for greater development of Alberta's oil fields and the latter suggested that the great rest reservoirs of liquid fuel still are virtually untapped.

Mr. Harkness then joined the Garfield Case (PC—Grey North) in urging the government to proceed with its projected revision of the Indian Act to remove the injustices and inequalities under which Canada's native population labors.

The Calgary member added a demand that there be appointed a special committee to investigate Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, with particular emphasis on the Bow River housing project in Calgary.

The continuing debate, rolling into its third week, covered quite a variety of subjects ranging from prairie irrigation and external trade to taxes and tax reductions.

Revenue Minister McCann said the government will protect the tax position of farmers receiving cash payments for wheat delivered before the current taxation year.

"Rainy Day" Employment Projects

Reconstruction Minister Winters said the government's "rainy day" employment projects include many more than would give employment to 40,000 persons.

Resources Minister MacKinnon said the choice of the route for the proposed Mackenzie Highway will be up to the provinces.

External Affairs Minister Pearson tabled the annual report of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, showing continued lack of progress because of the division between Communists and non-Communist countries.

In the main debate, Mr. Dechene said the tar sands of Alberta constituted the greatest reserve of oil in the world and urged that they be developed promptly to provide Canada and her allies with adequate supplies of oil in the event of another war.

Mr. Harkness said Alberta's oil industry had received "little attention" from the government and suggested it was time the Dominion took steps to encourage production.

Indian Act

Turning to the Indian problem, he expressed surprise that the government had not yet decided whether to introduce legislation to amend the India Act. In seven months, the government's law officers had not been able to revise the Draft Act.

Mr. Case criticized the government for its failure to indicate at the special meeting if any other salary changes were included in the list of executive estimates and said that Mayor D. L. Storey had answered "no." He said it was disgraceful that certain members of council were but "rubber stamps" in the affairs of the council were doing and were but "rubber stamps".

Mayor D. L. Storey replied that he had heard Monday evening as members of the finance committee were accused of granting salary increases to city officials without the knowledge of other members of council.

"It is too bad that certain members of this council have to learn in a barber shop just what goes on in council," stated Alderman Claude Tice as he referred to a salary increase of $600 which had been granted to City Comptroller H. D. Bateman.

"If some of us are not supposed to know what a "few" of the council are doing then we might just as well not be here," he said.

Alderman Tice wanted to know why a recommendation for the salary increase to Mr. Bateman had not been placed before council on when the budget was brought down.

Says Nothing Hidden

"It is too bad that Alderman Tice is still frustrated by the English language," returned Alderman Clarke, chairman of the finance committee, as he stated there had been no attempt to "cover up anything in council.

Previously Alderman Clarke had stated there were certain street rumors about council matters which were reflecting on him as chairman of finance. He claimed rumors were to the effect that information regarding salary increases had been withheld from council.

"I can say that there was nothing withheld intentionally from this council," went on Mr. Clarke.

Recalling what had transpired at the council meeting when estimates were considered Mr. Clarke said that Mr. Bateman had to fully read all items for his department but had been interrupted by a remonstration that the estimates for his department be accepted.

"Slipshod" Manner

"If as the rumor has it, there was a question as to whether any salary increases included in the estimates should be the $150 cost of living bonus to all employees, then I should did not hear it," said the alderman.

"If there was a reply to the effect that there were no increases, then I did not hear the answer."

The alderman went on to say that estimates this year were done through council in a "slipshod" manner and many of them had been "completely cut." "Now the only one singled out is mine," he said.

Alderman Allin stated that it had been he who had asked at the special meeting if any other salary changes were included in the estimates and stated that Mayor D. L. Storey had answered "no." He said it was disgraceful that certain members of council were but "rubber stamps."

Mayor Storey denied that he had replied there were no salary changes included in the executive estimates.

"You could have known about the changes if you had made it a point to know," Alderman Clarke told Alderman Allin.

"We had faith in the finance committee," was the reply.

"Is the inference that you do not have that faith now?" asked Alderman Clarke. "I am quite willing to resign from council if you are."

Alderman Allin also charged that half of the council had been called together to discuss the salary increases when the "rumors" cropped up. Mayor Storey said he had been told by "one of the frivolous committee as was his right but denied any "secret" meeting.

Duty to Ask Questions

Alderman Duffy felt it was the duty of every member of council to ask questions and regretted that certain members did not do this if necessary. He admitted that the salary increases should have been brought before council in the form of a recommendation but declared that if these did not take place, council members could shift the responsibility.

Alderman Storey pointed out that the finance committee had acted as they felt it was necessary to bring a recommendation before council before the $12.50 monthly cost-of-living bonus had been granted to all salaried employees. This recommendation covering the salary increase to Mr. Bateman he said had not been placed before council as it was assumed that the cost-of-living bonus was the basis of the increase.

"I am very sorry this has come up," stated the mayor, "it is too bad that the alderman hurried things a little too much when we could have attended personally I felt that Mr. Bateman was worth the increase."

Critical of Method Used

Alderman Allin said it was not a question of salary but the way the increase was covered up while Alderman Tice suggested members of the city fire department had been given the $150 cost of living bonus to all employees then they would not have accepted the $12.50 cost-of-living bonus.

Alderman Liddle wanted to know why Mr. Bateman received a $300 car allowance. "If any of you aldermen have had Mr. Bateman's job you would be worth it, then you will know why he is getting the car allowance," returned Alderman Clarke.

Alderman Brown felt that if the old form of Thursday evening committee meetings had been continued the misunderstanding with respect to salary increases would not have occurred.

Salary Recommendations

Here the finance committee brought in a motion recommending the salary for City Comptroller H. D. Bateman be set at $4,800 honorarium for Mayor D. L. Storey, $1,500 plus $600 expense allowance; G. A. Whitman $2,700, and Miss Ann Lafferty $1,750.

The recommendation was tabled "in view of the dissatisfaction resulting from council voting on the administration budget without sufficient knowledge of the chief involved." The above were the only salary increases with the exception of the $12.50 per month cost of living and the normal annual increase for junior employees in the city planning department and for the deputy chief.

Several of the councillors objected to voting on the recommendation as a whole claiming that a vote should be on Mr. Whitman had been voted on previously in council.

On a recorded vote Mayor Storey and Aldermen Brown, Clarke, Duffy, Hyde, Limmins, Thomas, Tice and Wilbur approved of the recommendation with respect to the salary increases while opposed were Aldermen H. J. Allin, H. A. Allin; Armstrong, Latimer, Liddle and Lind. The recommendation carried by a vote of nine to six.

Russian Mission Ordered Out Of U.S. Zone

Frankfurt, March 1 (AP)—The United States Army said today a Russian mission which has been ordered out of the American zone of Germany on a mid-night to leave or it will 'probably be escorted to the border."

An army spokesman said there apparently has been a misunderstanding about when the eight-man mission handling repatriation of Soviet citizens must leave the United States occupation zone.

The spokesman said a letter from the United States military governor, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, to the Russian commander, Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky, said the mission no longer would be accredited effective March 1." This was interpreted to mean midnight tonight.

Army sources said the Frankfurt provost-marshal had been instructed to take action if the mission should not leave today.

There was no indication that the members of the mission planned to leave today. Russian officials, as far as could be learned, said they had no comment on the situation.

Clay ordered the mission to leave because he said the number of Soviet officials wanted to return to Russian territory during the last year was negligible.

Red Cross Campaign

The Canadian Red Cross at this time is making a Dominion-wide appeal to raise $5,000,000 for the work of the year. Locally the committee has an objective of $13,000.

The worldwide organization of the society serving in so many lands is bearing a burden for humanity which commends itself to every person. The Canadian society has had a noble record of service.

The scope of the Canadian organization continues to grow, to meet human need for there never was an era when people as a class are more susceptible to the appeal of those who suffer or become the victims of calamities or of those who may need any of the many services the Red Cross is able to carry on. It is very easy to realize to how many the work of the Society means a blessing, whether in the case of welfare, disaster relief, medical, dental and nursing services, the Highway First Aid Posts, such services to prevent accident or tragedy as in the instruction in nursing, first aid posts, in swimming and water safety, services to war veterans, overseas relief and many other services which the society renders.

An example of its progress has been noted recently, the inauguration of the National Free Blood Transfusion Service. This latter means the carrying out of an undertaking requiring the co-operation of the great mass of the people in support of the Society's effort in this regard and in respect to its other numerous services.

The Blood Transfusion Service requires a gross budget of $2,223,584 less allocated funds and revenue amounting to $776,225, or a net budget of $1,447,359. This is the heaviest financial item on the list of services, next being overseas relief, workroom supplies, grants, warehousing, transportation, administration and other services net $1,088,173. Outpost and Crippled Children's Hospital Services net $1,447,359; the War Veterans' Service $553,345; instruction and research services, nursing, first aid, swimming and water safety, nutrition and Junior Red Cross $510,326; civilian welfare and disaster relief, medical, dental and nursing services, highway first aid posts and health work $447,200.

So the structure of the Canadian Red Cross rests upon many social services which can mean only incalculable benefit to many thousands, really everyone in especial need. What has been achieved in for instance the swimming and first aid service can be imagined in the saving of lives, to mention only one of its benefits. The newly inaugurated national blood transfusion service cannot but be of the greatest benefit, reaching many people at a time when they are in direct need of life-giving blood. The service to war veterans is one of the finest demonstrations of the spirit that animates the Red Cross and its supporters.

Belleville branch is budgeted for $13,000. That full support be given by every possible person is the desire of all who are associated with the work of the local branch and appreciate what the national society is achieving for the men, women and children of Canada. Mr. Leo B. Riggs is general chairman of the local campaign.

In the Near East

Dr. Ralph Bunche, who succeeded the late Count Bernadotte, who was assassinated, as mediator of the Near East situation, has come before the world as one of the most successful figures in a situation which required gifts of a rare order. The success of his in the reaching of the armistice between Egypt and Israel lays before the nations the possibility of achieving the ideal of peace in that troubled portion of the world.

The mediator is a young man and his success in the talks at Rhodes testifies his possession of rare powers for which he found full opportunity in the situation which had developed between Egypt and Israel.

Dr. Bunche is an example of a man using his heaven-given gifts for bringing about an armistice that looks fair to succeed in reaching a settlement. He is a noted scholar was an athlete in his college days, held the post of professor in an American university and has served his country, the United States, in a number of offices. His work in the present office has been very impressive.

He is the grandson of a negro slave — a proof of the democratic spirit in the modern world. This very service he has rendered is only two years since but the United Nations should be an indication of the blessings of freedom He has brought honor to his country and praise to himself and an armistice to two troubled lands with the probability of peace. To him the world owes a debt of a very great order.

THE PERFECT GARDEN

Though still beneath the drifted snow
In somber tie the daffodils
Their yellow bloom is mine to know,
As they in full perfection grow.

Where neither frost nor beetle kills,

I look at roses red and white;
They make a most entrancing sight.

The blossoms show no sight of blight;
Sturdy and straight their stems have grown.

Fair is the honeysuckle vine.
No foe to fear, from bugs to dogs.
Oh, would that every flower of mine
Could, in its season, be as fine
As those they print in catalogs.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Everybody who flies will admit that the one eternally amusing and astonishing thing that strikes the eye is the smallness of cities and towns from the air.

Even the big cities have a hurdied and insignificant look. In the core of them, a murky, blotchy smudge that is hard to reconcile with the pomp and magnificence we know about in the heart of the city. And out from that core, a few rugged strips and streaks radiating—the smallness of cities and towns from the air.

Even the best cities have a hurdied and insignificant look. In the core of them, a murky, blotchy smudge that is hard to reconcile with the pomp and magnificence we know about in the heart of the city. And out from that core, a few rugged strips and streaks radiating—the smallness of cities and towns from the air.

The smaller cities and larger towns look like villages. They were not for the conspicuous highways running and pointing, as it were, you might say right-past them, for the small-town and village for the ease of escape notice, even when you are looking for them.

It is, of course, the bigness of the country that makes the cities look small. On the ground, as we drive from town to town, we have no sense of that immensity of country. Along the highways between the cities and towns are the endless and unbroken additions, suburbs, hamlets, service stations and, of course, the farm houses filling in the gaps. From the air, however, you get the proper proportion of things, and know that these flimsy cities and their flimsier communications between them are as fragile as a spider's web in the heart of the broad immensity of the land.

A good many men who fly for the fun of it, think that their sport is really aesthetic. No other sport gives the sensation of escape into perfect peace. Bedevilled by the cares of the city, they go aloft for an hour or two and see the city in its correct proportion. From only a few thousand feet up, all its frantic motion is instantly arrested, all its noise stilled.

It is only a cluster of frightened, clutching little animalcules in a vast, patient expanse of brooding earth.

Mackenzie's Column:

Britain Prepares For Political Struggle

(Editor's note: This column is presented as an indication of American reaction to major world events.)

(By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Britain already is getting set for the great political struggle which will determine whether she is to continue along the road of Socialism or revert to Conservatism.

Britain has had a fair initiation into socialism — enough so that she knows what it is. Under normal circumstances June of next year will bring another general election. Then the country will take stock and decide whether she will stick to her leftist course or swing back to the right.

Labor has nationalized numerous undertakings in capitalistic Britain. Among them are overseas airways, the Bank of England, cable and wireless communications, the coal mines, railroad and inland transport, transport, and the electricity supply. A steel nationalization measure now is before parliament and the chemical industry is a possibility.

The government even has dared the political elements by providing universal free medicine.

Watching Closely

How far dare the Socialists go with nationalization? The government has been watching general reaction closely and cautiously.

The party has held that the public reaction seemed fair enough. In some 40 parliamentary by-elections since the government came to power, it hasn't lost one. Then last week came an outstanding test in a by-election at South Hammersmith.

South Hammersmith normally is Conservative, but has been held by Labor since the last general election.

Labor won, and set the Conservatives back on their heels.

So, with this political gauge to go by, we find both parties swinging into action to get set for 1950 general election.

Heads or Tails

Naturally Socialist fortunes will depend largely on the success of British post-war rehabilitation at election time next year. If things are good, the government will claim credit, but it will have to take the blame if conditions are bad.

In any event, the eyes of the world will be on that election. It will be one of socia lism's most important tests thus far in any country.

Austria Refuses Yugoslav Plan

London, March 1 (AP) — Austria has refused to accept a Yugoslav proposal that a self-governing province be created in Austrian Carinthia, where there is a large Slovene population.

At the same time it has offered to permit international supervision of her administration in regions where there is a substantial Slovene population.

Gruber also offered $100,000,000 in Austrian assets in Yugoslav territory in settlement of Yugoslav war damage claims against Austria.

Yugoslavia last week dropped her demand for 800 square miles of Austrian territory and possession of an autonomous province. The Yugoslav spokesman, Deputy Foreign Minister Leo Bebler, also appeared to drop his demand for reparations, saying that Yugoslavia wanted "substantial" compensation.

Gruber's reply indicated both sides are making a serious effort to compromise the treaty feud.

NURSING IS SHAME FULLY UNDERPAID

Not having listened to the radio much recently, I don't know whether they still appeal to young women to take up nursing as a career.

According to an official report published by American Nurses Association with the co-operation of our national nursing organizations, the average yearly earning of nurses not living in hospitals is between $170 and $175. One out of every four nurses earns less than $145 a month and nearly the same number, lucky enough to have institutional jobs perhaps, take off no less than —hang onto your hats, girls — one hundred ninety-five almoleens a month." But that isn't all, not by a jugful. The report states that among the 6,415 nurses who have institutional jobs there are—well, the report is not too specific about it, perhaps I should say there is one nurse whose monthly pay is $225, one who has a public health nursing job gets $221 and several who work in industrial plants can hold their heads high even among secretaries and stenographers for they draw from $170 a month in the poor southern states up to $194 in the middle Atlantic states and $230 a month in the Pacific states.

Why, indeed, with such professional nurses, graduates of two-year hospital training school courses, received $95 to $100 a month, and those who then laborers earned $50 a month.

Nurses in those days generally worked ten hours a day, six days or night, and often were on call if not actually working 24 hours a day—were lucky if they were vouchsafed a few hours off duty once or twice a week.

The report says that nurses today work 48 hours a day, 44 hours a week, from .167 to 207 hours a month.

The gall contemplating the study of nursing should consider particularly the plan of Canada whereby the hospital holds her in bondage for a full year after her training is really finished, in order to get a year's nursing service from whomever. That one year of your professional life is a lot of time to a young young woman. You may not see it in that light now, but, judging by the letters I have received from professional nurses throughout the country, the time is fast coming will look more like what it is if or when you attain the status of registered nurse—exploitation of professional services without fair compensation.

Keep these facts in mind next time you hear the usual appeals for recruits for the nurse training schools being broadcast. You and I looked at the matter about the great shortage of nurses they cry about. If or when supply of adequately trained nurses falls so far short of the demand as in our hospital racketeers pretend it is, the thing will adjust itself automatically by (1) making the requirements for admission to training school reasonable—say completion of two years of high school; (3) graduating the student on satisfactory completion of her two years training—and giving her as a diploma her certificate of registration.—R. N. — without any petty political shenanigan about state board examinations or other tricks for exploiting nurses; and (3) increase in pay to correspond with the increased cost of living.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Vitamins in Dry Yeast Powder

Husband says yeast is dried powdered form, and many of the men employed at the brewery take it home. They say it is better than any yeast you can buy, but my friend tells me and that that it is of no use to the body. (Mrs. D. E.)

Answer—It is rich in the more important factors of the B. complex, notably niacin (nicotinic acid), riboflavin and thiamine. From one-fourth to one-half ounce of yeast tablets/powder at a time, in cold milk or egg nog—has proved helpful in fighting against pellagra. So your husband and his friends are right and your friend is misinformed.

Sulfur Water

Can drinking water that contains excessive amounts of sulfur, which is objectionable to the neighbor's water supply is highly sulfurous, be harmful to one's health or healthy enough. (M. J. W.)

Answer—As long as the taste is not objectionable the sulphur in the water can do no harm. I doubt that it would in any good that plain water won't do.

Pressure Cookers

Many of our friends have pressure cookers and seem to be enthusiastic about them. Have you any opinion of them? (Mrs. A. W.)

Answer—I think you have smart friends. Oh, you mean my opinion as to something better. I think food so cooked is much better than the old fashioned way—more vitamins and proteins and certainly more of the minerals, which are largely lost in the cooking water when food is cooked in open vessels. More-over, the pressure cooker conserves the flavor or aroma that is dissipated in the air when food is cooked in the ordinary way. (Copyright 1949, by John F. Dille Co.)

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SOMETHING BETTER

What gives to our individual thrill that comes after having done something better than we have ever done before—or even better than anyone else has ever done it, for that matter. If it were not for the fact that most of our men are forever doing things better, we would have known little progress in the world.

The tragedy of the age, however, is that we have learned to kill people, through war, in the way that delights us. We haven't improved on methods toward peace — permanent peace. And it will never need a scientist to work this out — but a thinker! We have all the machinery for all working toward this noble end.

As it is, a vaster number desire peace than war, but they are not using hard enough at it. And so a cloud of fear hangs about the entire civilized world. Is it civilized? Won't people a hundred years from now wonder about our stupidity and lack of human intelligence? (That is, if any people are then left upon this beautiful earth of ours.)

There is something better than money, or gain in prestige, or power, that something better is a world of happy people, given justice and freedom, and with the opportunity to pursue happiness in their own way, without interference from others.

Take religion, for example. Nothing has so blessed the world and given to human beings so much happiness as their faith in their belief in God. Why should anyone interfere with that great blessing? Why should anyone interfere with any individual as to how he should worship God? Certainly it is something inherent in every human being, and which is given on this earth he may have been born.

No matter what our work in life may be, we should constantly strive to do it better. Edison was not satisfied with one good invention. He kept right on inventing new useful things up to the time that he died. And how we should be thankful that it is impossible to estimate his worth to the world. All mankind remains in his debt. The last line of the brilliant published speech of the late Howard Vincent O'Brien was this: "Lord, I am still but dimly in Thy debt."

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

BEING QUICK ON TRIGGER

Irritation and quick anger can often lead us to see only the evil in people, and the result is that we do not give them justice in our appraisal of them.

It is hard to be just to a person we do not like. It is even harder to believe that a person whose ideas differ from ours is as honest as we are. There seems to be a fundamental distrust in human nature which causes us to suspect instantly the motives of those who disagree with us. Yet how foolish this is. Our individual experience, to say nothing of world history, discloses that the most honestly-held opinions are often found on both sides of serious issues. We may be victimized once in a while if we trust people, but we victimize ourselves if we allow distrust and anger so to control us that we can see only evil in those with whom we differ in opinions.

When we try to be just and are willing to withhold our opinions, suspend our judgments, seal our lips, and give everybody the benefit of doubt, there grows up in our natures a fine fibre of manhood and womanhood which is never possible when the heart is fool of rancor and distrust.

Berlin Airlift Cost To U.S. Taxpayers

Washington, March 1 — (AP)— The Berlin air lift has cost American taxpayers $119,702,000 in the last eight months, the United States Air Force estimated today. The air lift began last June 26, with both R. A. F. and U. S. A. F. planes carrying supplies to the Russian - blockaded German capital.

Mother of Eight Admits Bigamy

Brantford, March 1 (CP)—A Kitchener mother of eight children pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy in police magistrates, also of Kitchener, was convicted although he pleaded innocent. Magistrate J. T. Howard (Nellie) Anguish 33, and Gordon Anguish, 34, of Kitchener. The latter is a single man but was charged with, knowing the woman was already married.

Both were remanded in custody until Wednesday.

The marriage ceremony was conducted in Brantford on February 18, and court evidence was that Mrs. Anguish said on the marriage license application she was a widow, her husband having been killed in a railway accident.

DREW-ST. LAURENT

knocked his water glass to the floor in a sweeping gesture, did not miss the chance to turn the subject to Hong Kong from an original topic that seemed far from that.

It was a tactical situation that he undoubtedly had been awaiting for weeks, since he had been generally expected to try to bring up the Hong Kong issue as early as possible in the session.

On that, he has an old score to settle with the Liberal government.

Mr. Drew's 1943 criticism of the handling of the Hong Kong situation — partly based on his information as a counsel in the Duff Royal Commission inquiry on the expedition — brought him under the defence of Canada regulations charge.

The charge was laid June 23, 1943, and was withdrawn July 19, Mr. Drew at the time was Ontario opposition leader.

Mr. Drew's subsequent letter to the then Prime Minister King has never been tabled by the government, despite off-and-on attempts by opposition members to have it accorded the status of a public document through that method.

The Winnipeg Tribune and the Toronto Telegram published a partial text of the 23-page letter, deleting those portions which might contravene censorship regulations. The Canadian Press submitted the letter to censors but was advised no part of it could be approved.

On March 11, 1948, when evidence and exhibits of the Hong Kong inquiry were tabled in the House of Commons, The Canadian Press carried a full summary of the Drew letter, the letter was not among the 1,000,000 words of exhibits tabled.

Today, Mr. Drew probably will undertake to do that as a matter of personal privilege — the device both he and the prime minister used yesterday to get their accusations and counter-accusations on the record.

The question of "personal privilege" raised by Mr. St. Laurent as he opened the exchange yesterday was one, he said, that affected his position as government leader.

He said he wanted to challenge a statement by Mr. Drew in which the opposition leader, speaking at McGill University Saturday, was quoted as saying:

"Make no mistake about it, we are fighting for personal and economic freedom here in Canada today. We are in very real danger if we deny that right to the bureaucrats who accept the basic philosophy of Karl Marx, no matter what political name they may adopt."

Mr. St. Laurent said: "If the leader of the opposition has proof that deputy ministers or other senior civil servants 'accept the basic philosophy of Karl Marx,' let him name the individuals and produce his proof.

He said a bedlam of shouts from both sides of the House, Mr. Drew rose to say the Prime Minister had not taken the trouble to read his speech. If he had, he would have seen that Mr. Drew was referring to controllers, priority officials and people not now or civil servants.

But the Prime Minister, said Mr. Drew, was the "last man in Canada" who should challenge him over the abuse of power.

"He has challenged the evidence of the abuse of powers. I say no man in Canada has abused power more than the present prime minister.

"I have a particular reason for remembering that this was the man who, as minister of justice, laid a charge against a man then in public office (Mr. Drew) who had neither the courage to prosecute nor the decency to withdraw or apologize for that charge.

"Then, in order that his position would not be exposed, he used the power of censorship under his department to prevent the publication of a letter which would have shown his indecent and improper use of the R.C.M.P. by his department while he was the minister of justice."

Mr. St. Laurent said he did not complain about the charges against himself; he was ready to meet them any time.

While Liberals stamped and shouted approval, he added:

"I completely and unreservedly deny the charges."

Amid another flurry of applause, jeers and shouts of "order," Mr. Drew got up once more to say he would table his letter today. It would, he said, deal fully with Mr. St. Laurent's position.

Says Two Russian Colonels Shot After Jewel Theft

Berlin, March 1 (AP)— The American-licensed newspaper Der Abend reported today two Russian colonels were shot and 200 other Russians arrested after disclosure of a huge jewel theft within an official Soviet agency.

Der Abend said the exact size of the theft has never been determined. But it was reported to include millions of marks worth of currency, gold and platinum as well as 12 pounds of costly gems.

The man who stole them — a Russian bookkeeper — escaped to western Germany. However, two of his superiors — both colonels — were arrested and "shot immediately," the paper said, despite Russia's claim to have abolished capital punishment.

Big Bread Strike Hits New York

New York, March 1 (AP)—It'll be crackers instead of bread and cake in many New York homes as a result of the shutdown of six major baking companies which make 70 per cent of the city's wrapped bread and cake.

"No famines" is expected, however, said an official of the New York State Food Merchants Association, since several other firms still were producing white bread.

A strike order by A.F.L. teamsters against the Continental Baking Company—effective last midnight—tied the five other companies to suspend operations.

The Union seeks a weekly wage guarantee of $65 for salesmen and salesmen-drivers to replace the present $35; a five-day week instead of the present six; a company-financed welfare and pension fund, and an improved vacation schedule. It rejected a company offer of a $5 weekly wage increase.

PREDICTS MOON ROCKET IN FIVE YEARS

Dr. Heinz Gartmann, 32, is president and scientific director of the German Space Research society and rocket adviser to the American military government in Germany. In five years, he says, it would be possible for a group of German rocket technicians to launch and develop a rocket propelled space ship capable of reaching the moon in between 40 and 100 hours. Dr. Gartmann recently spent seven months in the U.S. at the invitation of the war department, and was rocket adviser at Wright Field, Dayton, O.—Central Press Canadian.

Nehru Declares Red Stand Borders On Open Revolt

New Delhi, March 1 (Reuters)— Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, Indian Prime Minister, told parliament today that the Communist party's attitude now can be described as "Bordering on open revolt."

Nehru said that in the last year Communists in India have "adopted an attitude . . . of open hostility to the government."

The Prime Minister said that a large number of prominent Indian Communist party members have gone underground and the government has "a mass of evidence" to indicate that "organized attempts are being made to conduct campaigns of sabotage . . . more especially on the railway system."

Nehru said the Communists were "deliberately seeking to create famine conditions by paralyzing the railway system.

He said the revolutionary Communists had broken away from the Communist party proper but collaborated with them on some occasions.

Sardar Vallabhai Patel, Deputy Minister, said in a written parliamentary reply Feb. 25 that 3,932 Communists had been arrested in Hyderabad State.

91 Arrested in Toronto, Police Continue Drive

Toronto, Feb. 28 — (CP)—A total of 91 persons were arrested during the weekend as police continued their battle against street fighting and intoxication.

A fight in a downtown restaurant in which the proprietor was struck in the face and furnishings smashed resulted in the arrest of Charles Thibault, 21, and Stanley Mills, 22, on charges of doing malicious damage. Thibault was also charged with assault.

Eighty-four persons, including five women, were arrested on charges of intoxication.

SALTING CUSTOM BANNED

South Kesteven, Lincolnshire, England — (CP) — Many families here keep pigs, like generations before them, and preserve pork in salt on the floor. This is spoiling the floors of so many council houses that the rural district council is pasting a slip in rent-books saying: "Salting of pigs on the floor is forbidden."

Three Children Burned to Death, Mother Critical

Shippigan, N.B., March 1 (CP) —Three children died and their mother was critically burned Sunday when fire destroyed their home at nearby Chiasson on Shippegan Island near New Brunswick's northeast tip.

Dead are: Annette, six; Simeon, four, and Jean, Guy 2 1-2, children of Mr. and Mrs. Charlick Paulin.

Mrs. Paulin, who had to be taken to hospital on a sled dragged across an ice-covered strait between Shippegan Island and the New Brunswick mainland, was reported in serious condition in hospital at Tracadie.

The fire was said to have started Sunday night as Mrs. Paulin was about to prepare supper for the family. Her husband was at a village about five miles away at the time.

The oil stove exploded as she was lighting it, showering her with burning oil. She ran screaming from the house and threw herself into the snow while the terror-stricken children watched from a window.

With the flames in her clothing extinguished she ran to a neighbor's home for help but when rescuers arrived the house was a mass of flames and the children trapped inside.

When news of the tragedy reached the mainland, helpers waded across the slush-covered ice in the strait to bring Mrs. Paulin to hospital. Highway conditions made travel by road impossible.

At the same time tragedy struck in another part of the island when seven-year-old Thelma Robichaud, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Rocble Roichaud, of nearby Inkerman, was struck and killed by a car as she played in front of her home.

Sailing on Cakes Of Ice is Halted

Leamington, Feb. 28 — (CP) — Three Essex county youths sailing on Lake Erie ice cakes Sunday had their fun cut short by cautious town officials.

Jack Potter, 13, Union-on-the-Lake; George Sedgwick, 11, and William Fox, 14, both of Albertville, were noticed about 1,000 feet off shore by Wesley Bedal of nearby Harrow who flew over the area in a plane.

Bedal, believing the boys were in trouble, flew to Leamington where police chief Earl Cooper was notified.

The youths, using poles to navigate the ice bed, were persuaded to pole to solid ice.

The chief said that an offshore wind could easily have sent the boys out into mid-lake.

At no time was the trio in any immediate danger.

Car Turns Over Six and Half Times

Ingersoll, Ont., Feb. 28 — (CP) — Three young men received bruises and scratched when the automobile they were riding in rolled over 6½ times and ended in a pile of wrecked metal near here yesterday.

"We got caught in the muck on the shoulder and went out of control," related Bob Connor, 18. One of the boys said the car rolled 6½ times and the other said 6½ but I wasn't counting at the time."

His brother Leo, 16, and Jack Barker, 21, of nearby Centreville agreed with the investigating officer that they were lucky to get out alive.

MADOC

Madoc—On Sunday morning, the Girl Guides and Boy Scouts attended church service in Trinity United Church, when Scout Sunday occurred from the Armouries and occupied the front pews of the church, accompanied by their leaders, Ray Burris and Jack Stanley.

The Guides occupied the choir seats and accompanied their leaders, Mrs. Hatfield and Mrs. Jack Smith, led in the service of song, contributing two numbers, the Guides theme song "Follow The Gleam" and a quartet, "I Will Be True".

The pastor, Rev. A. Poulter, delivered a very impressive message to all present, but to the world's greatest treasure, "Character", basing his story on the life of Daniel. A truly worthwhile message to all and a fitting conclusion to Scout-Guide week. A splendid congregation was in attendance at the service.

Bride Honored

Mrs. Cleland Barton (nee Miss Mary Smith), was a guest of honor at two showers recently. On Thursday night the ladies of the W.A. of St. John's Anglican Church met in the home and presented Mrs. Barton with a shower of kitchenware. A pleasant evening with refreshments served by the ladies concluded the evening. On Friday evening, Mrs. Ed. Armstrong and Mrs. Ross Armstrong entertained at the home of Mrs. Armstrong, the young ladies and girl friends of Mrs. Barton and presented the bride with a miscellaneous shower. A pleasant evening was spent and the beautiful gifts and good wishes received are testimony to the popularity of the bride. The hostesses served dainty refreshments.

PICTON

Mrs. W. Marshall 94 on Wednesday

Picton—A life-long resident of Prince Edward County, Mrs. Washington Marshall will observe her 94th birthday tomorrow at her home in Bloomfield. Since the death of her husband two years ago, in his 90th year, she has resided alone. Still mentally and physically alert, she is able to do her own housework and is a good cook. Because of failing eyesight, she does not do much reading but enjoys listening to the radio, and chatting with friends who call. She believes that one must be busy to remain healthy and has always found something to do.

The anniversary will be marked by a family gathering and many friends are expected to call to extend felicitations.

Mrs. Marshall has a daughter, Mrs. Arthur Benson of Toronto, and two sons, Elmer Marshall in Vancouver and Elmer Marshall in Oshawa. There are four grandchildren.

Cause and Solution of Class Hatred Theme of Talk to Women's Club

"Class loyalities and hatreds, like national loyalities and hatreds are politics. Stretched to a great length through long tradition and experience, and although they may be intensified by propaganda and emotional appeal, neither is born, and therefore, though the Socialist mind may delight to fish in troubled waters, the waters are not troubled by history," stated Dr. Glen Sheriffs, M.A., Ph.D., when addressing the members of the Women's Canadian Club and the Ladies and Men's Club of St. Andrew's Sunday School rooms on Monday evening.

Mrs. May, president of the Canadian Club, introduced the guest speaker, describing Dr. Sheriffs' scholastic achievements which included an award of a French scholarship given by France, Sheriffs is now professor at Queen's University and a commentator on CBL on Sunday evenings.

Expressing his pleasure in being asked to speak to such keen citizens the speaker stated that it was a most interesting experience to discuss matters outside the classroom. "We have been told that man now has means to annihilate the whole human race, but only one of us believes it," he continued.

Social Sciences Lag

"In the field of social sciences which includes history, we are now in the state which medicine was in the seventeenth century. Then, as now, experience in the field of medicine is acknowledged to have been a great help, and at the time of Hippocrates to the present day. Our attitude toward social events is almost wholly without objectivity. We have no controlled experiments. The fact that men in sociology we have to learn by trial and error. Because of the fact other words our national habit of mind is wrong. We live in a country in which individual freedom is held is not much different from some of the early medical fields which stated that blood could not circulate.

Although Dr. Sheriffs has been accused of being both a communist and a fascist he is opposed to both, and to dictatorship in any country.

"A modern state," he said, "invokes the Truman Doctrine and the Atlantic Charter and sits back satisfied. It tried to secure itself against communism with arms, although their uprising was at agrarian reform, or conservatism against the corrupt government in power. Prevention for war, we think, is going to hold communism in check. We do not care for facts in sociology. People of a pigeon-holed as communists or fascists immediately. We must look at either category they are squeezed under."

Find Cause, Seek Solution

The first step to check communism is to find out what causes it, and then try to find a solution that will not blow up the world. Twelve thousand Jews were burned to death in the Middle Ages in history to try to stop the bubonic plague. But the plague went on, instead of destroying the rats which actually carried the disease. The people were the sacrifices. History force has failed to stop the spread of communism in China as it can, and will always fail. There is a parallel here to medical progress. We should recognize some of the wrong methods. We must check our methods of therapy against the social disease. We think if we could get rid of the Soviet Union we could settle our problems.

"There is no doubt that the mere existence of the Soviet Union as a state professing Marxist social theories has given a great impetus to the growth of Communism in Communism. But the key to the communist problem cannot be in this obvious half-truth. To conceive of the Russian influence as the sole factor in the growth of communism means that we must deny one hundred and fifty years of European history, and also to deny that Marxism is a Western, not a Russian theory. More than important is the fact that such a view of the world implies an abject moral surrender to the inevitability of Russian leadership of the revolutionary drive which agitates our century, and commits us to a war of nerves that pre-disposes us to defeat."

Must be Informed

"We should read communists' views to understand what we are fighting for. France's violent antagonism has long been a part of her history, their social attitude cannot be limited to the Kremlin. Class structures are very real indeed in the old countries."

Tracing the history of French industrial unrest Dr. Sheriffs explained that the struggle was the nobles, the clergy and the middle class, were the principals concerned. The peasants were treated as illiterates and given no consideration. After the French revolution the peasant became relatively prosperous. The industrial revolt was in the capitol and were reduced to a state of penury. The temper of moderation was not known. Some of the class legislation today has a modern parallel. It engendered deep-seated social conflicts.

"Rooted in a century of conflict class enmities are today a potent a political reality in the life of France as in the German-Franco conflict in the life of Europe. We can see the latter readily enough; the former finds no place in our international thinking. In our own class antagonisms appear to be artificial and temporary, while our fear of foreign agitation something that will disappear when the situation becomes normal. Such views may suit the North American continent well enough, but applied to France and to most of the world they are utterly without reality. Let us not be surprised that its outlaw our own experience. It is probably the principal cause of our international policies."

Class Hatred Ignored

"We understand national feeling, we naively ignore class hatred because we don't understand it. It has proved to be wrong, not but bullets. Bad ideas can be combatted by good ideas. We have lost China, are we going to lose Europe too? Increased armaments cannot stop the spread of Communism. One out of every three Frenchmen are communists. We must find out what it is in their mind and answer it honestly."

"We are prisoners of our fears. Dictatorships grow out of hysteria, fear and hatreds. If we continue in our present role we will be heading into disaster," commented the speaker in conclusion.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. F. Harbeck who expressed the sincere appreciation of the audience for the presentation of the problems and dangers of social questions and their solutions.

Announcements were made by Mrs. Reid of the coming feat of the Lecture and Study Club at which Dr. Stanley of McGill University will speak, and by Miss May who explained the free chest x-ray which will be held under the Department of Health sponsored by the Kinsmen; and also of the annual tea and sale in April when a tea and shower will be held at which donations are asked for and the children in the British zone of Germany will be received.

Cape-stole Feature Of Fifth Avenue Store Spring Showing

New York, March 1, (CP) — Use of a cape-stole on everything from formal evening gowns to casual evening gowns to suits, as well as the fashionable hemline, are being showing by Sophie of Saks, Fifth Avenue, last night.

Matched with a black-and-white linen afternoon dress buttoned down the front was a matching linen cape-stole. Over a bright blue silk jersey dress for the evening, the silk stole had cutout pedalled trimming in place pockets.

In fur, they were generally buttoned down the front.

Sophie's suits are divided into two types. One group features tight-fitting skirts with wider length tunics. The second group emphasizes short jackets with flared or back-pleated skirts.

Hand crocheted tatlets and stole collars were worn with the suits.

Dress skirts were fuller, ranging from afternoon dress with a single inverted pleat to portrait dresses for evening. Organdie feature was a slender hip flattering dress with an intricate cut. Many of the thinner fabrics are lined with taffeta to hold this flattering shape.

Coats had the same graceful skirtlines as the dresses.

Several evening gowns were presented in the showing, with the day clothes. Both the slender silhouette and the wide-skirted one were used.

Sophie's artistry is built upon use of unusual fabric combinations. There are Italian raw silks that have the sheen of rare tweeds; English cottons which look like fine dark foulards; stripes tomorrow imported laces; chiffons and silks. Her use of hand crocheting with almost every thing from chiffon and linen to wool and silk is usual.

Club Activities

BRIDGE ST. Y.P.U.

Mr. John Randle, the president of Bridge Street Young People's Union, opened the weekly meeting with hymn singing.

Miss Loretta McDougall then led in a lively sing-song.

The worship service followed conducted by Miss Mabel Russell, assisted by Miss Marjory Telford. Miss Mabel Russell introduced the hymn, "O Canada," the guest speaker for the evening. The theme chosen was "Youth and the Future" which was very timely and enjoyed by all. After a short instructional period the meeting closed with "Taps".

Red Cross Homemakers' Service Lauded

The first anniversary of the Red Cross Homemakers' Service was marked Monday night by a gathering of Red Cross members and Homemakers at Golden Acres Home.

This Homemaker Service which provides capable, practical women who go into homes to care for the children while the mother is ill, has brought great comfort to 102 families during the past year. Two hundred and thirty-six children were cared for by the seven Homemakers now on the staff. Mothers have been comforted in time of need, knowing that the family is in competent hands. Husbands, too, are appreciative in being able to continue in employment even though illness has struck the home.

Mr. Duff, president of the Belleville Red Cross branch, spoke highly of the work of the Homemakers during the past year. Their good efforts and their willingness to help families in time of need have taken the spirit of Red Cross in all types of people, regardless of creed, color or income.

Also present was Mrs. F. E. Lewis of the Nutrition and Homemaker Section of the Ontario division of the Red Cross, of Toronto, who brought greetings from the division and gave a brief summary of the extent of the work in Ontario.

32 Branches

Twenty-three Red Cross branches are now operating this valuable summer service and its rapid expansion in Belleville is praiseworthy, indeed. Special tribute was paid to the staff of the communities under the chairmanship of Mrs. A. H. Aylesworth for the untiring efforts of Mrs. J. Buchanan, supervisor; and Miss Hall and Miss Hurley, who are all living in the homes where they are most possible to all.

The Homemaker is a kindly, efficient woman, dressed in a neat blue smock and white veil of the same material. She not only cares for the sick, but who sees that everything is in order in the home, prepares an appetizing supper for the rest of the family, and while doing so, instructs the children to be helpful in the many tasks about the home, and teaches the arts of homemaking to the younger members.

A very fitting and impressive tea was given by the Archdeacon the Venerable Arthur Smith of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, in the Parish Hall, Sooner, to congratulated the Homemakers on their splendid achievements during the past year, urging them to always be homemakers, for there was a difference between a housekeeper, and a homemaker.

Has Big Task

The homemaker has a big task for she has to take the place of the mother when sickness strikes the home, to keep things running smoothly, and bring to the home cheer and happiness, and healthful living. "Child spring" women are the basis of good home today, and a great work can be done by homemakers, high light of good homemaking," stated the speaker.

A miniature Red Cross Homemaker Service pin was presented to Mrs. Jessie Reid, by Mrs. Lewis, for the year's faithful service as a Homemaker in the Belleville district. Mrs. Reid attended a special training course for homemakers in Toronto, last year.

Mrs. J. Buchanan, supervisor of the Homemakers, expressed her appreciation for the opportunity to supervise this service and fine group of homemakers who have shown her every co-operation. Belleville will receive at all times, without which the service could not have been a success, silhouette and the wide-skirted one were used.

Sophie's artistry is built upon use of unusual fabric combinations. There are Italian raw silks that have the sheen of rare tweeds; English cottons which look like fine dark foulards; stripes tomorrow imported laces; chiffons and silks. Her use of hand crocheting with almost every thing from chiffon and linen to wool and silk is usual.

High Collars, Plunging Necklines Style Predictions for Spring

By MARILYN LAMBORN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 1 — (CP) — Exaggerated high collars and deep, plunging necklines to provide "off the shoulder frankness" are the style predictions for spring.

At a department store (Simpsons') showing here today, women saw the neckline dip deeper than it has for 10 years. It's all to create an impression of femininity.

The full-sweeping, full-skirted, empire silhouette also is a style trend suitable to numerous variations, faunty fly-away caps, tiny waists, round shoulders and snug bodices were seen everywhere.

While suit skirts will be slender and tailored, dresses can be full or swirling yardage or pencil slim. The amount of flare will depend on the style most flattering to the figure.

And women can suit themselves on skirt length. Hemlines haven't taken that upward swing predicted by Paris, but generally will remain anchored at mid-calf.

Cavalier, the decolletage effect and fly-away styles are the composite picture for the first Peter Pan collar. Cuff news centres on touches of colored lining or turned-back styles, the wide cuff trimmed with buttons and the pointed effect jutting out from pushed-up sleeves.

Back interest is important again this year with drapes or accentuated bustle-effect gathers pulled to one side of the back centre.

All indications point toward one of the "shiest" springs. Navy, bracking, slate and royal blues will shade into pink mauves and purples. Beige and grey, often studded with polka-dots, also are popular.

Tweeds seem to be due for a come-back, but even this sporty fabric must have ultra-feminine lines.

Pink femininity has full control in the spring millinery department. The romantic picture hat with or without a brim full of flowers, veils and ribbons will be predicted by Paris, but generally will remain anchored at mid-calf.

FREAK ACCIDENT INJURES WORKMAN

Cranbrook, B.C., March 1 (CP) — Workman James Thompson Monday was caught on the cable of a wrecker when a runaway train careened down a hill towards him.

His arm trapped by steep crossbanks on either side. He threw himself against one snowbank and three cars of the runaway train roared by him. The fourth car jumped the track, crushing him. He suffered two fractured arms, a broken jaw, a crushed shoulder and head injuries.

Crash Victim Dies

Toronto, March 1 — (CP) — Exaggerated high collars and deep, plunging necklines to provide "off the shoulder frankness" are the style predictions for spring.

At a department store (Simpsons') showing here today, women saw the neckline dip deeper than it has for 10 years. It's all to create an impression of femininity.

The full-sweeping, full-skirted, empire silhouette also is a style trend suitable to numerous variations, faunty fly-away caps, tiny waists, round shoulders and snug bodices were seen everywhere.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beekman

The 'host' and his wife should do the inviting first

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

My husband has very recently been transferred to this city by his company, and he is a junior executive. We want to make our social way as carefully and correctly as possible, have joined the church of our choice, and this week have moved into a furnished house we have rented temporarily. Now we can do some entertaining, and I would like first to invite my husband's superior, a senior executive in the company, and his wife to dine with us. But my husband thinks this is a bit previous, that we should wait until his 'boss' and his wife invite us to come to their house. Which of us do you think has the right idea about this?

C. L. K.

Your husband has a wise and sound social point of view about this, doubtless because he has had more opportunity to observe the professional or business point of view. It is best, as your husband advises, for you to wait for your husband's chief and his wife to do the first inviting. They will, I am sure, expect to be given this initiative, and will probably, if the circumstances permit, make a social gesture to you and your husband soon. One other important feature of this procedure is that it gives your husband, the junior executive, the opportunity to observe the kind of social entertaining to be indicated by the senior executive.

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

1. In a wedding party where the bride has only two attendants, a matron of honor and one bridesmaid, do the attendants have to dress alike?

2. If the groom wears formal day attire, does the man who gives the bride in marriage have to wear similar attire? In a Spring wedding wouldn't a light gray suit or a dark-blue suit be all right for the latter to wear?

3. Is it customary, or if not customary is it proper, to have only one bridesmaid? There is to be only one usher. Does he walk with the bridesmaid up the aisle in the processional, or does she walk alone and he in marriage, in the processional, and with the usher in the recessional?

T. F. W.

1. The dresses of the attendants are nowadays usually of the same type, but they may be of different colors or different shades of the same color.

2. The father of the bride or who ever is to escort her up the aisle and give her in marriage, is a member of the wedding party.

Rosy Outlook for Evening

BY FRANCES WOOD

Just a few sparkling sequins of the same shade sprinkle the strapless, shirred bodice; a few below the waist dot the setting of a small sequin rose motif. The full length side of marquisette has another of the sequinned roses.

Fashion Flashes

ALMOST A UNIFORM, but so very becoming, is the softened coat dress with smooth, round shoulders, narrow roll-shawl collar, push-up sleeves and clash top pockets worked into the unpressed pleats of the full skirt. In some models this dress is buttoned to the waist, in others to below the waist or to the hem. Fabrics are silk crepe or tissue faille.

FAVORITE FABRICS used for dresses—such as taffeta, faille and surah—are well represented in the new blouse line-up. Crisp silk surah, that beautiful tie silk, in royal blue with woven coin dots in black, is used for a handsome blouse with neat Peter Pan collar and rhinestone studs and links.

A SMART YOUNGSTER found a good use for her collection of jewelled scatter pins. She placed them all around the collar of her suit wool topper, even posing two little jeweled flies inside pressed pleats in back. Older girls use them to decorate crown bands of casual hats.

NEW BEAUTY marks the latest scarves. Gray silk scarves, printed at the corners with enormous red poppies, have scalloped edges to show up the poppy petal detail. Nice hostess to one side and caught with a cluster of matching poppies to give interest to a plain gray suit or coat.

RENEWED POPULARITY is seen for the fitted coat—in everything from tweed to silk taffeta. Mauve, pink and brown mixed mixture tweed is used for a handsome coat, definitely Empire in line, with large squared revers and fans of pleats at either side of back. Two double-breasted rows of buttons at the waistline.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

kind that an artist would rave about, or her figure that of a Diana, is no reason why a girl should consider that life is bitter. If she is smart; if her brain clicks; if she is good-natured and animated, she has a lot of dimpled dollies beaten in the race for popularity. In a roomful of pretty-pretties she may be the most attractive figure.

Beauty is something that all the sisters are seeking from the time they are old enough to stand before a mirror. They'll starve themselves to get it, if necessary. They spend millions of dollars every day in Uncle Sam's domain for cosmetics and pulchritude treatments. They'll sacrifice everything for their complexions —even their complexions. It's wonderful. But that is not the whole story. Charm is a quality of beauty that is greater than beauty itself. It's cheap too, does not cost a nickel. You just use your head and your heart.

You cultivate delightful manners, being kind to your family, the woman next door, the dog and the cat. You wear your company face all the time. You keep mean, hateful thoughts out of your head.

If a young woman is lovely to the eye she may put too high a value on her good looks. To be sure, they are a sort of passport. But they won't always get her everything she wants. They must have a background of character.

Plain Jane, knowing that in appearance she is no great shakes, will strive her best to develop other qualities. As dress is an important factor, she will develop the dress sense. A smartly attired woman, though plain, is a more compelling picture than a pretty one who is a frump, wears dowdy duds.

Beauty is something that all the sisters are seeking

There is the matter of the hair-do, chic, becoming one is possible to any girl. Hair stylists are ever ready to design a smart arrangement. There are clever operators in even the smallest beautyteriums. A tailored coiffure for the lassie who has plain features, as do simple, beautifully cut clothes.

Being without beauty, Plain Jane learns to use her head—as she should—and a head that functions on all cylinders is going to get better results than an empty one, no matter how attractive the face and figure may be.

Grace of movement is a factor. That is possible to any girl who will put her mind on the matter. Rhythmic dancing will develop it.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

'Sauce for the Goose' not 'Sauce for the Gander'

There is, in most old proverbs, a fundamentally sound truth that makes them good slogans to live by down through the years.

That fundamental truth, however, seems to have been left out of at least one of those old sayings. I am referring to the one that says, "What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander."

That proverb especially fails to apply, it seems, in the matter of sex relations, where men permit themselves a degree of freedom which they deny to women. When a man has premarital affairs, he does not consider it the business of the girl he marries. Even if his wife discovers that he has been unfaithful to her, he usually expects to be forgiven and treated with the same trust and affection as though he had never strayed.

With many men, however, it's another story when women are concerned. They want the girls they marry to come to them previously untouched, and the wife who commits the folly of an affair with another man is more likely than not to find herself without a husband if the affair is discovered. If her husband is magnanimous enough not to throw her out, she usually finds herself reminded of her indiscretion from time to time for the rest of her life.

One of the most contemptible cases of this kind that I have ever heard of is told me in a letter from an 18-year-old wife who says that when she was eight years old there was some indiscretion between her and a little boy of the same age. From then until the time she was married, she led a completely circumspect life.

After we were married," she says, "my husband told me about the affair, he had had, but I did not tell him what happened when I was eight because I had almost forgotten it, and it didn't seem important, as it had happened so long ago. I don't believe he had heard about it, though, from any of the boys in town, and he asked me about it, so I told him everything. Now he is always bringing this up and asking me questions over and over. He makes me feel ashamed all the time, and he doesn't trust me out of his sight. As soon as he comes home from work, he starts asking me what I did during the day, where I went and whom I saw. He had had an affair with a girl while we were going together, but he said he was sorry, so I never mentioned it. His secret to think it's all right that he did wrong, and it seems to me that if I could forgive something that happened so recently, he could forgive something that happened so long ago."

"I have to ask him for every cent I get," she says, "and I always have to have his permission before I buy anything. When he goes to work in the morning, I make up my grocery list and he counts up how much it is going to cost and gives me the exact change."

All this, in addition to the worries that go with bringing up two small children, has so beaten down the spirit of the girl that she feels she can't stand it any longer.

But, strange as it may seem, she is reluctant to leave him, because, she says, she loves him so much that she doesn't think she can live without him. All she wants to know is, "How can I make him realize that I love him?"

I doubt very much if there is any way that she can change a suspicious man into a trusting one. It is not only a deep old hereself, but his own nature that makes him what he is. Saying that nothing she does or doesn't do will likely to have any effect on him. If she wishes to stay with him, all she can do is to maintain the peace as best she can by refusing to quarrel with him or discuss her past with him any more. Then, if he continues to nag and abuse her, I think that if she can arrange to do so, she should take her two children and make her family a long visit. If her husband fails to do without her for a while, he might think it worthwhile to change his attitude in order to get her back.

Princess and Duke Appear in Public, Visit 'Ideal Home'

London, March 1 (AP)—Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh appeared together in public Monday for the first time since the birth of Prince Charles.

Shortly after the Royal couple arrived at the exhibit, two men climbed a balcony rail and threw down leaflets bearing the communist hammer and sickle.

One of the men shouted "Houses for all, not for the few. Houses for the working people, not for the rich."

A bystander pulled the man off the rail. The Royal party ignored the incident and went on examining nursery furnishings.

The secretary of the London Young Communist League later told newspaper men in the leaflets had been prepared by the league "pointing out the absurdity of holding an exhibition of ideal homes when 1,500,000 people are homeless in London." The secretary added that some of the leaflets "point out that Princess has a £2,50,000 ($395,000) house" in London.

Trappers, Officials Discuss Offensive Against Wolves

Toronto — A new offensive against the wolf is planned by officials of the Lands and Forests Department in co-operation with Ontario trappers. Decision to give battle to lupus, noted as a game killer, came at the meeting of trappers and officials. The trappers came from every section of the province from the east Quebec to the Manitoba boundaries and from Parry Sound to Hudson's Bay.

For two days the group sat with Dr. W. J. C. Harkness, chief of the Fish and Wildlife Division, and Jim Irwin in charge of registered trapline zoning, and discussed mutual problems, with the wolf taking up a lot of discussion time.

The relative merits of traps, snares, poisoning and shooting were considered. It was generally agreed that snares and certain types of poison were satisfactory when used in a limited manner by experts, but of the trappers present some had discontinued both of these methods as both result in the death of the game, fur bearers and other birds and animals living in the bush.

Other Predators

It was emphasized that there were other predators in the bush, such as the lynx, marten, weasel and fox, and that even fisher, martin, otter, mink and beaver essentially predators. It is most evident that there is a close relation between the predator population and their prey, and the considered remedy to control the predator depends on its value as a fur producer and the game or fur value of the animal on which it preys.

Wallace McKee, white trapper from the Sudbury area, produced a theory novel to some people, but real enough to some of the trappers. Some can be declared, were simply unable to trap, catch or shoot wolves because their bodies emanated a scent that frightened away the wolf and other animals, so that it will follow the tracks of some men and shy away from the tracks of others. Clarence Marshall, white trapper from Parry Sound, who has been very successful in snaring wolves, "is one of the fortunate ones," and another man I know in my territory is the cause of wolves running for miles when approached. Some trappers required the use of wax in which they dipped their snares or traps to destroy all human scent, while others did not need to take such precautions.

Wire, Traps Defective

Several of the trappers reported they had difficulty in obtaining proper traps and the right type of snare wire. Even twisted wire cable, they said, was broken or bitten through while caught wolves. Department officials proposed to discuss this problem with manufacturers of wire in Canada, and see if specifications covering the right type could be filled. Under their proposal, each trapper in Ontario would be supplied with 50 snares.

Present method of collecting wolf bounty was not entirely satisfactory, the trappers claimed. Trouble is, by the time we take a wolf from a snare or trap, the body is frozen solidly. We have to log the carcass through the bush to our cabins and thaw it out before we can skin the animal — and the small of a wolf in a warm cabin is very bad." Some suggested only the head and ears be sent in. Department officials thought that perhaps some system could be worked out whereby trappers could simply hang their carcasses in the trees until the overseer visited the trapline. The carcass so could then be destroyed, without the necessity of skinning the beasts. There has been definite action taken during the last few months towards facilitating payment of bounty and this may be even further streamlined.

No Bounty Decrease

Suggestion that the bounty of $25 be increased to $50 would mean many difficulties. In Quebec the bounty is $15; in Manitoba $10. Both border on Ontario and the possibility did exist that wolf pelts from the neighboring provinces might be smuggled into Ontario for the higher payment.

Reason the entire skin of a wolf had been required for bounty claims of the past was that at one time a trapper could be a collect payment for the ears and head of a husky dog. Some of relations have been fatal. It was "hardly worth the trouble" to trap wolves for the fur as beaver were worth more money while wolf pelts could not be sold. If proper snare wire was obtainable and a different means of bounty payment was adopted it would ease the work a great deal and "we would really get after the wolves," they said.

George St. Denis, veteran Indian trapper from the French River district, declared his success in wolf trapping had been "nothing to boast about" "I get the odd stupid one — and I get to be really stupid — in a snare," he said. All trappers agreed the wolf was a cowardly animal, but extremely clever, with Marshall discerning "the trouble is we have never really gone after the wolf and learned how to trap him," he said. "He has been built up by publicity until we look on him as a ghost animal. He is vastly over-rated, and by the use of proper trapping methods we can bring him under control in short order."

Given proper snow conditions, a trapper can run a wolf to the point of exhaustion in about five hours, Mr. Wriggit told the meeting. This, he explained, "sometimes mean snow hard enough for the trapper to walk over, using snowshoes, but soft enough to sink under the weight of a wolf.

WESTERN HEROINE—Vivian Harper, 12, now recovering from a severe case of frostbite, played a heroine's role when fire destroyed the Harper farmhouse at Hodgson, Man. She and her five brothers and sisters were alone in the house at the time. Vivian led the children to safety and then, thinly clad, started for the nearest neighbor's home, 1 and 1-2 miles away. She carried the two youngest children about half way then collapsed. One of the other children managed to get to the neighbor's house and bring aid. (CP Photo)

Porpoises Giggle and Whales Whoop in Ocean Bedlam

By J. C. Graham
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Auckland, N.Z. — (CP) — The sea, far from being a world of quiet, gliding creatures, is a rowdy place where whales whoop, porpoises giggle and shrimps snap. At times there is as much noise as in a busy factory.

Dr. W. Martin W. Johnson, of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, California, played records of underwater sounds at the Pacific Science Congress here to prove it.

Noises made by many kinds of fish were discovered during the war by underwater listening devices. It was found that some were so loud that they could easily mask the sound of propeller and possibly even explode acoustic mines.

Snapping Shrimps

The snapping noises made by thousands of shrimps worried war time listeners with hydrophones for a long time. At first it was thought the noises were treatrial or volcanic. The noises are so loud that at times they can be heard through the hulls of ships.

Most musical of underwater sounds is that produced by the toad fish which emits a pigeon-like cooing. Most annoying sound is the giggle of the porpoise which follows it with a fair imitation of a "wolf" whistle. Even there is the elephant-like trumpet which is the love-call of the hump-back whale and the low grunt of the seacobra.

Many other sounds have not yet been identified. These include one like the miaowing of a lost kitten, a groaning as if someone were in severe pain, a sound like a flow of escaping steam, and noises like the whirring of a propeller, the chirping of a bird, a foghorn and a motor horn.

Only oysters are true to tradition. To all scientific tests they remain mum as an oyster.

"Forgotten Men" Made Happier

Toronto — Ontario's "forgotten men", the trappers who contribute substantial amounts to the Crown revenue through fur royalties, and who, in the past, have felt somewhat slighted, are cheering and today. Thirteen of them — seven white and six Indians — met officials of the Department of Lands, Forests, Fish and wildlife division, in Toronto and left for their isolated traplines with a song in their hearts.

Part of their happiness was attributed to an official statement that this year, for the first time, 10 aircraft of the Provincial Air Service were now operating out of winter bases scattered throughout the north. All pilots have been instructed to keep an eye on the traplines.

Accidents a Hazard

In the past there had been scant reports of "a trapper being found dead in his cabin", sometimes as the result of a comparatively minor accident crippled the trapper. A sprained ankle, an axe cut, had on occasion resulted in the death of a trapper who had been unable to combat the extreme cold in his helplessness. The trappers were asked to report to district offices when they were heading for their lines so that the pilots and game overseers, on their patrol flights, would know within reasonable limits where they should be located.

The trappers are to work out, with their district officials, a system of signals so that, in the event of distress, the aircraft crews would be able to spot them easily.

Roy Wriggit, Fort Frances, white trapper, and Joe Wesley, Lake St. Joseph, Indian, both greeted the announcement with and security of the fellows out in the bush."

Piquant Flavor To Names, Slang In Newfoundland

By DAVE McINTOSH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

St. John's Nfld., (CP)—Newfoundland's entry into Canada will give the Dominion some of its most colorful names and picturesque speech.

It will probably take Canadians some time to get used to names like Horse Chops, Cape White Handkerchief, Ireland's Eye and Joe Batts Arm — even though no eyesores could be raised now at Moose Jaw, Sask., Medicine Hat, Alta., or Skin Dhu, N.S.

Fishermen of Britain, France, Portugal and Spain gave the coves and points around Newfoundland's coast the names that now are addresses for the hardy people living in far flung outports.

Horse Chops gets its name from white waves that dash on shore during a storm and that are often called "white horses." It is only one step then, from choppy white horses to Horse Chops.

Washeltorrow, a group of rocks on the south coast seems to be a corruption of "la vache et le taureau." The outline of three rocks gives the impression of a cow and bull.

Isle aux Morts, Point Enragee, Cul de Sac and Cinq Cerf come, of course from the French. Most curious is the name that comes from the Spanish. Caplin from the Portuguese. Needle probably got its name from its resemblance to a silver cup, tasse de l'argent. Sources of some names are now lost in time; they are related to a person, happening or condition that prompted a name that has stuck through the decades.

Slang Abounds

Some of these would be Breakheart Point, Exploits, Godfather Island, Happy Adventure, Seldom-Come-By, Comes-in-Dance, Wreck Point and Heart's Delight. Near the last named are Heart's Desire, Heart's Content and Little Heart's ease. All on Conception Bay, the hamlets are sheltered from the main violence of the sea.

Who knows what might have happened to Joe Batt long ago for a fishing village on Fogo Island to be called Joe Batts Arm? Did Joe lose his arm in an accident on a ship? Most likely not. He probably found or fished in an arm of sea and thus the name.

In the days of the "Royal admirals," Devon and Dorset fishermen seconded many bid on a rocky hill near Conception Bay until their ships had sailed for home. Newfoundlers still have their Runaway Rock.

Later in October, 2 months later than most of his neighbors. He could thus spin wild tales that no one could contradict.

A grave is a "long-home," grumbling is "mullygrubs," and sick is "mope and broomsy. Scared is "pig behind the thunder" and flattery is "plawmouth." Hesitancy is "aeramahankin" A good man is "as fine a man as ever hove a gallus over his shoulders" and a thief is "an honest man when there's only anchors on the shore."

Where Do the Rats Go in Winter

(From the New York World-Telegram)

Scientists at the University of Wisconsin are working to solve one of the great mysteries of wildlife behavior. It is the mystery of where the rats go in winter.

Perhaps your only interest in rats has been how to get one out of the house when it flies in through an open window in the summertime. If so, you may not have realized that bats harbor one of the unsolved puzzles of the animal kingdom.

There are, of course, a number of similar mysteries in the world. One is why the lemmings of the Scandinavian countries make periodic suicidal marches into the sea. Another is how the salmon of the ocean find their way back to "home" streams to spawn.

Bats are found during winter months hibernating in caves, abandoned mines, old houses, etc. The trouble is that the trouble is that they are never found in sufficiently large numbers to account for the summer bat population.

Mostly Males

Another great difficulty arises from the fact that hibernating bats are found to be mostly males. The females appear to disappear for the winter. The question is: Where do they hide?

Two graduate students in the department of zoology at Wisconsin, Fred Greeley and James Beer, are working on the problem. Since July, 1947, they have caught and banded more than 6,000 bats. These were captured in Wisconsin iron and lead mines, caves and houses.

The greatest number were banded at the Hurley iron mine in northern Wisconsin. The two scientists found that about 65,000 bats hibernate in this mine in the winter, but with the exception of this mine, no locality in any of these states has a colony of more than 100 bats. Moreover, only a few females are found in any of these colonies.

In the summertime, as many as 500 females sometimes are found together in one attic. These summer colonies occasionally are referred to as "maternity wards," as the females bear their young.

Return Annually

The two scientists have found that females return summer after summer to the same "maternity wards." in some cases for 12 summers in succession.

Another mystery, the puzzle of how bats manage to avoid obstacles in their flight, has been solved. It is now known that bats emit supersonic sounds and guide themselves by the echoes. In other words, bats were the first to use radar.

Whitby Ousts Trenton Flyers From "A" Race

Whitby Red Wings made a complete sweep of the Intermediate "A" Group 1 playoffs when they defeated Trenton Flyers 5-4 at the Belleville arena last night.

It was a hard fought bruising contest that saw the Flyers leading Whitby 4-1 right to the last way max of the third period but the Red Wings came back strong and rifled in four goals in five minutes to win the game and the playoffs.

The line of Furey, Yourth and Ladd was the payoff line for Whitby with Furey netting two markers in 40 seconds while teammate Yourth scored the winning tally on a long shot from the blue line as Ladd picked up his second assist of the night. Gillhooley and Dalby were the other marksmen for the winners. Lowe also shone for Whitby.

Despite the times that the puck slipped past him Don Keays was the best for Trenton, making many spectacular saves. He was also hampered by the fact that he had to have six stitches to close a cut over his eye caused by a flying puck. Brackenbury played a very good game for the losers, scoring one goal. Also Ault setting up two markers to do his part. Nick Sargent played a sound game also but was marred in the scoring column as well as penalized twice.

Whitby will now meet the Markham intermediates in the next round.

The teams:

Trenton R.C.A.F.: Goal, Keays; defence, Grey, Hughes; centre, Ault; wings, Miller, Brackenbury; subs, Sargent, O'Meara, Pendergast, Jackson, Anderson, Pelessier, Sherman, Robertson, goal, O'Connor.

Whitby: Goal, P. Burkhart; defence, Mayne, Herfferman; centre, Yuill; wings, Dilling, Dalby; subs Yourth, Gillhooley, Bird, Furey, Moore, McCoy, Lowe, Ladd.

Summary:

1st period.
1 Trenton, Brackenbury (Ault)	7.37
2 Trenton, Miller (Ault)	12.31
Penalties—Trenton, Jackson (2); Whitby, Mayne (2).
2nd period.
3 Trenton, Sargent (O'Meara)	2.22
4 Whitby, Dalby (Ladd)	15.52
2nd period.
5 Trenton, Brackenbury	9.58
6 Whitby, Furey (Dalby)	13.05
7 Whitby, Furey	13.46
8 Whitby, Gilhooley	16.07
9 Whitby, Yourth (Ladd)	18.59
Penalties—Trenton, Hughes (2); Ault (2); Whitby, Lowe, (10); Dalby (3); Herffering (2).

Early Fishing Record Set at Kingsville

Kingsville, March 1 (CP)—This Essex County town's fishing fleet of more than 20 tugs will open one of the earliest fishing seasons on record when it heads for open waters tomorrow.

Several tugs were prepared to put into Lake Erie today but tallied two goals in the first and second periods and three in the third. The Czechoslovakian team scored in the second period.

Joe Louis Announces Retirement

Miami Beach, Fla., March 1 — (AP) — Joe Louis today announced his formal resignation as the world's heavyweight boxing champion to National Boxing Association Abe J. Greene.

Louis' resignation was presented by Harry Balogh, the Brown Bomber's publicity agent.

"The heavyweight champ himself was not present, but his note from the ring fromo, which he held longer than any other man, was in the form of a letter signed by Louis.

Also present at a meeting called by Green to announce the formal resignation was Flamen B. Adae, president of the National Boxing Association.

Kingston Ponies Organize Under New Management

Kingston, March 1 — Bill Watts was elected president of the newly organized Ponies' Baseball Club. The other officers selected were as follows: Honorary president, Senator W. Ruppert Davies; first vice-president, James De Si Remy; second vice-president, Ernie Swain; secretary-treasurer, Steve Martin; directors, T. A. Andre, Dr. G. Vanluven, Jack Farrell, Arthur L. Davies, Vic Atkins, Thomas Lemon and Wally Elmer.

In honor of the late president, Nelles Megaffin, who brought professional baseball to Kingston, it was decided to call the Ponies' home ground Megaffin Memorial Stadium.

Plans for the season were discussed, the main issues concerning the securing of players and the appointment of a manager. Twenty managerial applications have been received. It is understood that Ben Lady, who piloted the Ponies during the past three years, will not return.

SKUNKS UNDER SCHOOLHOUSE

Glencoe, March 1 (CP)— A family of skunks nesting under No. 1 Mosa Township school has been retarding education for the past week. Several of them have been caught, but evidently the eviction process will take time. The students, unable to resume studies, don't care if the skunks ever leave.

CANADA'S NORTH READY FOR TRAPPING BEAVERS

It's open season for beaver trapping in the James Bay area and Indians in the north have high hopes of getting their share. The beaver provides both treaty and non-treaty Indians with an annual income ranging from $700 to $2,000 on government and Hudson's Bay prices paid in the James Bay area. To the native who depends solely on trapping, the beaver is the backbone of his existence. For other animals he traps are merely side lines. The beaver population was almost wiped out in the early 1900's but now the population is increasing. Sam Cheena, above, is ready for trapping trip—Central Press Canadian.

Sport Shorts From Britain

There's been a lot of howling in Canada since Sudbury Wolves had the starch taken out of them in the Stockholm "world's" hockey championships. Boiled down, it doesn't hold too much water.

Some experts said the European rules were foreign and therefore a detriment, to the Canadians. There's nothing "foreign" about the no-holding and interference rules, for instance.

Ref Trouble

Coach Max Silverman screamed about the referees—when Canada lost—but no complaints were heard when the Wolves were winning.

If Max ran up against ref trouble in exhibition games and the "offending" officials were booked for the championships, he could have protested in committee rooms before the tournament.

This was from before the 1948 Switzerland Olympics by George Dudley of Midland, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. Dudley was told of a Swiss referee who had "favored" the other team in pre-Olympic contests, brought it before the International Ice Hockey Federation and the official was vetoed for Canada's games.

Cupboard is Bare

People wail that Canada should send a top-class club to Europe, but where will she get one? Who is willing to pay the salaries of the "amateurs" and make up lost gate receipts to promote while the boys go to Europe for a couple of months? What team, with any kind of a chance for the Allan or Memorial Cups, will give this up to take a so-called "world" title?

No Bush-Leaguers

European countries may be developing hockey skills in the hockey business, but they've advanced little from the dim ages, especially Czechoslovakia, Sweden and Switzerland. The Czechs and Swiss have imported Canadian coaches to develop talent.

The U.S. Amateur Hockey Association will sponsor the 1950 championships, meaning only a week or 10-day trip for Canada's team.

Well wager there'll be a lineup of high-class Canadian clubs wanting to go, that Canada wins it handily and that there'll be some lifted eyebrows at the call-bys of European play.

London (CP)— Disaster descended on an Army soccer team in a Yorkshire district Saturday. At one excruciating afternoon, the players:

1. Found only 11 pairs of boots supplied by their Nottingham headquarters. One pair had two left feet. None of the others fitted properly.

2. Saw their goal posts sag and had to call on the referee for help.

3. Called for a new ball from the visiting team. The home club's only ball burst early in the game.

4. Lost 11-0—their third straight shut-out defeat.

5. Returned to the dressing room. And found a herd of cows in possession.

Regretfully, league authorities sent the Army boys an "excused duty" notice. They may be readmitted to the league when new equipment is provided.

A brilliant fifth round F. A. Cup victory at Stoke gave Hull City a chance of bringing off a double that no League club has ever accomplished: promotion from the Third Division and winning the Cup.

Hull have lost only two games this season. They have won 12 League and Cup games and drawn six. Gordon Robinson, Blackpool goalkeeper, who played in last April's Cup final is their latest recruit.

That will was already there when, a mere child, I determined to excel at the game of billiards."—Walter Donaldson, one of Britain's leading chalked-cue artists.

New Look dresses, one skirt 20 yards round the hem, swirled round a snooker table in London's Leicester Square when Thelma Carpenter and Joyce Gardner, Britain's top woman snooker players, clashed in a three-day "friendly" match. Miss Gardner said the full-flowing skirt allows as much freedom of movement as slacks . . All British race courses have decided to ban television, at least until arrangements can be made for copyright . . . A baseball boom is under way in the United Kingdom. Leagues are being formed in the north and Scotland is a prelude to possible international matches. Halifax, Manchester, Leeds, Hull and Liverpool are among cities entering teams.

Diesels, Rockets; Maintain Undefeated Record; Routing Queen's University's Puckists

He Hum, the Belleville Senior "B" Diesels and the Rockets Junior "B" squad went through the motions last night in Kingston to maintain undefeated records in their various groups.

The Diesels, with a long lay-off racked up their ninth consecutive victory to defeat the Queen's University Intermediates by a 10-5 score to complete their unbeaten record.

The Rockets junior "B's" pawed through a somewhat tiresome game in the second half of the double-header to nonchalantly rack up their ninth consecutive win against the Queen's kids by a 11-2 count. Why worry, about that last game?

We Were Here

Let the Kingston Navy and the Frylings worry. They play a best of three series (providing the bass fishing season isn't open) on Wednesday and Saturday in Kingston, when one or the other is knocked off the winners play Diesels in a best-of-five series starting here next Monday night.

The schedule ended with the Diesels on top, with Kingston Navy and Nylons in the playoff positions. It will be the second and third teams playing off for the right to meet the Diesels. Why waste that much time, Why not flip a coin? The result will probably be the same. Or is it the game?

Fire Five in First

But to get back to the games last night.

There isn't much to write about. The Diesels clearly demonstrated their superiority in the first period when they slung home five goals with no return from the students. The second period saw perfect defensive hockey when our lads from the railroad scored two for two with the students.

The third frame saw Diesels, egad, five more times goals with a desperate Queen's team for the honor of the old Alma Mammy, did a good job likewise.

Those Goyers Again

Yep, the Goyers, the Meaghers, the Barretts, MacDonalds and the Wardhaughs sang their way to a more or less easy victory. Jackie Wardhaugh playing more or less sensational hockey helped himself to three goals, (the cad) while the Goyers, Varsity, got himself a marker and three helpers, and Leo, the big brother, crammed home two goals and was credited with one assist. Don Barrett, Gerry Semark and Harry Keith MacDonald aided and abetted by Tim Williams, Gerry Moher and Mark Stirms, not to mention M'lieu Plumley in the pets co-operated to ease the victory.

Belleville Rockets 19 Kingston Navy 2

Peter Jones and Johnny Green paved the way to the Rockets Junior "B's" somewhat lopsided game last night to ease their pals to a 10-2 victory over the Kingston Navy.

The sorrel-top from the Northern Electric and dusky son of Murney Green Sr., paced their pals to a win with two goals each with Jones getting the nod with two helpers. Joe Nolan scored a pretty goal to open hostilities in the initial period while D. Semark, Hogan with Jones and Green completed the first period three goal rout.

In the second heat it was Green and Jones tallying while the same pair bested open with the third period with mid-season goals. After that Dougie Bone and Callaghan scored.

And then Queens came to life. With not a few minutes to go the students staged a spirited rally that netted them their only two goals of the game, the markers coming from the sticks of Callaghan and Gordon.

The Teams

CNR Diesels—Goal, Plumley; defence, V. Goyer, Williamson; centre L. Goyer; wings, William, Moher, Barrett, MacDonald, Wardhaugh, Al. and B. Meagher, Semark and Storms.

Toronto, March 1 — (CP) — Johnny Greco of Montreal, Canadian welterweight titleholder, is a 2 to 1 favorite over Pete Zaduk of Guelph, in tonight's 10-round non-title main event of Toronto's first 1949 professional boxing card.

A veteran of nine years' pro boxing at 25, Greco is treating his bout with hard-punching Pete as a warm-up for his match with Beau Jack, former world lightweight king, on March 21 in Montreal.

The Montrealer will probably be outweighed six pounds by Zaduk but Greco's experience has established him as favorite.

Zaduk, a welght limit of 155 pounds, give or take a pound, on the match and Zaduk's manager, Sammy Keller, has posted $500 forfeit as guarantee that his boy will make the weight at the official weighing in.

The Guelph fighter, now working out of Toronto, is noted for his ability to stage upsets. In his last fight here he knocked out favored Harry Hurst of Montreal in the third round.

Kitchener Seniors Dismisses Manager In Surprise Move

Kitchener, March 1 — (CP)—In a surprise move, officials of the Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen dismissed Eddie J. Schlaupitz, manager of their Ontario Hockey Association senior A team.

A brief, one - sentence statement said that Frank Neibert, vice - president, would take over managership of the team which Wednesday night meets Toronto Marlboros in the O. H. A. finals.

Schmalz refused comment Monday night, except to say that "it was a dirty trick to pull." He said he might say more today about it.

President Walter Weber and executive member Art Diesbourg refused to enlarge on the change-over, except to say that it was final. They admitted that there had been trouble for three weeks. Some weeks ago it was announced Schmalz would become manager of a new senior team in Guelph next season. He was one of the main forces in building up the Kitchener team since its re-turn to senior hockey a few years ago.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARYER, Sports Editor

A TOUGH ASSIGNMENT

The ruthless Belleville Gunners Midgets stung by the unexpected setback of the Carey suspension with its subsequent tail, are grimly determined to retrieve all that was lost through the unfortunate incident that fogged them to replay Peterborough and Midland. Today they left for Peterborough by automobile where they will engage the Peter kids in a sudden-death replay game of the second round. If they emerge victorious they will journey to Midland tomorrow where they play the first of a home-and-home series in the provincial semi-finals. The second game will be played here on a date to be named.

Weekend events that exposed the true age of young Mr. Carey caused disappointment to rankle in the youthful breasts of the Gunners. They were certainly cut into a well-balanced, well-coached team that had won the Eastern Ontario championship and appeared headed for the Ontario finals. They defeated the crack Midland team 7-3 here last week to earn a four-goal margin for the second game of the series, and they felt that they could not only take the series but also defeat the proud Midlind Peterboro in their own shipping yard.

Now they have to start over again, at least from the point where they eliminated Peterborough. But there's no point in weeping when the lacteal fluid has been heaved willy-nilly from its well-known container. The Gunners collectively although through no direct fault of their own, have been guilty of a breach of Ontario Minor Hockey Association regulations and as such must pay the cost. The fact is readily recognized and accepted by the Gunners, the management and the sponsoring 9th Anti Tank Regiment.

Recognizing the circumstances of the case the OMHA executive acted more or less generously with the Gunners. The maximum sentence, if premeditation is proven, is expulsion from the game for life with power to deal out the punishment to suit the circumstances. Hence Gunners engage in a sudden-death game with the Petes and a home-and-home series with Midland.

It's a rather tough assignment that Gunners face. As was said before they meet the Petes tonight in Peterborough and make the long trek to Midland tomorrow night. It is inevitable as it appears the Midland Arena with its artificial ice plant is blistered up with date for guests, and the winner of day night playoff with Belleville cannot be changed. So the red-clad Gunners are in for some strenuous travelling and more strenuous hockey. If they come through, they deserve the provincial title.

Lieut. Col. Jack Cousens, commanding officer of the 9th Anti Tank Regiment, RCA, sponsors of the Gunners, told this correspondent last night that he was "proud" of what had happened. While he felt the Gunners must pay the OMHA penalty after the Carey dance, he was of the opinion that the replay dates should be spaced sufficiently to give the Gunners a breather between games. This, however, according to OMHA secretary Jack Christie, was impossible due to playoff dates being set some time ago, and the unreliability of the weather for natural ice rinks.

A RECORD OF SORTS

Bob Ketchesen, fleet-footed hoop star of the BCI senior basketball team had a field day at the expense of the Picton CI squad the other day. When the smoke had cleared and the amazed "Spaniard" scorers had regained their composure, Citation had racked up 43 points, Ketchesen was the forgotten man for the first part of the game as he indulged in "sneaker" plays. He started to pile up baskets with monotonous regularity. The Picton squad eventually had him covered. Then another, But the Ketchesen arm with uncanny accuracy was cramming the unfillable basket with leather at every flip of the wrist, ankle and those swivel-hips. Then the homestory parked another player on the Ketchesen tail. To no avail. He spun, whirled, wriggled with all the abandon of a juiced-up Whirling Dervish, and still the ball corvetted high in the air to hit the mark. It was one of the outstanding basketball scoring feats in many a year.

SPRING TONIC

Aside to the Executive of the Belleville City Baseball League: Incidentals are arriving in this office as to the date of the annual meeting. Picton is especially interested as they expect to field a strong team this year.

AND THAT'S THAT

Here's a guy slapping his hands after doing a more or less of a job of work, and murmuring "Well, that's that." That's the way these rampaging Diesels of ours feel after going through the motions last night in Kingston to win their tenth straight game (Wait a minute, Mike, don't go delvin, into archives) to cop themselves the top spot in the District Senior "B" Loop. Yep the Diesels, slapped a 10-5 plaster on the valiant Queen's U. Intermediates to wind up their Senior "B" group undefeated. Ten in a row, well not quite the way when Kingston Area decided to gamble on a four-point game. They lost.

Now comes the playoff payoff. We were informed last night that the Kingston Nylons "so round, so firm, so fully packed" battle with the Kingston Navy in a two-of-three semi-finals series for the right to battle the meeting Diesels in the croup playoffs. They joust, so it says here, on Wednesday and Friday of this week. On Monday next the Imperial Diesels, cocky-as-the hockey-wake meet the survivors in the first of the three-of-five finals here. The second of the series will be played in the Jock Harty Arena, Kingston, that is, on Wednesday. But why go on?

By the same token, the Junior "B" Rockets took the Queen's University Juniors in their stride last night to "eke" out a measly 16-2 victory. It was their ninth straight win and they meet the Kingston Navy in Kingston on Thursday night. Why, we don't know. The chips are down. The Rockets are in. Why go through this foolish fallacy of more or less make-believe? Let's get into the playoffs. Time's awastin'. Unless perhaps the outcome of the games decides a playoff berth for some of the Kingston crews. Of course there is always the possibility one more always a stickler for "the game is not won u ntil the last whistle blows" that the "Nivy" can take Rockets. But at that, it won't make any difference to Rockets standing. At present we have not been presented with the standing of either league. How about it, Mr. Cook? Why not publish some time in the near-future sheet? Or, better yet, send it to us where all can see it?

TODAY WE LIVE IN A GREATER CANADA

The stores of Canada tell the story.

Smart new fronts and clean, bright interiors; up-to-the-minute facilities for faster, easier, more convenient shoppings modern displays and smartly packaged products: all are the visible symbols of Canada's modern merchandising progress.

Canadian distribution methods are more effective, more efficient than ever. Recent advances in marketing have been as remarkable as those in this country's record-breaking production and the development of natural resources.

The whole vast field of merchandising today presents new and greater opportunities for successful Canadian careers.

"Imagination in business knows no geographical boundaries.

In this young and vigorous nation originality, based on sound thinking, pays off. To the young Canadian who is willing to raise his sights above the conventional, and work hard to make his vision come true, nocountry today offers greater opportunities for success than our own", says Hedleigh Venning.

HEDLEIGH VENNING

began his career as a junior salesman in 1926. From the beginning, he became aware of the opportunity awaiting the application of imagination and creative thinking to any job. A keen student of modern packaging, an enthusiastic and energetic worker, he is now vice-president in charge of sales of Shirriff's Limited, one of Canada's larger food product companies; a great believer in scientific marketing and a leader in the field of selling and advertising.

Hawk Snipers Carry Battle For NHL Scoring Lead Right Down to the Finish Wire

Montreal, March 3 — (CP) — The men who compile the official scoring records in the eight National Hockey League cities now have a lot to do in deciding the N. H. L. scoring champion this year.

Nine weeks ago today Chicago's Bay Conacher led linemate Doug Bentley by one point in the scoring race, and today's official figures show Conacher still holding a one-point edge on Bentley, 67 to 61. The Black Hawks' potent duo are members of the same line.

Both Conacher and Bentley collected three points during the last week. Conacher has 34 goals and 33 assists, while Bentley's total is made up of 30 goals and 41 assists. The 26 markers are tops in the circuit, as are the 41 assists.

Still running third and fourth with 44 and 42 points respectively are Sid Abel of Detroit and Chicago's Jim Conacher. Tied for fifth spot with 40 points are Bill Mosienko, third member of the Conacher - Bentley line, and Paul Bonny of Boston.

Montreal's Bill Durnan, gunning for his fifth Vezina Trophy, forged ahead of Harry Lumley of Detroit in the red-hot battle for the Vezina which goes to the goalie who has played the most games for the team with the least number of goals against. Durnan has allowed 119 goals, Lumley 126. Durnan has played one more game than Lumley.

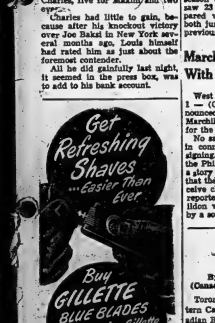
Ezzard Charles Outpoints Maxim In Dull Fight

By CLAUDE WOLFF



Cincinnati, March 1 — (AP) — Ezzard Charles outpointed Joey Maxim of Cleveland in a 15-round split - decision boxing bout here last night, but it is doubtful if he added anything to his prestige as the outstanding challenger for Joe Louis' heavyweight title.

The slender, hard - punching Cincinnati Negro had to come from behind to cop the nod of the three judges. Many of the 14,000 fans, who paid a gate of $72,818 to see the match, yelled their disapproval.

Judges George Behle and Joe Blink saw Charles as the winner by 72-69 and 70-69 points respectively. Judge Charles Conver had it even at 70-70. The Associated Press card had eight rounds for Charles, five for Maxim and two even.

Charles had little to gain, because after his brilliant victory over Joe Baksi in New York several months ago, Louis himself had raised him as just about the foremost contender.

All he did officially last night, it seemed in the press box, was to add to his bank account.

Mary R. Thacker Claims She Is Misunderstood

(By The Canadian Press)

The United States hockey team touring Sweden today apologized for its "conduct" when players fought spectators during Sunday's game at the Solderhalls Sports Club at Stockholm stadium.

The fight started when spectators climbed the railings of the penalty box and attacked Harvard Joe Kelly after he had been banished from the game. The rest of the team left the ice to help him.

Mary Rose Thacker, who last week stirred the skating world by suggesting a world championship for professional figure skaters, told The Canadian Press at Ottawa today she thinks there is the "unfortunate publicity" her suggestion was getting.

She emphasized she had advocated a contest, "open to all skaters, amateur and professional" in imitation between herself and Barbara Ann Scott of Ottawa.

Barrie Flyers Cop 3 Straight From Spitfires

(By The Canadian Press)

Things look pretty bright today for Barrie Flyers.

Last night the Flyers pulled their third upset when they downed the favored Windsor Spitfires 7-0 in the best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior A semi-final series.

Hap Emms' goaltend, which finished nine points behind the leading Spitfires in the regular schedule, helped lead the series 3-0.

In another Junior A playoff game, Toronto Marlboros ousted Stratford Kroehlers by defeating them 7-5 in the final game of their best-of-three quarter-final series. The Dukes now clash with St. Catharines Teepees in the semi-finals.

At Barrie, the Flyers had everything well in hand. They moved into a 1-0 lead in the first period and gamered six more in the second. It was Little Gil Mayers' first shutout of the playoffs.

Real Chevrefils sent the Flyers into the lead in the first period of a three-way play with Hal Hopper and Jack Leschyshyn in the second period Hopper gave the Flyers a 2-0 lead on an unassisted goal that was followed up with markers by Paul Meger and Rick Rego. Then Leckie, Sid McNabney and Don Ashbee completed the scoring.

"Cookie" Speaks

At Stratford, the Marlboro victory came a few hours after the announcement that Toronto officials had withdrawn their protest over the ineligibility of Stratford's Pierre Cadieux.

Conn Smythe, general manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs, which sponsors the Dukes, said: "I've never made a protest in my life on a hockey game and I don't intend to start now. At the same time, when there is a question of a player's eligibility the fact should be brought to light."

However, Cadieux was allowed to play while O.H.A. officials continued their investigation into whether he complies with age regulations.

The Dukes moved into a 3-2 lead in the first period, outscored the Kroehlers 2-1 in the second and tied spilt two goals in the third period.

George Armstrong, Murray Grenko and Lorne Piris tallied two goals apiece for Toronto. Hurst followed up with one. Dinny Flanagan got two for Stratford while Danny Lewicki, Bibber O'Hearn and Cadieux got single.

No O.H.A. games are scheduled tonight.

Tomorrow night sixteams go into action. Besides Teepees and the Dukes, Barrie Flyers and the Spitfires will play the fourth game of their series.

Hockey 'A' Loops Note Attendance Gains Over 1948

By JIM BASTABLE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 1 (CP)— Professional hockey clubs may bog Ontario's sport page headlines, but the amateurs are pulling plenty of fans through the turnstiles.

The Ontario Hockey Association, one of the biggest of its busy season and found its top attractions —the senior A and junior A clubs — the biggest gainers. The tremendous gains over last season's attendance figures.

More than 300,000 customers poured into 13 arenas in 267 games during the 1948-49 regular schedule of the two leagues. Last year, 333, 953 clicked the turnstiles during 258 games.

The biggest boost was recorded in Guelph, a Western Ontario city of some 25,000 persons that didn't have a home rink last season.

Guelph's Biltmores, in the junior A division, attracted nearly 73,000 paying customers in 23 games as against 18,574 in 18 home games played at nearby Galt the previous season.

In Toronto, not always a warm supporter of senior hockey, the senior Marlboros drew 78,800 customers in 20 games compared with 47,381 in the 1947-48 schedule.

Only senior A club that didn't fare as well was Stratford Indians who wound up life season in last place of the five-team loop with only four wins in 40 starts. They found it almost as tough to attract fans as getting goals.

Other junior A teams drew better than average crowds, too. St. Catharines recorded a total of 79,797 in 23 games this season.

The Flyers added 12,000 this season, to their 1947-48 figure of 30,000 while Galt Rockets attracted 49,237 against 42,100. Windsor Spitfires pulled in 86,407 compared with 52,642. Oshawa Generals recorded a total of 83,200 compared with 73,000 while Toronto Marlboros and Kitchener - Waterloo Colts attracted 60,347 as against 56,204.

In the Senior A division, Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen drew 46,483 this year compared with 32,500 the previous year. Owen Sound Mercurys drew 28,027 fans in 20 games as against 23,099 in 18 games the previous season while 51,481 Hamiltonians saw 23 games this season compared with 39,275 who took in both junior and senior teams the previous season.

Marcheldon Signs With Connie Mack

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 1 — (CP) — Connie Mack announced today he has signed Phil Marchildon, Penetanguishene, for the 1949 season.

No salary terms were disclosed in connection with Marchildon's signing. However, Art Morrow, of the Pittsburgh Post Gazette, said in a story from the A's training camp that the veteran hurler would receive close to the $17,500 he was reported paid last season. Marchildon was handicapped last year by a sore arm.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto March 1 (CP). —Western Canada's "blitz" of the Canadian Rugby Union annual meeting here Saturday has this city's sports writers on their ears. The sports pages were liberally sprinkled with accounts of the day long proceedings and writers had a few comments to make.

Football-wise Annis (Toronto Star) Stukus figured there was a new alliance forming within the C.R.U., "one that may take over the power the Big Four once wielded as they sneered through the things they wanted and stalled the rest." Said Western Canada group to "liven things up" in Canadian football."

Big Stuke, recently appointed Edmonton coach, who attended Saturday's meeting, thought it "became more and more apparent how the Western Interprovincial Rugby Football Union and the Ontario Rugby Football Union were sticking together and getting a benevolent look from the Quebec Union on most of their points."

Western Field Day

(The Western Canada delegates had a field day. They pushed through just about all of their recommendations and left the meeting completely satisfied.)

Not a sober observation came from Trent (Toronto Telegram) Frayne who quoted the West's delegates — Art Chipman of Winnipeg and Clare Warner of Regina — as saying in an interview that they foresaw "the early demise of their four-team circuit."

The Western Interprovincial clubs $70,-000 a year to operate. The best they can do at the gate on big home games is $30,000. There's talk of increasing the schedule to 18 games — nine home and each— but that's no answer because each club will be accordingly

Higher Prices Likely

George (Toronto Telegram) Laughlin felt that the top admission price for the East-West final, a boost from $3 to $4, would mean higher prices for league contests in both the east and west although the jump is not apt to be as much, unless for league playoffs.

Ted (Toronto Telegram) Reeve who went along as a representative from the Ontario Rugby Union, wrote that the "Canada-across-the-Prairies business that developed during the Ottawa-Calgary final in Toronto last fall was in evidence at the meeting." "Nobody even drops a chair," said the surprised Ted.

I Say Cadieux How Old Are You?

Toronto, March 1 — (CP) — Ontario Hockey Association officials today are confronted with the problem of a hockey player who appears to be his own cousin.

On their records is a certificate attesting that Joseph Raymond Pierre Charles Cadieux, born with Stratford Kroehlers of the O.H.A.'s Junior "A" division, was born March 29, 1929, and is thus eligible to play junior hockey.

The Quebec Amateur Hockey Association has another document which says that Joseph Pierre Gascon Cadieux, a forward with Montreal Royals Juniors a few years ago, was born Dec. 29, 1928, and is thus 22 years old — well over the junior age limit.

Hamilton Juniors signed somebody named Pierre Cadieux from the Royals in 1946 and Stratford took him over the next season. Everyone seems to agree that Montreal's Cadieux and Stratford's Cadieux are the same guy.

But which?

Toronto Marlboros took a little pressure off the harassed O.H.A. officials last night by bouncing Kroehlers — Cadieux and all — out of the junior playoffs with a 7-5 victory in the deciding game of a best-of-three quarter-final series. But the officials still sought to unscramble their records.

In Pierre's hometown of Valleyfield, Que., a friend of the Cadieux family told a Montreal Gazette reporter that almost everyone in town knew Alonzo the tailor's son Pierre was playing hockey in Ontario under the name of his cousin — Jean Denis' boy Pierre.

"Come, Come"

"His was making good money in Ontario and came home during the summer," the Valleyfield man said, adding that none of the neighbors can figure out how Pierre got away with it.

Neither could the O.H.A. officials. They let Pierre play out the string against Marlboros last night — he got one of Kroehlers' goals — because they hadn't any proof that he was over-aged. Today they planned to take another look at those conflicting certificates.

Marlboros had planned to protest Stratford's use of Cadieux, but dropped the idea a few hours before the last night's game. The only protest on the books was from Guelph Biltmores, who missed out on the playoffs and feel they should have had Stratford's spot.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, March 1 — (AP) — From the magazine, Sports Illustrated, comes this story about Jimmy Strickland, a whale of a football player from Cleburne, Texas, High School . . . Just before an important game, Jimmy called on his teammates for a moment of silent prayer . . . Subsequently the opposing team took the kickoff and started to drive toward the Cleburne goal . . . . . Strickland called time out, commanded his team into a huddle and said: "Some blankety-blank did not pray."

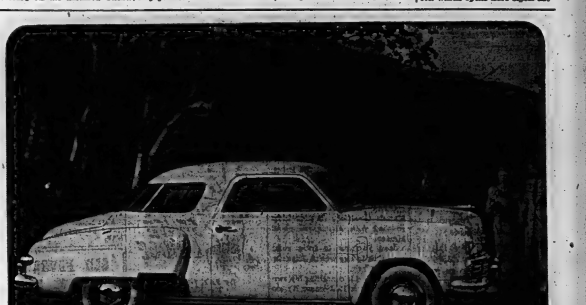
With Ben Hogan out of action, the Professional Golfers Association is eager to have South African's Bobby Locke play in its championship at Richmond, Va. . . . Last year Bobby wasn't invited . . . Percy Grogan, the telegraphed who has been more or less officially recognized as the guy who pushed Jack Dempsey back into the ring after Lefe Firpo knocked John through the ropes, is retiring today. . . . Cleveland Indians have issued the biggest press book to hit this desk in many years.



Cardinals May Have No Home

St. Louis, March 1. (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinal baseball club was notified Monday that after April 1 it will no longer be allowed to use Sportsman's Park.

The notice was served by the Dodier Realty and Investment Company, which owns the park and which is controlled by the St. Louis Browns.

A feud between the city's two-major league clubs over use of the park has been smouldering for some time. The Browns have demanded a higher rental fee than the $25,000 the Cardinals are paying annually and have been irritated by the refusal of the Cardinals to stop radio broadcast of their road games.

The move apparently will result in a court battle with the Cardinals in a position where they might start quickly to insure themselves a site on which to play home games during the 1949 season which opens here April 22.

The Movie Column

BY BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 1. (AP)—Lew Ayres, a leading Academy award contender, is planning to make a film in Africa.

Lew has been talking to Charles Bickford to join him on the expedition.

Other Projects

Paul Henreid's plan for another production of his own has struck a snag. "I have a wonderful script," he said, "but the banks require that you put up equity for what is borrowed. That's the reason there are no independent movies being filmed in Hollywood today."

Charlie Bickford will do a song with Bing Crosby in "Riding High". The groaner better watch out. He did a number with Sir Cedric Hardwicke in "A Connecticut Yankee" and the Briton stole the scene.

Brief Bits

The Athletes

Players seem to get a thrill out of finding a bridge writer in the wrong. My files are filled with evidence of this. Right now is reading my pieces, let my typewriter slip, and wow!

The Bridge World mag recently came up with a comparison. In an earlier issue, one of its humorists had a story about a pair of characters who played north and south in this deal:

NORTH
♠A K 9 8
♣K 3

WEST
♠Q J 9 7
♥10 8 5
♦8 6 4

EAST
♠10 5 4
♥9 6 3
♦K Q 5 3 2
♣9 2

SOUTH
♥A 7
♦A J 10 7 6
♣7 6 4 2

North opened with a bid of three no-trump and south replied with three diamonds. This was an insufficient bid. South made it sufficient with a bid of four diamonds. North was barred. It played there.

This was lucky, the author said. Three no-trump would not make if east laid off of diamonds, he intimated. Ten tricks are all that could be taken with diamonds as trumps, he suggested.

Another contributing expert later pointed out that five diamonds could be made. Take, he challenged, the most difficult lead and see. Assume the opening lead is a trump.

Before reading the solution, see how you would take 11 tricks in diamonds. It will make the deal much more interesting if you find it for yourself. If not, here it is.

Dummy wins trick one with trump ace. Ace and king of hearts are cashed. A dummy heart is ruffed. A spade is won with dummy king. Another heart is ruffed with a south trump.

A spade is won with dummy ace and a third spade is ruffed in the south hand. This leaves only one trump in south. It is diamond queen. But dummy cashes the two top clubs and returns a spade.

East has the king and two more trumps. But nothing he can do right here will prevent south from making a trick with trump queen. This is just enough for the 11 needed tricks.

What you later have found to exist your vision at first may have missed.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a Sunday walk with pop and ma, and ma said, Now that's what I call a perfect figure.

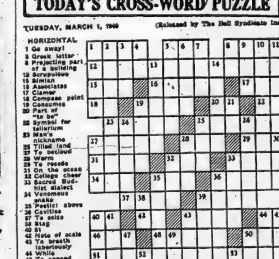
Meaning a big man walking in front of us swinging his shoulders, and I said, Maybe he's a soldier in disguise.

He's probably a professional athleet, pop said. It wouldn't serprise me if he could throw the pavalin 780 kilocycles, run a hundred yards in 4 seconds flat or 6 seconds perpendicular, and cawim a mile and a half without inhaling or exhaling. He's probably the only man that can do a running broad jump backwards, he said, and ma said, My, look at that waist line, look at those shoulders.

He's got well developed feet, too, pop said, and ma said, I wonder how he keeps such a perfect shape. I wish you knew his secret, William, she said.

I'd ask him for his recipee if I thawt it was something easy like taking 4 deep breths after each meel, pop said, and ma said, Now William, you cant get a wonderful resuls like that without some effort.

I'm afraid you're rite, pop said, and just then the big man stopped to shake hands with a little man, and the little man said, How's tricks, Fred? Some time you must tell me just what you do to always keep yourself in such perfect condition, he said.



Oh, it's simple, I'll tell you rite now, the big man said. I just have 4 rules. I always overeat and undersleep, keep away from all green vegetables, and invariably get my feet wet when it rains. In other words I was just naturally born this way, he said.

And they kept on talking and we kept on walking, pop saying to me, That's all there is to it, my dear, you just get yourself born that way. When do you want me to start? he said.

Ma not saying.

RAWDON

Large Crowd Enjoys "Married Clubs" Comedy

Rawdon.—On Friday evening, Mount Pleasant United Church hall was almost filled to capacity, with guests from Roseneath, Carmel, Belleb, and Wellman's joining with the home community to enjoy "Small Town Romeo" a three-act comedy presented by a group from St. Paul's, Stirling, "Married Club." The event was sponsored by Mrs. Harry McAdam, and the group at Mount Pleasant and they served the cast appetizing refreshments at the close of the day.

The pastor, Rev. H. C. Vaclavik, welcomed the visitors and extended thanks on behalf of the group.

Mr. Fred Bateman, president of St. Paul's Young Married's, spoke briefly.

Mr. Tommy Patterson, Stirling delighted with several piano selections and Mr. K. F. Mayhew, Stirling, sang two selections with guitar accompaniment.

Scene of Play

The setting for the play is in the lobby of the Rushmore hotel, in a small country town. The first act is in late afternoon, the second, the following evening at 8 o'clock and the third act in two scenes at ten o'clock the following morning and at eight that evening.

The heavy parts were taken by Mr. and Mrs. Grant Stapley, Messrs. Sid Demorest and Douglas Leury and Mrs. Harold West, while the other five members of the cast had minor roles, but all gave a splendid portrayal of the various characters of the play.

Theme of Play

Joe Stanford, a breezy young playwright from New York, (Mr. Douglas Leury), comes to Rushville in search of a rest and new material to write a play. Here he finds mystery, ghosts, murders, romance, in fact a variety of ingredients. He solved the mystery, paid off the mortgage on the hotel and in the end married none but the hand of the hotel proprietress.

The Cast

Sly Perkins, the village constable, was aptly portrayed by Mr. Sidney Demorest. He was adept at investigating strangers in the town. He was successful in getting Archibald Bunker, he was also the Justice of the Peace—in fact proprietor of the entire police force, the dog catcher and held several other notable jobs.

Betty Brakton, impersonated by Mrs. Grant Stapley, was the young owner of the hotel, and the play ended with Betty agreeing to say the lines that Joe has written for the heroine to utter.

Bud Williams, the village mechanic, was played by Mr. Grant Stapley, who never forgot for a moment that "the fixed cars" but who was terribly frightener by ghosts. He kept the audience in a fits of hilarity despite the fact that the town constable nearly took him to the cooler for impersonating the ghosts in the stable got his ghosts slightly mixed.

Sarah Higgins, the spinster maid of all work was portrayed by Mrs. Harold West, and although she had turned down numerous offers of marriage, she finally decided to marry Sly Perkins

Jann Hastings, the village banker's daughter, (Mrs. Ralph Vandervoort), and Miss Aldrich, the village school teacher, (Mrs. William Wilkins,) made a few appearances.

Morton Kendall, the village miser, was portrayed by Mr. Harold Wells, reeve of Stirling, who was anxious to foreclose the mortgage of the hotel and was later dubbed the villain.

L. B. Loyds, a mysterious guest, who pretended to be deaf, was skillfully acted by Mr. Wilbur Wilkins, and later he turned out to be a city detective.

Miss Yates, another mysterious guest, with a bad heart, was portrayed by Mrs. Robert Leury and later she was identified as a notorious jewel thief.

The play was full of complications and mystery and kept the audience in tense excitement, and hilarity until the last scene when everything turned out well in reply for all concerned.

This was the seventh time the play had been presented and the group have seven more engagements for March.

BAR MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

IT FLIES THROUGH THE AIR—Snowboats, or "Scoots" as they are better known around the Georgian Bay area, are a far cry from the snowmobiles of old. A popular form of transportation during the winter months, these scoots travel along the ice or through open water or even through the air as this one is doing. Of course, they only travel in the air when the ice is rough and when they hit bumps travelling close to 100 miles an hour. Powered by discarded aircraft engines most scoots hold up to five persons, are 14 feet long and six feet wide. Steering is done by a tail fin. For most of the 30,000 residents of the Georgian Bay area, they are the only transportation available during the winter, (CP Photo)

"They Knew What They Wanted" Brings Back Memories to Broadway

By PAT USSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Feb. 26 (CP)— A whiff of nostalgia is seeping through the Broadway theatre district with the return of Sidney Howard's play, "They Knew What They Wanted."

In the current revival Paul Muni and Carg Stone play the leading roles in this drama of forgiveness. To many old-timers it brought back memories of the original production in 1924, with Richard Bennett and Pauline Lord as the leading players.

Perhaps it had more punch in that appearance. It ran for 21 weeks and was a Pulitzer-prize-winning play. But the current version, at the Music Box Theatre, is intelligently done and its blend of pathos and humor is calculated to hold an audience.

Muni exacts leading role with considerable gusto, perhaps over-acting a trifle. Miss Stone gives a nice, sympathetic performance as any.

"Happy Times" Sponsor

Latest word on the projected stage adaption of "The Happy Time" is that it will be sponsored by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II. The notable team plans to produce the theatrical version of Robert Fontaine's entertaining story of life in Ottawa in the fall. Daniel O'Herlihy, who has played Abbey Theatre and Dublin Gate Theatre companies, will make his Broadway debut as Charles Dickens in "The Ivy Green." The play by Mervyn Nelson, starring Judith Evelyn and Hurd Hatfield, opens March 4 in London, Ont.

Too Much Symbolism

The Abbe Practical Workshop

Traffic Police Toot Whistles

Patrolmen of the city police force turned whistle tooters Monday as traffic lights at the intersection of Front and Bridge streets were temporarily out of commission while a new set of lights were being installed.

Police indicated some time ago that the timing mechanism of the lights at the main intersection was worn and would have to be replaced before lights at the three intersections on Bridge Street could be properly synchronized.

Thus when new standards for the lights were set in the side-walk an entirely new set of lights was decided on. Workmen today were installing the new lights and cutting them in for operation. In the meantime traffic is being directed by police.

A school for aspiring actors has just staged a play about a blind and disillusioned war veteran, called "Nicholas Nineteen Midnight." It follows the veteran through an evening in which he alternates between bitterness and happiness, finally deciding to commit suicide. But a fast-talking poet who has befriended him persuades him to think it over. The meaning of the play, by Phil Bard, is rather obscured by the author's use of symbolic characters. It tends to drag and bog down in discussion at times. But it is an interesting experiment. William Kester gives a creditable performance as the angry veteran.

PICTON

Robert Kinney Picton, Dies

Picton—For many years identified with the canning industry in Prince Edward County, Robert Kinney died at his home Saturday night. He had been ill some time. The funeral was held here this afternoon with encouragment in Glenwood vault. Rev. A. E. McCulcheon conducted the service.

Mr. Kinney was born in the township of North Marysburgh 82 years ago. For many years he farmed at Elmbrook east of Picton. Moving to Picton, he became associated with his brother, Thos. W. Kinney in the operation of the Kinney Canning Co., here. He retired five years ago.

Mr. Kinney is survived by his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Edward Rolston and a brother, T. W. Kinney who is spending the winter in Florida.

Local Senator Oliver C. Walker yesterday received this letter from Dale:

"I am about to grow up to be an old maid out here on the farm, for even though you've passed has a jeep, he is unable to get through the mud in my house."

"Twice last year my boy friend has been obliged to stand me up so perhaps you might use your influence in helping Dan Cupid along, for with better road conditions prince, charming could always get here."

Sympathetically, Walker replied:

"You can rest assured that I will do my outmost to make this proposed legislation a reality and therefore, solve your problem."

Pasadena, Calif. (AP) — For three months a mother fox terrier and her seven pups lived anything but a dog's life.

Bill Glasby and Richard Diaz, who operate the two fancy dog hostelries, filed suit yesterday alleging Mrs. Vestal L. Fisher of Los Angeles failed to pay bills totalling $3,210 charged by her pets for room, board, shampoos and pedicures.

The dogs were evicted last Feb. 2, and taken to less fashionable quarters across the street from the Town House for Dogs—the Pasadena Humane Society's pound. All but one of the animals already have been adopted.

SPRING COMES TO LONDON

The first taste of spring in London brings the lunch-time crowds to parkies and open spaces. Here London crowds enjoy a break of sunshine and a cup of tea at Lincoln's Inn Field.—Reuterphoto From Central Press Canadian.

"Performance? How do you mean?"

He said, "Let's find a place to sit down. I want to talk to you. You've been evading me all day."

"We can talk when we get home, look, Norman, to your left . . . we call those tall elms the sentinels."

His good nature returned when they had a growing fire in the fireplace, cocktails on a tray beside the hearth.

He sat down beside her on the lounge and took her hand in his. "This is the moment to make the moment of reckoning," he said. "Rosalie, will you marry me?"

Panic assailed Rosalie. She said, "Norman, could you keep me in the manner within I have been accustomed?" She said it hoping to inject a light note.

He had the grace to flush. "I've been thinking about that, darling. I've been thinking about all the things we've said to each other since we've met. And how my foolish pride almost separated us at first."

Rosalie said interestedly, "You have? What things?"

He looked hurt. "From her. "I can't do very much for you at first, Rosalie, but I'll have a few dollars to get started on. Then, if we have to use your money, I'll make it up to you."

A peculiar light came into Rosalie's eyes. "I don't think I understand, Norman."

He turned to her and grasped both her hands. "Rosalie, I want to take you away from this. Back to New York where you belong!"

"But I don't belong there."

"You do! I've seen what a brave show you put on here, pretending to be part of it. I'm not proud, Rosalie, we'll have a beautiful apartment in New York. We'll entertain. We'll go places."

"On my money?" she asked. But she asked it gently.

"Perhaps not. I told you I had a surprise for you. I'm going to make a nice commission and we can start on that."

There was a purr in Rosalie's voice. If Norman had known her better, he would have been cautious after hearing it. She said, "A nice commission? On what?"

He hesitated a moment, then he said, "Rosalie, I wanted to do something for you. Men know more about these things than girls do. Girls are inclined to be sentimental. I . . . well, what would you think if I were to buy the Kelsey farm?"

Rosalie blinked. She started to say something, then she swallowed hard. Finally she said, "I'm sure I don't know what I'd say, but, Norman, somehow I can't imagine . . . what would you do with it?"

Norman poured himself a cocktail and drained it quickly. "Rosalie, baby, your Uncle Norman is a business man. I wouldn't buy it for myself. I'm going to bid on it for the New England Central Dairy Syndicate. I bet you I can get it for five thousand dollars."

He didn't understand. "If I can't, the syndicate has ordered me to bid up to fifteen thousand. That ought to stop them. But I can get it for five thousand. These hicks have no idea what it's worth. You watch me!"

Rosalie was watching him. If he'd had hooves and horns, she wouldn't have been any more horrified.

A single light glowed warmly along Main street in the cities of Judge Hanford above the post office. Feathery snowflakes clung to the glass in the old - fashioned windows, obstructing the view of the girl who peered out anxiously as the bells of the red brick church across the way chimed the hour for Sunday evening services. She turned quickly to face the door as heavy footfalls sounded on the bare wooden stairs.

Whisper In The Night

BY MARIE BLIZARD

Norman's arm about her slender waist pressed her gently to him. Somehow hand caressed her hair, and Norman's voice said tenderly, "You're not surprised, are you, darling? I fell in love with you when I first saw you coming toward me in that Rankin that first night."

That first night. Rosalie remembered how handsome he was then, felt again the way her breath had grown short. She remembered all the things she had thought that night after leaving him. Remembered how desolate she had been the next day when she thought she was not going to see him. Remembered that if she had dreamed he would ever ask her to marry him, she would have died of ecstasy.

Yet now, she could not speak all feelings, all words had deserted her. She didn't feel happy She didn't feel sad. Perhaps, she hoped, it was because she was so surprised.

She drew away. "I can't answer you now, Norman. Please let me think about it a little. I . . . don't . . . seem . . . to know how I feel".

He let her go then. "Tomorrow, sweet . . . I'll give you only until tomorrow."

It was after three when the last of her guests left and she felt too let down, too sleepy to think then. It was from a muddled dream in which Terry and Norman and Marjorie Upham were involved that the aroma of coffee and country sausage woke her a few hours later.

Did she or did she not want to marry Norman.? And, if she did not, what was the matter with her? She had been in love with Norman. No girl could feel as wildly happy as she had felt with him those first weeks in New York. Or more importantly, no girl could feel so desperately unhappy over a man she was not in love with as she had felt when she feared she could not have him.

Marion came to her door, "Up yet, sleepy-head?"

"I'm getting dressed." Rosalie called back. "Is Norman up yet?"

"He's gone out for a walk with Tom. There was some property he wanted to look at. He's very nice, Rosalie."

Rosalie said, "Umm . . . I'll be right down."

Brushing her hair dreamily, her thoughts when back to where they had been interrupted. Love, she decided, was something that was beyond her. Romance was right down her alley. But romance hadn't done her any good. Because she was too eager to grasp it. Cecil and then Charles had been romance to her. Also Norman, she added. Marriage with Norman . . .

"Oh, precious!" Rosalie snatched at the little figure which promptly wriggled out of her arms.

"We had a party," he told her.

"Did you, Tommy? Tell Auntie Rosalie about it."

"We had ice cream," he said impressively.

Rosalie thought, If I don't get married, I'll just be old maid auntie for the rest of my life. No one else has ever actually asked me to marry him.

"Terry! Terry had taken it for granted that she would marry him. And Terry, on the same basis, had decided that the understanding was over.

She said, "Tommy, run along, darling. Auntie Rosalie has got to get dressed."

Rosalie dressed in a hurry. If she could have a little talk with Marion before Norman and Tom got back, Marion would be able to advise her.

"My, but you're early birds," she said brightly, without looking at Norman.

"Who'd want to sleep on a morning like this?" Norman asked with a buzz she had not heard before.

Marion came in with a plate of wheat cakes in her hand. "You really like the country, don't you, Mr. Carteret?"

Norman rubbed his hands together. "Like it! I think it's wonderful. Tom and I have been looking over some of the farm country and . . ."

Tom said, "We took the car. Norman wanted to see the Kelsey farm."

Rosalie drew her brows together in a puzzled frown. Norman's eyes saw the frown. He said, "I was interested from what you told me, Rosalie. I'm afraid I don't agree with all your enthusiasm. It looked pretty small stuff to me."

"Look here, Carteret," Tom leaned across the table, "those buildings just need a little paint and then back in order. It's what's inside that makes the property valuable."

Rosalie said, hastily, "Marion, pass Norman the syrup . . . Tom, what are your plans for today?"

Tom said, "What' . . . er . . . why . . ."

Marion smiled at Rosalie, "We are going to take the children down to see the ducks at the Lyons place. I don't expect we'll be back before six."

"I might ring up the Gaynors and ask them over for some bridge Norman." Rosalie was thinking of a long afternoon and evening ahead and rather dreading the time alone with him.

"I'm bored with bridge, Rosalie. Let's take that walk you've been promising me."

"Rosalie," Tom interrupted, "before I forget it, Judge Hanford telephoned you this morning. Wants you to call him back this afternoon."

Rosalie said, "I'll call him now. Do you know what he wants?"

"He isn't in now. He's gone to Danbury. And he didn't say what he wanted."

Rosalie forgot about the judge until late that night when he came prominently into her thoughts.

The day had turned suddenly grey and cold. Giving Norman a sidewise glance, Rosalie saw that his face looked a little blue, his shoulders were hunched under the upturned collar of his coat. "You dirty slickers are really sissies, aren't you, Norman?"

He pressed her arm to his side and pushed on. They'd been walking for two hours. "You can not say I'm not a good sport about it. Or that I'm not giving a fine

GANDER AT A SHEEPISH-GOOSE

There's a wild goose chase every day at the Livingston, N.J. farm of Bob Baer, who, for lack of a sheep dog, employs a wild gander named Flatfoot to lead his flock of Hampshire sheep in for feeding Flatfoot, who flew in out of nowhere on the Baers three years ago, stays with the sheep constantly and as "might be gathered from the picture, has them behaving like lambs. At feeding time he leads the galloping sheep toward the narrow gate into the barnyard, jumping aside just as they reach it. And when he's cooped up in a shed with his charges during bad weather, Flatfoot finds amusement And when he's cooped up in a shed with his charges during bad weather, Flatfoot finds amusement by riding them around the enclosure. Baer and his wife have been assured that he's a wild gander, but the only trace of wildness left in Flatfoot is his refusal to let even the Baers touch him.—Central Press Canadian.

PICTON

Picton Seeks Paving Redress From Department

Picton—A delegation from the town of Picton was in Toronto today, meeting Hon. George Doucett, Ontario Minister of Highways, at the parliament buildings. The topic under discussion was the repaving of streets in town which have been torn up as a result of the installation of a sewerage system. The delegation asked assistance by the department in repaving these streets which are part of the Ontario highway system. The town has spent three quarters of a million dollars on the installation of the system which is nearing completion. At the present time, the streets resemble the worst country roads after a spring break-up.

Broadway Actors Act Each Day In Hospitals

By MARK BARRON

New York, March 1 — (AP) — Moving out early each morning from a Broadway theatre is a troupe of 12 actors, accompanied by a concert accordionist. The group is presenting a variety program of entertainment, including a performance of John Golden's famous comedy, "Turn to the Right," as a part of the veterans' hospital camp shows program.

The actors and actresses who participate in these shows sometimes take a furlough to do a stage or screen role, but when they are finished they hurry back to veterans-hospital troupe.

Carl Abraham, veteran Broadway manager who is guiding this unit, says they solved many of their problems in playing the hospitals by getting the veterans to participate both in performances and in such things as building scenery.

"When 'Turn to the Right' started on tour," he said, "we found that the performance in the hospital auditorium was not enough. We found that the men confined to the wards and sick beds, often a major part of our potential audience, were frequently the ones most in need of entertainment, of the sight and sound of people from the 'outside.'

Learn Acting from Patients

"The actors began to adapt their theatrical skills to the demands of hospital existence. They learned about performing in wards among men too ill to applaud. They played before beds too heavy with traction structures.

"For the variety and revue units, the ward shows were not too great a problem. With a cast of all-legitimate players, a routine and individual song, dance and comedy acts was not possible.

One highly popular audience participation feature is a bold quizdrama skit in which Dorothy Martin plays the heroine, and the parts of the hero, fellow and the villain are taken by patients in the wards.

The casting is done by the patients themselves, Abraham said, and frequently the most reluctant actors make the most in excellent performances. Often so many of the patients are so eager to perform, that the 15-minute playlet is repeated three or four times before Miss Martin is allowed to proceed to another ward.

By splitting his players into several groups along with the one or two musicians in the troupe, Abraham said, and rotating them through the wards, it is now possible to cover 18 wards in a day. In addition there is the auditorium performance in the evening.

6 PERSONS LEAP TO SAFETY AT FIRE

March Storms Batter Europe, 28 Persons Killed

Property Loss Hits Millions, Surge in North Sea is Felt

London, March 2 — (CP)—The March wind blew into the British Isles and Europe yesterday, snuffed out at least 28 lives and caused property damage running into the millions.

Twenty-five persons were killed in the ruins of war - damaged buildings in Western Germany.

The Polish freighter Katowice sank in the North Sea, the British coaler Margrata in the harbor of Banff, Scotland, and barges sank at two spots in the Thames estuary.

The Berlin air lift stopped for several hours. Electricity was cut off in parts of southern Italy and telephone service in parts of England.

Heavy gale damage to Baltic ports in the Soviet zone of Germany was reported by the Russian-licensed news agency.

London's Blackwall tunnel under the Thames and Chatham's Strood tunnel under the Medway were closed because of flood waters.

Rising waters breached sea walls, particularly on the east coast of England, and penetrated inland at many points.

Sea Wall Damaged

In low-lying Lincolnshire, waves battered the clay sea walls on the crest of the highest tide—the tide in 40 years. A six-mile sea wall broke in Lincolnshire and Boston built at a cost of £50,000 ($200,000) to reclaim 1,500 acres crumbled under 20-foot waves.

In London, the flood danger from the Thames appeared to be ready to abate but riverside dwellers in suburban Putney and Barnes prepared for the worst, fearing that the waters would swirl into their homes for the second time in 24 hours.

As usual, Britain's weather had its quirks.

While wind and water did its damage, snow fell last night in Margate and Southend, on the southeast coast, and in some parts of Yorkshire, 150 miles north.

Southend had "summer-holiday weather — bright sunshine and clear skies," Pelleter Miller-Jones reported.

What people are already calling "the great March gale" descended on Britain after one of the mildest Februarys in history.

An Admiralty tidal expert attributed the overflow of the Thames to a bulge in the North Sea caused by continual high winds which built up the water-level. There was no official estimate of the damage but individuals and businesses were in losses up to a total of £100,000.

Brisbane, March 2 — (Reuters) — A 90-mile-an-hour cyclone accompanied by torrential rain struck three Queensland towns — Gladstone, Bundaberg and Maryborough — today, causing damage to property and casualty injuries.

Police rescued injured and elderly people from wrecked houses in Gladstone. In Maryborough, flood waters were two feet high in the streets.

Toronto, March 2 (CP) — A donation which developed into a gift of $100,000 for accelerated yesterday at Toronto General Hospital when a plaque was unveiled marking establishment of a full-time chair of medicine at the University of Toronto by Sir John and Lady Eaton. John David Eaton, son of Sir John and Lady Eaton, unveiled the plaque.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, March 2 (CP)—Synopsis: It is clear throughout southwestern Ontario this morning with temperatures ranging from 8 to 15 above zero. In northern Ontario and southward through the state of Michigan, light snow is falling. This band of snow moving eastward will bring light snowfalls to most sections of the province by evening.

Hydro May Lift Rates on Power To Municipalities

Toronto, March 2 — (CP) — The Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario may increase rates on the power it sells to municipal commissions, H. H. Saunders, chairman, said Tuesday.

In an address to the Ontario Municipal Electric Association and the Association of Ontario Municipal Electric Utilities, Mr. Saunders said: "Hydro officials are now engaged in a detailed study as to how rates to determine whether or not revision should be made. We are confident that within a few weeks we shall be able to advise the municipal associations."

Later in an interview the chairman said if rates did go up it would be up to local commissions to decide whether the increases should be passed on to individual consumers.

Mr. Saunders said cost of power on a kilowatt - hour basis had been reduced in Ontario in the last 19 years. The decrease was all the greater because the 1837 dollar represented only 90 cents now. On the other hand, hydro costs had increased, wages alone having risen 71 per cent in the period.

H. H. Leeming, in charge of conversion in the central and southwestern power areas of the province from 25-cycle to 60-cycle frequency, said the job may be completed in 10 years instead of the 15 estimated at first. By the end of this year the conversion job would be completed in Scarboro, suburb on the eastern outskirts of Toronto.

$100,000 Damage In Kingston Fire

Kingston, March 2 (CP) — Damage estimated at $100,000 resulted last night when fire of an unknown origin gutted a large storage and office building under construction on the north section of the city.

Mr. Inspector Sullivan, secretary of the firm that owned the building stated that $50,900 worth of construction equipment stored in the garage at the rear of the building would be seriously damaged by the intense heat.

CENTENARIAN DIES

Newmarket, March 2 (CP) — Mrs. James Sutherland, York Township pioneer, died at the second centenarian ever to live in this community 25 miles north of Toronto, today celebrated her 101st birthday. The other centenarian was Mrs. Elizabeth Nicol, former Chief Justice of Ontario

CANADIAN TRADE REACHES HIGHEST MARK IN HISTORY

Placed Before Commons Five-Point Program

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 2 — (CP) — A five-point program for stimulating Canadian trade with the United Kingdom was placed before the Commons yesterday by young C.C.F. member from the Tablelands of Saskatchewan.

He was Elon Thatcher, 31-year-old member for Moose Jaw, who chided Trade Minister Howe for pushing the export future of Canada's trade potentialities and asked how the Dominion was to retain United Kingdom markets.

Mr. Howe, preceding him in the speaking list in the lengthening Commons debate, reviewed the Canadian trade, reporting it to be at its highest in history and predicting that Canadians will enjoy a "prosperous" year in 1949.

11 on Banana Boat Adrift for Week Rescuedby Tanker

Toronto, March 2. (CP)—The crew of a Canadian banker rescued 11 men from a disabled banana boat which had drifted for a week in a storm-swept section of the Pacific ocean, it was learned today.

Shell Oil Company officials said the Tanker Pinnacles, at Vancouver, picked up the men after a little attempt to tow the motor vessel Anita, of Panama registry.

The Pinnacles sighted the Anita Feb. 23, after it had been drifting for a week in a heavy sea with a useless engine. The tanker passed a line to the banana boat but it was torn away, ripping off the windlass of the Pinnacles.

The wireless message said the Anita's engine room was flooded and the Anita which had only two leaky lifeboats left. The rescue took place off the western coast of South America.

Britain Constructs 342 Merchant Ships

London, March 2 (AP)— Britain launched more merchant tonnage last year than all the rest of he world combined, Lloyd's register reported Tuesday. Shipyards in England, Scotland and Northern Ireland launched 342 merchant ships totalling 1,176,346 tons. The world total was 872 ships of 2,309,743 tons. Britain's share of the tonnage total was 50.9 per cent.

First Global Non-Stop Flight by U.S. Bomber In Less Than Four Days

The B-50 Superfort, "Lucky Lady II," carrying a crew of 13, arrived over Carswell Airforce base at 10:31:40 a.m., EST, less than four days after it left the same field. It refueled four times in its historic eastward flight.

It was unofficially estimated that the plane flew 23,452 statute miles from its take - off in Fort Worth around the world non-stop and returning to Carswell airforce base. The world-girdling bomber took off from Carswell base at 12:31 p. m. EST, Feb. 26.

It headed eastward, its first refueling point at The Azores Islands about 3,900 miles away. The next flying gas station was Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, 5,200 miles from the Azores.

Longest flight between tanker planes was from the Philippines to Hawaii, about 5,500 miles.

The last fill-up came over Hawaii. From there to the Fort Worth home field was a little more than 3,700 miles.

The Boeing B-50 is the postwar successor of the wartime B-29 Superfortress.

Closely resembling the B-29 in external appearance, the B-50 has considerably more speed, rate of climb, range and bomb-carrying ability.

Powered with four 3,500 horsepower engines, the B-50 has a top speed of about 400 miles an hour, a cruising speed around 300 and can climb to 40,000 feet. Its bomb capacity is stated at 10 tons, its maximum range (without in-flight refueling) at 6,000 miles. Its wing span is 141 feet, its fuselage length 90 feet. The weight of the plane for normal take-off is about 120,000 pounds.

Normal crew is made up of 12 men and officers.

Carr's Counsel Makes New Effort to Get Bail

Ottawa, March 2 — (CP) — A new effort to get bail for Sam Carr was in the cards at the start of a two-week recess in the preliminary hearing and his trial on a charge of conspiring with Russian Embassy officials to secure a forged passport.

Carr, 43-year-old, Russian-born former organizing secretary of the Labor-Progressive party, was committed for trial yesterday by Deputy Magistrate Jochim Beve after a three-week preliminary inquiry. He is slated to appear before the spring sessions of the Ontario Supreme Court here in May.

First Magistrate Sauve and then county Judge A. J. McDougall declined to grant bail, even at the figure of $15,000 suggested by Crown counsel J. R. Cartwright. The magistrate sidestepped the issue by referring Defence counsel Joseph Sedgwick to a higher court.

Mr. Sedgwick, who said he had never heard of bail being refused in these circumstances before, said later he would apply again for bail before a Provincial Supreme Court judge in Toronto within a week or so.

Virtually no new evidence emerged from the preliminary as the six witnesses the crown called for the hearing.

While the crowded courtroom was watched by more than a dozen Mounties and city police, Igor Gouzenko identified Carr as the agent "Frank". Identified document that previously linked that agent with efforts to get a false passport for Fred Rose, jailed as Embassy file on Carr himself.

The former Embassy cipher clerk testified on one of the most complex incidents unearthed by the Royal Commission. This was the apparently successful attempt of Russian agents to obtain for an agent with the assumed name Isaacy Wetzak a renewal of a 1937 passport which had been taken from the real Witczak on the Spanish front where he had gone to fight for the Loyalists.

Gouzenko said $3,000 had been mentioned as the price for "someone" but there was no evidence that it was paid.

Russia Charges Persecutions By Sweden of Soviet Citizens

Stockholm, March 2 (Reuters) —Russia has sent a note to Sweden alleging 'a series of persecutions against Soviet citizens of Estonian, Latvian and Lithuanian nationality."

The note delivered Monday asking the release of an Estonian, Erik Sourvsell, arrested by Swedish police on a charge of espionage.

"Latterly," it said "Swedish authorities have persecuted a number of Soviet citizens of Estonian, Latvian and Lithuanian nationality. The persecutions have subjected Soviet citizens to illegal interrogation, house searches and even threats and abuse."

"A Latvian, Janis Maurens, was arrested immediately after he had visited the Russian consulate to find out how he could return home," the note added.

Maurens was taken to the police station and subjected to eight hours' interrogation during which pressure was brought to bear on him and tried by threats to make him consent to return to the Soviet Union."

The note said "such Swedish acts" conflicted with the United Nations resolution of Nov. 17, 1947, calling on states to encourage displaced persons to return to their native countries.

"In this connection," it said "the Soviet embassy insists that measures be taken immediately to put an end to persecution by the Swedish authorities of Soviet citizens who wish to return home.

Woman Victim Dies of Wounds

Toronto, March 2. (CP)—Although under guard in hospital and given little chance of surviving self-inflicted wounds, Samuel Care, 35, awaits charges following the death of Mrs. Jessie Lennon, 54, one of three victims he stabbed when he went berserk Monday in the Toronto Hospital for Tuberculosis.

Nurse Elinor Cavanaugh, another of his victims who went to her aid, is in hospital in critical condition in hospital, attendants said. Police and hospital authorities still decline to identify the third victim, a woman patient, or tell of her injuries.

Police said that after tearing his clothes to bands and tying a note with his will to Care, armed with a razor, paring knife and scissors, he left a trail of startled roaming the corridors of the hospital.

Police today said Care is in such critical condition he can only swallow small quantities of water.

Doctors said Care must have gone out of his mind soon after going off duty late Monday afternoon.

WOMAN CONDEMNED

Nottingham, England, March 2 (Reuters)—A widowed housekeeper, Mrs. Hilda Green, 61, was sentenced to death here Tuesday for the murder of her employer's daughter, Joan Mason, 14, at Scunthorpe, Lincolnshire, last December. The girl died from brutal head injuries.

RUSSIAN MISSION IGNORES ORDER TO LEAVE U.S. ZONE

U.S. Military Police Cut Off Deliveries of Food

Frankfort, March 2 — (AP)— Armed military police today surrounded the headquarters of a Russian repatriation mission which has ignored American orders to leave the United States zone of Germany.

They took up guard at all entrances to the big yellow house at 9:00 a.m. A few minutes later, a worker from the Frankfurt gas works turned off the gas supply at a shut-off valve outside the building.

Colonel D. Clay, United States military governor, had implied yesterday the Russians would be ordered out if they continued their defiance of American orders to leave.

The eight soldiers of the Russian mission have ignored the midnight deadline which was set by the United States Army and remained in the building.

The military police surrounding the building shut off deliveries of food, threatening arrest to anyone trying to enter the building or leave.

The officers and four soldiers and their families in the mission had refused to leave how much food they had.

A Russian officer, apparently from the Soviet military mission, tried to enter the house, but was turned away by an M. P.

On Feb. 16, Clay asked the mission to leave by March 1 because its work in the zone had changed from helping to return to Russia to negligible. At that time the Russian military mission could handle the work, and lifted the credentials of the repatriation mission.

The Russians protested vehemently and denounced the order as a violation of the Yalta and Potsdam agreements.

The United States Army set the deadline of last midnight for the Russians to leave, but a forceful message was sent to the mission.

Clay said: "As long as they do not want to get out of the house, we are in no hurry about getting them out."

Petain's Health Shows Weakening of Old Age

Paris, March 2 — (AP) —The health of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain is "showing a gradual weakening due to old age," three physicians told the French cabinet today.

The doctors were sent by the state to the Ile D'Yeu where the 92-year-old Marshal is under government is imprisoned. The marshal, convicted of treason in a post-war trial, will be 93 on April 24.

Canadian People Can Expect Year Of Much Prosperity Howe Predicts

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 2 (AP)—Trade Minister Howe holds optimistic views of Canada's immediate future, but no ambitions to make this country one of "economic sufficiency."

The Minister described Canada's rise to the third greatest trading country—twice as great per capita as both the United States or United Kingdom.

"I would say that because certain of our change of government we can promise the people of Canada a prosperous year ahead," he said.

The minister tabled reports from the government-owned development branch forecasting private and public expenditure on construction, on new machinery in 1949 of $3,500,000,000.

This was an increase in dollars of eight per cent over 1948—a record year—but only a fractional increase in volume because of the increase in carts.

He also tabled a report on the building material supply prospects for 1949 showing that most major essentials to construction money to pay for it.

were likely to be in great supply in 1949, particularly iron and steel.

At a press conference he disclosed that trade talks were going on at an official level with the United States, looking toward a new reciprocal agreement. He would not forecast when there might be a new pact.

Mr. Howe prophesied that in the next crop year Canadian farmers will get more for their wheat than any other growers in the world, through operations of the contract market for 140,000,000 bushels in the United Kingdom.

He refused to be drawn into any controversy over the possibility that the United Kingdom might not be able to complete this contract if the United States declares wheat a surplus commodity and withholds allotment of European aid funds to pay for Canadian wheat exported to the U.K.

The ministers was questioned on this also at his press conference, but said Canada's business was not to comment on that but it was not the government's concern where the U.K. got the

Firecrackers Pop As Blaze Sweeps 4-Storey Building

Four Men Are Taken To Hospital for Treatment

Toronto, March 2 — (CP)—Six employees of the Thomas Wilkins Small Wares Co., today jumped to safety from second - storey windows as fire swept through the four-storey brick building.

Firecrackers stored in the downtown building, valued with its contents at $1,250,000, popped as the three - alarm fire spread to two other buildings. Smoke could be seen for miles.

Two of the employees were caught by five other workmen who formed an emergency life net with their arms and backs. Two others jumped into safety nets. Four of the employees suffered facial burns and were removed to hospital.

One fireman was cut about the face when debris fell on him.

Three-alarm Blaze

Firemen battling the three-alarm blaze said they thought it was under control although it spread to premises occupied by the Dominion Fruit Company and the Irish Banana Company.

Early estimates of damage were as high as $200,000. The fire started in the basement but its cause has not yet been determined.

Twin Girls Born 32 Hours Apart

Noranda, Que., March 2 (CP) Doctors at Noranda Hospital here eyed 32-year-old Mrs. Rodolphe Gaudet carefully today as the first baby unwillingly told them "that's all there'll be at this time."

A farmer's wife, Mrs. Gaudet gave birth to twin girls, born 32 hours apart and the long delay between births mystified doctors. Not only that—the girls' births were her second set of twins in less than a year. Her twin boys, born April 28, 1948, died 10 minutes after birth.

HOWE SETS OFF SPIRITED SCENE, CHALLENGES DREW

Asks PC Leader to Name Controllers Who Accept Philosophy of Karl Marx

Ottawa, March 2 (CP)—Trade Minister Howe set off a brief noisy scene in the Commons Tuesday when he challenged George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader to name federal controllers who accept the basic philosophy of Karl Marx.

The verbal spat ended without Mr. Drew naming any controller and the names of the present and wartime controllers and ask Mr. Drew to pick out the followers of Karl Marx.

When Mr. Howe concluded reading the names he took his seat to allow Mr. Drew to answer his challenge.

Rescue Plane With Doctors, Supplies Believed on Last Lap to Far North

Winnipeg, March 2. (CP)—An R.C.A.F. aircraft flying doctors and medical supplies to diseased-stricken Fort William Inlet was believed en route on the final 350-mile lap of its flight today, but faulty communications between Churchill, Man., and Winnipeg prevented immediate confirmation.

The ski-equipped Dakota, which flew 850 miles from Winnipeg to Churchill yesterday, was scheduled to leave the latter point at 9 a.m. C.S.T. today for the Inlet, 350 miles further north on the western coastline of Hudson Bay.

Weather conditions at Churchill were reported to be good, but R.C.A.F. officials said communications were poor.

If the plane took off at 9 a.m. it is expected to reach the inlet shortly before noon. There a mysterious plague is reported to have killed 11 Eskimos and brought sickness to an undisclosed number of others.

Dr. W. J. Wood of Winnipeg, regional superintendent of Dominion Indian Health Services, heads the medical group aboard the plane.

He said earlier the epidemic, whose victims suffered rapid and painful deaths, might be the result of two ailments—a virus causing a nervous disorder and poisoning from the Scarlioca meat.

So far as is known, the disease has not affected the approximately 20 white persons living at the outpost. But it has touched about one-sixth of the estimated 150 Eskimos in the immediate neighborhood of the Inlet.

It is not believed there are more than 600 persons in the entire quarantined region. Most of them are Eskimos.

City and District News

LIBRARY RECEIVES ROSICRUCIAN BOOK

Readers in the city will now have access to the Rosicrucian book in the public library. Mrs. O. Cowan, of R. R. 5, member of the Rosicrucian Order (A.M.O.R.C.) has just received official notification from the organization headquarters in San Jose, California, that the following book has been donated to the library by her Order: Rosicrucian Questions and Answers With Complete History of the Order by H. Spencer Lewis.

Mrs. O. Cowan states that the Rosicrucian Grand Secretary informs her that the donation to the library is the result of numerous requests from local readers that the book be made available to the public. A yearly appropriation is made by the Rosicrucian Order, says Mrs. Cowan, to provide the educational, philosophical, non-religious works of the organization to such public institutions as libraries and hospitals. It is said the number of Rosicrucian books at the local libraries will be increased as the public interest creates a demand for them.

25 Degrees Mean Temp. For February

Judging from weather statistics the month of February just past should have been considerably warmer than the cold bit than the same month one year ago. The exact saying, however, will remain debatable.

At fifty rate the mean temperatures for the month was 25 degrees with a high of 43 and a low of 13.3 below zero. One year ago the high was 42 and the low 20 with a mean of but 16 degrees. This year, 1948, there was but two zero days during February as compared with 11 zero days in February last year. Degree days for the month were 1,133 as compared with 1,416 one year ago.

Rainfall for last month was 2.28 inches with a snowfall of 11.2 inches making a total precipitation of 3.41 inches. One year ago the rainfall was 1.16 with 2.34 inches of snow making a total precipitation of 3.40 inches.

Film on Soil Conservation Shown to Kiwanis

At the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club held in the Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday the club installed Donald Dies as their newest member.

Mr. Dies was born in Shannonville, Ont., and at present is living in Belleville with his wife and two children. Bill Wart who was to be the guest speaker was unable to attend but sent in his place Patty Pitcher. Bill Wart and his brother Ralph Hudson, Mr. Hudson, through the courtesy of the Quaker Oats Company of Peterborough presented a J. Arthur Rank movie on soil conservation entitled "The Rape of the Earth." It was interesting picture that showed how, through man's carelessness in cultivation of the soil, thousands are ruined in ten years what nature had taken four thousand years to build.

The attendance prize was won by Larry Langlois.

Chamber Commerce Occupies Important Place in the Life Of the Community, Rotary Told

A review of the activities of the past year of the Chamber of Commerce was given in detailed and informative manner to the Rotary Club on Monday by Chamber president and Rotarian Arthur Bateman.

The Chamber of Commerce, the speaker pointed out, is a voluntary organization of forward-looking citizens of the community for the purpose of promoting the civic, commercial, industrial and agricultural progress of the community. In his opinion, Rotarian Bateman said, a community is a poor indeed in parks and purpose which does not possess an active, efficient Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber here was active last year in agriculture, organizing a successful farmers' dinner; civic affairs in which was organized a recreational committee; highways; hydro conservation; industries' manufacturers; the Moira River conservation project; national affairs; parking; public relations, an open forum committee, the new hydro office and solicitation control and tourist promotion.

The board of directors, Rotarian Bateman said, serves without remuneration of any kind. Members pay for their own luncheons at the weekly meetings but of at least every business and professional man in the city, if he only interested in seeing their city progress and go forward. The Chamber cannot do all the things it wants to do unless this wholehearted support is forthcoming.

The Chamber of Commerce in a broad sense, is a working partnership of the leading business and professional men of the community. It is a partner to every business and to every citizen. It essentially an organization of men who know the wisdom of co-ordinating their efforts under effective leadership for civic, industrial and commercial advancement of the community as a whole.

Job to Preserve Freedom

The task of the Chamber is to preserve freedom. If it fails in this then nothing else matters. The job of the Chamber is to arouse in Canadians a sense of responsibility; to shake off complacency and smugness and to appreciate the dangers which meet the world.

With the co-operation of well over 800 members boards and chambers the Canadian Chamber of Commerce is not fighting communism, but is presenting the facts of free-enterprise system to Canadians, through the recommendations of the various committees, the monthly bulletin, radio broadcasts, speakers, the press, etc.

"You business men" the speaker said, "have a wide contact with the citizens of Canada. Howcontractually every one of your employees is a client prospective of the achievement and progress made possible by freedom of enterprise."

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce is the recommended organization in Canada, that with over 800 Boards and 800 Chambers of Commerce, are all actively co-operating in a program to preserve free enterprise.

"I believe every person here tonight," concluded Mr. Bateman, "can fill a very needed post by being a member of your local Chamber of Commerce. Help carry the torch with your present Chamber to make this city, this community and country a better place in which to live and work and play."

BCI Boys Night Will Present Colorful Program

The Third Annual Boys Night of the Belleville Collegiate Institute will be held in the school on Saturday and Friday of this week.

A highly entertaining gymnastic and musical program has been arranged and it is believed this year's exhibition will be the greatest numbers will outshine those of the two previous years.

Under the direction of Mr. Homer "Red" Townsend assisted by other members of the school staff, the "Night" has been under steady rehearsal for some time. The smart school band under the direction of Mr. A. Cooper will be in attendance on both nights.

Mat work, pyramids, high bar, parallel bar and vaulting work are other outstanding gymnastic attractions which feature the show while a highly entertaining musical program will round out the evening. Included are such artists as vocalist Art. Duby; Jim Dowsett and his clarinet; Don Jolcuy, Milam Kravacke, Don Charlton and his cornet, Jim MacKay, the "Harmon Boys" and others. "Three Sharps and a Flat" forms a tuneful quartet. The grand finale will consist of a pyramid spectacle in which the entire cast takes part.

Police Ball Proves Enjoyable Affair

Under the capable supervision of master-of-ceremonies Sergeant Douglas Ellis the event moved forward with rhythmic precision to the sparkling melodies of the Commodores' orchestra.

Many handsome prizes were given including door and chance as well as novelty prizes. The tickets were drawn by Alderman Angus Duffy. On the committee were Sergt. Ellis, Inspector Clare Reeves and Constables Charles Moore and Lacey Rathwell.

The prizes were made available through the generosity of a large number of Belleville merchants.

Spot prizes were won by Helen Goodfellow, Dorothy Berry, Mrs. Stanley White, Bill Bateman and son. Door prizes went to Mrs. Swan, Scott Jr., Constable H. J. Chapman, Max Matthews, Mrs. Harold Reid, Howard Hanlon, Mrs. Sydney Lovelace, Mrs. Jones, Jack Simpson, G. C. Campbell, Garnet Balyx and R. W. Herrington.

Fire Department Ladders Unsafe Council Told

Ladder equipment used by the Belleville fire department is unsafe, the ladders having been affected with a type of dry rot, members of council were told Monday evening by Alderman Angus Duffy, chairman of the fire committee.

The fire committee chairman in presenting a recommendation for other equipment to be obtained, stated the present ladders had been inspected, it being found that ladder rungs could easily be broken and that possibly cause serious injury to firemen.

Alderman Duffy brought in a recommendation that new equipment for use with the aerial ladder should be purchased, to be forwarded immediately — and that the fire committee and Fire Chief Gerald Vance be authorized to inspect additional equipment with the view of bringing in a suitable recommendation to council.

The local fire department has on order a new aerial ladder from Bickle Seagrave and the ladder equipment from this truck which is asked to be forwarded to the city. .

INDIA GOES AHEAD

New Delhi — (CP) — India's industrial production during 1946 showed a 13 per cent increase over pre-war levels. But it was short of the peak figure reached during 1934-44.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, March 2 — (CP) — Prices moved in a narrow range in very light trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. The preferred stock rose 33 to a new 1949 high of 114.5. A few gilts and base metals were slightly easier and western oils held steady in very dull action.

Volume for the first three hours was 400,000 shares, about 16,000 shares less than yesterday's similar period.

Papers were fractionally lower in the industrials while a few steels lightened.

Hudson Bay, International Nickel and Waite Amulet backed down from fractional advances of the previous two sessions this week.

Hogs were steady at $31 for grade A and $30.60 for grade B1.

Y's Men's Talent on Parade Features Fine Program by Local Artists

Featuring the Central Air Command Band of the Royal Canadian Air Force at Trenton, and augmented by a varied program consisting of local vocal and instrumental talent, the Belleville Y's Men's Club Tuesday evening presented their annual Talent on Parade, at the Collegiate Auditorium.

A large crowd of local music lovers turned out for the program which featured both classical and popular numbers by the well-known RCAF band. Three of the numbers played by the band were arranged by Bellevillе's own composer Reg. Hinchey and two of these numbers were played last night for the first time. The R.C.A.F. band appeared by kind permission of Air Vice Marshal E. E. Middleton, C.B.E. and was directed by W.O. 1 C.E. Hunt, bandmaster. Mr. Hinchey directed the band for the playing of his own numbers.

Dancing pupils of Miss Barbara Dinent put on a splendid show and drew the full approval of the approximately 700 people attending the performance. Miss Dinent's pupils were seen in two dancing numbers, while Miss Dinent was also heard in two vocal numbers, "Will You Remember" by Sigmund Romberg, and "Coming Home" by Willeby.

Miss Barbara Houston, local soprano rendered in two vocal numbers while Mr. and Mrs. R. Houston also of Belleville assisted as a duet number "Morning" "Because You're You" Alec Gordon acted as piano accompanist.

The Glen Tamblyn trio, composed of Glen Tamblyn, pianc; Arnold Carter, bass and Eric Woollman, drums, delighted their audience with two numbers, "I Can't Give You Anything But Love" and "The Man I Love."

Acting as announcer for the various numbers by the R.C.A.F. band was S/L J. W. T. Van Gorder, while T/Sgt. Jack Wilson acted as master of ceremonies for the "Talent on Parade" program and later expressed the appreciation of the local club to the various artists taking part.

The "Gremlin Ball" as played by the R.C.A.F. band was well received by the audience, while Mr. Hinchey's two new numbers "My Land" and "Imperial City March" also went over well. The latter number was played for the first time by a band. The third number of Mr. Hinchey's played by the band was "Dark Eyes."

Ottawa Journal Sold to Group Of Newspapermen

Ottawa, March 3 — (CP)—P.D. Ross, 81-year-old publisher who acquired the Ottawa Journal 62 years ago with an initial investment of $4,000, today announced the sale of the newspaper to a group of associates.

The amount of money involved was not disclosed, but the announcement said all the shares of the Journal Publishing Company of Ottawa Limited standing in Mr. Ross' name have been sold to nine associates.

They have been purchased "for cash at a preferred price" by E. Norman Smith, vice-president of the company, and M. Gratian O'Leary, for many years associate editor. Mr. Smith was Mr. Ross' junior partner for 24 years.

In turn, considerable blocks of stock have been transferred to T. G. Ahearn, managing editor; V. M. Kipp, I. Norman Smith and Bryan White, associate editors; G. G. Plaunt, general manager, and T. H. Johnstone, advertising manager, all have been directors of the company for several years.

Acts as President

At the request of the new owners, Mr. Ross will remain as president.

Announcement of the sale, said Mr. Ross in a signed editorial, has enabled a group of working newspaper men to obtain a proprietary interest in and control of the Journal, as he did 60 years ago when he purchased property shortly after its establishment.

It added:

"The new owners . . . have no financial interests or connections that might prejudice them in the discussion of public affairs. The Journal's editorials will remain expressions of independent opinion that may be worthy of consideration and informative comments on the news of the day."

Two Men Charged With Taxi 'Stick-up'

Brockville, March 2 (CP) — Allan MacDonald and Harry Exiwick, both of Toronto, were arrested by provincial police in Cornwall Tuesday night on a charge of armed robbery in connection with the "taxi stick-up" of Brockville cab driver, Tom Curry, last Wednesday evening.

The two, in company with a female companion, allegedly forced Curry to drive them from Brockville to Ottawa at gun point after robbing him of $56.

Provincial Budget Expected Friday

Toronto, March 2 (CP)—The budget will be brought down in the Ontario legislature Friday if Throne-Speech debate is completed Thursday.

The House Tuesday night held its first night sitting this session in an effort to get through the debate as speedily as possible and adjourned at 11 p.m.

The three-hour night sitting, during which food marketing, education, Christmas trees and housing were discussed, saw little of the excitement of the afternoon and evening sessions when Premier Frost demanded an inquiry into allegations of liquor licence "shakedowns" and urged rules to govern manufacture of margarine.

Criticizes Decision

Mr. Calder called for a Royal Commission investigation into the alleged shakedown of licence applications in the Niagara district. He criticized the government's decision to hold a department inquiry, now under way, into the licence situation.

Any recommendation that no further liquor licences be issued until municipalities have a chance to hold additional recreation centres came from Mr. Baker, who said local option must be maintained.

Mr. Scott, 21, youngest member of the Legislature, said the government has failed the youth of Ontario. He called for expanding programs of parent education to combat delinquency, for additional bursaries and scholarships to lower university tuition and for a new department of education for moderate drinking.

Mr. Murdock said the ontario food terminal under construction at Toronto will help stabilize the Ontario fruit and vegetable growing industry.

The question of Christmas tree on a mass production from land in the Lake of Bays district was suggested by Mr. Newman. He said farmers, residents of which found that Christmas trees could be cut 10 months a year and stored until the holiday season.

Housing Difficulties

Mr. Fell dealt with housing difficulties. He said that when he went overseas he gave up his house and on his return to Ontario considered himself lucky to secure the present wartime house."

In the afternoon debate, Mr. Park said the government realized that its second-mortgage housing plan had helped in construction of 5,000 houses. But that fell "far short" of meeting needs, he said.

Mr. Hall said he saw danger in what he called the spread of socialism. The more the people leaned on the state for support, the more the state became the master of the people.

Mr. Thomas suggested that Ontario is backward in health insurance programs. Working people would welcome such insurance, even on a contributory basis, he said.

Wants Highway Completed

Mr. Harvey urged completion of the highway link between Sault Ste. Marie and the Lakehead, round the north shore of Lake Superior, as a source of tourist revenue and as a defence measure.

Within a distance of "24 driving hours" of the Sault lived 3,000,000 Americans who were "willing and anxious to drive around Lake Superior—the only lake in the group of the Great Lakes that surrounded by a highway." These people were willing to come into Canada to drive around the lake and spend approximately $300,000,000.

Such a road also serves the communities in the district, many of which were established more than 50 years ago "and have never had a road yet."

"I cannot imagine any government which would ignore the advisability of having a route out of Sault Ste. Marie which would join with the head of the lakes for military purposes."

The Sault with its canal system, steel industry, and "the possibility of uranium developments" was becoming "a very strategic point, highly vulnerable in any defence scheme . . ."

TO ISSUE NEW STAMP

Ottawa, March 2 (CP)—Postmaster-General Ernest Bertrand announced Tuesday night his department is issuing a new four-cent stamp to commemorate the centenary of Responsible Government in the treaty talks are Norway, Denmark, Iceland and Portugal.

More Nations May Join Talks On Atlantic Pact

Washington, March 2 (AP) — State Secretary Dean Acheson said today there are no outstanding differences among the negotiating countries now on the proposed North Atlantic security alliance.

He also said the negotiators have been discussing the possibility of bringing other countries into the talks here, but no decision has been reached.

The countries now negotiating the pact are Canada, Britain, France, The Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg and the United States.

Acheson said the discussions as to possibly bringing in other countries have touched on Italy.

He was asked whether he could say if he had encountered any opposition regarding the future admission of Italy into the alliance.

He replied no, that the matter is still open and under discussion.

From other officials it was learned that some opposition has arisen.

Other countries most actively under consideration for early inclusion in the treaty talks are Norway, Denmark, Iceland and Portugal.

NEW HOMES FOR OLD

Low-Cost Personal Loans Enable Many to Improve Their Homes

Many people who have put off improvements and repair work on their homes because of the war are now undertaking the work, rebuilding, redecorating, buying new furnishings and new appliances and generally improving their properties.

In many cases, the Bank of Montreal is giving ready assistance with low-cost Personal Loans, making possible the immediate cash purchase of materials and essential household articles.

To anyone with a regular income, who is in a position to repay, the Bank of Montreal is glad to lend money for all useful purposes. The rate is surprisingly low . . . 27c a month for a $100 loan, repayable in twelve monthly instalments. You may borrow smaller or larger sums for shorter or longer periods; the cost, equal to 6%-per annum, is proportionately the same. There are no handling charges, no deductions, no extras.

See Mr. Becker, manager, or Mr. Stammers, accountant, of the Bank of Montreal, who will be glad to talk your plans over with you. You will realize then that "When you ask for a loan at the B. of M. you do not ask a favor."—(Advt.)

Drew Loses Another Round in Battle To Have Hong Kong Letter Tabled

Ottawa, March 2 — (CP) — One more echo of George Drew's 1942 Hong Kong mission to Canada in parliament yesterday, but his party lost another round in a long battle to get the controversial 10,000-word document tabled in the Commons.

Mr. Drew's first personal attempt in the session was defeated by a combination of the House rules and Prime Minister St. Laurent's refusal to consent to the move.

Monday's row between the Prime Minister and Mr. Drew continued yesterday when Trade Minister Howe challenged Mr. Drew to name the "bureaucrats" he had accused last week of following the philosophy of Karl Marx.

Mr. Drew did not name any names.

Turmoil Aroused

Both exchanges brought a measure of turmoil to the House, with partisans on each side heckling and applauding, though it did not approach the uproar of the Monday exchange that led to Mr. Drew trying yesterday to table the letter, written July 11, 1942, to Former Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

To get the 22-page letter on the table as a public document, Mr. Drew needed the consent of the House.

Mr. St. Laurent promptly said he would not give his consent.

His explanation was that the step would involve disclosure of messages received here from the United Kingdom government at the time Canada's Hong Kong expedition was due to sail.

These dealt with prospects of war in the Pacific.

The Prime Minister said the Canadian government had "repeatedly" tried to get the U. K. government's consent to making these public but that consent had been refused.

Mr. Drew observed later that this explanation was "entirely removed from the facts."

Mr. Drew, in his criticism of the state of the Hong Kong troops' equipment and training when they went overseas, contended that his letter to the government had advance warning of the imminence of war in the Pacific.

He stated further that the government ill-used the R.C.M.P. in compiling information of the landing of the Hong Kong force.

"This shameful prostitution of a great force with a world-wide reputation which must be protected," Mr. Drew wrote, "is the direct responsibility of the Minister of Justice, Mr. Louis St. Laurent." (Mr. St. Laurent was then justice minister.)

The government declares its messages from the U. K. did not point to imminent Pacific war before the departure of the expedition in the fall of 1941.

Had Been Charged

Mr. Drew, who acted as counsel before the Hong Kong royal commission for the Federal Conservative party, wrote the letter shortly after the withdrawal of a Defence of Canada Regulations charge against him. He had been charged because of statements he made in connection with a speech conducted by Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff.

On March 11, 1948, when evidence and exhibits of the Hong Kong inquiry were tabled in the Commons, The Canadian Press carried a full summary of the Drew-letter. The letter was not among the 1,000,000 words of exhibits tabled.

Mr. Drew advised the Commons yesterday that he had distributed copies to the press for release at the time he tried to table it. The release was effective regardless of whether or not the document was admitted.

Basis of Progress

Canada is probably developing new industry today at a more rapid rate than any other country in the world, W. T. G. Hackett, economic adviser of the Bank of Montreal, stated in an address to the Fort William Chamber of Commerce and he sees great opportunities for this country if Canada can but grasp them. Across the sea people are all looking abroad, and on all sides there is talk of plans to go where fresh opportunities exist "opportunities for industry in the sense of resources and markets and for individuals in terms of a fuller life. Is it too fantastic to suggest that the ultimate resolution of the deep-rooted economic dislocations, that have been so apparent in the first half of the twentieth century will involve a great migration of peoples and skills from an overcrowded Europe to the New World?" he asks and adds that "a well considered and vigorous immigration policy, can broaden the home market and facilitate further industrialization, developments that will tend to diminish our vulnerability to outside influence. He sees opportunity for Canada in winning a worldwide reputation for specialty products of extremely high quality and standard.

Something New in Architectural Exhibition

Britain is to have a novel architectural exhibition as part of the Festival of Britain in 1951. Located in the centre of London on the Thames close to Westminster Bridge, it will take the form of a cross-section of a typical residential neighborhood. One of the features is that it will be shown as in the course of construction and will comprise not only flats and houses but other features which go to make up a properly balanced development. Some dwellings will be completed with others partially finished to indicate various types of building technique.

As an exhibition this should prove of advantage to those who plan to build. As many know today the building of a house is an undertaking of no small importance. To see it in the making at an exhibition should help to make clear why and how such and such things are done.

Lion or Lamb

March first which is supposed to hold the scale of nature and the weather in its hands has come and like all methods of weather prognosticating it is seemingly composed of two different elements, that which stems from winter and that which comes from spring. In short the first day of March had many people guessing, some because it was cold and not balmy in some parts of the Dominion and others because it was not cold and wintry. Evidently the weather cannot be forecast as a unit for Canada for the British Columbians were revelling in the return of the weather to its balmy standard as against the worst cold spell of its history in years just a day or two before. Down on the East Coast it was cold and wintry. In the Prairies it looked like a gambling battle with a certain which suggests that the weather is much like a human being, very changeable, people in the far off James Bay area thought it was spring as the mercury was ten above zero.

Ontario was cold but not as some firsts of March have been. There had been a feint of rough weather as February was dying but there was no sign of elemental raging as sometimes mars March.

As the predicting on the basis of March first's weather must appear at least confusing, it looks as if there must be a time waiting just to see what March 1 really signified.

The Lighter News

Referring to the attention given to the story of Grady the cow, that plunged through the open door of a silo and had practically a whole continent waiting breathlessly for news of her liberation from the prison into which she plunged and remarking the appeal of stories of the every of a lighter character, the Ottawa Journal sagely comments:

"Some critics of the newspapers will ask why so much space and attention should be given incidents in themselves of little importance, and of no consequence whatever to the world at large. The answer is that nobody can be serious all the time, that happily we become immunized to a degree against worry and alarm, and there is mental relaxation in a simple, human story about a baby with a surprising number of teeth, a story without background or political repercussions or sinister possibilities."

JOYOUS PILFERING

She had a jar of cookies. On a lower shelf it stood;
And the morning that she mad- dened them they were very, very good.
But she had no little children to come running from the street,
And in time a lot were wasted which, alone, she couldn't eat.

She had a box of candy, which she never had to hide,
Since no child was there to pilfer, though she let it open wide.

She could turn her back upon it for an hour or for a day
And no single piece would vanish in the time she'd been away.

If the cake stays on the platter till you eat it up yourself;
And if safe are all the cookies and the candy that you own,
It means the home is empty and you're living there alone.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

25 YEARS AGO

MARCH 2nd, 1920

Belleville Market Prices. Butter, two pound roll, 95 cents; eggs 38 cents to 40 cents per dozen; cream 30 cents per pint; honey two sections for 25 cents; chickens $1.00 to $1.25 each; ducks $1.25 to $1.40 each; potatoes $1.00 per bag; onions are scarce and sold at 80 cents per peck.

Mr. M. R. Doyle, President of the John Lewis Company, has purchased the block on Front Street, extending from two stores and quarters above, from the estate of the late John Lewis. In the year 1849 the original John Lewis Company was established in a small store and date still surmount the block.

Mr. Benjamin Singer has purchased from the J. C. Bell estate the block on Front Street, now occupied by Joseph Diamond, Jacobs Clothing and Leonard Brothers. Mr. Robert Hogle handled the transaction for the Flint estate.

30 YEARS AGO

MARCH 2nd, 1919

Ald. George Ostrom lost $173.00 in bills on the street recently. A commercial traveller found the money and it was returned to the owner.

March came ushered in with all the lion-like trimmings necessary for a lamb-like exit. If the weather is to open as it came, here's hoping for a gambol at the finish.

Mr. S. Grant, M.P.P., for East Hastings was in town today en-route to Toronto to attend to his duties in the legislature.

The firemen from both stations were given a run this morning in the corner of Front and Campbell Streets and responded with satisfactory speed. It was a test run.

40 YEARS AGO

MARCH 2nd, 1909

Thirty two years ago today Belleville was made a city.

Chief John Newton, D. D. G. M. of the Masonic Order, will pay an official visit to Wellington Lodge this evening.

In a curling match here last evening the local curlers defeated two rinks from Brockville. The following composed the teams: Belleville, Rink 1: J. A. Kerr, Rev. Allan Patrie, S. W. Vermilyea, F. Dolan, skip. Rink 2—Brockville, Rink 1—C. S. Cossitt, H. Brown, R. Craig, D. W. Downey, skip. Rink 2, Belleville, Ring 2—M. Wright, A. P. Allen, F. McL. Forin, J. McFee, skip 142 Brockville, Rink 2—C. G. Wilkinson, G. I. Mallory, H. W. Going, J. E. C. Cryslip, 17. Totals: Belleville 34, Brockville 23. After the game the visitors were royally entertained by the local curlers.

MARCH 2nd, 1869

An enjoyable parlor social was held last evening under the auspices of Emmanuel Church at the home of Mrs. Orcham, George Street. The members of the choir rendered several selections; Miss Craig and Miss Barrett sang a duet; Mr. E. T. Austin gave a vocal solo with chorus by the boys of Mrs. Duncanty's Sunday School class; Miss Corham and Mrs. Ford rendered a violin duet.

The following Belleville curlers played in the bonspiel at Campbellford yesterday but failed to win: Frank Brintnell, M. Wright, Dr. M. D. Ward, Frank Dolan, skip; Dr. Perry, C. Goldsmith, W. Smith, S. W. Vermilyea, Capt. Wilkinson, G. I. Belleville players were defeated by Peterborough.

Mr. Alex. Wye, late of Sidney township, left today for Nicolet C.

The new bar on the Steamer North King is about completed. It is the finest of the kind on any boat sailing the St. Lawrence River or Lake Ontario.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

A friend of mine has lately been obliged to start taking sleeping pills of the barbituate group, which his doctor assures him are non-habit forming.

But they are habit-forming. They form the habit of sleep. And when you consider how much of this little life is spent in sleep, the question arises, should it be encouraged? If a man lives to be sixty and sleeps eight hours a day, then he has spent twenty years of his life unconscious.

In his memoirs, Churchill describes how, in the early and desperate stages of the German blitz, he used to lie down for twenty minutes, right after lunch, and go into an immediate and deep sleep. From that twenty minute cat-nap, he would wake as refreshed as if he had slept for hours; and carry on, full of vim, till through the rest of the day and far into the night.

Now, there is a system to be looked into. If we could work out a scheme whereby a man could lie down and have a snooze whenever he felt like it, the awful burden of sleep which has been imposed on mankind might be lifted. The way it is now, a tradition as ancient as the hills decrees that the night shall be spent asleep. The day back to the cave man, doubtless, in the dark, had nothing else to do but sleep. So gripped are we by tradition, that if we can't sleep at night, we go to the doctor for pills.

Other traditions are being demolished. Why should we not demolish this one, another primitive tradition of sleep? Let a man sleep wherever he feels like it. Beside every office desk, beside every work bench and machine would be placed for him a pleasant couch. And when he feels sleepy, he can simply lie down for a Churchill cat-nap, and awake full of vim.

Of course, this would disarrange the night hour day. We would have to adopt the seven hour hour day, like Churchill.

Dental Supply Firms Freed of Charge

Toronto, March 1 — (CP) — Eighteen dental supply firms were freed Monday from the charge that they conspired to restrict manufacture and sale of dental supplies and equipment. In a 34-page judgment, the Ontario Supreme Court dismissed the federal government's appeal against the acquittal of the firms last March. In Ottawa, a Justice Department spokesman said there could be no appeal from the judgment and no further action is planned.

Much Loot Taken From Eaton Home

King, March 2 — (CP)—Burglars who broke into Lady Eaton's estate at this York township community 20 miles north of Toronto Monday night made off with loot police estimated at several thousands of dollars. The mansion was not occupied. Included in the haul were several heirlooms of the T. Eaton family, four Oriental rugs valued at $700 each, a large number of chairs and a washing machine.

Mackenzie's Column: India's Steadiness Encouraging, Plot is Countered

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The young government of the Dominion of India, headed by Prime Minister Nehru, has encountered the first serious attempt to instigate rebellion against it—and is able to announce that it has countered the plot.

India's steadiness in this trial by fire is a notable development in an Asia which is seething with civil war and rebellion.

Nehru accuses communist elements of "murder, arson, looting and sabotage" in their effort to precipitate a revolt. However, he says these terrorist activities have been localized by strong government of India, "but collaborates with it on occasion."

Nehru describes the interesting point that the numerical strength of communism in India is small, although the exact membership isn't known. When I last was in India in 1943 the total number of communists was estimated at only about 50,000.

However, that figure can't be taken as a gauge because it was only a few months prior to this that the government had lifted the ban against the communists. This ban had grown out of the Quit India riots and other disturbances in which 28 Indian Labor leaders and three British Communists were arrested in an effort to overthrow the government.

Not Surprising

It isn't surprising to hear Nehru say communism isn't widespread in India. That country is intense in its nationalism — the traditional opposite of communism—and this in itself would tend to prevent the spread of the red ism.

Then there may be another deterrent to the wholesale spread of communism in India. Most of its people are Hindus and Hinduism—the same is true of the neighboring Islamic religion of Pakistan—and communism is militantly atheistic.

All these circumstances are of the fact that India, under the brilliant Nehru, is making a powerful bid for the leadership of the great Asiatic bloc.

Cupid Finds Way Among Legislators

Boise, Ida., March 1. (AP)—E. A. Snow Monday rose to a point of personal privilege in the State House of Representatives.

He asked: "Is the lady from Ada yield to a question?"

The comely red-haired lady from Ada County, Representative Edith Miller, replied she would. She asked, "Is the lady from Ada be willing to marry me?"

Miss Miller arose, then sat down, the question unanswered.

Then Miller arose again.

"After due and serious consideration I accept the proposal of the gentleman from Adams," she said.

Snow jumped to his feet and said acceptance of such a proposal would merit "a kiss from the lady from Ada".

The lady from Ada hurriedly declined, but not fast enough to elude the gentleman from Adams.

Fear Widow Slain, Body Destroyed In Can by Acid

London, March 2. (CP)—A wealthy retiring London widow, missing from her quiet London home, today was believed to have been among the victims of a murderer who destroys their bodies in acid.

Mrs. Olive Durand-Deacon, 69, has been the object of a country-wide search since she disappeared from her home March 18. Yesterday workmen in the factory yard in Crawley, Sussex, were examined by police and taken to the criminal investigation department laboratory at Scotland Yard for examination.

The Daily Mail says Dr. Keith Simpson, home-office pathologist, found traces near the factory which may lead to the recruitment "of what may be one of the most gruesome murder for years."

They now know that the widow was murdered inside the factory, soon after she arrived there," Her body was laid on a workshop bench and dismembered.

"Then day by day, piece by piece, the body was placed in a rusty, six-foot-high acid tank and the remains, after being pounded and ground, were mixed in sulphuric acid and left to disintegrate.

"Afterwards the contents of the oil drum were emptied into the factory yard and the nitroglycerin in lanolin be tried. Somehow, the three doctors are in this together—let them share and share alike in the responsibility for the consequences.

One of the many "controversies" in the field of the handling of elementary physiology and hygiene has been concerned with the commercial interest or that clique of old timers in the profession hinging on a single statement, that is, namely, that the unbroken skin resists bacterial entry.

If I am wrong about that, it should be easy for the interests concerned to prove it. Rubbing without breaking the skin for the "weakness" of the individual who are obsessed by traditions to prove that something of other may be introduced through the unbroken skin. My skin is always reliable to any competent physician or group of physicians who may be interested in the scientifically controlled test with drug, chemical or poison which does not injure or destroy the skin.

Eight or ten years ago, when the American Medical Association's self-made "apostles" (the timid officers of the organization who have not as they themselves) thought he might persuade editors to use my columns and use his, there appeared in the Association's comic weekly an astonishing report of animal experiments by a doctor who manifestly never knew that he had proved that a dozen or more substances, including several alkaloids, are absorbed through unbroken skin, the savant did not deign to tell how. The bald assertion was all the Pooh Bah need. It constituted "scientific evidence" in the peculiar rationalization of the fat-talking Dr. Fishbein.

I'o not question the practical value of the application of 2 per cent glyceryl trinitrate ointment to fingers affected by Raynaud disease—"dead fingers." I merely suggest that one could obtain the same or better effect by applying the nitroglycerin to the patient's nape. Only the nitroglycerin the patient inhales can affect the "dead fingers" when the ointment is applied to a part of the body surface in a room where there is not too much ventilation.

I haven't heard from my crackesmen lately — maybe they use oxyacetylene instead of soup these days. Only the nitroglycerin respondents whose occupation includes handling dynamite or nitroglycerin seem positive that "nitroglycerin heal" comes from absorbing the stuff through the pores. That's what they get for reading books. The world will not worry them when I tell them there are no pores in the human skin, which by no means means a minute opening through which something can be absorbed. One handling nitroglycerin might inhale a little or swallow it if he eats, smokes, chews, drinks or licks his fingers while at work. Otherwise he has to have a cut, cut, scratch or puncture. But nitroglycerin when inhaled whatever unpleasant effects the stuff may produce my inhaling it, just as the patient who has Raynaud disease does if nitroglycerine is absorbed through pores or ventilation in his or her immediate environment.

Who harm trying your sister's remedy if you first paint the moles with iodine. Instead of iodine tincture 3 per cent, boil the thread, wash hands with soap and water, dry with freshly ironed towel tie thread tightly around mole, and cut away the ends with boiled scissors. Unarmed Guards Injured, Prisoners Wounded in Riot

Granite Okla., March 1. (AP) Three unarmed guards were injured and two prisoners wounded in a 30-minute riot at Oklahoma State Reformatory here Monday. The warden said it started when Warren Claude F. Moore said the flare-up exploded like a powder keg. But just who—or what —put match to the fuse is unknown.

Physicians said one of the guards, Ed Hedrick, was in critical condition. He suffered head and internal injuries in the lunch-hour disturbance by some 300 of the reformatory's 1,000 inmates.

The noon meal had just been finished, Moore said, when the cons rose and charged the guards. He said they used kitchen knives, clubs and pipes. The weapons they had concealed.

Moore said the prisoners' barricaded themselves in the room by piling tables, sacks of flour and other kitchen furniture against the door.

Tear gas finally subdues the prisoners. Then they were marched back to their cells. The guards suffered severe cuts and bruises. The injuries to the prisons were described as minor.

Case Suggests Mr. King Enter Senate for Reform

Ottawa, March 2 — (CP) — A suggestion that former Prime Minister Mackenzie King enter the Senate to undertake Senate reforms has been advanced in the Senate as been made by Garfield Case (PC — Grey North).

Speaking in the throne speech debate Monday, Mr. Case said he could "think of no better way" than the chief stock in trade of the right honorable member (Mr. King) was Senate reform.

PLAYING WITH DYNAMITE

In the Wisconsin Medical Journal last September there was a report by, two physicians of the Mayo clinic relief given some of distressing symptoms of Raynaud's disease by applications of 2 per cent glyceryl trinitrate (glycerin) in wool fat (lanolin) 3 times a day.

Glyceryl trinitrate is otherwise called nitroglycerin which has the kick in dynamite, and was formerly called spirits of glonoin when used in the form of alcoholic solution. By changing the name from time to time we can keep the public suitably confused as static which makes practice easier for us doctors. I mentioned medicines only occasionally here, as you may have noticed. When I do mention one as likely as not call it by abt name it has for two or three years ago and so lay myself open to some creditable bits of sarcasm from up-to-date drug clerks.

As far as I can learn, the Wisconsin report is the first that has appeared in medical literature, although the physicians (Dr. H. J. Fox and Dr. C. L. Leslie) do say that Dr. Alvarez (Dr. W. C. Alvarez) suggested that surgical treatment be delayed and the cut ends sympathetic of 2 per cent nitroglycerin in lanolin be tried. However, the three doctors are in this together—let them share and share alike in the responsibility for the consequences.

One of the many "controversies" in the field of the handling of elementary physiology and hygiene has been concerned with the commercial interest or that clique of old timers in the profession hinging on a single statement, that is, namely, that the unbroken skin resists bacterial entry.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HOME AWAY FROM HOME

I have been travelling around of late and have stayed at many a hotel. You are liable to get lonely in a hotel, especially if made to feel at home. The old, early Inns' must have been delightful. Reading some of Dickens' vinces one of this fact. Long-fellow wrote delightfully about one in his "Tales of a Wayside Inn," which still exists, through the love and interest of the late Henry Ford, at South Sudbury, Massachusetts.

"Built in the old Colonial day,
When men lived in a grander way
With ampler hospitality."

For nearly two years the Inn has attracted under different names in the Howe family for nearly all that period. It was changed in name to The Wayside Inn, after Longfellow's famous writings. It has lost none of its former hospitality under its modern ownership. The late Henry Ford of Mr. Ford was an act of love for the old traditional Inn.

Little courtesies about a hotel are what make it genuinely home, and a place to which to return, whenever possible. In one of the hotels where I recently was a guest there was unusual courtesy. It was so pronounced, however, that some people were taken by surprise. I noticed that the visitor boys all said Good Morning and Good Night. Most people acknowledged this thoughtfulness, but many looked at the boy as though he were interfering with their personal life. Others merely paid no attention. It made me feel at home, and I have since tried to experiment with a smile. That made the elevator boy feel better. (I was also a elevator boy.)

There ought to be a Club Room in every hotel, and a well-selected library and a good assortment of magazines, where a guest can spend a bit of time when not otherwise engaged. Some hotels already do this, and the investment in more ways than one. And there should be a writing desk with them less lonely. After all, what a hotel can get's for his room is the only money!

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

QUITE TINY, BUT A GIANT KILLER!

Remember how Jack slew the giant with one small stone? Well, there's another giant killer in your home at this moment. It's material called Packing. Often quite small in comparison to the giant industry on which it is used . . but so vital, that without it production would stop.

Almost every piece of hydraulic machinery in this busy depends for its efficient operation on packing. Take for instance Packing. For over 75 years Johns-Manville have been making just what freshly ironed towel tie thread tightly around mole, and cut away the ends with boiled scissors. Best wash methods of obliterating or removing moles, birth marks, moth patches, "liver spots", xanthomata is the method of application in booklet Cosmetic Blemishes. For booklet send 10 cents in coin and stamped self addressed envelope.

JUNGLES PREFERRED

A man who returned recently from a South American tour said that in Colombia he saw naked savages in an almost impenetrable jungle just around a river from the city of Bogota, a modern, large, modern cities. These denizens of the jungle apparently never visited the city, had no interest in it. I lived in precisely the same degradation their ancestors had known for a thousand or perhaps for several thousand years.

Just around a river bend from a great city, yet buried in the jungle and liking fit St. Augustine, centuries ago, wrote a work entitled, "The City of God," in which he pointed men to higher ideals than even the highest then charlabed. In the Epistle to the Hebrews, it is said of Abraham that he looked for a city which hath foundations whose builder and maker is God.

Many a highly educated, well-thought-of citizen is spiritually a naked savage living around the river bend from the city of God, the city that hath foundations whose builder and maker is God. He is very preferring apparently his comforts his appetites, his love of material things. The indifference of poor savages to the benefits of modern civilization is no more shocking than many a man's indifference to the benefits which God daily offers his soul.

He scoffs at the church and laughs at the pretensions of religion. Living in a jungle just around the river bend from the city of God and preferring the jungle.

Political Events Of Christ's Time Background Novel

By The Canadian Press

The crowd which shouted "Barabbas!" when asked to decide whether a convicted thief or Jesus of Nazareth should be spared crucifixion played a part in a complicated political pattern of events which reached a climax on Golgotha Hill.

This background to the last year in the life of Christ is sketched in vivid and imaginative fashion in "The Robber" (Collins) a new novel by Bertram Brooker, Toronto artist and author. The book tells the story of Barabbas, robber- revolutionary, who tried to right wrongs by use of violence and himself came to a violent end after escaping the cross.

Barabbas was the product of a harsh, superstitious age in the Near East. The Roman authorities, the Jewish Sanhedrin and various revolutionary forces struggled for the upper hand while each wrestled with inner conflicts. Corruption was rife, hardships increased steadily and everywhere people looked for a leader who would guide them to better times.

Friend of John the Baptist, of Judas Iscariot and of Prince Joseph of Arimathea, Barabbas himself dreamed of becoming such a leader by "levelling," redistributing the wealth until there was neither rich nor poor. But his dreams proved as fruitless as the hopes Judas, the spice-seller, entertained of having all wrongs righted by "miracles."

Even a tender romance with the sister of Joseph of Arimathea, the gentle Jerith whom Judas also loved, could not soften Barabbas' grim bent toward violence. Nor could anything dissuade the misguided Judas from the course of betraying his Lord and then hanging himself.

Although not a religious book in the usual sense, "The Robber" is a thoughtful and thought-provoking novel that will make good Lenten reading. As author of novels of fiction by Mr. Brooker, "Think of the Earth", received the Governor-General's Award for Fiction in 1938.

In "Mary Wakefield" (Macmillan) Mazo de la Roche has added another chapter to her famed and entertaining history of the Whiteoak family, a group of 11 full-length novels written over 20 years and published throughout the world.

The Canadian author takes her readers back to the '90s when Mary Wakefield arrives from England as a governess in the motherless children of Philip Whiteoak. Inexperienced, young and far too pretty to be a governess, Mary endears herself to her young charges, high-spirited Renny and placid Meg as well as to their father. By the time Philip's mother, Adeline, arrives from England with her daughter and son-in-law the young master of Jalna has fallen in love with Mary.

Their courtship and the obstacles they meet before their love triumphs form the theme of the story, set in the beauty of rural Ontario.

Chronically, the novel is second in the series, coming after "The Building of Jana" and before "Young Renny."

As always, Miss de la Roche paints here characters with a firm and vigorous hand. Dominant among them are Adeline, the matriarch, of later books and a strong, wilful personality who rules the family, and Renny, an intelligent unruly child.

The author writes in the warm, humorous style which has made her thousands of admirers who will enjoy "Mary Wakefield" as they have her other Jalna books.

CONTROL WILY COYOTE

Regina — (CP) — Efforts to control the coyote will not mean its destruction. Noble E. Buell, U. S. Wild Life Service officer says naturalists should not be alarmed as the coyote quickly adapts itself to new stamping grounds if chased from the old ones.

Suggestions Offered to Farmers For Greater Yield Canning Crops

Mr. A. N. L. Butler, vegetable growers' fieldman, was the guest speaker at the agricultural meeting of the Chamber of Commerce held at the Kiwanis centre last night.

Mr. Butler spoke on the subject of canning crops and expressed his views on the prospects of this coming canning season. He stressed the importance of increasing production and increasing production per man hour, or, timeliness and speed in operation. Mechanization has been one of the greatest assets in improving this last suggestion.

He pointed out that there has been too much carry over from the 1948 season of canning products which may have a depressing effect on this year's production. He also stated that there has been a 7.7 per cent increase over the prewar period of 1935-39 because the purchasing power of the public is much greater. He maintained that fruits and vegetables are still relatively the cheapest of canned foods, and this has been shown by the 23 per cent rise in sales of canned goods and a 550 percent increase in the selling of frozen goods. Lack of exports also has a great influence on the future prospects of the processor.

Advises Better Methods

Not more acres but better acres was another point stressed by Mr. Butler. He advised the farmers to take these precautions before planting their crops. Use good organic matter to gain more moisture in the soil, strive for better drainage so that the water will not drown the crops, avoid compact soil, carefully watch the weather reports, be not rush the planting of peas before a rainfall, to take more care in selecting acres for planting peas, to drill peas shallow especially in heavy land, to use pergon seed treatment which will create an area of sterility around the pea seed and also to use inoculation even on the treated seed.

Mr. Butler gave these following facts as examples to show what was produced in 1947 in the counties of Prince Edward, Prince Edward county and Hastings alone produced one-seventh of the tomatoes, one-third of the peas and one-third of the corn. One and a half million dollars was paid to the farmers in Prince Edward for their canning produce in 1947. Prince Edward and Hastings are very important because they are one of the most intensive crop-producing sections in North America. Through increased improvement the growers in Prince Edward county have been able to increase their acreage from 300-300 bushels tomatoes per acre. Mr. Butler illustrated this by showing that Mac Waldrige was able to produce six and one-third tons of tomatoes per acre last year. He also expressed hopes that the farmers of this area will wake up to irrigation, if irrigation is sufficiently close to them.

In addition to his talk Mr. Butler also presented an interesting film sponsored by the Fine Foods Company of Canada entitled — 'From Good Earth to Good Table', It is the only film of its kind in Canada. It showed how, through scientific production which took many years to perfect, peas and corn could be picked and canned within a few short hours without losing any of their qualities.

Negotiations for contracts and prices get under way on March 8 for this year's canning crops.

CHEESE A LA BENEDICT

Heat together, in double boiler, 1 package (8-ounce) Kraft's Malted Cheese, and ½ cup milk, stirring constantly until cheese melts. On rack of broiler, arrange 4 half hamburger buns, 4 slices tomato, 4 slices cooked ham (or canned pork loaf). Slip under heat, to toast buns and broil tomato and meat. Meantime, poach 4 eggs. To assemble, place on each half-bun (lightly buttered) a slice of tomato, slice of ham and a poached egg — then pour the Kraft Malted Cheese sauce over all.

Celebrate 62nd Anniversary Of Marriage, Occupy Same Home Since Their Wedding Day

Since they were bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, 403 Concession Sidney township, have resided in the same brick farm dwelling two miles west of Foxboro.

Today, 62 years after that memorable day when the couple drove to Belleville behind a team of spanking bays to be married, the couple are observing the anniversary of their marriage.

Both natives of Sidney township, Mr. and Mrs. Smith have lived their entire lives in Hastings and although in June of this year they will be 83 and 84 years old, are still in fairly good health.

Mrs. Smith does her own housework and Mr. Smith, while he admits he could do a better job with a buzzsaw, still is able to look after his garden.

Until a few years ago Mr. Smith operated his 80 acre farm but now is living retired on the farm where he had lived continuously for about 70 years.

Prior to her marriage Mrs. Smith was Miss Martha Frederick and was born in the 4th Concession of Sidney. She remembers well the day back on March 2, 1887, that she and her husband-to-be drove to Belleville behind a team of horses to be married by the late Rev. Joseph Young in the Methodist parsonage.

Recalling early days Mr. and Mrs. Smith see a big difference in life today as compared to 75 years ago. They agree that electricity is a great "convenience" in the home. Mr. Smith drove one of the first autos in Sidney but now only "rides", having sold his last car some years ago.

The couple are members of Foxboro United Church. They live with their daughter, Mrs. Clifford Murray; but occupy separate quarters in the brick farm home which has been their home for over six decades.

Plans to Return To Help Rebuild 'Homeland'

Toronto, March 2. (CP)—A 28-year-old Toronto woman with an unbounded love for her fellowmen will return to her native Jerusalem late this month to help rebuild "a homeland."

Mrs. Samuel J. Zacks, social welfare worker and wife of a Toronto broker and financial underwriter, says she plans to "help out a bit" in restoring the children of war-torn Europe to normal living.

When the Second World War broke out, she joined the French Underground army and later helped in liberating and evacuating thousands of children and adults from German concentration camps.

Her expressive blue eyes sparkled yesterday when she discussed the Youth Aliyah, an organization which has charge of 40,000 children moved from Europe into Israel. Aliyah is a Hebrew word meaning "Return to the old Homeland".

Youth Aliyah gives all children a sound, general schooling based on the idea of collective life and the equality of all human beings, she explained.

Despite her untiring work in the field of Social Welfare, the graceful little woman is not averse to discussing women's fashions in Israel.

"Yes," she said, "Fashions play a leading role in the life of every Israeli woman. In fact, I think Tel Aviv has become a fashion centre as Paris. Many of the world's leading stylists have settled in Israel and there is the great urge for a high standard of living."

Mrs. Zacks said one of the major problems in Israel confronting her is to teach girls arriving in Israel how to cook in their native way and to use the best use of limited rations.

For Romantic Twilight

BY FRUNELLA WOOD

EVERY NOW and then one sees a state of mind in hats so beguiling that the most confirmed bare-header will admit she has an attack one.

Such a notion is expressed by Mr. Fred in his twilight hats, one of which appears above, a way of accenting the evening cottage so floriferally (to coin a word) that it's best carried on the pretty head.

What enchantment to place across the table from one's beau ..., this model of lime green shantung straw, its glamor brim loaded with acquamarine blue petals which are arranged in an overlay brim of lime green veiling with heavy wide, chickenwire mesh which stays pert.

Cannifton Friends Honor Neighbor On 73rd Birthday

Last Monday evening friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mrs. L. Brickman, Cannifton, to celebrate the anniversary of her 73rd birthday. The occasion was a happy one.

The evening was spent in playing cards and talking about old times.

Mrs. Brickman was the recipient of many beautiful greetings, all present wishing her many happy returns of the day, and many more years of anniversary celebrations.

Indonesian Girl Seeks Home News

Since the Dutch army struck in Indonesia last December, the girl, Mimi Sjahrir, has had no direct word from former Indonesian Premier Sutan Sjahrir. He was arrested immediately after the Dutch began their offensive.

Batavia dispatches have said the Dutch have given Sjahrir limited freedom to move around Batavia.

Young Mimi, at 20, can look back on an adventurous past. She made a daring escape from Indonesia with her father 13 days after the first Dutch "police action" began in July 1947.

Mimi came to London to study a year ago. A student at the Polytechnical Institute, she is "learning your most beautiful language and literature."

Scots Girls Learn Cooking Mysteries

BY JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Glasgow, Scotland (CP) — If Canadians like cheese with their apple pie they're sure going to have it, say 28 firm-chinned girls in Glasgow.

They are preparing for emigration to Canada by taking a cooking course in the West of Scotland College of Domestic Science.

The first thing they learned was:

"Apple pie without cheese,
Is like a kiss without a squeeze."

A People's Journal reporter visited the school and chatted with the prospective emigrants like Mrs. Ruby Muir, who plans to sail for Canada in June with her husband and three sons, and with Mrs. Janet McMillan, who was preparing to fry apple rings with sausages for the first time in her life.

The reporter was told apple "tart"—or pie—was never placed on the table in Canada without a piece of cheese in the centre.

Breakfast Dish

"When the People's Journal man looked in he found several girls frying sausages and apple rings in the same pan. This is a favorite breakfast dish in Canada. A peculiarity of Canadian cooking is the mixing of sweet and savory foods in the manner.

"The Scots girls at the Glasgow "Dough School" course are also initiated into the mysteries of waffle making. This is a kind of a pancake, cryped in an oven and served with syrup poured over it. It takes a bit of practice to become an expert "waffler."

"Then there's scone-the-cob which is eaten as a vegetable and a dessert. There is non of this delicacy at the college but the girls are given instructions on how to cook it. Instruction on how to eat it are very simple, "just lift it in your hands and eat from one side to another as if you were playing a mouth organ."

DDGM Visits Minerva Chapt.

On Friday evening, Mrs. Dorothy McGlashan, D.D.G.M., paid her official visit to Minerva Chapter No. 138, O. E. S. in the I.O.O.F. Hall, Front Street.

Mrs. McGlashan congratulated the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Flossie Mason, and the Worthy Patron, Mr. J. Lee, on their staff of officers, who put on the work of the evening.

There was a large number of visitors present with nearly every Chapter in the district being represented.

Refreshments were served by the sisters of the month, followed by dancing, which brought a successful evening to a close.

RAWDON

Electric Toaster Birthday Gift

Rawdon—About thirty friends and neighbors gathered at the Merrick home on Thursday evening, and showered Mrs. Gerald Merrick, a surprise birthday party.

The evening was spent in a brief program which included speeches. Mr. Clarence Seeney also showed several films which all enjoyed.

An address of appreciation was read by Mrs. Frank Bailey, which spoke of the kindness of Mrs. Merrick to her neighbors and Mr. Harry McAdam, made the presentation of an electric toaster. The recipient graciously thanked her friends for both the gift and the thoughtfulness of her friends, and especially those who arranged such a pleasant evening.

The address was signed by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bailey; Mr. and Mrs. Archie Bailey; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Couch; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Seeney; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Visser; Mr. and Mrs. Harry McAdam; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hizard; Mr. and Mrs. Leo Chapelle; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Spencer; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bailey.

The ladies served refreshments which included a lovely birthday cake and the honor guest also spent a pleasant social time together.

Mrs. Merrick was formerly Miss Bertha Green and came to the Second Concession of Rawdon, as a bride, where she has endeared herself to a host of friends. Her husband, Mr. George Merrick; her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Merrick and grandson, Mr. Robert Merrick, were also in attendance.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Response cards cater to thoughtless, lazy people . . . Don't use them

Here's a dilemma indeed. . . I should she follow an incorrect procedure only because it is customary among her friends, even though she knows it is incorrect?

A bride-to-be asks:

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Among my relatives and friends in this community it is customary to enclose response cards with wedding invitations. I know this is incorrect, but if they are omitted, I am positive that no one will reply. What do you advise?

N. R.

If I were you, I would stand firmly on the ground of what I know is right. As you know, and as everyone else with the right kind of taste knows, response cards are absolutely incorrect, a tawdry device that blatantly condescends to people who are too thoughtless or too lazy or too something-or-other to take the trouble to reply in proper form to such a kind and gracious invitation as an invitation to a wedding reception.

It's so easy and so simple to to a wedding reception. All one to a wedding reception. All one needs to do is to take a piece of one's personal note or of white, folded note-paper and write these lines spaced in the centre of the first page:

Mr. and Mrs John Smith
accept with pleasure
the kind invitation of
Mr. and Mrs Paul Brown
for Tuesday, the fifth of April at five o'clock

Or, to regret:

Mr. and Mrs. John Smith
regret that they are unable to accept the kind invitation of
Mr. and Mrs. Paul Brown
for Tuesday, the fifth of April

Surely such a simple gesture is not too much to ask of a friend (or even a relative!) to whom such pleasant and generous hospitality is being offered. And the sad commentary on people who can be so thoughtless that, several years ago, an alert and business happy printer took advantage of this to design these horrible response cards.

But if I were you I wouldn't be defeated by the palpable discourtesy of these cards. I'd have a much happier time planning it.

At the end of the invitation I would have engraved "Please reply" or the more usual "R.s.v.p." with the address to which the reply is to be sent if the reception is not to be in your home. I would not enclose response cards with the wedding invitations, and, after due time, if I saw that some friends or even many friends were thoughtlessly lazily not replying, I would telephone them or assign someone to inquire, "You are coming to the wedding, aren't you?" I believe the chances are you're not right in insisting that "no one will reply" they won't want to miss a good time, even though it means that they will have to write five lines on a sheet of paper!

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Letters and Answers

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Six months ago I secretly got married. No one knew about this, not even my parents. I am 16 and he is 23.

Now I am going to have a baby and I don't know how I will tell my parents that I am married. I have been living with my parents while he has lived with his. My parents know him and dislike him intensely. What shall I do?

"Troubled"

Dear "Troubled":

Somehow your letter leaves me wondering as to whether you really are married or not. It seems to me a little strange that a 16-year-old girl should have been able to go away and get married without any one suspecting anything.

However, whatever the circumstances may be which have brought about your pregnancy, the only thing you can do at this point is to tell your parents the whole story. It is unfortunate that they already dislike this boy, because they are certainly not going to like him any better now. But you will, of course, gain nothing, and only make things harder for yourself, by waiting any longer to tell them the truth.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 15 and just recently started dating boys. I am very bewildered because the boy I have been going out with indulges in petting and tells me it is a perfectly natural thing to do. I have never had much experience with boys, since my parents came from Europe and have been very strict with me.

I don't know whether I am doing the right thing. I have no one to turn to because my parents wouldn't understand. Please help me.

"Bewildered"

Dear "Bewildered":

It is perfectly true that a great many boys and girls today think petting must be a part of any friendship with a girl. But in my opinion they are wrong. No matter how they look at it, and however innocent it may be, that sort of thing is definitely in poor taste, to say the least, and is all too apt to lead to serious trouble. Few boys and girls mean to do anything wrong but petting often gets beyond their control and then things happen which they bitterly regret.

My advice to you is to tell this boy, and any others who suggest the same kind of thing, that you want no part of it.

Perfect Print Dresses

By ALICE ALDEN

THIS IS ONE of the best seasons in years for beautiful clothes. They are ladylike and wearable and have the added overtures of beautiful fabrics and becoming lines. These fabrics are particularly true when applied to prints. Anthony Blotta uses a tiny and charming birds-in-flight print in champagne and black for an attractive frock, simply but distinctively styled. The fichu neckline, fashionably deep, is edged with cartridge-pleated frills, finished with a crisp taffeta-lined bow. The skirt is moderately flared. How to learn the dresses that are simple yet beguiling!

Pet Words, Pet Peeves

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

Many people have pet words, words which they inject into conversation and writing with monotonous regularity. Others have "hate" words, words they detest. Newspapermen (who probably handle as many words in a day as anyone) have both; they have their little favorites (and a blind affection it is) and their peeves.

Correspondents frequently write to the public complaining of the misuse or careless repetition of words. One such person wrote to the New York Times just a few days ago urging that the word "very" be eliminated from the language. He claimed "it is superfluous, it no longer has any force as the result of maddening over-usage, and it carries on a parasitic existence at the expense of dozens of words that do have meaning."

The writer listed such typical combinations as "very important", "very happy", and "very lovely", and noted how much more effective the sentences would be without the "very".

Among words detested by copy readers are "delicious" and "dainty". Lunches, banquets and so forth are always one or the other. It seems that just as all brides must be beautiful, all relishes must be delicious or dainty or both.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Treatment of superfluous hair

Time was when, if a woman had an indigent moustache or bristles on her chin, there was nothing to be done about it. Nowadays one seldom sees a victim of this major beauty defect. It is highly distressing, and one should not bear with it.

Facial fuzziness may appear at any age, in the late teens or when a woman has reached sixty or seventy. Surveys show that when both parents have heavy hair of coarse texture, daughter may be cursed with facial growths. They may appear after fever. It is not believed that superfluous hair is caused by the use of oily cosmetics. If it were, all the balding men would be dipped into cold cream jars.

Unusual hair lines between and above the brows; hair growing low on the forehead, on the side of the face, on the upper lip or chin; hair growing far below the usual line along the nape; long hairs on the arms and legs, all these are extremely disfiguring blemishes.

Shaving is not to be thought of. It can form a light downy growth into shrewd prickles. In the armpits, of course, the razor can be used, but not on the face. For growths on the arms and legs depilatories are a satisfactory remedy. These should be a test application, covering a small area, before going further as some women are allergic to these preparations.

There are various methods of destroying facial hair. The oldest and most popular one is electrolysis.

Once, nothing could be done about oily whiskers

The difficulty with surface treatments is this; each individual shaft emerges from a papilla, a little cuplike formation that is located deep in the flesh. If a shaft is plucked, a new one immediately takes its place it being the business of the papilla to produce it. Therefore, it is necessary that the papilla be destroyed.

A fine needle attached to an electric current is inserted very gently into the pore. The operator must have a keen sense of touch because pores sometimes slant. It is necessary that the needle should not pierce the surrounding flesh, but go directly to its destination. Then the current is turned on. Timing, of course, is important so that too much tissue will not be burned, in which event there may be a scar. When the needle is removed, the shaft is extracted with the tweezers, telephone books under the heading, "electrolysis". But we would suggest that any reader who seeks help along these lines should ask her family physician to make a recommendation.

Stefansson Says Americans Losing Pioneer Spirit

By JOE WING

New York, March 2 (AP)— Is Russia winning the race to the Arctic?

"There isn't any race," said white-maned Vilhjalmur Stefansson grimly, "when one side doesn't run."

It isn't Russia, he made clear, that has failed to run.

The famed explorer and Arctic authority who was born at Arnes, Man., was interviewed in his Greenwich Village study, just off the 32,000 item library where with 10 helpers and navy department funds he is putting together a 3,000,000 word Arctic encyclopedia.

"Progress north in the Soviet is comparable to that in our west one hundred years ago," he went on. "We in Alaska are not advancing except through military activity. Canada is making almost infinitesimal progress.

The reason? Keeping up with the Joneses!

Stefansson, of Viking ancestry himself, advanced the theory that Americans have lost the pioneer's readiness to live on the land — to hunt game for food, then to grow crops for his own use, make his own clothes and get along by himself.

Russians have no such ideas.

The result—a burgeoning population of 200,000 in the Siberian Arctic, doing farming, mining, lumbering and shipping.

Is there a chance we can catch up?

Yes, said Stefansson, there are three ways:

We could grant a monopoly to some big development company. We could do it with large scale co-operatives. Or we could go in for outright socialistic development. But we will have done none of these.

A big man nearly 70 years old with weathered hands as bellicose who has spent 13 summers and 10 winters in the "friendly Arctic," as he calls it, he gave up leading expeditions long since because he "wasn't very good at raising funds."

Lindsay Man Mentally Unfit To Stand Trial

Lindsay, March 2 (CP)—Herman Woodcox, accused of the fatal shooting of a youthful Haliburton prankster said to have called him "The Crow," is mentally unfit to stand trial for murder.

A jury in Ontario Supreme Court reached this verdict after deliberating only 15 minutes. Earlier, a Grand Jury found there was sufficient evidence to commit Woodcox for trial.

The 36-year-old lumberjack was arrested following the shotgun slaying of Arnold Gill, 20, on the main street of Tory Hill village, Haliburton county backwoods community, last Hallowe'en.

Two provincial government psychiatrists testified that in their opinion, Woodcox could not appreciate the gravity of the courtroom proceedings and was incompetent to instruct counsel.

Dr. Charles S. Tennant said he assessed the mental age of Woodcox at about eight years. He found the man deficient in general knowledge and limited in ability to do simple problems beyond the addition and multiplication of numbers under 10.

Dr. Tennant said "When I asked him if he knew how serious the charge was against him, he stated that somebody had told him he might be hanged for that.

"He only knew of one province in Canada. He thought Toronto was Canada's capital, that Mackenzie King was the premier of Ontario and Churchill the prime minister of Canada.

"The accused's tall the ages of his family. But he did know that he had lived in Toronto, Pickering, Trenton and Bancroft. He said he went to school until the age of 14, when he reached grade three.

Dr. Herbert Moorehouse, the other psychiatrist, said that from his examination of Woodcox, he agreed with Dr. Tennant's conclusions.

Mr. Justice Dalton C. Wells presided.

Suggests No Approval Without Parting Glance

Toronto, March 2 — (CP) — C. C. F. leader E. B. Jolliffe asked the Ontario Legislature not to approve "without a passing glance" a bill which "immortalized" seven cabinet ministers and former members of the legislature.

Although he did not object in principle, the official opposition leader pointed out that the Territorial Division Act, given second reading Monday, named new townships after former Liberal Premier George Conant, Labor minister Charles Daley and others.

He commended the government for its "lack of ideological discrimination" in naming Gowganda Bay district township Salsberg Township after J. B. Salsberg, Labor-Progressive member for Toronto St. Andrew.

Wants No More Liquor Outlets In Toronto

Toronto, March 2 — (CP)—The Board of Control Tuesday unanimously recommended that city council ask the provincial government to issue no more liquor outlets in Toronto.

"I think there are sufficient outlets for liquor now," commented Controller Allan Lamport. "Competition for liquor sales brings in unsavory practices which result in sale to children."

Ontario Liquor Licence Board officials declined to disclose the number of taverns and cocktail lounges now operating in Toronto.

HOWE SETS OFF

Cries of "name them, name them," rose from Liberal benches as Mr. Drew got to his feet.

"It is quite obvious the minister knows as little about this as he does about electricity," said Mr. Drew.

(In a speech last fall, Mr. Howe charged that it was Mr. Drew's present administration as premier of Ontario that was responsible for the province's power shortages.)

Drew's Reply

It was quite obvious said Mr. Drew, that Mr. Howe had not gone to the trouble to find out what I said."

What I said was that these controllers have the power to delegate authority . . ." That is as far as he got before shouts and calls from Liberal benches made his words inaudible in the galleries.

Speaker Gaspard Fauteux shouted several times for order and when Mr. Drew could make himself heard he said Mr. Howe had pointed in a "very kindly way" to some supporters of the Progressive Conservative party.

Again there were shouts for him to name the controllers. But by this time Mr. Howe was back on his feet and said it was obvious that Mr. Drew was not going to name the controllers.

"Sit down," shouted Mr. Howe angrily, pointing his glasses and shaking his finger at Mr. Drew who remained standing at his desk across the aisle.

"He's bluffing," interjected Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) as Mr. Drew sat down.

"How tall an ocean waterpower," said Mr. Drew.

"Now that he is talking about lights you want him to sit down" interjected Mr. Graydon.

Mr. Drew made another interjection and Mr. Howe turned on him again.

"You just keep quiet," said Mr. Howe, "I have a speech to make here."

Then adding that Mr. Drew had taken up the time of the House "five times longer" than any other member, Mr. Howe continued with a discussion on trade.

CANADIAN TRADE

The opening proceedings were started when George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, sought unsuccessfully to table his controversial 10,000-word letter on the Hong Kong expedition, and Prime Minister St. Laurent declined to give the government's consent.

Mr. St. Laurent told the Chamber the government will give consideration to celebrations to mark the entry of Newfoundland into the Canadian Confederation.

Mr. Howe tabled a report from his department's engineering research and development branch which predicted that private and public investors will put $3,500,000,000 into new construction and machinery in 1948, an all-time record.

In the main debate, Mr. Thatcher said much of Canada's present buoyant trade was based on credits or European recovery program assistance and bespoke the alarm being felt by Canadian farmers over the prospect of losing markets in the United Kingdom.

The only solution was to do something about trade with Britain and he suggested these steps:

1. The government should call an immediate conference with Britain, with representatives of all political parties on the Canadian delegation.

2. Canada should immediately grant tariff concessions on British imports.

3. The Canadian delegation should express its willingness to enter into bi-lateral or barter agreements.

4. An import board should be established across Canada to direct distribution of British goods.

5. Long — term agreements should be negotiated with Britain for Canada's primary products.

Mr. Howe said Canada's export-import trade in 1948 reached $5,750,000,000 and on a per capita basis was about twice the trade of the United States and about twice that of Britain.

Mr. Howe outlined the government's policy was:

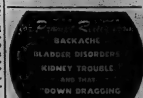
". . . to encourage the production of those things that Canada can produce economically and efficiently, to encourage new industries that can thrive in the kind of economy we have now in Canada and to discourage those industries that can live only with the help of high tariff protection."

He defended the oft-criticized Anglo-Canadian wheat agreement and said that were it not for this arrangement, there would be "a lot of unsold wheat in this country today." As it was, 85 per cent of the 1945 crop had been sold and the return to the Canadian wheat grower in trade and credit would be higher than that of any other farmer anywhere else in the world.

He said public and private investment would be up this year and reported indications that the gross national product—at $15,000,000,000 in 1948—could climb another $1,000,000,000. Business transactions would be at about the same level as 1948, with some decline in prices.

Mr. Fulton belabored the administration for what he said was a lack of policy on the building of a trans-Canada highway.

Mr. Castleden warned of growing unemployment in this country and said the building up of agricultural surpluses and the inability of the government to obtain trade agreements indicated an insecure future. Farmers should be given the security that goes with the establishment of floor prices.



Mr. Boivin joined in the call for tax relief and suggested exemptions be raised from $1,000 to $1,500 for single persons and from $1,500 to $2,000 for married. Levies on soft drinks and jewelry should be outlawed and the government should drop the pay-as-you-go system for income tax.

Mr. Archibald, predicting a depression, said the average Canadian worker had seen his savings eaten up by inflation and now was facing unemployment "completely broke". There were unemployed by the thousands on the public roads.

Mr. Hansell urged the government to adopt Social Credit economic theories as a means of raising money and to do away with taxation, which he called a "deep-rooted plot" to enslave the workers.

Mr. Webb suggested tax reductions and said they were one of the prime factors in the high cost of living. Farmers should be given greater exemption. Including some allowance for the work done on their land by members of their families. They would pay taxes readily if given simpler forms.

Gen. Pearkes repeated suggestions for improvements to pension services and greater safety at sea.

Approaching Sealing Season Raises Interest in Weather and Ice Reports

St. John's Nfld., March 3 (CP) —Scanned with keener attention than any other news these days are the weather and ice reports from the northern part of Newfoundland and Labrador.

From these reports the masters of the sealing ships calculate what conditions are likely to be in the icy wastes, whether the pack will be encountered well in the south or far to the north and in what part of that vast space will be found the floating seal herds. By March 12, when the hunt opens, they will have charted their course.

Pin-Pointe Details

Conditions are reported from point to point all along the coast. On his chart the sealing master pin-points the details of the reports from day to day. He marks the localities where the accumulating slob ice freezes to form what is known as the whelping ice—where seal are found.

For generations the sealing masters have based their drifting directions on such information.

More reliable information has been available in recent years. Before the March 13 opening, aircraft fly low over the ice looking for the herds. The use of spotting planes have saved time formerly occupied in search. It has also served much of the labor and cost of breaking through the floes because the airman can direct the masters into the "leads," or openings in the ice.

Once in the herd, the crews, armed with knife and gaff, disembark in the pans. The seals are killed by a blow on the head and the pelt is detached from the carcass with a few deft strokes of the knife.

Instinct for Adventure

The very fact that they engage in the hunt on spec suggests that their eagerness to get a berth on a sealer is prompted, not so much by what they may make out of it, as by the adventure and the instinctive desire to pit themselves against the sea.

The sea is a hard opponent. Only last year two sealing ships were destroyed by crunching ice as it struggled to get through Cabot St. between Newfoundland and Nova Scotia to the open sea. Ships had to be abandoned over treacherous shifting ice, and at night the crews walked miles through a blizzard to a tiny island and safety.

Others have not been so lucky Near the turn of the century, for instance, more than 100 men were swept south on the ice floes. They died one by one as the ice buffeted and gave way beneath them.

'Giant Eye' Picks Out Nebulae That Existed Billion Years Ago

Pasadena, Calif., March 2 — (AP)—The 200-inch "giant eye" telescope has reached 6,000,000,000,000,000,000 miles into space to photograph Nebuli that existed 1,000,000,000 years ago and which may have disappeared in a cosmic blast millions of years ago.

The California Institute of technology announced Monday that the "giant eye" had reached twice as far as the 100-inch telescope atop Mount Wilson.

To philosophers the results prove that the universe is at least a billion years old—the time it has taken in years to bring the light to the telescope.

One light year is the distance light travels at the rate of 186,000 thousand miles a second for a year—or approximately six trillion miles. Six trillion times one billion equals 6,000,000,000,000,000,000 miles—a distance that is simply too great for anyone but astronomers to grasp.

Dr. Edwin P. Hubble made the test shots in a 60-minute exposure in the pre-dawn hours of Feb. 1. They were of the Constellation Coma Berenices, located roughly in the north tip of the Milky Way.

The shots pinpoint in size, "wouldn't mean a thing" to laymen, the astronomers disclosed. But to the scientists, they are pictures of Nebuli (celestial structures of matter in gaseous state) in a selected space area never before obtained.

FOR HAPPIER AGE

Vancouver (CP)—Oldest member of the Vancouver Happier Old Age Club, Mrs. Elizabeth Billington, 90, says: "Never worry, never give way. Stand on your own two feet. When you feel worry, get up and see an ailing friend. You may find out how lucky you are."

WHITE'S DISTRICT

White's District—Master Gary Jackson is improving slowly after being confined to his home for the past three weeks with the flu.

Mrs. Walter Jones is progressing satisfactorily in Belleville General Hospital following an operation. All her friends hope she will soon be home again.

Choir practice was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Dudley, on Thursday evening.

Quite a number from this district attended the funeral of Mr. Samuel Jenner on Friday afternoon in Cobley and Van Luven Funeral Home in Trenton. The Rev. G. A. Puttenham of Grace Church Trenton, took the service assisted by the Rev. A. C. McCallum of Bayside circuit. Interment was at White's Cemetery, Bayside.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Young attended the funeral of Mr. Milton Green at Weaver's Funeral Home in Trenton on Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Lorne Hunt and Master John Hunt visited Mr. Rowe Hunt at Kingston General Hospital, on Saturday. Mr. Hunt is progressing favorably and looks forward to returning home soon.

Mr. H. M. Brown, Mr. Gerald Brown and Miss Mabel Brown, attended the funeral of Mr. Milton Green in Trenton on Saturday afternoon at Weaver's Funeral Home. The Rev. G. A. Puttenham of Grace Church, Trenton, took the service. Interment was at Bethel Cemetery, Stirling.

Sunday School and Church services at White's Church were held on Sunday afternoon with a good attendance. The choir under the direction of Mrs. Dudley had the pianist, Mrs. W. A. Jeffery, rendered two anthems, "Far Out on the Deathless Billow" and "Sweeter as the Years go by". The Rev. A. C. McCallum preached a sermon on "Faith". He was reminded of an old school master whose favorite word was "faith" and many of his questions were correctly answered with the word "faith". He also said "faith in Jesus Christ leads to a good Christian life."

Sunbeam Mission Band

The Sunbeam Mission Band held their February meeting at Quinte View School on Friday afternoon with the leader, Mrs. G. Meyers, and assistant, Mrs. F. Dudley in attendance. The President, Miss Helen Williams, opened the meeting. Miss Ann Mallory read the minutes of the last meeting. Master James Reid gave a reading "Jesus Helping the Dear Boy", and Master Bobby Meyers read the Scripture lesson. Mrs. Dudley gave an interesting talk to the girls and boys entitled "A Handful of Clay". Mrs. Meyers conducted a Biblical quiz with the junior girls and boys.

Indianapolis Retains Lead In W. Division

(By The Canadian Press)

Indianapolis, although they did not play last night, retained their Hockey League's western division as Cleveland Barons and St. Louis Flyers moved into second and third place respectively.

Cleveland thumped Pittsburgh Hornets 5-3 to take over second place, one point behind Indianapolis, while St. Louis moved into a third spot tie with Pittsburgh as a result of their 5-1 win over Washington Lions.

In another encounter, Hershey Bears tightened their hold on second place in the eastern loop by defeating Springfield Indians 2-1. Norm Larson scored for the Bears in the opening period. In the second Gordon Totile was banished from the Springfield ice-rup and the Bears swarmed into Indian territory. On a power play, Pall Maloney scored for the Bears.

Bobby Carse was the main goal getter for Cleveland, connecting three times. Other Cleveland scorers were Pete Leswick and Don Gurnon. Bob Dawes and Stan Kemp tallied for Pittsburgh.

Greco Scores Technical K.O. Over Zaduk

Toronto, March 2 (CP)—Johnny Greco, hard-punching Canadian welterweight champion from Montreal, today had another knockout listed on his impressive record which already has brought him several big-time bouts in New York and a large bank balance.

Greco, 25-year-old veteran of six years professional boxing Tuesday night scored a technical knockout over game but outclassed Pete Zaduk of Guelph, Referee Billie Burke stopped the bout, which Greco had taken as a warm up match for his fight against former lightweight champion Willie Pep March 31, at the 1:30 mark of the sixth round.

Zaduk with a slight weight advantage at 154 1-4 pounds, staggered to his feet and after another hard left to the chin by Greco left him glassy eyed, Burke stepped in to end it.

Greco started the scheduled 10-round non-title fight, at a slow pace, keeping away from the deadly punching Montrealer. A 3 to 1 favorite with the 7,500 crowd, Greco kept working Punchin' Pete into the ropes and then connected with a pulled him with short powerful punches to the body and head.

Zaduk, who fights out of Toronto, depended on left jabs to keep Greco at a distance and showed his best in the third.

Sports Roundup

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 2. (AP) — The next big heavyweight fight, it appears, will not be for the world championship but for the right to control the world championship . . . First Tex Rickard and Jack Dempsey showed that the heavyweight championship is an extremely valuable possession. Mike Jacobs and Joe Louis added further proof . . . Now it seems that the big-money folks in the entertainment business finally have learned the fact and are trying to move in. The promotional outfit that controls the title undoubtedly will control the entire boxing business . . . At any rate, guys like Uncle Mike, content to make a few million bucks out of the fight racket, are bound to be shoved aside and remain just little guys in a big business.

Choosing up Sides

The battle, as we see it, pits the tournament of champions against the new International Boxing Club, which seems to be just what its name implies . . . The T. of C. is owned by the Columbia Broadcasting System and the Music Corporation of America, and by Allied Syndicates, a publicity outfit headed by Deve Charnay, an astute refugee from the newspaper business . . . Louis apparently is the front man for the I.B.C., with Jim Norris and Arthur Wirtz providing the dough and promotional experience . . . Norris is big-deal in sports as owner of the Chicago Stadium and Detroit Olympia and a big stockholder in Madison Square Garden . . . A good guess would be that one of their big ideas is to keep boxing under the control of the sports crowd and the arena owners rather than let it stray into the entertainment field.

See Two World Heavyweight Boxing Champions Emerging Out of Louis' Re-retirement

By JACK HAND

Miami, March 3 — (AP)—Two world heavyweight boxing 'champions' and a bitter brawl for financial control of the fight trade are the likely results of Joe Louis' decision to re-retire and become a promoter.

The two "champions" probably will emerge from this scramble:

1. Winner of a 15-round bout between Round Charles and Jersey Joe Walcott, to be promoted by Louis and his associates in June, will be recognized by the National Boxing Association.

2. Jack Solomons, British promoter, will claim the title for the survivor of a series involving Lee Savold, Bruce Woodcock and Freddie Mills.

Attitude of the New York State Athletic Commission, the only major American ring group not associated with the N. B. A., is not definite. Chairman Eddie Egan has indicated that he prefers an elimination tournament to select a champ.

Scramble Touched Off

Louis touched off this wild scramble Tuesday in surprising fashion when Abe Green, N. B. A. commissioner, made public a letter in which the Brown Bomber formally resigned as champion.

In his letter to Greene, Louis wrote that he had entered a partnership with Arthur M. Wirtz and James D. Norris to form the International Boxing Club. He asked for, and was given, permission by Greene to run the Walcott - Charles fight for the championship.

Site of this bout has not been set, but New York or Chicago are the likely spots.

The new boxing club has ambitious plans for other bouts and will enter the promotional war with Mike Jacobs' 20th Century Sporting Club, the Tournament of Champions and Solomons.

"I am certain you know how sorry I must be to let the championship go in this way," wrote Louis to Greene. "I have held out for a long time and I won it in the ring. I expected to lose it the same way I won it. This is the way champions should be made."

Glad to Retire Says Champion

Louis himself told reporters here as he boarded a plane for a Nassau exhibition: "I'm glad to retire. It takes a great load off my mind. I could see that I could not fight any more, and rather than lose the title in the ring, I decided to quit."

It was explained by publicity agent Harry Mandel that Louis made his sudden decision because he couldn't afford to turn down the proposition made by Norris, whose father owns the Chicago Stadium, Detroit Olympia Arena and Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League; and Wirtz, partner with Sonja Henie in several ice-show ventures.

Louis, who held the crown for almost 12 years after winning it from Jimmy Braddock at Chicago June 22, 1937, discussed his new venture Sunday with Jacobs. The ailing Jacobs handed all of Louis' 25 successful defences.

"Uncle Mike had no other out," Louis said. "I went to see him Sunday. I did what I said I would do, stick with Mike as long as I was boxing. And I did it."

"Mike will be back in New York within a few weeks," said Markson. "He has taken control of the business. He has no intentions of retiring.

This is the second retirement by Louis, who said last summer that his return bout with Abe Simon at Yankee Stadium June 28 was his last. He repeated the statement after the knockout victory.

National Hockey League Teams All Busy Tonight

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

A supply of handkerchiefs was the big concern for National Hockey League fans tonight as they prepared to watch possibly decisive battle for third place between the unhappiest crocks in the circuit.

Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs are staggering toward the finish line—now only nine games away—laden with injuries. The seeking performers on each side are on the injured list.

The whole league is active tonight, with New York Rangers playing Black Hawks in Chicago and Detroit Red Wings meeting the Bruins in Boston, but main interest is on the third-place struggle. The Canadiens and Leafs are tied at 21 points apiece, four behind second-place Boston and 11 behind the leading Red Wings.

Canadiens, who struggled up into the tie last weekend, will be playing without two of their best defencemen—team captain Butch Bouchard and big Kenny Reardon. Bouchard has an old knee injury which has not responded to treatment and Reardon has a shoulder separation.

But the Leafs won't have you being too sorry for the Canucks. Hill Kennicki, Harry Taylor and Howie Meeker—all outstanding forwards—are on the sidelines. Kennicki and Taylor are still recovering from injuries suffered more than a week ago. Meeker is out for the season with a broken foot.

Taylor may be able to play, however, and Vic Lynn, who suffered a charley horse in the same disastrous weekend, probably will be given regular duty.

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Roy Conacher and Gaetan Bentley, the high-scoring Chicago Black Hawk forwards, are pitching up points in road games with the same facility as they are at home.

A check of the National Hockey League scoring records shows that wingers who lead the circuit of goal-scoring assists by Chicago scorers "in behalf of the Hawk aces may be exaggerated.

Both Conacher and Bentley are far ahead of the pack in this season's scoring race. Conacher has 36 goals and 38 assists for 62 points and Bentley 30 goals and 31 assists for 61 points.

At home Conacher has scored 13 goals and 18 assists in 25 games. On the road he has 11 goals and 20 assists in 27 games.

Bentley has scored 11 goals at home and been credited with 21 assists. On the road he has nine goals and 20 assists.

Dick Chesbro, head coach of the McGill Redmen football squad, denied Tuesday night at Montreal that the University is offering athletic scholarships for promising young grid stars. Chesbro was commenting on a report from Vancouver that Larry Bentman, backfield sensation with the Vancouver Junior Blue Bombers two years ago, had received a provincial athletic scholarship from McGill.

Belleville Gunners Win 4-2 Eliminate Peterborough Clapper's in Sudden-Death

Peterborough, March 2—Belleville Gunners eliminated the local Clapper's 4-2 here last night in a sudden-death O.M.H.A. Midget replay—the replay was ordered when it was discovered a Belleville player previously used was over the Midget age limit—the Quinte aggregation now continues in provincial playdowns.

There was little to choose between the clubs here. The breaks pretty well deciding the issue. Belleville had more finish to their plays in around the Peterboro outcage. Lally counted at 7.35 in the first for the visitors on a partial breakaway. Taking the biscuit from Allen at his own blue line to race right in and score. The second period was almost over before another tally was notched. With Hull counting in close on a pass from Whalen to make it 2-0.

Clapper's roared back in the third to score a pair. Scriver getting one on Pammett's rebound and Stewart sinking the disc on a fine solo effort. However the Bellevilles boys put on the pressure and had enough left to score two more late in the chukker. Lally tallied on Milligan's pass and Hull scored unassisted with seconds to go.

Goalie Barclay shone throughout for the visitors while Lally was the individual sniping star but the whole visiting team turned a solid effort in a speedy, clean contest on good ice. Pammett, Stewart and Curtis looked best for Peterborough, while their teammates all went well in a losing cause.

The teams:

Belleville: Goal, Barclay; defence, Green, Milligan; centre, Berrett; wings, Whalen, Carey. Alternates, Allen, Lally, Thompson, Hull, Elliott, Jones, Bland, Schrieber.

Referees: L. Eberts and W. Robinaryi.

Summary

First Period.
Belleville, Lally (Allen) 7.35
Penalty—Reynolds.
Second Period.
Belleville, Hull (Whalen) 19.50
Penalties—Milligan, Lally.
Third Period.
Peter, Scriver (Pammett) 7.55
Belleville, Lally (Milligan) 17.48
Peter, Stewart 18.55
Belleville, Hull 19.15
Penalties—Milligan, Green (2), Whalen, Pammett.

Major Baseball League Teams Open Training

Chicago, March 3 (AP)—Teams of the major baseball leagues today entered their second day of training for the 1942 season, with at least 22 players still dickering for more money.

The 16 teams yesterday began preparing for the 1942 grind with light workouts, Pepper games and ball sessions.

Cleveland's world-champion Indians, operating out of Tucson, Ariz., paraded four of their dissatisfied athletes—pitchers Gene Bearden and Will Harry, and infielders Joe Gordon and Roberto Avila—to work out. Hurler Bob Lemon, also a holdout, was not in camp. Neither were pitchers Satchel Paige, Russ Christopher, Don Black and shortstop Artie Wilson. Paige is fit as Hot Springs, Ark.

The National-league champions, Boston Braves, training at Bradenton, Fla., listed five holdouts—Pitchers Warren Spahn, Clyde Shoun, Catcher Phil Masi, Infielder Ed Stanky and outfielder Jeff Heath.

Other holdouts include first baseman Les Fleming, Pittsburgh; outfielder Stan Spence, Boston Red Sox; Pitcher Vic Raschi and infielder Bobby Brown, New York Yankees; pitcher Johnny Wyrostek and pitcher Harry Gumbert, Cincinnati; outfielder Johnny Cavarretta, Philadelphia Athletics; second baseman Jerry Priddy and outfielder Pete Layden, St. Louis Browns; pitcher Schoolboy Rowe, pitcher Joseph Bowman and infielder Buddy Blattner, Philadelphia Phillies; Don Kolloway, Chicago White Sox.

In contrast, warm weather and sunny skies welcomed the team training in the west.

16 Thoroughbreds Perish in Blaze At Lexington

Lexington, Ky., March 3 (AP)—Sixteen thoroughbred horses perished in a fire which swept a big barn at Clifford Moreau and Sydney Fuson's farm near here Tuesday night. Waller Jones, farm manager, estimated the loss at $200,000.

Nine of the horses trapped were yearlings. Their identities were not learned immediately.

The blaze was discovered shortly before midnight by Thomas Bates, a groom, who heard an explosion. Investigated and found the 26-stall training barn ablaze. He said it was impossible to get inside the barn.

Jones said Old Rockport, which won the recent, $100,000 Santa Anita derby, was not quartered on the farm.

Face of Oldtime Player Symbol For Maple Leafs

Toronto, March 2 (CP)—The grunt face of an old-time player, with handle-bar moustache will be the trade mark of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International-American Hockey League for the club's Diamond Jubilee this season.

The symbol, submitted by Guy Leslie, Toronto repairman, was chosen from almost 1,000 sent in, General Manager Joe Ziegler said. Leslie won $100 and two season passes.

"We'll use this design," Ziegler said, "as our theme of the year. It'll be on our envelopes, press releases, club roster, front page of our program and on all our advertising."

THE WORK OF MERCY NEVER ENDS

YOUR GIFT to the Canadian Red Cross enables you to bring help, comfort — life itself — the needy and the stricken.

When disaster strikes, you are there with food, clothing and medical aid. In isolated districts where the doctor is beyond reach, you establish Outpost Hospitals. You provide free blood transfusions; set up additional blood donor clinics. You teach first aid, swimming and water safety. You operate Red Cross Lodges at Military Hospitals, so that wounded veterans have a place for recreation and for receiving their relatives and friends.

. . . You become a partner in all the missions of mercy carried out, in peace as well as war, by Canada's skilled, devoted Red Cross workers.

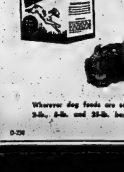
Sure proof you love your dog!

Gaines nourishes every inch



Express your love—nourish every inch of your dog! Feed Gaines!—it's kennel-tested—biologically proved nutritionally complete.

Cheaper! . . . to feed than any other type. A 5-lb. bag makes 10 to 12 lbs. of ready-to-eat food.

More convenient! — just mix with water (soup, milk or gravy). For variety, try GAINES KRUNCHON, which is Gaines Meal compressed into crunchy bite-size pellets.

Pays off in health! Each pound contains—proteins as in 1½ lbs. beef; carbohydrates as in 1½ qts. cooked oatmeal; fats as in 1½ oz. butter; minerals as in 1¾ lbs. cheese; iron as in ¾ lb. beef liver.

Plus all vitamins he needs.

The Kibitzer

After getting over a mad you can usually think of several caustic remarks you failed to come up with. Nine will ever know how many brilliant answers have been bottled up forever in this way.

Think of all the chances I miss to show an audience my reputed cleverness. Afterwards, oh boy! But not at the time. What I ever-looked telling them at the time might have made me famous.

A bridge contract is being played. Mr. My explanation of it is approved plan is instructive. Up jumps a fresh opponent ready to defeat it. And later I find a worse way that would have been successful.

Be not dismayed when your correct play turns out wrong. Over the long pull it will pay dividends. But review the cards after such a loss. It will teach you points that come in handy.

In a recent game came the deal shown here:

♠Q 3
♥A K J 7 8
♦A 8 5 5
♣A J

WEST
♠K 9 6
♥Q 5 4 2
♦None
♣9 6 5 3 3

EAST
♠J 10 8 5
♥10 9 6
♦10 9 7 3
♣K 10 8

SOUTH
♠A 7 4 2
♥10 3
♣Q 4

It was correctly bid like this:

South	North
1 D	2 H
3 D	4 NT
5 H	6 S

It is not good policy to lead a suit bid by opponents. Generally, the lead of some unbid suit is better.

But west led a small heart and south let it come around to the ten. Learning east had all the unseen trumps, one plan of play failed. A re-bash shows how easy the slam can be.

All four opponent trumps are pulled. Club queen is finessed and lost to dummy's ace. A spade return from there is grabbed by the south ace. A heart finesse wins with dummy jack and a club is cashed.

Dummy leads both top hearts and a toy club. On them is discard the three small south spades. The last trick is a south trump. Easy.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Bollywood, March 3 (AP) — "Now," said Clandette Colbert "I've done everything."

The picture is "Love is Big Business." In it she will use Jul-Ritz to toss Robert Young into a pile of fish, then get inundated herself by the mass of mackerel. She will also have Max Baer tossed into her lap as a wrestling match and consume a cocktail including dry ice.

Mud And I

In "No Time For Love" she made love to Fred MacMurray while waist deep in mud. She also got covered with the slop in her next picture, "The Egg and I." "Mud I don't mind," she says, "but mud mixed with pig!"

For "Cleopatra," she was following in the steps of such scandalous leopard. She dodged bombs and fire in. "So Proudly We Hail!" and was knocked out when her helmet tapped the floor. In "Boom Town" she was splattered by an oil gusher.

Venture Flop

The ability to endure these things is one of the factors that has kept Claudette in the movie limelight for two decades. That, plus high-powered beauty, durable charm, believable acting and a sound business head. The latter she lacks.

"I'm supposed to be a smart businesswoman," she laughed. "But the only investments I've made by myself have flopped."

She told of making her first purchase of movie stock not long ago. The company quickly plummeted about 25 points. She sold that her most successful films have been those she had no investment in. Her profit-sharing movies have had little profits to share.

WOOLER

Wooler—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Orvis and daughters, of Peterborough, visited their parents over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Kilbanks and Mr. Geo. Kilbanks of Belleville, spent Sunday with Wooler friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wilkins and daughter, Judith, of Ottawa, were weekend guests of Mrs. Wilkins' parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Austin.

Mrs. C. D. Cole returned on Friday from a visit with relatives in Burgessville and Niagara Falls, Ont.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Hess, of Hastings, were Sunday guests of Mrs. S. L. Terrill.

Mrs. Lorna Scott spent the weekend in Belleville, with her daughter, Mrs. M. Dougherty.

Relatives and friends attended the funeral of the late Mr. Sam Jeeners at Trenton on Friday afternoon.

Miss Ruth Austin, Reg.N., of Brighton, was in town on Wednesday afternoon for the monthly Child's Health Conference.

Mrs. Earl Donnan and group of the Women's Association held a sewing meeting at the home of Mrs. Arthur Rutan on Thursday evening.

Mrs. W. E. Scott is a patient in the Belleville Hospital.

SLICK THIEF

Winnipeg — (CP) — When he came to a curling tournament at Winnipeg Amphitheatre recently Douglas Brown's hip pocket contained a wallet and $23. When he left the crowded lobby the pocket was empty — it had been given a businesslike slit with a razor.

NICE AND TIDY

Sarnia, Ont. — (CP) — Thieves who smashed a plate glass window in a general store here and stole $500 worth of merchandise placed a mat inside the window to avoid tracking in mud.

PICTON

Want Traffic Stopped When Buses Unload

Picton — A resolution asking that the Provincial Government be petitioned to pass legislation making it compulsory for traffic, both ways, to stop when a school bus stops, was passed by Prince Edward County Trustees and Ratepayers' Association at their first meeting since organization. It was pointed out that such a law exists, as a safety measure, in many states across the line.

The Association is also asking that the Department of Education allow school boards to sign contracts for a period longer than one year.

There was a discussion on the ceiling cost of $115 per pupil in public schools, $180 in continuation schools and $200 in high schools, established in 1944. Since then, costs of operating schools have almost doubled, but there has not been any increase in the "ceiling of approved costs." Neither is there any differential in approved costs as between schools paying debentures and those entirely free of debt.

Harold Way stressed the apparent unequal distribution of township grants for educational facilities. These grants had not been increased in keeping with the increase in teachers' salaries, he said. He pointed out the difficulties in assessment in relation to grants. President Douglas Taylor presided.

IVANHOE

Ivanhoe — Mr. and Mrs. A. Wood and Mr. and Mrs. George Wood, Toronto, were visitors at their cousin, the late Fred Slater home, Ivanhoe on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl McMaster, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rowe spent Sunday and Monday in Toronto and Guelph.

Mrs. Hiram Wright had the misfortune to fall on the icy road near her home, causing injury to her arm. X-ray revealed the bone had been broken in two places.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wood visited Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Bateman of Tweed on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Palmer of Bannockburn were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Shaw on Sunday evening.

Mrs. L. R. Slater of Toronto is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wood.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Keeble and Wayne, spent the weekend the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thrasher of Belleville.

Mrs. Earl Benson and daughter Jean spent the weekend visiting Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hinds of Toronto.

Mrs. Walter Holgate spent the past week with her mother, Mrs. Hiram Wright.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Keeble attended a party Monday evening giving in honor of Mrs. Kenneth Holmes, Marlbank, on the occasion of her birthday.

Master Lewis Mitz, two-and-a-half-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Mitz, narrowly escaped serious injury when his hand and forearm were drawn in the wringer of an electric washing machine. In his mother's momentary absence the child set the machine in motion. Fortunately he had on his snow suit and mitts and was soon released with only a reddened hand and arm.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Powell and Mrs. H. H. Lackey of Frankford, were guests at the United Church parsonage on Thursday evening when the ladies of Salem United Church gathered to form a Women's Association. Mrs. H. H. Lackey spoke on the work of the W.A. and Mrs. C. D. Powell on the work of the W.M.S.

The following officers were elected:

President, Mrs. Ernest Sarlevice - president, Mrs. Thos. Clemenhy; secretary, Mrs. G. Stine; treasurer, Mrs. Murrey Johnston; W.M.S. treasurer, Mrs. George Hall.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. H. H. Lackey, Mrs. C. D. Powell and Mr. G. A. Creasor by Mrs. Murrey Johnston.

Mr. Chas. Mumby, Mrs. Hiram Defoe and Mrs. Murney Johnston of Rawdon were also present at the meeting.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop looked in the dictionerry on his way to breakfist, saying to me, I knew it, every time I bet, I'm wrong. I bet my secretery a box of candy that "exercise" is spelled with a "z" and of course naturelly it terns out to be spelled with an "S."

I'd be apt to spell it with a "z", but I'm not a criterium, I'm sure, ma said, and pop said, Sy gollies, I never won a bet in my life, and when I say never I dont mean hardly ever. I-mean absolutely, positively never, he said.

Well then I'll bet you it's not going to rain today, even though the paper says possible showers and there's no blue sky showing, ma said, and pop said, I'll take that bet. I bet it'll rain, and now mark my words it simply cant rain, he said.

Well, that's a relief, ma said. Now I wont bother taking my umbrella when I go downtown, but only on your say so, William, because if my new hat is cawt in a downpour after you've declibritily advized me to leave my umbrella home, believe me, William, I'll hear plenty from me, she said, and pop said, But hold on, wee joola, who started this betting bizness? I didn't, he said.

Now William, you swore it cant rain because you bet it will, and you cant answer it now, ma said, and pop said, Yes, I cant, by gollies. I'll change my bet. I'll bet it wont rain, so take your umbrella, because now it's bound to rain, and, even if it doesn't by some miracle, you'll be cawt out with an umbrella on a clear day, but that's the worst that can happen to you, he said.

But that's the worst thing that could happen for land sakes, ma said. I just hate to carry an unnessesary umbrella, and I think you're the meenest, most spiteful I ever met, and if you think it's funny, go ahead and laff by all means, she said. Which he did.

Block Island, R.I. — (AP) — This 900-odd year-round residents of this resort island are clinging hard to a tradition, but their faith has been shaken by events of the last few days.

The events that strained the islanders' faith:

Twelve inches of snow on the level; drifts so deep the state plow got stuck and a bulldozer had to rescue it and break open island roads; disruption of the private power supply, so that islanders hoisted and cranked with kerosene; most telephone lines on the island out of order and no cable lines to the mainland, leaving a single radio circuit the only channel open to the rest of the world; no steamer service to the mainland for two days because of high seas.

Newport News, Va. — (AP) — City police looked for more than two years for Tommy Hill, who escaped from the city farm while serving six months for drunkenness.

They finally located him this week. Hill was holding down a job as a guard at the North Carolina State Prison camp.

She climbs.

Last week the cow Grady threw North America into a tizzy by throwing herself into a silo. She stayed trapped for five days until elbow-and-knee grease got her out.

"Are You Fully Covered?"

"We came home the other night to see her sticking her head out of the second-story window of the barn, looking down at her calf," he said.

"We had a deuce of a time getting her down. Those stairs are 45 degrees, and we had to coax her with an electric shocker with one hand and hold her back with the other."

But Tuesday morning the second-storey cow was back in the hayloft again, looking over the barnyard like Mussolini on the balcony. Back into action went the electric prod.

"We wish she'd quit," said Fuqua. "It's a lot of work."

4TH SIDNEY

4th Sidney.—Messrs Donald and Roy Jaffrey, accompanied by some friends from O.A.C., Guelph, spent a recent weekend with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Jaffrey.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Tucker and family spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Snider, at Mountain View.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Phillips and Ivan, were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Bradshaw.

A Radio Farm Forum rally was held in the Community hall on Monday evening. All report an enjoyable evening.

Mrs. Arthur Vermilyea is a patient in the Kingston Hospital.

Mr. Albert Seeley was a patient in Kingston Hospital, a few days last week. His friends are glad he is much better.

Several ladies attended Wallbridge W.I., held at the home of a former member, Mrs. K. Yorke, Belleville.

Mr. Frank Tucker, Mr. Hugh Gray, Mr. Gordon Woods, of Conservatory, accompanied Mr. Geo. Read to Toronto, on Tuesday. While in Toronto, they were shown through the parliament buildings and had luncheon as a guest of Mr. Elmer Sandercock, M.L.A., in the parliament buildings.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Knight and Beverley, Mrs. Chas. Knight and Miss Phoebe Kerr, spent Sunday afternoon in Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Phillips and Ivan, were dinner guests on Sunday of Miss Maude Phillips, Belleville.

MAKE WAY FOR BUSES

Regina — (CP) — Is a railway a railway if it hasn't any tracks?

This point soon will confront civic officials here. Regina Municipal Railway originally had four routes. Buses have eliminated two, a third is being converted and the last one is expected to be replaced next year.

FRANKFORD

Frankford — Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sharpe and Keith, of Oshawa, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Powell.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell McRorie are spending a holiday with relatives in Ottawa and Smiths Falls.

Mr. Jonathan Powell spent last Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sharpe, in Oshawa.

Mr. Clayton Powell spent last Wednesday in Toronto.

Mr. Ralph McLeod and Miss Josephine Brennan of Glen Miller, were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold McLeod, Sunday night.

Mrs. Vernon Wannamaker and girls were Thursday night guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold McLeod.

Mrs. Blake Patrick was a Sunday afternoon guest of Mrs. Hector Whitton.

Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Patrick and boys were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Colden and family, at Stirling.

Mr. Reg. Solmes spent the weekend in Montreal.

Mr. Wilmot Carter spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Willard Sleeper, in Campbellford.

Mr. and Mrs. James McFarland and son Larry were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Smith.

In an exhibition game Saturday night, Frankford - Batawa Combines (counced Trenton Downs and Coulter by a 14-5 count. The score would have been considerably higher, except for a fine performance turned in by Hill, the Trenton net minder.

Last minute preparations are being made for the big Lions Club ice Carnival to be held in the Frankford Arena Friday evening. A great program of entertainment is to be provided for both young and old. Prizes will be given for best costumes, for racers, for the largest family on the ice, and for the oldest person on the ice.

A special Boys' Night was held in Frankford Arena Monday night and featured a twin hockey bill, in the juvenile and bantam class. Frankford emerged on the short end of both scores, dropping the opening bantam game by a 8-5 count to the Campbellford Bantams. In the second encounter, Marmora Juveniles blanked the locals 5-0. A door prize was won by Marjorie Walt of Stockdale.

Mrs. J. M. Dafoe visited her mother, who is ill in Springforook, this week.

Mrs. Fred Stuckey is visiting her son for a few days in Marmora.

The Frankford Community Memorial Hall was filled to capacity Monday night as the Young Married Couples Group of St. Paul's United Church in Stirling, presented their three act comedy play, "Small Town Romeo." The play was sponsored by the Guild of Trinity Anglican Church in Frankford. This same play will be presented Friday evening in the Batawa Recreation Hall.

BONARLAW

Bonarlaw—On Wednesday of last week the euchre held at the parish hall of St. Mark's Church was a decided success and was the last of the season. The prize winners were Mrs. Geo. Williams and John Eggeit. Mrs. Williams also won the door prize which was donated by Messrs. Everett Heath and Stanley Kitchener.

On Friday last the Oddfellows of Springbrook Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 429 played host to the ladies and a number of friends in the auditorium of the Orange Hall. A progressive euchre under the management of the Noble Grand, Frank Cosbey, provided a splendid social evening. The winners were Mrs. Grenville Meikle-John and J. F. Baker.

Oyster Supper

The oyster supper held in the parish hall of St. Mark's Church on Monday evening of this week, was a decided success, about 125 persons being in attendance. The chef was past reeve of Rawdon township, John Morrison, who proved himself an expert at cooking oysters. The ladies provided a full course meal in addition and the tables were literally groaning under the weight of the delicious supper.

A social evening was held after the inner man had been satisfied, progressive euchre being the main attraction. The winners were Mrs. Jas. Spry and John Morrison, the above mentioned chef. The euchre was under the management of W. J. Barlow who kept things moving swiftly.

Rev. J. W. Brownlie, rector of the parish, thanked all those who assisted to make the event such a splendid success especially mentioning Mr. Morrison, church wardens, Everett Heath and Rosalid Brown and W. J. Barlow. Mr. Morrison replied in a short speech saying it was a pleasure to assist the people of St. Mark's Church, and was gratified that his work as chef had brought forth so many favorable comments as it is difficult to please such a situation to please everyone.

The reeve of Rawdon, Wilfred Spencer, was called on for a few remarks and stated he had thoroughly enjoyed the evening and was glad to be present.

Messrs. W. J. Barlow and Thos. H. Prest, clerk of Rawdon township and road superintendent attended the Good Roads Association convention held in Toronto last week and report that it was best ever held.

Wheels of Progress for Home, Land, Road are Demonstrated

ON SHOW in recent exhibitions in London, England, were these three, wheeled ways of mechanical progress. Left: The Velocette 149 lightweight motor-cycle, called the "two-wheeled auto" is Britain because of its water-cooled multi-cylinder motor, shaft drive, hand starter and front and rear suspension. At least 10,000 of the new machines have been ordered for the United States. Center: The Ganaichi small tractor, utility load help that numbers spraying, hoeing, hedge cutting and bull-dozing among its accomplishments. Right: Londes Invenier Segull's aid to mothers—a baby carriage that can easily be pushed up or downstairs. Six small wheels, three at each side, at the rear do the trick. The industrial show — the British Industries Fair, to be held next May 2nd to 13th.

Whisper In The Night

BY MARIE BLIZARD

The judge stomped in and shook the snowflakes from the brim of his fedfored hat. "Well, Rosie, what does this urgent summons mean?" he demanded kindly.

Rosalie said, "There are your rubbers, Judge! And how many times have I told you to look your office? The door was practically wide open when I got here."

The judge chuckled. "Seems like old times, Rosie, to hear you bose me around. Still worry about that door. Folks are pretty honest around these parts."

"I know," she said coolly, recalled to her purpose. "I'm sorry I had to ask you to come down to the office this evening, but I wanted to talk to you privately."

"You sound like you're in some kind of trouble, girl. That's what I'm here for. What is it?"

"Judge, I don't know how to begin. When I . . . well, an hour ago, I simply flew out of the house and telephoned you and . . ."

"Wait a little, girl." The judge flshed in his pockets for his old pipe. "Take things easy. Catch your breath and start at the beginning. This doesn't sound like you."

"I never seem to sound like myself any more," she said bitterly. "I've got myself in so many circles since I won that money that I don't seem to know how to get back to where I was before."

The judge looked at her with wise old eyes. "It's always a good sign when you want to get back, Rosie," he said mildly. "Do you?"

"Yes!" she answered simply. "But I'm afraid it's a little too late. I've done something dreadful."

"To yourself or to some one else, Rosie?"

"To Elmford."

The judge smiled. "Elmford? I thought you'd washed your hands of Elmford. Seems to me that not long ago you professed not to care very much for . . . er . . . small towns."

"That was a long time ago, sir. It seems that I am very much attached to this place. And now I've done something that has to be undone. It's about the Kelsey dairy."

"What about it?"

Rosalie drew her chair closer to the judge's desk.

"I met a man in New York. He was different from all the men I have ever known. For a little while I thought I was in love with him. He . . . he's so polished and . . . and all that."

"The kind of man who would be a mystery to you?" There was a twinkle in the judge's eyes.

"Yes. And I want no more mysteries in my life. He came here from Bermuda, he was yachting for me. He . . . he acted as if he were in love with me. I met some of his friends. And I didn't like the way they lived. They're always in debt and trying to be something they're not. I got all muddled up about it and started to tell Norman about country life . . ."

"That's the young fellow that's visiting you, isn't it?"

"Yes. When he asked me how one could earn a good living here, I told him about the Kelsey dairy . . . about the auction. I didn't dream he'd be interested in what I was saying."

"And what did you say that was so damaging?"

"I told him that everybody here wanted to keep a syndicate out. That we wanted to keep all our industries in local hands. I didn't know that I'd let the name of the Central New England Syndicate slip out. Or that, for one little minute, Norman would do what he did."

The twinkle disappeared from the judge's eyes. "What did he do, Rosalie?"

"He sold us out." Her voice was miserable.

"How? The auction isn't until tomorrow, you know."

"There isn't any one here who can bid against him. Last night he asked me to marry him. Today he asked me again — just before I telephoned you. He said he'd take me back to New York where I belonged. He hasn't any money and I told him he couldn't support me there. He said he could.

"Go on," he said gently.

"He said he'd have a stake after the sale tomorrow. Then he told me what he'd done — that he'd gone to the syndicate and been authorized to act as their representative. He said he could bid as high as fifteen thousand dollars. Oh, Judge, there's no one in Elmford who can bid that high, is there?"

The judge shook his head. "There's no one who would," he answered. "As it stands now, it isn't worth more than ten thousand dollars, cattle, buildings, machinery and all. And I doubt if . . . if any one wants it could bid even five. . . Money's scarce around here."

"Terry grants it, doesn't he?" she asked very softly.

The judge's eyes did not meet hers. "I believe he does. That boy could do a lot with it. All the business men in this town are back of him, Rosie. Terry's shrewd and farsighted, and he has a natural business ability. He's done real well with that store in the last 3 years. Seen much of him since you got back?" the judge asked as if it were merely a polite question.

Rosalie shook her head. "He asked me up to see one night. And he came to my party last night. With Marjorie Upham."

"I wouldn't worry about that, Rosie. When a young fellow's girl goes away and leaves him, he has to take some girl out."

Quick color flooded Rosalie's cheeks. "I wasn't worried about it," she said with some heat.

"No? Well, I just thought I'd tell you. I've been playing cards with Terry some lately. He missed you, girl."

Rosalie swallowed hard. "Did... did he?"

"Mebbe he didn't. All I know is that he used to drop in here to ask me if I heard from you and what you had to say."

"Terry's proud," she said, for no apparent reason. Then, recalling Norman. "Judge, what can we do?"

The judge pondered silently for a little time. His voice was regretful when he said, "There isn't anything we can do, Rosalie. If he has the authority to bid fifteen thousand dollars, the only way to beat him is to bid more. And anybody with sense wouldn't do it. The place isn't worth it. I'm sorry."

"Oh, judge!" Rosalie's face was stricken, her voice was sick. "Is there anything I could say to Norman? Anything I can do at all?"

"Yes, there is. You can pretend that you are not interested in him at all. Go home and act just natural with him. Sleep on your problem and mebbe tomorrow something will happen. But don't let him know that you do not want him to have it. You're a woman and women sometimes know by instinct what to do."

The judge held a match to his pipe. He drew on it noisily. "Sure you're not still in love with this one?"

"That's one thing I'm sure of," she answered in tones too convincing to leave any doubt.

The judge chuckled. "Thought you might still want forty bathrooms. Wasn't that the idea?"

"Your memory is much too good," she said. "And don't let me catch you out in the snow again without your rubbers."

The judge didn't answer her as the clattered down the wooden stairway. He opened the door of his ancient car and handed her in gallantly. As he tucked the robe around her knees, he said, "I'm kind of proud of you today, Rosie. Seems like you belong to us again."

It was warm and clear when morning broke. But to Rosalie, standing at the thin edge of the crowd that surrounded the auctioneer's platform on the Kelsey farm, there was an icy hand that touched her heart. For up beyond, close to the platform, was the debonair, assured figure of Norman Carlyst and Norman had just bid six thousand dollars.

"Six thousand dollars! Going for six thousand dollars!" the auctioneer's voice, strident, clear, tolled six thousand times in her heart.

And in Terry Keating's brain and heart. For Terry had bid five thousand dollars.

Norman had said nothing until Terry's voice rang out. Then he bid four. Jonathan Upham had bid five. For Terry, Rosalie hoped. And then Norman raised another thousand. Would raise it, she knew, to the last fifteen.

Terry's profile, beyond her at the left, was resolute. And yet somehow pathetic.

Where was that woman's instinct for doing the right thing that the judge had spoken of?

The judge's Warm blood flowed back into Rosalie's heart. She sought the judge, found him a few steps away and ran towards him. Her cold hands cupped her mouth as she raised herself on tiptoe to whisper in his ear. "Now — quick!" she urged, at the end.

The judge was astounded. "What for, Rosie? You gone crazy. I told you I wasn't worth more than ten? What would you do with it?"

"Please!" she begged.

The judge moved quietly into the fray. "Seven thousand," he said quietly.

"Eight!" it was Norman's cool voice.

"Nine!"

"Ten! . . . Eleven! . . . Twelve! . . . Twelve thousand five hundred . . . Thirteen . . . Fourteen . . . fifteen . . . sixteen!"

Rosalie held her breath as the two voices — Norman's and the judge's — bid quickly against each other. Had Norman lied to her? Did he have authority to bid more?

"Well, you're in the dairy business now, Rosie," the judge said twenty minutes later. "What are you going to do next?"

"I have to say good-bye to some one now, Judge. But I'll be at your office in an hour to tell you what to do next."

Denmark Expected To Participate In Washington Talks

North Atlantic Defence Treaty Under Negotiation

Copenhagen, March 3 (AP)—Denmark may accept formally today an invitation to join the Washington talks on a North Atlantic defense treaty.

Diplomatic informants said the parliamentary foreign relations committee at a six-hour closed session Wednesday night agreed in principle to join the United States, Britain, Canada, France, Belgium, Holland, Iceland and Luxembourg—and probably Norway—in the negotiations.

Premier Gustav Rasmussen will be taken later by the political committee—made up of representatives of all parties in parliament except the Communists.

A formal acceptance would be sent to Washington immediately, said foreign minister Gustav Rasmussen probably would speed his departure for the United States in order to join the negotiations before the pact is signed. Norway Considering Move

Norway and Denmark are the western guardians of the Skagerrak, the only link between the Baltic and Atlantic. Despite their long traditions of neutrality, both were occupied by Nazis in the war.

Sweden, whose tradition of neutrality also goes back for more than a century, is still clinging to her old policy. Sweden escaped occupation in the last war.

A defence pact with Norway and Denmark early this year, Sweden offered the other two Scandinavian countries an outright alliance provided they adopted her policy of neutrality toward the big powers.

The Nazis were unable to agree on Sweden's proposal.

Increase Must Be Approved By Electors

Toronto, March 3 (CP)—Approval from 500 United Church municipalities will receive a $100 cost-of-living bonus for 1948, it was announced today. The bonus will be paid ministers from $2,400 which receive financial assistance from the church's general council.

Rev. George Dorey, secretary of the board of temporalities, said all ministers on aid-receiving charges now would be paid within $150 of the church's minimum salary of $2,100 a year when the bonus is distributed, ordained ministers.

The United Church of Canada raised $2,540,572 for missionary and benevolent activities during 1948, A. E. McBride, chairman of the National Missionary and Maintenance Committee, announced today. The total is an increase of 17 per cent over the previous year, he said and an objective of $3,000,000 would be set for 1950.

Truth Serum Test Awaited by Youth

New Orleans, March 3 (AP) —A Kentucky youth is tense but willing today as a truth serum test in an effort to clear himself in the slaying of millionaire war slain.

Lloyd Eugene Hoover, 23, has agreed to the test.

The prisoner, who twice tried to injure himself with razors in his cell after police questioning, is held for "murder and aiding of murder" in the killing of wealthy James Mahoney.

The body, Mahoney's victim's body, with a broken neck, the face bloody from a beating, was found Feb. 23 in a hotel room.

MILITARY GOVERNMENT CONSULTANT

Washington, March 3 — (AP)— James W. Parker, president of the Detroit Edison Company, has been appointed special consultant to the United States military government in Germany. It was announced Wednesday. He will investigate the critical power situation in Western Germany.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, March 3 (CP)—Synopsis— Over Southwestern Ontario temperatures are in the mid 20s this morning and very light snow is occurring in some sections. Over the rest of Ontario it is clear and seasonably cold weather prevails.

A disturbance west of Hudson Bay will move eastward into Western Quebec on Friday bringing light snow and milder weather to Northern Ontario tonight and Friday. Its only effect in Southern Ontario will be to end the current cold spell as southerly winds bring in milder air on Friday.

U.S. ENGINEERS STRING BARB WIRE AROUND MISSION

Try to Prevent Food Being Smuggled In

Frankfurt, March 3 (AP)—United States Army engineers strung barbed wire entanglements around the blockaded Russian repatriation mission today, and set up floodlights.

A military policeman said the new move was to prevent the possibility of food being smuggled in to the eight blockaded Russians and to prevent them from leaving "on their own", without reporting to American authorities first.

He was asked for further explanation of the barbed wire and floodlights, the military policeman replied cryptically:

"There are a lot of Reds in this estate and you never can tell what they might try."

The Allied authorities who ignored the United States Army's order to leave by March 1, showed no intention of leaving, although they are cut off from water, light, gas, telephone service and food from the outside. On the change that the Russians might leave the mission by fairly closed valves, the engineers even ordered the pipe gas cut off.

Appeal Denied

A Russian visitor to the mission had relayed an appeal for water, which was denied. But this morning an English-speaking member of the eight-Russian group managed through the military police guards that the mission spent Thursday night without food or breakfast. How this was accomplished without any gas or electricity was not explained.

A German cook, last of the servant staff, left, thus adding this normal function to the remains.

These developments followed filing of a murder charge Wednesday against defector John Haigh, 38-year-old plastics manufacturer. He was accused of killing Mrs. Olive Durand-Deacon, a wealthy widow who lived at the same quiet Kensington hotel as Haigh. She disappeared 13 days ago.

Human Bones, Flesh Charred

Detectives said they found human bones and flesh charred by fire and acid, and fragments of a purse and buttons similar to those worn by Mrs. Durand-Deacon near a plastics factory owned partly by Haigh.

The detectives said they also found there fragments of rubber boots and other objects belonging to three of the other five missing persons.

Haigh was not accused in the other cases and Scotland Yard did not officially list Durand-Deacon as one of Mrs. Durand-Deacon with the others.

Police chemical experts were reported to be examining the residue of human remains found in the cellar of a building in the London suburb of Kensington once occupied by the family of Haigh's father. Firemen were reported to have found ruins in the same town.

The crime reporter of the London Daily Express says that after both families had disappeared all their properties were sold by powers of attorney—written authority given by the absent persons—which now are alleged to have been forged.

Statue in Bronze To Honor Memory Alex. Graham Bell

Brantford, March 3 (CP) — To perpetuate the memory of the telephone, veteran telephone workers here erect a bronze statue of Alexander Graham Bell at the entrance of the new dial exchange building. It was announced today on the 102nd anniversary of the Bell patent. The change is scheduled to open next month.

The Charles Fleetford Sise Chapter of the Telephone Pioneers of Canada is raising $10,000 by voluntary subscription of present and former employees for a memorial to Bell in the city where he conceived his invention. Mary Mark Ogilvie Sise, Gilbert Grosvenor and Mrs. David Fairchild, both of Washington, D.C., may participate in the unveiling ceremony.

Margarine Sale Blamed for Drop In Western Second Grade Butter

Ottawa, March 3 — (CP)—The infant margarine, sparring for a start in Mom's pantry, has taken a snipe at old lady butter and appears to be hitting where it hurts most—in the purse.

Only a few months on the Canadian market, but well armed with a cheaper sale tag, the battling young butter substitute has ripped into the consumer field with gaining popularity.

In Edmonton yesterday the retail price of second grade butter dropped five cents a pound and both wholesalers and retailers blamed the price drop on margarine competition in Eastern Canada.

To back them up, chief dairy commissioner for Ontario, C. E. Lackner of Toronto, added last night:

"The producer of second-grade butter is being hit and he's being hit hard.

"When he can buy margarine, the consumer just isn't buying second - grade butter any more. We just can't sell the stuff."

Margarine was retailing at about 40 cents a pound, second grade butter at 60 cents and better prices for first grade butter were 70 cents a pound in Toronto.

Mixed in the popular, margarine, has yet to reach a high production stage. He's producing at the rate of about 800,000 pounds a month, compared with about 30,000,000 pounds a month for butter.

The big battle appears scheduled for June when better price production gets into stride and a serious tangle is expected.

Meanwhile, the government is ready to buy up first - grade butter if it should fall below 70 cents a pound in central Canada; 66 cents in the Maritimes and 67½ cents in Vancouver.

Machinery for holding the price to that level was passed by order-in-council last May.

But there is no floor price for second grade butter. The government dairy source believes once its price start hitting rock bottom, it will drag first-grade butter along and may eventually drag milk prices down, too.

Frank S. Follwell, Former Mayor of City, Candidate For Liberals in South Hastings

Former mayor of this city and for many years associated in business in Belleville, Mr. Frank S. Follwell was chosen as candidate as Liberal candidate for South Hastings in the forthcoming Federal elections.

Mr. Follwell was named to carry the standard for South Hastings Liberals at a convention held at the Riwanis Centre, Bridge street, when he defeated McLean Haig, also of this city in a straight fight for the candidature.

Two other prominent Liberals Bruce Lattimer, local businessman and Irving "Mac" MacClaughry of Tweed were nominated but declined to permit their names to stand following the announcement of the choice of candidate Mr. Haig congratulated Mr. Follwell and moved to make the choice unanimous.

Mr. Follwell was nominated by A. E. Collins of this city with Mrs. Ella Ryan, vice-president of the Central Ontario Liberal Association as his seconder. McLean Haig was nominated by Bruce Lattimer with W.C. Waterhouse seconding.

Bruce Lattimer was nominated by Allen Sprague with Harold Liddle as seconder, while Erving MacClaughry was nominated by Arnold Gluthney and Mrs. Ben Stokes. A fifth nomination was Clarence Clapp of this city there was no seconder for the motion.

Confidence that South Hastings would be carried by the Liberals in the forthcoming election was expressed by practically everyone present during the gathering and this was especially true for the guest speaker the Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, Minister of Labor.

Story of Five Missing Britons Believed Dissolved in Acid Most Sensational in Years

London, March 3 (Reuters) — Scotland Yard detectives had to open bloodstained doors in a luxurious eighteen-room apartment in the heart of London to find the "ghastly" evidence of a police murder crime riddle.

It was believed that five missing persons have been murdered and their bodies destroyed in acid baths.

The basement is part of a five-story Victorian house in the fashionable South Kensington district. Police started digging in the garden on the theory that they would find tracts of human remains.

These developments followed filing of a murder charge Wednesday against defector John Haigh, 38-year-old plastics manufacturer. He was accused of killing Mrs. Olive Durand-Deacon, a wealthy widow who lived at the same quiet Kensington hotel as Haigh. She disappeared 13 days ago.

FAMED HONG KONG LETTER IS BARRED AGAIN FROM HOUSE

Drew Accused of Breaching Secrecy on Confidential Wartime Messages

Ottawa, March 3 (CP)— Commons members still have to invest a nickel—the 5th estate newspaper—for a look at George Drew's charges over the Hong Kong expedition.

Two more attempts to get his explosive 1941 letter on the free heading list—the official papers of parliament—have failed this week. In his second try yesterday, Mr. Drew was accused indirectly by Prime Minister St. Laurent of breaching secrecy on confidential wartime messages from the United Kingdom concerning the possibility of Pacific war at the time the Hong Kong expedition sailed in the fall of 1941.

FROST EXPECTS TO BRING BUDGET DOWN ON FRIDAY

Throne Speech Expected to be Concluded by End of Day

Toronto, March 3. (CP)—The Ontario Throne Speech will tell what the government hopes will be the last day of the Throne Speech debate. The debate has been going on intermittently since Feb. 15.

Premier Kennedy moved that the House sit today at 2 p.m.—one hour earlier than usual—if the six or seven members who have indicated they will still speak in the debate are not heard by 5 p.m., it is considered likely the House will hold a second night sitting of the session.

The two Lakehead members—F. G. Robinson (C.C.F. Port Arthur) and Charles W. Cox (Lib.-Fort William)—teamed up yesterday against G. H. Challies, Minister responsible for Hydro. They charged that Ontario Hydro Commission had started the Aguasabon power development in northwestern Ontario without "the whole-hearted approval" of the Lakehead cities.

Mr. Robinson said the Port Arthur Board of Trade and Twin Cities' Commission had expressed disapproval of the plan to build the Aguasabon plant, before starting work on another development at Pine Portage on Nipigon River. Mr. Robinson said the Aguasabon development "was built primarily for the benefit of the Kimberly-Clark Pulp Company at Terrace Bay.

M.P. SUGGESTS GOVT. GO INTO LOTTERY BUSINESS

Claims Income-Tax Rates Should be Cut

Ottawa, March 3 (CP) — The government got a tip yesterday on how to solve its—and the people's—tax problems. All it has to do is go into the lottery business.

The proposal came during the Commons Throne-Speech debate from Maurice Gingues (L.-Shefford), who suggested — speaking in French — the government cut its income-tax rates to the bone and draw some of its revenues from post-office-operated lotteries.

If the government needed even more money, it could tap the existing taxes on liquor and other luxuries. It was as simple as that.

At the same time, the debate marched into its fifth week, faced with opposition members expressing fear that the Dominion is nearing a grab on overseas markets.

C. E. Stephenson (PC-Durham) and Percy Wright (C.C.F.-Halton), both representing rural constituencies, called the government to task for the shrinkage of markets abroad and urged that steps be taken to check the trend.

In what might indicate the beginning of a change in Liberal policy, Mr. Wright suggested the government enter into barter arrangements not with the United Kingdom and other countries to ensure the disposal of Canada's surplus products. He was the second C.C.F. member in two days to make the proposal.

Brief Flare-up

Other speakers included Lawrence Skey (PC-Toronto Trinity) and Hazen Argue (C.C.F.-Assiniboia Rouville).

The opening stages were enlivened by another brief flare-up between Prime Minister St. Laurent and George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, over Mr. Drew's charges—occupied a 10,000-page letter criticizing the wartime Hong Kong expedition.

Yugoslav Wedding

Toronto, March 3 — (CP)—The combined efforts of the Toronto Ladies Auxiliary of the Serbian Catholic Settlement House and civic officials have been credited for arranging the marriage next Saturday of two Yugoslav immigrants.

Unable to speak English, Rosalinda Kozul and Ivan Gyurcevic obtained a marriage licence and special dispensation from the Roman Catholic church to be married during Lent. Childhood sweethearts, they arrived in Canada seven months ago and was in Toronto to meet Rudolph when he arrived last Friday.

Flames Follow Blast In Double 2-Storey Tenement

Mother, 8 Children, Roomer, Die in Fire at Muskegon

Muskegon, Mich., March 3 (AP) —A mother, eight of her children and a roomer perished today when flames destroyed their flimsy frame home north of here.

The fire roared through the house after an oil stove exploded, while the mother, Mrs. Maude Clover, was preparing breakfast.

The scene of the tragedy was the little resort community of Lakewood, 12 miles north of Muskegon.

Firemen and Deputy Sheriffs Ralph Kesting and Ralph Kesting, Jr., said Margaret, 16 Her son, Kenneth Keating, nine. Peter Pembroke 37, John Johnson, 44, Albert (Dutchy) Clattenberg, 42, of Lunenburg, N.S.

Injured: Dean Starling, 23, critically burned and not expected to live; James W. Earles, who cut his arms leaping through a window, and John J. Keating, 18, only boy and brother of the victims.

Thirteen others living in the building escaped without injury in night attire.

Mrs. Keating wore two artificial legs. She was wearing them when her body was found.

All in Bathing Blaze

Said one: "My God, I don't know. We were all in there bathing trying to save someone if we could."

Deputy Earman's face was begrimed. His eyes watered and he smiled wanly at queries: "My God, I don't know anything. Better phone the chief... I don't even know my name."

Five of the dead — Mrs. Keating, her two daughters, the son and Pembroke — occupied a single room on the building's second floor. At the front of the house, it overlooked the street, almost directly above the spot in the living room that stove exploding oil blaze was believed to have started the fire.

A fireman said the mother's body and that of her son were found lying on the floor. They apparently had attempted to escape sliding down a rope. The 9-year-old son, lay on the bed and was burned.

Burned Beyond Recognition

All were burned nearly beyond recognition.

In a rear room in the other half of the house, Starling, Earles, Keating and Clattenberg were found. Starling broke the room and leaped to a crisp, firemen said neither man burned to death. Both suffer fractures.

First Men to Fly Non-Stop Around World Sleep Off 24-Hr. Quarantine

Fort Worth, Tex., March 3 — (AP) — The crew of "Lucky Lady II" slept 24 hours non-stop around the world, slept off a 24-hour quarantine today.

The 14 men landed at Carswell airbase Wednesday, 94 hours and 1 one minute after they had taken off on the historic non-stop circumnavigation of the globe.

Climbing placed "Lucky Lady II," its pilot, Capt. James Gallagher, and the crew in history. Another plane was to have made its flight.

The B-50 bomber which started what the United States Air Force hoped was to be a world-girdling mission" got as far as the Azores when a fuel pump in one of its engine fire which forced this plane down early. "Lucky Lady II" aloft.

Gallagher and his history-making crew had been on stand-by orders for any emergency that might arise. Their B-50, an improved version of the B-29 Superfortress, was airborne at 12:21 p.m. EST Saturday.

The sleek, silver plane returned to its starting point Wednesday at 10:21:35 a.m. EST Shortly afterward, its crew was placed under a 24-hour quarantine, ending today noon.

The quarantine was part of the "training mission."

Lt.-Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, chief of the Strategic Air Command, announced that the mid-air refueling now means the air force can "go anywhere in the world with a quite as atomic bomb."

The trip was made under conditions far more severe than could be duplicated in combat.

Gallagher and his co-pilot, Lieut. James A. Neal, kept the plane's log. In restrained words they told of the epic-flight, from takeoff to landing.

Flight preparations were supersecret. Families of crew members expressed surprise when told of the trip. Most knew only that their men "were on a secret mission."

Removal of the business staff by the transfer of the business office will be followed by other company departments, and for the expansion of exchange facilities.

Firemen Free Boy in Bathroom

Duties of the firemen are many and varied and range all the way from fighting fire right down to rescuing cats from trees, dogs from rivers and even get calls to rescue people from bathrooms.

Local firemen were called for the last named duty early last evening when they responded to a call from Chatham Street where a young lad had locked himself in the bathroom.

Two-year-old Michael Strelli of Rodney, near St. Thomas, with his parents was visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chase, 49 Chatham Street, when he entered the bathroom and closed the door. All efforts to have the lad work the catch from the inside failed and firemen were eventually called. Firemen climbed a ladder and sprang the lock on the outside window and after crawling through freed the young lad after his imprisonment of an hour.

Free TB Survey Planned in City

Many volunteers will be needed to make a success of the campaign for tuberculosis survey by X-ray of every man, woman and high school child in the Belleville area, Mr. Harry Rollins said at a meeting of the Hamden Club, the organization sponsoring the survey in co-operation with the Canadian Tuberculosis Association.

It is hoped that members of local civic and service organizations will become actively associated with the survey, either as canvassers or by acquainting others of the urgency of the project, said Mr. Rollins, chairman.

He explained that each canvasser would be given a small district and be asked to call on every family in that district with the objective of registering each individual for a free chest X-ray. Canvassers in centres where similar surveys have been made have found householders most anxious to take advantage of the opportunity of safeguarding the health of their families.

The actual survey will take only a few moments of each person's time and the most up-to-date equipment, capable of handling over 100 persons an hour, will be used. It is not necessary to remove clothing.

It is the most urgent that every citizen co-operate with the Kinsmen in every way possible Belleville area is to be missed during the free survey.

MARMORA

Century Old Home Of Quinn Family Destroyed by Fire

Marmora—The century old residence of Patrick Quinn in Marmora township was burned to the ground on Tuesday afternoon, while the owner was visiting his brother.

Flames were first seen by a Hydro Electric gang working in the neighborhood. Such a cold blast had been obtained that all the contents of the building, only a rocking chair was saved. It was thought that the barn and drive shed were saved from destruction as the wind was blowing in that direction and sparks ignited these buildings which were saved by the efforts of the Hydro men and neighbors.

The Quinn home was one of the oldest residences in Marmora township and was built by the late Hiram Foat and through the Christie family, later occupying it, caused it to be more familiarly known is the Christie place. The cause of the fire is unknown.

County Police Court

County Magistrate's Court was of brief duration today despite the fact that 15 cases were listed on the docket.

Six of the cases involving traffic charges and one charge under the L.C.A. were settled out of court with fines and costs being paid. Three traffic charges were enlarged for personal service failed to appear in court.

Charles Ray, Detroit Road, appearing on two charges of careless driving, was remanded until Tuesday when it is understood the case will be heard before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in county police court.

FACES 12 CHARGES

Toronto, March 3 — (CP) — Gordon Clifford Baldwin, 37, who allegedly posed as an R.C.M.P. officer to obtain gasoline, tires and auto accessories, was returned to here from Hamilton today to face 12 charges of false pretences. Police said the 12 charges were laid by authorities here and in Barrie, Huntsville and New Toronto. Baldwin was convicted and sentenced to six months in jail at Hamilton Wednesday on a charge of attempted fraud.

Public Services Discussed By Farm Forums

Foxboro.—The Foxboro Farm Forum met on Monday evening, jointly with Maple Leaf and Brookdale Forums, at the Community Centre, 4th Concession, Sidney Twp. There were approximately 70 members present. Everyone listened to the Ontario Farm Radio Forum broadcast on "Taxation, Past and Present." After which groups were formed to discuss the following questions:

What public services do you have, that are paid for by taxation?

Should any of these public services be extended or improved? If so, which ones?

If more money is needed in the future for public services, how should it be raised?

Improvements Needed

The conclusions formed were: There could be improvements in roads, mail service, health services, and hospital services. Rural schools could be improved and brought up to date. There should be higher exemptions in income tax.

Special emphasis was put on the need for more government assistance in the control of fungal diseases.

More money in the future for public services should be raised by increasing tax on luxuries such as liquor and tobacco, commodities, amusements, etc.

Mr. Clare Riddle led a discussion on hospitalization.

Recreation Period

The members of the Quinte Folk School, 4-H Clubs, now in session at the home of Mr. H. Longwell, Foxboro, led by Mr. Ray Hurd, agricultural counsellor of Ontario Farm Radio Forums, Mr. Mac Smith, Brighton, Plaintfield, conducted an interesting recreation period. Mr. Wesley Morrison, a leading part in the evening's entertainment also.

Station CKWS will be in interview with the Quinte Folk School members and this will broadcast at ten o'clock. Foxboro Farm Forum will meet again on March 7, at Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell's home.

Police Blotter

Missing Girl Reported Seen While in City

A girl answering to the description of 15-year-old Betty Walsh who disappeared from her home in Toronto last Saturday, was seen in Belleville early yesterday morning, according to a local police report.

The girl was seen in a car with another woman and two men. The licence number of the car was also known, and on checking it was found to be owned by a Toronto doctor.

Car Entered

Frank Manchee, Toronto, reported his car had been entered with a key and the electrical and motor rug being taken. The articles stolen were valued at approximately $50. It was stated the car had been parked near the north end of the bridge when entered with a key which fitted the door lock.

Accident Reported

Provincial police reported a 1941 Mercury auto stolen at Trenton, and also reported a slide-in accident which involved a parked truck and a passing vehicle which was crowded by an oncoming car. Total damage amounted to approximately $150.

City police checked a county motorist while he was doing 40 miles per hour on North Front Street.

House, Contents Near Gibson's Crossing, Burn

Mr. and Mrs. A. Rushlow and their six-months-old baby, residing just north of Gibson's Crossing on the Kingston road and homeless today after fire swept through their newly built two-room home.

Household furnishings, with the exception of a sideboard and a few chairs, were also destroyed in the blaze as well as all of the couple's clothing, it was learned here today.

The blaze started outside the Rushlow home and is believed to have been caused from a cast-iron stove, which is thought to have picked up a spark when a coal fire was replenished.

Mrs. Rushlow was mopping the kitchen floor when she looked through the window to find flames racing up outside her home. She grabbed her six-month old baby and ran to the home of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Lewis Rushlow, approximately 100 yards distant. Another little girl, three-year-old Lillian McCammond, granddaughter of Mrs. Lewis Rushlow, was in the burning dwelling and was also taken from the building just in time by the grandmother.

"I just had time to run in and pick Lillian out of a rocking chair before the flames ate their way through the outside walls," stated Mrs. Rushlow.

Firemen were called to the scene but were unable to do any thing to save the dwelling. Lack of water prevented the fire from being extinguished before it was completely out of control.

The alarm was turned in by neighbors who thought the fire was a burning haystack. Two haystacks were situated close by the small home.

Missing Bomber One That Refuelled Globe-Circler

Manila, March 3 — (AP) — A B-29 missing in northern Luzon is one of the tanker planes that refuelled the globe-circling Lucky Lady II on its historic flight around the world, the United States Air Force said today.

The missing B-29, with its crew of nine, met and refuelled the world circling B-50 but failed to get back here.

Search for the missing craft today shifted from the vicinity of the rugged, unexplored mountains of northeastern Luzon to the northeastern shore of the island.

Falcon Island Has Disappeared

Wellington, N.Z., March 3 (AP) Falcon Island—small uninhabited volcanic member of the Tonga group—has disappeared.

This advice was contained in a signal to the navy office at Wellington today from the naval frigate Hawea.

The Hawea reported indications of underwater volcanic activity and a strong sulphurous smell when it reached the spot where the island used to be.

Red Flier Sought Haven in U.S.

Tokyo, March 2 (AP)—A Russian army flier fled Siberia and landed his Soviet plane in Japan late last year, the United States army revealed Tuesday. The flier, Lt. Col. Yekaterin Zarakhov, 23, told reporters Tuesday that Russian fliers "have the impression the Soviets have the atom bomb." He said he left Siberia to seek a haven in the United States.

Surviving her are her husband and one brother, Gilbert Munro of Trenton.

NEEDED AN EXPLANATION

Vancouver — (CP) — Police stopped a 17-year-old motorist on a city bridge recently. His auto had no muffler, no taillight, no front fenders, no testing sticker, one headlight. The youth's explanation. He planned to turn his car into a "hot rod."

Dominion to Aid Construction Of Trenton Hospital

Ottawa, March 3 — The Federal government has agreed to assist in meeting the construction costs of the new Trenton Memorial Hospital, Trenton, Ont., and in financial assistance to the Colonel General Hospital, Cobourg, Ont., the minister of National Health and Welfare, Hon. Paul Martin, said here today.

The Trenton hospital, which was begun late in 1947, will provide bed accommodation for about 70 patients and will be completely equipped to give full hospital, diagnostic and clinical services. Designed to serve about 34,000 people in Trenton and surrounding districts it will fit into the over-all provincial plan of hospital facilities. Federal assistance is expected to be completed this spring. The federal grant amounts to more than $50,000.

Almost half the national health grants in 1948-49—$13,000,000 out of $30,000,000—is being devoted to helping meet the expansion and much needed hospital accommodation throughout Canada, Mr. Martin noted.

Both projects were recommended by Hon. Russell T. Kelley, Ontario's Minister of Health, and have been approved under the terms of the federal hospital construction program which provides for grants from the expanded pool of federal contribution dollar for dollar.

Shadow of Chair Looms for Two Alleged Killers

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 3 (AP) — The shadow of New York State's electric chair lay today at the jail cell where two accused slayers, Martinez Fernandez and Martha Beck.

It remained to be determined, however, whether the two allegedly bloody "lonely hearts" killers would face justice in Michigan or the eastern state. They might be extradited to New York, which has capital punishment. Michigan's legislature only recently repealed a capital punishment bill.

The Michigan charges against Fernandez and Miss Beck are based on the shooting of widower Mrs. Delphine Downing, 38, and the drowning of her 21-months-old daughter, Rainbell.

Prosecutor Fred C. McMahon said the pair also have admitted killing Mrs. Janet Fay in New York.

Letters Bring Sweetheart

Lonely hearts letters from lovelorn women still are arriving here for Martinez Fernandez, 34, who with his plump girl friend is accused of three killings in a "lonely hearts" fraud.

Queens county authorities said that a steady flow of letters women addressed to Fernandez have arrived here at the home of his sister, Mrs. Mary Lopez, during the few days.

The letters came from various parts of the United States.

New indications of the extent of the alleged international racket of Fernandez and Martha Beck 29, caused police in every town addressed to Fernandez to review files concerning missing women.

Police were being made to find out what happened to a widowed New York mother of two who received a trip to Spain with Fernandez in 1947. Fernandez told police she died in Spain.

Extend Instalment Payment on Cars To Boost Sales

Detroit, March 3 (AP)—Lagging car sales will be stimulated by the modification of credit restrictions.

Extension of the instalment payment term from 15 to 21 months was not all the retail car dealers and some manufacturers had hoped for. Most critics of the credit restriction had hoped the reserve board would extend to at least 24 months the time a motorist could have in which to complete payments on his car purchase.

When the wartime credit regulation was revived last September the reserve board explained that it was intended to halt inflationary tendencies that would result in the bidding up of prices for scarce goods. Since then most new and used-car dealers and a few of the manufacturers have claimed the credit restrictions were impairing sales.

Probably in the cases of the lower-priced cars such as Chevrolet, Ford and Plymouth, the monthly payments weren't so severe. But many of the medium models in these lines, with extra equipment including radios, heaters and other special items, come to more than $2,000 in price.

That meant the buyer, after making a down payment around $700, would have monthly payments of more than $75 to make. The new regulation will cut the monthly payments to around $50.

70 Persons Drowned From Junks in Mirs Bay

Hong Kong, March 3 — (AP)—Seventy persons were drowned today by a sudden storm which swamped 50 fishing junks in Mirs Bay. The storm caught the fishing fleet near the mouth of the bay and buried many of the junks on the rocky shore where they were battered to pieces.

IN MEMORIAM

COLLINS—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother Pearl Collins who passed away March 3rd, 1946.

Sadly missed by husband, children and grandchildren.

For the one we loved so dearly,
Our hearts are sadly pained today,
We think of her in silence,
No eyes are wet, no tears are shed
But many silent tears are shed.
When others we meet.
Ever remembered and sadly missed
Husband, Son and Daughter. M2

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, March 3 — (CP) — Prices moved irregularly on a slightly firmer tone on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Industrials opened on a moderate upward swing but slipped towards mid-session. Golds weakened from early advances and base metals brightened on scattered advances. Western oils were almost inactive with a few issues in a two-way movement.

Volume for the first three hours was 434,000 shares, about 150,000 shares more than yesterday's similar period.

Key industrial issues advanced steadily in early dealings but slipped as action increased.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

APPOINTMENT DISCONTINUED

Washington, March 3 (CP)— The American Federation of Labor has "discontinued the appointment" of Philip Cutler as regional director for eastern Canada, a spokesman said today.

Notice of the action was given by A.F.L. President William Green, it was learned. Green is at his home in Coshocton, Ohio, and his office declined to comment on the Cutler case.

Preferred to Risk All to Cross Seas and Reach Freedom of Canada

Halifax, March 3 (CP) — "Freedom-loving" is a tough word for a displaced person learning English to say but Lambis Janes of Estonia spat it out today. He was referring to Russia's role to freedom alleging persecutions against peoples of Baltic states occupied by Russia.

Janes is one of many Balts who sought shelter in Sweden while waiting an opportunity to come to Canada. When the opportunity presented itself more than a year ago in the form of the tiny, dirty, 60-ton Estonian ketch Vanemuine, Janes and 11 others risked the treacherous North Atlantic to escape the oppression of his homeland.

Commenting on the Russian charge that Swedish authorities had persecuted Balts who wanted to return to their homeland, Janes wrestled for a minute with the word and then said "ridiculous." "It should be obvious to anybody that the Swedes have never preferred to risk everything in the gamble to cross the seas and reach the freedom of Canada," he declared.

Implement Firm's Success Due In Part to Exports

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Mr. Denison's book, published late last year, is the 100-year story, 1847-1947, of Massey-Harris, and in its concluding pages he records that in 1947 sales reached an all-time high of $85,834,104.

Now comes the report of the fiscal year ended Nov. 30, 1948, and President James S. Duncan states that sales are 7 per cent higher still, or $143,884,964.

For some years, Canadian farm implements have been able to sell themselves since early times all over the world.

"Harvest Triumphant" though it not completely, told the various concerns that came to make it up, is virtually a story of Canadian agriculture, and even of Canada itself.

Added to Mr. Denison's book, the current report makes dramatic reading to any one interested in the export trade, from which every Canadian is said to draw one-third of his pay-check, directly or indirectly.

The report states that on its sale of $143,000,000 of the company, after all charges including $6,655,000 for income taxes, made a net profit of $9,044,761. This is $.26 cents on each dollar of sales. Out of profits, dividends of $256,411 were paid to preferred share holders and $1,276,856 to common shareholders.

The company has operations in Canada, the United States, United Kingdom, South Africa, South America, New Zealand, and some continental European countries, with Canadian plants at Toronto and Brantford, Ont.

OMINOUS SIGN

Esther, Alta — (CP) A'rat has been killed in this southeastern Alberta municipality. The fact would evoke little comment elsewhere, but in rat-free Alberta it assumes major proportions. The matter was reported to authorities in Edmonton.

Ford Company Asks Workers To Early Talks

Detroit, March 3 (AP)—The Ford Motor Company, commenting on economic conditions, asked the United Automobile Workers (CI.O.), today for early informal contract talks.

Ford, in a letter to the Union, indicated it questioned the advisability of the U.A.W.'s proposal for $100 monthly pensions for 106,000 Ford workers.

Pensions, Ford said, either must be paid for through a wage reduction or higher car prices.

Pensions are the No. 1 goal of the Union in 1949, although a pay increase also will be sought.

The Ford letter raises the question whether its workers would be willing to take a wage cut in order to finance pensions — and said there was only one other way —higher car prices to customers.

"But we are convinced that too many of them would not stand for this," the company said.

A union reply was not immediately available.

The Ford-U.A.W. contract expires July 15. Under its 60-day reopening, negotiations could be expected to be instituted in mid-May.

Merson Supports D.S.T. Motion Made by OMEA

Toronto, March 3 (CP)— Bert Merson, vice-chairman of the Toronto Hydro-Electric Commission, said today he supported a resolution passed by the Ontario Municipal Electric Association, recommending daylight saving time as a means of saving power.

The resolution also criticized the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission for rejecting daylight saving extension during the power crisis. Mr. Merson said the Toronto Commission would have had support of Toronto city council for an extension of daylight saving if Ontario Hydro had not spoken "out of turn."

FLAMES FOLLOW

Only visible entrances to the house were two parallel stairways leading from a small porch to the second floor. The one in No. 17 burned through and the blackened stairway crumbled in the basement. That in No. 19 was strong enough to support parties of firemen and police, poking among the rubble.

Distorted Bed Frames

In the room where five died, twisted bed frames lay among the unrecognizable piles of burned metal. Walls were knocked down to the laths and in some places, there were no walls.

A policeman said: "They (the dead) were an awful mess. I didn't see them, bring them out but I saw them later when they were laid out. "It was awful . . . terrible . . ."

Eye-witnesses said those who escaped the house jumped shortly after the fire started. Apparently some waiting nerves awakened.

Broken bones and minor burns were suffered by most who leaped for safety.

Firemen were not handicapped by the temperature. One said if they had been summoned sooner, they might have saved more than they did.

Heat Was Terrible

Said one: "The heat was terrible. Not so much the smoke but the heat . . . We didn't hear any screams or anything, so I guess the ones that didn't get out never knew what happened . . ."

Fear-crazed, he refused to jump, finally, someone shoved him through and he plummeted to the ground. His clothing blazed as he fell.

Fire officials expressed doubt as to how the fire spread so quickly but it is believed the exploding stove showered the interior of the hallway with flaming liquid and the dry wood, caught like paper.

Bodh rooms in which dead were found had windows but the victims never got to them.

Four Perish in Fire

Stillwater, N.Y.—Four persons, including a blind man and his two grandchildren, perished early today in a fire that destroyed an isolated farm house near here.

The victims were Robert McNeil, 86, Georgianna Skellie, two; her brother Millard, eight, and Calvin Wadsworth, 55 a farmhand.

Cause of the fire was not determined.

Two other children Edward, 13, and Alvin, 11, escaped. They told neighbors they were awakened by the flames. Alvin said he tried to re-enter the house but was driven back by smoke and flames.

Winter Wolf Hunts Are Suggested

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 3 — (CP) — Ontario will be kept busy the year round with holidayers if present plans for resort operators and travel agencies materialize.

Delegates at the closing session here today of the first annual tourist conference sponsored by the Ontario government were concerned over lengthening the tourist period into the slack months of early spring and late fall.

Winter wolf hunts were suggested by Scott Ward of Dryden, Ont., A hotel executive suggested that those months were ideal hotel-resort for farmers and for many employees of large industries, unable to take their vacations in summer.

A resolution passed by the conference asked the provincial government to restore and publicize Ontario's scenic Suggestions included markers on the new Orillia highway showing it as the Champlain Trail and also the stories of Ontario history.

Ted Nolan, director of the Canadian Travel Bureau, Ottawa, said Canadian summers definitely would have to match that of Europe, Great Britain, the West Indies and Latin America.

He urged advertisers to "tell the Americans what you have that is unusual, how to get there and how much it will cost."

One commodity, however, will be free to tourists. The Ontario government plans to give cups of tea to tourists arriving at many of the more remote tourist reception centres such as Ivy Lea, Pigeon River and Kenora.

Repudiate Confessions

Much has been appearing about "confessions" alleged to have been made in lands dominated by the Communists as in the instances of the trial and sentencing to life of a Cardinal of the Roman Catholic Church in Hungary and in the trial of fifteen Protestant pastors in Bulgaria on spying charges. Now one of the fifteen latter has denied the charge and then again five of those brought up in Hungary's capital repudiated their "confessions" made before trial that they had been engaged in illegal money deals with the Cardinal.

The democratic world looks with suspicion and doubt on the so-called "confessions" and does not accept them as fact. The claim has been made that the accused have been submitted to intimidation. Five of the defendants in Budapest have claimed that the police wring from them confessions under threat. One of the accused stated that he had been kept alone a month in a cell before he named four persons as his business partners.

Communism is the foe of Christianity and other religious beliefs as they are the friend of justice and right and represent freedom of spirit and because free peoples and religious peoples will not endure Communism.

Ever-Growing Demand for Bible

Demand for the Bible is at its greatest in history. That has been declared at the meeting of the American Bible Society. From Europe comes appeals as they do to the Canadian Society, for people who once have felt the influence of its teaching and its comfort and have lost their copies of the Scriptures during the upheaval of the Second World War naturally look to those lands where war devastation did not hit for copies to replace their lost Scriptures.

Into the work of the Bible Societies goes a great eloquence of love for the sacred books and money to help their cause of spreading religious tenets and especially the principles of brotherly love and faith in God.

These works have existed for generations and centuries, have passed through revolutions and world upheavals but yet remain the solace and the support of men and women.

Contrasted with these facts is the fact of Communist hatred of religion. The evidence of this is shown in the Communist-dominated lands where religious persecutions have been under way in the guise of trumped up charges of treason and of illegal money transactions against church leaders. Enemies of religion have no writings which have withstood assaults in all ages.

Supports United Europe

Winston Churchill, bulwark of defence in the Second World War against tyranny and aggression spoke in Brussels recently where Communist backing had been interrupting other speakers, but the impressiveness of the great Allied leader of the recent struggle quelled their disturbance for they were perforce compelled to listen to his masterly arguments in behalf of a concerted or united Europe.

He said that there had never been formed such an organization as is now proposed and this he declared was the reason there had not been peace and accord. The movement for a united Europe was the only means of guaranteeing harmony. Here were his words: "It is the only way in which the broad shield of liberty can be extended over institutions of freedom and where little children have the right to some future for themselves."

Western Europe is taking steps towards something of this kind for defence, for economic security and for mutual understanding.

November With a Future

As the snow melts, the history of winter is revealed. In the deep woods, old tracks which have been covered by new snows show up again as hard little mounds that resist the strengthening sunlight. Mainly the tracks are the stories of small creatures' ordinary comings and goings, but here a buck fled with wolves pursuing. That must have been a long time back, and the little snow has lain smoothly over the scene, disclosed now like an archaeologist's find.

Far off in the towns the processes of spring are less dramatic, but the careful observer may find matters of interest even there. Like a beach-comber patrolling a retreating tide, he may discover that story about which was lost before the big blizzard. — Printed Page.

TOMORROW

Tomorrow is the morning that is waiting just ahead
With another task to test you when you've tumbled out of bed.
It may be a little harder than the one you met today,
And your record is depreciliss — as the courage you display.

You're a reputation started; you've succeeded in the past;
But a reputation isn't something guaranteed to last.
If you fail to work tomorrow as you've labored yesterday,
Yes will find your reputation has begun to slip away.

It is sweet to reap the praises for the work that you have done,
But another goal is waiting which tomorrow must be won.
You must risk once more a failure with tomorrow's sterner test.
To maintain your reputation you will have to do your best.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

As a general rule, a man who is abusive and rude to his subordinates is a pitiful flunky in dealing with his superiors.

But there are exceptions. Some men are born self-reliant, and if, in addition, they happen to be gifted (or cursed), it is also too bad for all the world around to them, both above and below. Consider Napoleon. He was given me the other day when, on a matter of business, I went to see the general manager of a very lively corporation.

As I set outside his door awaiting my turn, I could hear the familiar tones and snorts of a bad-tempered man beating his head on something and shouting. I glanced at the big man's secretary. She was one of those elderly secretaries with that agonized pain that comes from listening to words that the door dashed the victim of the big boss' tirade; he was spotless.

My turn next. I found myself facing a quiet, dignified man, tall as an egg, his angry eyes swimming behind large spectacles. I stated my business. Wordless, he groped among some letter files. He read them with mounting displeasure. It was the first complaint of the corporation - had received on the matter in the years I have been concerned with.

"Mr. Prendergast" he inquired, in a soft, sarcastic voice. He wrote a notation from my letter regarding a Mr. Clark. How do you expect me to run this outfit if you keep [illegible]? What's that? I don't care! This is my reply, and I don't see where you come into it at all. Okay. That's okay. Forget it!"

He hung up with a bang. Glared at me. Handed me accidentally what I had come for; and pressed the buzzer, dismissing me.

No man, they say, is indispensable. But some men are invaluable most of whom are also tough.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

SPORTSMANSHIP SOMETIMES A FETISH

Great emphasis is laid today on good sportsmanship. But there is also a lot of nonsense which struts through the world and calls itself good sportsmanship.

In the battle of Poitiers in 1346, Lord Geoffrey Say, an English commander who had brought his troops out to assault the French, rode into the open place between the two lines and, waiving his hat in a sweeping salute to the enemy, shouted: "Gentlemen of the French Guard, fire first!" The French reply rang gaily across the carnage of that stricken field. "Sir, we never fire first. Please to fire yourselves!" The English fired, and fifty French officers and 700 men of the French line were killed.

Good sportsmanship? Nothing of the sort—sheer nonsense, foolhardiness, murder of one's own countrymen. A valiant wave of the hat, a gesture, and over 800 men were needlessly slain.

When confronted with a situation, the questions we ought to ask ourselves is, "What is right now and unselfish thing to do?" When we do that many attitudes good sportsmanship, we often think only of ourselves and what people will say about us. Good sportsmanship is all right in its place, but so is common sense. And sometimes a situation demands that we put out of our minds the desire to be called a good sport and think only of how we can be helpful, no matter what people call us.

Mackenzie's Column

Writer Thanks Grady the Cow For Bright Story

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Introducing Grady the cow into foreign affairs!

That column the other day cited that one of the striking post-war developments is the increased knowledge of world events possessed by the average citizen in the democracies.

That strikes me as being a good sign in these dangerous times, but I have a new angle to the thought. It comes from the present strange adventure of Grady the cow and might be entitled "Is smile a day keeps the 'hot war' away."

Probably no recent story has attracted so much attention as that of Grady, who got herself trapped in a silo after she persuaded the "impossible" feat of diving head-first into it through an opening which theoretically was too small for her.

For days all North America has been feverishly excited about Grady trying to figure how to get Grady out, finally gave up and continued to encircle the globe, but Grady held the stage until some smart person figured that she could be rescued by greasing her all over so she would slip through the little opening.

Eased Tension

So much for Grady. She has served the useful purpose of giving a show which eased the tension for thousands of folks whose minds are normally more concerned with the grave and everpresent problems of the world. Grady has demonstrated that it's a good thing for men to get hid of their troubles sometimes.

I've been encountering a lot of folk who have voiced the attitude that the whole world is heading straight for "hell" and to accept another global war as inevitable.

Unhealthful Thoughts

Well, sometimes it's thinking unhealthful thoughts that produces unhealthful events. That's why I think the old Arab found in Proverbs regarding man that "as he thinketh in his heart so is he."

That's not to say we should discard all facts, but these are harsh times and we certainly must take thought for the future.

However, the thesis of the inevitability of disaster isn't warranted in the light of history.

In this connection I was much struck by an interesting point raised during an audience with Pope Pius by two American Press representatives, Charles P. Cupill and John P. McKnight, on the occasion of the Pope's golden reign.

The Pope gave the impression that he in no way despaired because the "peace with justice" so much desired by the pontificate has not yet dawned.

The Pope seems to have peace on one of these days — no doubt of it. The trouble-makers of this observers is that another world war isn't inevitable by any means. It could come, but the facts don't create it as unavoidable. Continuous live-and-let-live thinking will bridge a lot of chasms.

Doctors Scalp Woman but She Is Much Better

Erie, Pa., March 3 — (AP) — Doctors scalped Mrs. Jennie Reiger — eyebrows and all — but she was happy about the whole thing.

The series of operations which took 4 months opened a new life for Mrs. Reiger, 50, who had been confined to bedrest nearly 10 years.

She was plagued by severe headaches that caused large, unsightly tumors on her head, over which she had to comb her hair to conceal the condition. Dr. Benjamin Goldman, decided a complete avulsion (removal of the entire scalp) was necessary.

He removed her scalp from, and including, the eyebrows to the hairline at the base of the skull. Then followed skin grafting and plastic surgery, grafting small bits of skin from the patient's legs, back, stomach and hips.

URGE STEP AGAINST BLACK EYE

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 3 — (CP) — A suggestion that the Ontario government take steps to eliminate the black eye nuisance in the Muskoka district was heard by delegates attending the first Ontario tourist conference here.

It is expected the suggestion will be studied further and be presented in resolution form.

A proposed publicity which may reach solution stage is lengthening of the tourist season to 10 months.

ANCIENT BEVERAGE

British Commons Gives Second Reading to Bill

London, March 3 — (CP)—The House of Commons last night gave second reading to the British North American Bill, paving the way for Newfoundland to become the 10th province of Canada March 31.

An opposition amendment, moved by Sir Alan Herbert, Independent member of Oxford University, was defeated 317 to 13.

Philip Noel-Baker, Commonwealth Relations Minister, moved second reading. He said the government had been charged with the bill despite an appeal to the judicial committee of the privy Council by 11 members of the Newfoundland Legislature.

The appeal challenges the legality of the procedure by which Newfoundland voted itself out of existence.

"If we waited until this appeal was heard, union could not be carried through on the appointed day," Noel-Baker said says Britain the popular view of Newfoundland was equally clear," he added.

Last summer 78,225 Newfoundlanders voted for Confederation with Canada while 71,334 voted for independent sovereignty. The pro-Canada vote was largely engineered by anti-Confederation leaders.

Only Slight Opposition

A delegation of the Newfoundland responsible home government leaque presented to parliament a petition signed by 20,000 Newfoundlanders asking for restoration of responsible house government.

Sir Alan, in opposing the B. N. A. Bill, said that the people of Newfoundlanders who see British government by "gauleiter" and by brown men, black men and yellow men and also by men of the left. He said he determins our own future and parliament instead of being engage in a fake scandal as a result of panic as if we did not matter.

Sir Alan asked for rejection on the grounds that it had not been established that the procedure preliminary to the B. N. A. bill "had been constitutionally correct and just."

Noel-Baker disputed this by saying that the British North America Act of 1867 — on which Canada's constitution is based — only provided machinery by which Newfoundland might enter the confederation. He put Act, without amending, was not applicable to the present situation in Newfoundland.

Because of difference between Canada and Newfoundland, for example, in methods of taxation and administration, the British government said it necessary to amend various federal statutes to make Newfoundland legislation conform with the B. N. A. Act.

The Confederation agreement was signed December 11 and it received royal assent in the Canadian parliament Feb. 18.

$150,000 Fire Loss in Toronto

Toronto, March 3 — (CP) — An skyrocket shot into the air and giant firecrackers exploded here Wednesday night their way through a turpentine-fed fire to rescue 30 employees from their ledges of a downtown warehouse.

The three-alarm fire caused an estimated $150,000 damage to the Thomas Wilkins Smallwares Company in the downtown market area.

The blaze started in the basement in the company's 12 employees were preparing to leave for the day. Vats of turpentine, matches and firecrackers fed the flames which engulfed the three-storey, stone-and-brick building in minutes. The fire spread to the adjoining warehouse and endangered a nearby banana warehouse and a fruit company.

Heavy black smoke, visible for miles, hung over downtown Toronto during the blaze. Police and fire watchers blocked the entire area. Street-cars were rerouted and additional policemen were brought in to control the crowds.

Taken to hospital with burns were Duncan Sinclair, Jim Tokaryshyn, Joseph Knight, Alfred Harvey, Smith Winchester and 18-year-old Gordon McKay. Four others were described as not seriously ill.

Sinclair grabbed young McKay as the group stood swaying on a street-side ledge and held him tightly until firemen reached them with ladders. Two of the employees slid down a metal cable attached to a swinging sign and were rescued from the second-floor level.

One fireman was slightly injured.

PORTRAIT OF A GEEK

Define geek? What could be easier? A geek is an individual who—well, now, you know, I have to stopped a minute and consider exactly . . . see here, I'm doing my work with my fingers and the bowring at all, so I am in no condition to write out portraits. I referred your request to the head of our semantics department and he sent back the portrait we a Geek:

A Geek brushes his teeth with toothpaste so that the sugar in his food will not cause decay. The sugar in the toothpaste is just to make it taste good.

A geek eats munchies for breakfast because they are full of sugar. This form of energy (sugar) is exhausted within an hour.

A geek is fond of a mid-forenoon snack, a glass of circeline, a bottle of Coca-Cola, a couple of crumpets and tea—sugar, sugar and more sugar.

He eats a business man's lunch — overcooked meat, gravy, white bread on roll, dessert, coffee with sugar. Virtually no vitamins, but lots of energy from the two pieces of carbohydrate. Such malnutrition usually leaves poor geek vaguely hankering for something and this hankering very often takes form of him to the nearest spot where he can get a cocktail or beer to tide him over the last hours of the day.

The headache or other symptoms the geek inevitably develops is no malnutrition from "protective foods" or the "high tension" under which the geek has put himself and then either asperin or one of the acetanilid group of drugs whatever he wishes to besmup consciousness of pain, anxiety, fear, etc.

That device of, degenerates, the geek finds he can't sleep, treating his nearly empty stomach with almost pure alcohol and then he wakes up with a hangover. Then he feels the need of a couple more cocktails to settle his nerves — to stave off that headache. He wakes up with a mouth that a mid-section warrants consulting a heart specialist. But he arrives at work half-way through the day. That is the only exercise he gets other than rubbing himself dry after a bath.

For dinner the poor geek has more sugar—he must cut down on red meat, you know, on account of his high blood pressure, his high blood pressure, creamed oolens, mashed potato (it requires no chewing) pies gelatin salad (requires no chewing), chocolate pie with whipped cream and boiled coffee with sugar.

After dinner the poor geek sets at a bridge table or at the movies or at the bowling match or ball game for three hours.

Finally he takes some sodium amytal or a sacredidin to insure a night's sleep, brushes his teeth with sugary paste to prevent decay and drinks a glass of milkshake to help him get a night's sleep, which the salesman assured him is fine for arthritis, high blood pressure, nervous breakdown, and make sure all windows are tightly — closed against the damp night air, fills his hot water bottle—and so to bed.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Feeding Problem

One baby 20 months old, drinks hardly any milk—at all and does not eat well. Has gained in weight almost constantly. We think its front teeth are coming from the habit. (Mrs. M. W.)

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

OH, TO HAVE KNOWN

When I look back upon my youth and think of the cumberless days I spent in school and my lack of knowledge that should have increased my capacity for learning, I say to myself, Oh, to have known then what I know now! (Which, of course, isn't so much, at that).

I see a lot of young folks going the same foolish and unthinking things that I did, and I say to them, Oh, to have known what I know now! Years and experience — much of it bitter — are what it takes to make up life, and give to its later richness its value and its grace.

The modern vogue of talk about teen-agers and their problems makes me wonder when I was one of them at that time in the boy's life. But they all came through all right, just the same as all today will come through and be fine mothers and fathers, and leaders in all walks of life.

Human nature doesn't change. Franker knowledge, however, is developing and I think that is a good thing. But I am improvement upon days of yore. They are trend-forces as human beings with a large future ahead of them, giving to them a more rounded sense of joy and responsibility.

Oh, to have known in my youth what I know now, of today! Nearly all about the facts of life! I did not know many a blunder and misunderstanding. You can't be fresh and honest with a boy or girl. But humor and tragedy are in the story of the years, and I had to learn to come into his library, and then the hard way. Oh, to have known! Oh, to tell his son that he wanted to talk to him about the facts of life! Is right, father, what do you want to know about life?

Oh, to be telling that the youth of today know so much about sex, and to realize that it is the wrong way, and the fault lies largely with the parents who should say young person be kept in the dark as to the facts of life, every part of it a wonderful book of ours. Its thorough knowledge means a safe and happy life. Its intricate machine ever invested with the sacredness of God's construction, beauty or in der of workings.

Oh, to be telling a one has exclaimed: Oh, to have known in years gone by what I have known! You can't know anything that is good and helpful — too early.

Pontiff Marks Tenth Anniversary

Vatican City, March 3 (AP) — Pope Pius XII solemnly celebrated the 10th anniversary of his elevation to the throne of St. Peter without any special ceremony.

The anniversary, which also was Pontiff's 72nd birthday, was spent in the usual arduous routine of the papacy, including a long list of audiences.

On March 13 there will be a special session of the Sistine Chapel to celebrate the 10th anniversary of his coronation. On April 2 the Pope will make a radio address on the 20th anniversary of his ordination as a priest.

The Pope himself had expressed a special wish that his anniversary be observed simply. Solemnity is added to the observances by the fact that today is Ash Wednesday, the beginning of the Lenten season.

MECHANIZED MINING

Machinery was used in 1948 to cut 75 per cent of all British coal output.

Police Confiscate Artist's Sketches Of Gouzenko

Ottawa, March 3 (CP) — An artist's sketches of Igor Gouzenko and others in the courtroom were confiscated by police Tuesday during the conspiracy trial of Sam Carr.

Robert Beck of Ottawa, for many years a Toronto Telegram staff cameraman, was arrested by police and later questioned outside the courtroom but Beck did not. Shields said the police both city and mounties, had confiscated Beck's pencil and paper as well as the sketches. Although the sketches were later returned.

Deputy Magistrate J. Sevre, on the request of crown counsel R. Cartwright, ordered that more sketches be made of Gouzenko, former Russian Embassy cipher clerk, and others testifying for more than three years

State Monopoly Of Water Supply Planned by Labor

London, March 3 — (CP) — Nationalization of Britain's water-supply services now is considered certain if Labor is re-elected in the next general election, political observers here say.

One forthright Labor spokesman said his party would have advocated nationalization of water supplies in its 1945 election campaign, "but we did not think of it in time."

The basic case for nationalization will be made quickly. In rainy Britain, with its brimming rivers, it has long assumed the supply would always exceed demand. This has been proved incorrect. A committee on Greater London water supplies has asked for urgent examination of water resources with a view to conservation.

Under the Water Act of 1945 the health minister was given the duty of promoting conservation and the proper use of water resources in England and Wales with the assistance of a central advisory committee.

Must Keep Supply Pure

The act provided that local authorities, usually the owners of water systems, must see that sources of water supplies are properly cared for and that water is free from pollution.

In England and Wales alone there are more than 1,000 water undertakers of varying size.

There is an immense number of small units, often developed by private enterprise with dug wells, tap rivers or build reservoirs to supply plants or residences.

In a 1944 report on national water supplies, a committee told the government that "serious failure of supply in times of difficulty usually arises in small undertakings which lack financial resources to secure themselves against risk of drought."

Complete concentration of such services under a central authority with wide powers fits in with the Socialists' idea of planning.

Murder Case May Prove Sensational

Horsham, Sussex, England, March 3 —(CP)— John G. Haigh, a company director, yesterday was charged with the murder of a wealthy widow who disappeared 13 days ago.

If half the stories circulating about the case are true, his trial may be one of the most sensational in British crime annals.

Haigh, 39, reserved his defence and was remanded until March 11 following a brief, formal hearing in police court.

Newspapers have linked the self-confessed killing of Mrs. Olive Durand-Deacon, 69, with the disappearances during the last 18 months of at least three other persons, all also reputed to be wealthy.

The police against Haigh's director of a plastics factory at Crawley, near here, was lodged after he had been questioned at a London police station by Scotland Yard men since Saturday night. Haigh was a guest at the secluded Kensington hotel where Mrs. Durand-Deacon lived in a suite costing £12 10s (£50) a week.

He is reported to have told police he had an appointment with the dead woman on the day she last was seen alive, Feb. 18, but that she failed to show up.

Mysterious Region in N. Sumatra Remains Defiant Behind Thick Forests

By BOB CRONE

Batavia, Java, March 3 —(AP)— The red, white and blue tricolor of The Netherlands flies today over all major Indonesian towns but one. That is Kotaradja, capital of the mysterious territory of Atjeh in North Sumatra.

Neither Dutch soldiers nor foreign newspaper men have penetrated the rugged mountains and thick forests of Atjeh since the Japanese invaded the East Indies seven years ago. Today a government of the Indonesian republic functions undisturbed in Kotaradja a city of 20,000.

Geographically, Dutch troops wiped the rest of the Indonesian republic off the map in a two-week offensive last December when a small, but well-equipped Netherlands army seized as many times the size of the tiny motherland in Europe.

Begies Ignored

Army Commander Lt.-Gen. Simon Spoor called an official halt to the Dutch offensive in Sumatra the first week in January. But no mention was made of Atjeh, which is an important region, rich in oil and larger than The Netherlands itself. Dutch army communiques never have referred to the region. Military spokesmen are tight-lipped when asked why no action is taken to restore Dutch sovereignty to Java's last chunk of the republic.

Recently Dutch authorities reported an increase in guerrilla action along the Atjeh frontier. Armed bands still harass the population of Dutch army within a few miles of Medan, Sumatra's commercial city of Medan.

Why have the Dutch allowed the Atjeenese to go their own independent way and even spill over into surrounding regions?

Part of the answer can be found in history. It took almost 200 years longer for the Dutch to take over Atjeh than the rest of the Indies.

Long before smoldering Indonesian nationalism erupted after the Japanese surrender, Atjeh was the sore spot in The Netherlands empire of the Orient.

The Dutch never won the hearts of the fiery Atjeenese, but it appeared equally unlikely that the Indonesian republic, largely Japanese in character, was ever fully accepted by them. The Atjeenese never liked intruders of any kind.

Hub of Smuggling Trade

Little word has seeped out about life in northern Sumatra since the Second World War. Apparently though, the Atjeenese have been getting along fairly well. Kotaradja remains the hub of a lively smuggling trade with the nearby Malay States.

It was not until last fall that representatives of the United Nations three-power commission for Indonesia broke Atjeh's isolation and visited Kotaradja. They observed fortifications had been erected around the town and reported intricate defence systems with many bridges already removed. Bamboo pipelines for gasoline were laid around towns for "scorched earth" tactics in event of invasion.

The Dutch apparently pin their hopes now on hostility attitude from the unknown Atjeh government. It is the one spot there is no doubt that the Nationalist slogan "complete freedom" is a reality.

EXTRA HOUR DISPLAY LIGHTING

Toronto, March 3. (CP)—The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission announced Tuesday outdoor display lighting in the province may now be turned on from 6 p.m. to 7 a.m. Two weeks ago the Commission relaxed power-saving restrictions to allow outdoor commercial lighting between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m. Full restrictions are still in force between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Chetnik Leader Given Life Term

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, March 3 (AP)—Milosh Vrankovic, top anti-Chetnik leader, today was sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor on charges of treason and attempting to overthrow the government of Marshal Tito. He also was accused of seeking aid of an unnamed foreign power.

Eight others were sentenced to terms of from four to 25 years.

The Chetniks were a wartime underground organization whose leader, Gen. Draja Mihailovic, was executed in 1946 on charges of treason.

Friends will be pleased to learn that the twin sons, John-nie and Jimmie, of Mr. and Mrs. John MacDonald, 113 Pinnacle Street, have returned home from the Belleville General Hospital, and that their condition is greatly improved.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Vanderwater entertained their nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Welland, of Toronto, at their cottage in St. Petersburg, Fla., recently.

Miss eMarbell McEwin, head nurse of the nursery of Brantford General Hospital, spent the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney W. Campbell, West Dundas.

WEDDINGS

DESMOND—SPAFFORD

In the Catholic Church at Jamaica, England, with a wedding of unusual interest was solemnized on Saturday, February 22, when Angela Mary Spafford, Veronica Spafford, Belleville, was united in marriage to Thomas Desmond, of Long Island, N.Y. The Rev. Father Cunningham, assisted by the Rev. Father Murray, officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Gerald Spafford, and was charming in a gown of white silk lace over white satin, with heart-shaped bandeau and fingertip veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations, peas and lilacs.

Miss Jean Spafford, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, wearing a gown of orchid taffeta, with orchid accessories, and silver slippers. She carried an arm bouquet of daffodils and mimosa.

Mr. Alfred Fleming, cousin of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Mr. Leon Spafford, brother of the bride, was usher.

At the reception, which was held at the home of the bride-groom, the bride's mother, in a gown of grey crepe with grey accessories, and corsage of orange rosebuds, and the bride-groom's mother, in blue crepe with pale blue accessories and corsage of blue lupins, received the many guests, who were present from Long Island, and Manhattan, and New York.

After a short trip to New Jersey, the young couple will reside in Flushing, L.I.

LADIES' AUXILIARY

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion Branch 99, held their regular meeting on Tuesday with Mrs. Jeffs, the president presiding. There was a good attendance and all officers gave interesting reports.

Some very appreciative letters were received from Britain, acknowledging the parcels received, as well as letters from sick members. More names were solicited for a new shipment of parcels.

An initiation service of new members took place, and applications for membership were accepted. These would join the branch at the next meeting.

Arrangements were made for the Zone Rally which is to be held in Belleville for 1947.

Two more names were added to those of the committee: one for the Sick Committee and one for the Publicity Committee.

Mrs. A. Gulliver was appointed officer for the group of the Blue Cross, due to the retirement of Mrs. Corby, who had served faithfully in her official capacity for five years.

Supper Party Held on 50th Anniversary

Fifty years ago in the little Anglican Church at Chesterton, Staffordshire, England, Annie Mekiejohn, and David Wardle were united in the bonds of holy matrimony, by the Rev. F. Bamford, and on Monday last, reared that joyous occasion in company with some close friends and relatives at their home here, 177 John St.

The home, which was gay with its bouquets of golden daffodils, vari-colored tulips, and Spring flowers, was reminiscent of that Springtime so long ago in England, when the bride of yesteryears welcomed the guests with undimmed graciousness, charming in her pearl grey gown of crepe, with its pale blue trimming, and corsage of pink forget-me-nots.

The dining table was lovely with its centrepiece of a three tiered wedding cake, encircled with golden maple leaves, and topped with the conventional bride and groom, and golden wedding bell. Presiding at the supper table which was held at six o'clock were Mrs. D. K. Cowley and Mrs. H. McLean, nieces of Mr. Wardle.

They have one son, Mr. George Wardle, of this city.

Among those present were, Mr. and Mrs. T. Colledge, the Misses Eva and Ethel Colclough, Mrs. M. J. Stewart, the bridesmaid's long ago, and sister of Mr. Wardle, Mrs. and Mr. Cowley and Mrs. H. McLean.

Mr. and Mrs. Wardle both enjoy good health, and have been residents of the city for over 45 years. Mr. Wardle has been bandmaster of the local Salvation Army here for more than 30 years.

Many are the good wishes extended to this fine couple, and may they be spared to enjoy their diamond anniversary together.

FRANK FOLLWELL

Must Have Party Workers

Mr. Mitchell pointed to the value of party organization and stated that if local party workers got out and worked for their party he could see no reason why Mr. Follwell could not be the next representative for South Hastings.

Mr. Mitchell stood firmly behind the mandate of the Liberal government for the past nine years and claimed that everything of a progressive nature that had been placed on the statute books had been put there by a Liberal government.

The speaker referred to Frank Follwell's late father whom he said he had known a quarter of a century ago and who had been one of the pioneers of the social reforms which had been given by the Liberal government.

Turning again to the Federal political picture, the speaker referred to Prime Minister St. Laurent as a "kindly man who looked and acts like a prime minister." "Canadians should feel fortunate in having a leader with a humanitarian approach to problems," he said.

Throw Chided By Speaker

Mr. Mitchell chided opposition leader George Drew for his stand on national affairs and also for his pressing for provincial rights. Such things were not as important as the basic needs of the country according to the speaker. Such questions as margarine and rural controls were "too hot" for Mr. Drew to handle.

The paramount issue in government today should be the co-operation of free nations to see that freedom did not disappear from the earth. To this end free countries should unite in their fight against communism.

The speaker took pride in the record of the Liberal government during the war years and pointed to Canada's industrial production which he said, "per capita, had been the highest in the world." Caught totally unprepared for war Canada had built up an industrial structure which during one war year had seen more ships built in Canada than in Great Britain. At one time over 100,000 persons were employed in the aircraft industry, building things which never before had been thought possible in Canada.

Referring to the Communist spy trials, the speaker stated his government had been accused by the Progressive Conservatives of interfering with the liberty of some of the suspects involved.

Right to Express Opinion

He said that he felt that the first duty of a cabinet minister should be the safety of the state but at the same time he did not believe in creating martyrs to any cause. "Tim Buck", he said, "had been put on ordinary trial until he was sentenced to Portsmouth Penitentiary." He believed it was the right of every citizen to express his own opinion even if 95 per cent of the people were opposed.

Mr. Mitchell defended his own stand on the discontinuance of selective service following the war stating that he had felt that the men of the services would be re-established into civilian life without direction by the state.

The fact that over a million members of the armed forces had re-established themselves in civilian life and that the transition from wartime to peacetime industry had been accomplished without widespread unemployment had been proof of the soundness of his plan.

"The policies set in motion by the government for the transfer of soldiers to civilian life exceeds that of any other country," stated the speaker. "Of the young men out to university, trained others in occupations of their choice and set up pension plans. This alone should assure the return of the Liberal party."

More Progress Made

Turning to the trade union question Mr. Mitchell stated that more progress had been shown in the past ten years for building up production for the workers than had been shown since confederation.

Financial returns for the farmer had been the highest on record during the past seven years. He declared it was better to have a fair price for the product and have high employment than have low prices for the farmer and no sale as had been the case under the Bennett regime.

"Canada," he said, "has done as good a job in the stabilization of agricultural economics as had been done in any other country."

Liberals were warned against "democratic socialism" declaring that it was in this way that socialism had received its start under Adolph Hitler. "Nationalization of railroads should interest one in gain power in Canada, would be a terrible mistake," he said.

In conclusion Mr. Mitchell summed up the accomplishments of Canada as a young country and pointed to its progress in agriculture, in industry and education, the expansion of its railway system and the setting up of its judiciary which he felt was without peer.

"And all this has been done with Liberals in power most of the time," he said in closing.

"If you wish to see the achievement of the Liberal party I advise you to look around you backwards and forward."

W. A. Fraser Heard

Well known Trenton district Liberal, William Fraser introduced the guest speaker but before doing so pointed out the need of riding party members to support their candidate.

Mr. Fraser referred to the election of the Hon. George Drew as opposition leader as the "natural outcome of true toryism. He claimed that the press did not represent democracy but rather represented the autocracy of toryism and was the grandest personification of toryism ever produced.

Dr. Lorne MacDonald, Kingston Liberal party organizer for Central Ontario, pointed out the need for a woman's Liberal organization in South Hastings and assured the candidate that he would receive the entire support of the Liberal party at the forthcoming election

Must Have Young Club

He said that Young Liberal Association were "dynamite" if the party was to continue strong. Also for party members to sell Liberalism and membership in their own organization was most important.

He predicted that the Liberals could win "five, or six" seats in Central Ontario where they now have no members if they failed to do so it would be because of lack of interest, he said.

Other speakers during the afternoon included John Smith of Trenton, president of the Young Liberal Association in that centre, Mr. Smith stated efforts would be made to organize the young Liberals in Belleville, J. F. Munro, Madoc, Liberal candidate for Hastings-Peterborough also spoke briefly.

Speaking to the convention following his election as party candidate Mr. Follwell felt assured he could count on the support of the riding Liberals and was just as confident that with that support he could carry the riding.

After his nomination as candidate Mr. Follwell pointed to his interest in municipal affairs and urged convention delegates to "vote for the man" when they thought could carry the riding.

Allows Name to Stand

McLean Haig said he had consented to let his name go before the convention because of numerous requests from party members. He pointed out he had represented the riding for nine years as the defeated candidate and during this advantage of being well acquainted with government officials at Ottawa.

Although he indicated he had not made up his mind whether he would permit his name to stand Mr. MacCaughey of Trenton stated he was confident of the outcome of the election as Opposition Leader George Drew had "left so many smoking bridges behind him that no sane Canadian would vote for him."

In any event he urged the candidate appointed by the convention to "go to work" and canvass the entire riding for votes. My advice to the candidate is not to "let Joe do it," and for goodness sake don't let 'George' do it."

Bruce Lattimer expressed his thanks to his nominator and seconder but stated he would be unable to allow his name to stand. He asked with the permission of his nominator and seconder that his name be withdrawn. A. B. Collins spoke on behalf of Frank Follwell, while Bruce Lattimer as nominator spoke on behalf of McLean Haig.

C. B. Cooper, General Sales Manager of The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company of Canada, Limited, announces the appointment of Mr. T. G. Willmot as Assistant General Sales Manager.

Mr. Willmot has had over 20 years' experience with Goodyear, and is well-known in the rubber industry. He has been connected with various departments in the Sales Division, latterly as Manager of Tire Sales.

M.P. SUGGESTS

Trade Minister Howe said he hopes soon to be able to make a statement on the recent coarse grains meeting between the Dominion and the Provinces and the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

Postmaster-General Bertrand said special postage stamp issues will be printed to commemorate Newfoundland's entry into confederation and the bi-centenary of Halifax.

Transport Minister Chevrier indicated public hearings on the Royal Commission on Transport likely will not open until after the end of April.

Outlining his proposal in the main debate, Mr. Gingues suggested the people were becoming demoralized under the existing tax burden and that it was time the government found new sources of revenue.

Money obtained from lotteries and luxury taxes, he felt, would enable the government to free millions of taxpayers from the burden of contributing to the national treasury by the present method, at least.

Charged With Bungling

Mr. Stephenson charged the government with "bungling" policies which had led to recent drops in the prices of agricultural products. Farm produce was the last to increase and the first to fall in price.

Canada had had no difficulty in getting rid of her surpluses in recent years because the government had been selling them abroad now that European countries were recovering, they were competing for world markets and Canada was losing her trade. The government could not hold them against stiff competition.

Mr. Pinard charged the Progressive Conservative Party with trying to set one province against another and to create unrest between the two main racial strains in Canada.

He read from speeches in which Mr. Drew was quoted as having charged Quebec with isolationism and proceeding to fight Roman Catholics if they attempted to form a political party.

Mr. Skey urged the government to take vigorous action on the housing problem and support reconstruction Minister Winters in a conference with municipal and provincial authorities. It was the most acute problem facing the country today.

The housing situation broke up families, harmed the health of the people and led to juvenile delinquency and contributed to Communism. At the same time, the heavy tax burden was preventing the people from saving for a home of their own.

FROST EXPECTS

When Mr. Challies read minutes of a Hydro Commission meeting at which Lakehead representatives approved the Agassiz plan, Mr. Fleming said Lakehead representatives had been given no alternative. It was "a shot-gun marriage."

Forest Problems

Mr. Robinson said the Progressive - Conservative government had advocated establishment of a non-political forests resources commission and he never set it up.

"The people of northwestern Ontario were still waiting for a solution to the forest problem to materialize, he added.

Canadians should be "ashamed" that there was no paved trans-Canada highway. No stretch of such a highway would be more interesting than the north shore of Lake Superior. If necessary, Canadians would willingly subscribe to a bond issue to complete a trans-Canada road, Mr. Robinson thought.

Mr. Foster suggested a solution to the housing problem might be to induce persons living in crowded rural areas to move to the country. There was "room and plenty of good farms." The day might come when men would be commandeered "looking for farm work."

He asked whether the government was going to "do something about margarine." Farmers did not insist that margarine be coloured differently from butter but they did want the assurance that the butter substitute would be "controlled" and that its sale should not be allowed to affect their "buying power."

Suggests Aid for Crippled

Mr. Cathcart suggested the government should extend aid to persons "crippled with arthritis and unable to work." They were few in proportion to the whole population "yet their plight in many cases is deplorable because they are not eligible for assistance through regular channels, other than relief."

Wages at Sarnia were at a higher level than elsewhere in Canada, "with the possible exception of those in Windsor," he said. Production at Sarnia last year exceeded $90,000,000 and employment was 33 per cent higher than during the war.

"I think I can safely say that the city of Sarnia today has the brightest future of any city of comparable size in Canada."

Mr. Cathcart (PC-Lambton West) said that in the last seven years the population of Sarnia had increased 50 per cent. Present population of Sarnia proper was about 23,000 and of greater Sarnia 35,000.

Subsidies paid Lambton West municipalities in 1942 and 1943 totalled $200,000. They were tripled last year when they amounted to $113,500. Education grants in the same area had "multiplied over and over again" since 1944.

"In common with most municipalities," however, hospital accommodation in Sarnia was lacking. He felt sure some assistance would be forthcoming "in the not-too-distant future."

Sarnia's "tremendous industrial expansion" had been accomplished in "utmost harmony with the unions." Both the C.I.O. and the A.F.L. had locals in many of the plants and there had been no friction between them.

23 Deaths Attributed To Recent U.S. Storms

New York, March 2 (AP) — Temperatures moderated over the snow-covered northeastern section of the United States today as the death toll in storms which swept the area mounted to 23.

Strong winds and cloudy skies kept temperatures well above zero over the New England sections where sub-zero readings had been forecast. The cold air centred north of Lake Ontario.

Most deaths in the storm belt were attributed to over exertion in the cold and snow.

Pitcairn to Regain Its Bible

After 110 years in the United States, the Bible from the Bounty is to go back to Pitcairn Island, from which it was brought to Connecticut in 1839, says an Australian release. Other books from the Bounty library have been in the United States longer than that. Like the Bounty Bible they were generous gifts from the Pitcairners to a visitor from the United States.

The story of the gift was told in the journal of Frederick Arthur, master of the New Bedford whaler Russell, who touched at Pitcairn in 1831 and spent several days ashore. Arthur's journal has apparently been lost but extracts from it were published in the Nantucket Inquirer of October 15 and 22, 1832.

Tells of Books

Captain Arthur writes thus of the books from the Bounty: "I saw copper boilers, an iron vice, an iron mortar and a number of books, some of which I was presented with. On our arrival at Valparaiso finding an squadron there whose officers were frequently on board us collecting curiosities and information concerning several islands we had lately visited—Lieut. Shobe appeared desirous of having these books deposited in some of our historical societies—I gave them to him for that purpose.

Unfortunately, Captain Arthur does not say what historical societies Lieut. Shobe had in mind. Possibly the lieutenant did not carry out his expressed intention. On the other hand, the books from the Bounty may be lying in a forgotten corner somewhere in New England.

Arthur says that John Adams (mutineer Alexander Smith) had instructed the children of the mutineers, according to the best of his abilities. "which are certainly very limited." Adams had brought the Pitcairners up "according to the established form of the Church of England." Of these forms his knowledge must have been erratic. The islanders had two rigid fast days each week. The women told Arthur that they often felt exhausted after nursing a child on the fast days without taking any food themselves.

Gift of Xerxhes

When Captain Mayhew Folger, also of Nantucket, discovered the Pitcairners in 1808 he had given John Adams a silk bandana handkerchief. "This," wrote Arthur, "is held as a venerable relic. The old man took particular pains to show it to us. Captain Folger, his only friend, once worn it on board a ship and by some accident a corner was a little torn, a calamity the old gentleman had not ceased to deplore when we were there 18 months afterwards."

Folger's own account of the finding of the Pitcairners is given in (1) the log of the sealing ship Topaz of Boston, now in the possession of the Nantucket Historical Society, (2) a letter which he wrote to the British Admiralty from Nantucket in 1813. The account always quoted comes from the letter. The log of the Topaz has never been published. Here are Folger's log entries about Pitcairn:

"Saturday, February 6, 1808 — Saw land at ½ past 1 p.m. bearing SW by W ½ W. Steered for the land with a light breeze at 8, the said land being Pitcairn's Island, discovered in 1767 by Captain Carteret in His Britannic Majesty's sloop Swallow. At 2 a.m. the like bore S 3 Leagues distant. We lay on and off till daylight. At 6 a.m. put off 3 boats to explore the Land and look for Seals. On approaching the Shore saw a Smoke on Land at which I was very much Surprised, it being represented by Captain Carteret as destitute of inhabitants. On approaching still nearer the Land I discovered a Boat paddling toward us with 3 men in her.

Hailed in English

"On approaching her they hailed in the English Language, asked who was the Captain of the Ship and offered a number of Cocoanuts which they had brought off with a present; and requested I would land, there being, as they said, a White Man on shore. I went on shore and found an Englishman by the name of Alexander Smith, the only Person remaining out of Nine that escaped on board the Ship Bounty, Capt. Bligh, under the command of that Arch-Mutineer Christian. Smith informed us that after pulling Captain Bligh in the longboat and sending her adrift they, with their Commander Christian, proceeded to Otaheite. There all the Mutineers chose to stop except Christian, himself (Smith) and seven others.

"They all took wives at Otaheite and six Men as Servants and proceeded to Pitcairn's Island where they landed all their Goods and Chattels, ran the ship on shore and broke her up, which took place (as near as he could recollect) in 1790, soon after which one of their party ran mad and drowned himself, another died of a fever and after they had remained about 4 years on the Island their Men Servants rose upon them and killed Six of them, leaving only Smith alive and him desperately wounded with a pistol ball in his neck."

Women Architects Speed U.N. Plans

New York (CP)—If the women's touch is lacking in the United Nations building on New York's East River, it won't be the fault of four young women architects.

They spend their working time poring over blueprints. Just outside their windows, steamshovels and rollers grunt and roar, preparing the foundation of the building.

The girls are S. J. Barnes, (she prefers to be called by those initials), Jane Roberts, Lydia Cherniakova and Lorraine Stevenson. They say there isn't much difference between the work of a man and a woman architect but they think they may think of things a man would omit.

"S. J." has been working on the plans since funds for the construction job became available. Because women think of architecture in terms of how easy a place is to keep clean, she thinks there should be more of them in the field.

Exciting Job

She says she finds her present job—working on the north elevation of the General Assembly Building— is "the most exciting architecture job anywhere."

Lydia Cheniakova is small and blue-eyed, and merry despite the fact she and her family had to flee Vienna eight years ago. She says she is thrilled to be working on the U.N. plans because she feels the U.N. is a source of hope to enslaved peoples.

Jane Roberts, a senior at Bennington College, has been assigned to the U.N. job for 10 weeks. She says women can produce a "more homelike" effect where men can feel easier and relax.

"And this is important—especially for delegates to such an important body," she contends.

"Even little things such as washing facilities are essential," she says.

Rectors Cite Difficulties in Living On Small Salaries Paid in Britain

Half-humorously, half in earnest, a village rector spoke up this week on behalf of the men who serve Britain's 90,000 parishes.

From a 20-room Victorian rectory in the hills of Devon came the call: The white-haired Rev. John Turner, 73, said simply he is having trouble making ends meet.

He has less money to spend, he said, than any farm laborer in his congregation.

"Yet I don't drink nor smoke, seldom go to the pictures and don't indulge in luxuries," he wrote in his parish magazine.

Later, to prove his point, Mr. Turner posed for photographers in a frock coat, silk waistcoat and high hat of the Edwardian era. If things got worse, he said he'd have to go back to wearing these garments—a relic of his first curacy.

"Yes, I still have these," he said. "I am keeping them as a last resort because I really can not afford another suit. When I start wearing these all the time you'll know I am on the last lap."

With his wife, Tryphena, 68, the rector occupies only six rooms of his rectory in Washfield, Devon. The other 14 rooms are rented for a few shillings a week by two war veterans, their wives and five children.

Turner's net income is £378 ($1,112) annually. On this he must run an automobile to serve the needs of his parish, which is 30 square miles in extent. The result is "make do and mend—and my wife is making herself ill by scrubbing, washing and polishing all day."

Rev. Austin Lee, vicar of St. Stephen's Church in a Middlesex town, made similar points on parish poverty in an article entitled "Pity the Clergyman With a Charwoman's Pay". Lee said the church commissioners pay him £330 annually.

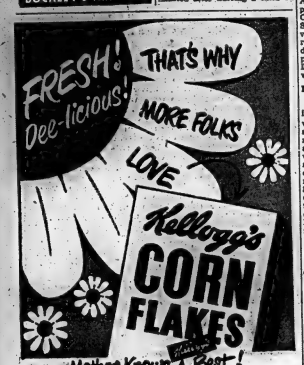
Harassed Wife

He drew a picture of the vicar's wife as a harassed woman with red and blistered hands, acting as housekeeper, maid-of-all-work, Sunday school teacher and social worker all rolled into one.

The correspondence columns of British newspapers also are dotted with complaints from clergymen.

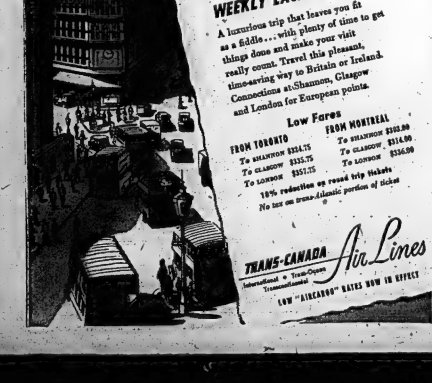
The only reply so far has come from an unidentified ecclesiastical spokesman who was quoted as saying that a real effort has been made to raise church salaries. He said most dioceses aimed at a normal gross income £500 in addition to a house, or, a net of £450 in addition to a House.

600 WOOD SPECIES



There are more than 600 species of wood in Venezuela's forests.

COINCIDENTAL DEATHS



Blaxhall, Suffolk, England (CP)—Mrs. Emily Youngman, 66, crossing-keeper here, was killed by a train at the same spot as her husband, also a crossing-keeper, 32 years ago.

WOULD FENCE QUEENSLAND

Canberra — (CP) — A suggestion that a fence to keep the state free from dingoes might be built from the wool equalization fund, has been suggested to the Queensland government. The estimated cost is £450,000 ($1,260,000) and the job would take six years to complete.

'Mail Order Romeo', Confederate Held in 'Lonely Hearts' Racket, Three Ghastly Deaths Probed

(AP) — The law moved today against a "mail order romeo" and his woman confederate in a ghastly story of a "lonely hearts" racket.

Facing murder charges were Raymond Marion Fernandes, 54, and Martha Beck, 29, thrice-married divorcee and mother of two children.

Prosecutor Roger C. McMahon said both had made "full confessions" and told freely of incorporating murder in an "easy money" fleecing of lonely women.

McMahon said he would ask first degree murder charges against the pair in the slayings of Mrs. Delphine Downing, 36, a widow, and her 30-month-old daughter, Raibelle.

Bodies of the mother and daughter were dug out of cement-filled graves in their home between here

Donald McEwan and Mrs. Amy McEwan, an elderly retired couple and their son-in-law, had heard of about three years ago.

Scotland Yard Wednesday night checked documents which, according to the Daily Telegraph, suggested that the missing persons had business dealings with the same man shortly before their disappearance.

Question of Shooting

The Daily Express said police thought that a man shot all three McEwans with a silenced revolver, and dissolved their bodies in an acid bath in the cellar beneath an office in the building.

Fragments of bone, and shreds of cloth found in a country town, and securities, ration books and legal documents found in London are believed to offer evidence on the disappearance of Dr. Henderson and his wife, the Daily Herald said.

The couple lived in the London borough of Fulham, where they ran a "folk" hospital.

In February last year the two told friends they were going to Brighton. They are known to have spent six days at a Brighton hotel but Feb. 16 they vanished.

FAMED HONG KONG

Mr. Drew, who cites these messages in his letter to back up the contention that a partly-trained and poorly-equipped force was dispatched when Canada had been advised war was imminent, said no breach of confidence was involved.

The information in his letter—based on the week as a counsel before the Commission—had come "in regular channels."

(Mr. Drew released his letter to the press Tuesday, for immediate publication regardless of whether the House accepted his tabling motion. The Canadian Press carried a full summary of the letter March 11, 1948.)

Yesterday's second offer by Mr. Drew to table his letter came when the Prime Minister, in answering question privilege, brought up a newspaper's treatment of the Drew letter charge that—as Minister of Justice in 1943—he had been responsible for "ignoring" the R.C.M.P. in the case.

This allegation arose from the use of members of 'the force' to take statements from dock workers at Vancouver concerning the empty cargo space on the ship that carried the force. There had been conflict as to how many of its missing vehicles would have been carried.

Refers to Editorial

Referring to an editorial in the Montreal Gazette calling for a "full and detailed reply" to the charge, Mr. St. Laurent said that question had been fully discussed in the Commons May 28, 1943, about two weeks after the Drew letter was written.

The official record shows that he said in that debate that he had satisfied himself on the charge of improper conduct in the use of the R.C.M.P. had been "quite unfounded."

At the time, Mr. St. Laurent said he did not know personality of the procedure used to employ the R.C.M.P. Commission counsel had asked the Justice Department that the force be used to obtain some supplementary information and the Justice Department had passed on the request to the R. C. M. P.

Had he known the steps, he said, he would have considered them "quite proper and in order."

Heads Rod and Gun

Major R. W. Young was re-elected president of Prince Edward Rod and Gun Club at the annual meeting this week. Bill Norton is vice president, Gregory Cole, secretary, Arthur Sleet, corresponding secretary, Leonard Jones, treasurer. It was decided to plan an organized hunt in the near future. Several reels of film were shown.

Speaker at Rotary

J. C. Stevenson of the Dept. of Veterans' Affairs, Kingston, addressed the Rotary Club Tuesday. He spoke on tuberculosis.

Guest Speaker

R. W. Bro. Graham of Kingston was guest speaker at Bouilier L. O. L. 488, Tuesday night. Grand Organizer for Ontario East, Mr. Graham spoke on the work of the Order and noted that there had been a steady increase in membership. W. M. Edward Caton presided.

C. C. Morrow of the Livestock Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, was speaker at a meeting of Prince Edward Hog Producers' Association, held at the farm of Fred Ketchapaw, Northport. Cost of production was dealt with as figures supplied by those co-operating in a scheme were reported. President Whytock Fox presided.

Two Sentenced For Bigamy

Brantford, March 3 (CP) — Two Kitchener residents appearing before Magistrate R. J. Gibbs Wednesday morning were each sentenced to six months definite and three months indefinite in reformatory upon conviction last Monday on a charge of going through a form of marriage knowing that one party was already married.

Mrs. Howard (Nellie) Anguish, 35, mother of eight children, will serve her term in Mercer Reformatory, Toronto, while Gordon Schweitzer, 36, a single man, will serve his time in Guelph Reformatory.

Is No C.C.F.'er

Ottawa, March 2. (CP)—H. O. White, the Progressive Conservative member for the Ontario riding of Middlesex East, wants it known that he is no adherent of the C.C.F. He called the Commons attention Tuesday to a Canadian Press dispatch which inadvertently called him a C.C.F. member, and told the Chamber with a smile "there are some things that I could overlook but this is not one of them."

MAYOR OF OUTREMONT DIES

STORY OF FIVE

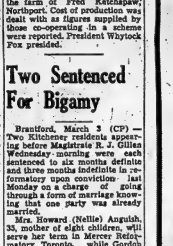
Names of the missing persons are:

Dr. Archibald Henderson, 55, and his wife, 41, who disappeared about a year ago after leaving a hotel in the south-coast holiday resort of Brighton.



Issue Warnings Against Shoplifter

Toronto, March 3 (CP)—Warnings against a shoplifter who masquerades as a hydro inspector have been made by Toronto police. Police say the thief scribbles notes about lamp fixtures in the store and walks out. Inspections yesterday resulted in petty thefts from three stores.

Medical Assoc. Battles Australian Govt. Plan on New Health Scheme

By LESLIE RHODIE
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia, March 3 — (CP) — The battle of words between the British Medical Association of Australia and the federal government, waged here for some months over the national health scheme, has almost reached a stalemate.

Neither side will compromise. The doctors adamantly refuse to co-operate while the plan remains in its present form. On the other hand, the government, led by Health Minister Nicholas E. McKenzie, adopts the attitude that the B.M.A. is lacking in its sense of social responsibility.

The government says it will put the plan into operation on schedule next July whether the doctors are willing or not.

The deadlock is mainly over administrative procedure and what percentage of medical prescriptions should be free.

The national health plan so far has failed. The free medicine scheme has been in operation since last June but it has not worked well because of the doctors' refusal to co-operate.

They maintain that it restricts their freedom in prescribing what is best for the patients, and demand that the government formula be extended to cover all drugs.

By July the government intends to put the second part of its health scheme into effect. Under it, half of all doctors' fees would be paid by the government.

Not here again the B.M.A. has objected. It has expressed its determination to keep the medical profession free from government control.

The Cabinet's decision Feb. 22 to recommend a plan to discipline doctors who fail to co-operate with the government health plan was not favored by all members of the Labor government.

At least two Cabinet ministers and several private members have expressed fear that the proposal would lead to an all-out fight with the B.M.A.

If the Cabinet's recommendation becomes law it would penalize doctors who use other than official prescription forms to prescribe medicines that come under the Free-Medicine Act.

The government believes that it can impose fines by regulation under the act, but opposition members state their doubt that any legislation can be imposed to compel doctors to write prescriptions in a specified way or on specified forms. It is also doubted that the government can limit the amount of doctors can charge the patients.

The B.M.A. is currently meeting in Melbourne to discuss this side of the dispute. So far they have not released any information.

Toronto Singer Given Contract By Hollywood

Toronto, March 3 (CP)— Billy (Okie) O'Connor, 25-year-old Toronto night club singer and musician-composer whose composition of "Saskatchewan" outsold all Canadian recordings in 1946, is heading to Hollywood for a big-time contract.

After 18 years of slinging hot dogs in a converted street-car roadhouse in suburban Long Branch, the youthful singer has been contracted for a three-week personal appearance tour in the United States and has arranged to sell other recordings.

Body is Discovered Beneath Upset Boat

Toronto, March 3 — (CP)—The body of Arthur Whinton, 67-year-old sole resident of Mugg's Island in Lake Ontario, was discovered late Wednesday beneath his overturned rowboat.

John Duman of Hanlon's Point also attached a safety belt which him late Wednesday to row back to his island-home.

Cost-of-Living Index Will Be Known Friday

Ottawa, March 3 (CP)—Canada will learn tomorrow whether food price trends are pointing up or down.

At 3 p.m. EST, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics will issue its monthly report on the official cost-of-living index, covering the period from Jan. 3 to Feb. 1.

The last report, issued Feb. 4 and covering the December period, showed the index at 185.6—the highest point in history — after a heartening drop of seven-tenths of a point the preceding month.

Recent activities of the index show a fluctuating tendency. It dropped seven-tenths of a point during November to 183.9 on lower food prices, the first significant break up to that time in 23 months. Then, in December, it climbed by the same amount to return to the historic peak of 185.9.

However, economists now see encouraging factors in the December rise. That was the fact that more than half of the increase developed from changes in service rates which are adjusted only periodically.

The index is calculated on the basis that 1935-39 equal 100 in pre-war 1935-39 equalled 100.

Foods Up in December

Foods went up during December, but their advance was not as great as it had been earlier in the year. Lower prices for eggs and fruits helped to off-set generally firmer rates for other foods. Clothing, homefurnishings and service also were higher.

Reports from the United States indicate a softening of prices south of the border. And government circles hope the trend will have a beneficial effect on Canadian price levels.

Just a week ago, the U. S. Labor Department reported a fourth straight monthly drop in American living costs. Its statistics showed that the consumer's price index declined 3 per cent between mid-December and mid-January, chiefly on lower prices for foods, apparel and house furnishings.

That was a continuation of a downward trend from the August-September all-time peak. At mid-January the American index still was 1.2 per cent above a year ago and 25.2 per cent over June, 1945, when major U. S. price controls were abandoned.

Karens in Burma Bedevil the Govt. In Fight to Win Their Independence

By JAMES McCOOK

London, March 3 — (CP) — In 1947, some Commonwealth members felt they were concerned about what 13,000,000 Burmese would do. In 1948, even when Burma was granted independence by Britain.

Now they can ponder news from Burma that the hardy Karens are calling the tune. In pursuit of their ambition for an autonomous state they have seized important cities, severed communications and practically cut Burma in halves as far as government authority is concerned.

Chaotic Picture

Since British forces left Burma there has been a tragic succession of assassinations, civil war and disorder. The result has been that Burmese food and raw materials, urgently needed by her neighbors and the world at large, have not been available to assist economic recovery.

The Karens, short, hard-fighting men with determination, industry and clear objectives, have benefited in their campaigns because of the governments's progressive expulsion of the "White Flag" Communists, with separatist ideas, and the more extreme "Red Flag" Communists who follow the familiar strategy of making trouble whenever or however they can.

British authorities said the Karens, although numerically weak, had proved themselves excellent soldiers and police when Britain held authority.

The Karens did not wish to see the end of British rule and their delegates visited the United Kingdom before Independence was granted Burma, hoping to work out some special form of association.

Offers Not Satisfactory

The new Burmese government provided representation for Karens but did not satisfy their demands for an autonomous state within Burma free from overlordship of the Burmese.

To Whitehall now returns the memory that when the Japanese invaded Burma, many Burmese at first collaborated with the enemy. The Karens suffered severely at Japanese hands but their loyalty was unshaken.

"Anyone who has been to Burma has the greatest admiration, in fact, love—for the Karens but anyone who has had anything to do with them has found the utmost difficulty in reaching agreement as to their future," said Sir Hubert Rance, the last British governor in Burma.

And now, to Whitehall, it begins to look as if the Karens may solve the problem for themselves.

Berlin Ruled Out W. German State By Western MG's

Frankfurt, March 3 (AP)—The three western military governors today ruled out inclusion of Berlin in the forthcoming western German state.

The French objected to Berlin's inclusion on the ground that it would serve as official western recognition that the four-power allied control council in Berlin has ceased to exist.

The ruling by the military governors drew an immediate attack from Berlin's fiery mayor, Ernst Reuter. The anti - communist socialist mayor declared it was "not very polite or very wise."

He expressed doubt that the French objection was based solely on the grounds stated in the announcement by the military governors but added "It is not for me to comment on what the other French reasons may be."

Reuter said the announcement said the French object to having Berlin play any important role in the future state because they fear it would strengthen German Nationalists.

Washington, March 3 — (AP)— The United States government, in a note to Russia, today gave Gen. Lucius D. Clay full support in his demand that Soviet repatriation mission be withdrawn from the American zone of Germany.

The American note, made public by the State Department, said Foreign Minister Molotov's protest against Clay's action was packed with "misrepresentation and distortion of fact."

Twenty Workmen Killed In Blast in Turkey

Istanbul, March 3 — (Reuters) — Twenty workmen were killed and 50 injured in an explosion which wrecked an arms factory near here yesterday, press reports said today.

Rescue teams were still searching the debris of the factory at Gebze, on the east bank of the Golden Horn, which was reported to be making shells for Egypt at the time of the explosion.

Reckless Drivers Will be Hard Hit In Quebec Prov.

By The Canadian Press

Quebec plans to take reckless motorists right off its highways, some of them for good.

Legislation forecast in the Throne Speech and soon to be introduced in the Legislative Assembly will provide for suspension of licences of drivers held responsible for accidents.

Courts will be authorized to order three-month suspension of licences of persons found to blame for mishaps. In some cases, suspensions will be permanent. A driver once held responsible for an accident will not be permitted to drive again in any event until he is insured.

The legislation, if adopted by the provincial parliament, will give Quebec traffic rules similar in many respects to those in force in Ontario and in some other provinces.

This may be the last day of Throne-Speech debate in the Ontario Legislature. If the debate on the grounds stated in the announcement by the military governors but added "It is not for me to comment on what the other French reasons may be."

Reuter said the announcement said the French object to having Berlin play any important role in the future state because they fear it would strengthen German Nationalists.

Washington, March 3 — (AP)— The United States government, in a note to Russia, today gave Gen. Lucius D. Clay full support in his demand that the Soviet repatriation mission be withdrawn from the American zone of Germany.

The American note, made public by the State Department, said Foreign Minister Molotov's protest against Clay's action was packed with "misrepresentation and distortion of fact."

Russ Radio 'Hams' Closer-Mouthed' Than Before War Say Operators

Winnipeg, March 3 — (CP) — Russian radio "hams" aren't as talkative as they used to be.

L. E. (Len) Cuff, one of the vast brigade of amateur radio operators in Canada, says there is little doubt that Russian hams now are "more close-mouthed" than they were before the war.

Other hams of Winnipeg 400 or so hold the same view.

Cuff, an officer of the Winnipeg Amateur Radio Club, says that the majority of the radio "talks" engaged in by hams in Canada and Russia are in the international code rather than by voice.

Sqdn. Ldr. W. R. Duncan of the R.C.A.F. signals section here, closely connected with Manitoba hams in his position as co-ordinator of the air force amateur radio system, believes it likely that Russian hams would be "closely monitored."

He says that for "political reasons," it is probable that they are not encouraged to work with hams outside the Soviet Union.

Radio amateurs exchange what they refer to as a "QSL" card as proof of a conversation. Hams sending cards to Russia are not able to mail them directly to the addressee; instead, all cards are channelled through Box 88, Moscow.

Of Canada's approximately 5,000 hams, probably few can boast of QSL cards from more countries than George Behrends, Behrends, a ham for the last 30 years, figures that he has received more than 4,000 QSL cards in that time.

Hams say there are about 315 countries with which it is possible to make contact.

English is the most common language used throughout the world.

"When you consider how friendly it is possible to get with hams in all parts of the world, you wonder how it is that one country is able to have something against another."

Cod Fisheries Nfld's Basic Industry

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

St. John's Nfld. (CP)— Joe Moore, 50, bronzed and tough is a cod fisherman. As such, he is a working part of Newfoundland's basic industry.

Joe's shanty lies at the foot of Signal Hill, the towering rock that looms over this ancient port, and the Narrows through which ships pass to and from the sea.

At night, from the door of his shanty one can see the little fishing boats bobbing in the swell below the flashing light on Chain Rock near the Narrows, the big revolving beam on the far side, the riding beacons of freighters docked in the harbor and the thousand twinkling lights of the city itself.

One can smell the salt drying on the flakes—or staging—around Joe's shanty and the stores of other shanties that twine around the foot of the hill. Always, there is the lap of the sea at the pilings.

Joe is owner and skipper of his own boat and has a crew of five. Some of them have their tiny homes behind the staglings but those who are not married spend most of their time, when not fishing, in the shanty.

The shanty is on the second storey, so to speak. Below it is the hazily-planked wharf where the cod is salted down and stacked to dry. Under that again is the water. The fish are thrown out of the boats at the end of the wharf and cleaned and hosed down on rough wooden tables.

Home And Workshop

The shanty consists of three rooms, one of them open to the weather. Fish are stacked in one, gear is kept in another and the crew makes its home in a third. In this last room are two double bunks, a small table and bench and a stove and cupboard. The men do their own cooking and are partial to bacon and eggs.

When working the cod traps Joe and his men roll out about 5 a.m. for their first trip of the day. The boat is about 25 feet long and carries an eight horsepower engine.

In the summer Joe and his crew trap-fish. The traps are square and buoyed at the four corners. A "leader" is used to guide the cod into the nets.

Hauling the nets in, dumping their contents and setting them out again is back-breaking work. Joe's nets are about four miles outside the harbor near Blackhead. A trip may take three or four hours and the second is made about nightfall. After that comes the cleaning and salting. One day's work may be as short as 10 hours. Usually, however, a working day runs to 16 or 18 hours.

Joe Moore began to fish when he was 11 after his father was drowned. Before the war he could make only $300 a year (in 1936, 25 per cent of the working population made less than $100 a year) but he's doing about five times better than that now.

Dried cod brings Newfoundland around $17,000,000 a year and fresh and frozen cod more than $6,000,000. This represents about one quarter of Newfoundland's total exports.

The cod industry can be classified into three groups—inshore, deep-sea and the Labrador.

Inshore Fishermen

Most fishermen in Newfoundland—there are about 30,000—work inshore. They use trawl lines early in the season and switch to cod traps later on. One of Joe Moore's cod nets may bring up 80,000 pounds in a single haul so that fish slop over the sides of the boat. The traps usually are set on shoals near headlands and the take is big when the cod is "running."

Deep-sea fishing is done almost exclusively from the south coast by schooners up to 100 tons. They fish the banks, great shoals lying far off the southeast coast. In winter schooners sometimes ice up so badly that they turn turtle.

Two groups operate in Labrador waters—"stationers" who have their fishing "rooms" based on shore and schooners that carry their crews and gear with them from Newfoundland. They move about with the runs and split and salt their catch.

In recent years, particularly since the war, development of refrigeration plants for production of cod fillets and processed fish has gone ahead by leaps and bounds.

These plants now have a daily capacity of about 700,000 pounds and a holding capacity of more than 10,000,000 pounds. Commission government poured more than $4,000,000 into new plants and set up about 20 small bait refrigeration plants which distribute bait to fishermen.

This has meant a new deal for Newfoundland fishermen. It is taking the emphasis off dried cod and boosting production of fresh and frozen cod fillets.

This diversifies fishing. Joe Moore, for instance, now spends about as much time cleaning and salting his cod as he does catching it. But if he sells it to a processing plant he has more time for fishing. Besides, he gets cash instead of kind. For it is usually the rule for merchants to pay for a fisherman's season's catch in food and clothing.

They Reckon Their Rabbits by Millions

(By R. L. Carthoys in the Winnipeg Free Press, Writing from Melbourne.)

In 1788 a return of livestock compiled by Governor Phillip, of New South Wales, included five rabbits which had been brought to Australia with the fleet that carried the first white settlers. Three years later a few more were introduced from Capetown. In 1859 a friend furnished the rabbits' hutches and they escaped. Shortly afterwards an official report recorded that wild rabbits were doing well. Today the rabbit is probably the toughest single problem confronting Australia.

A combination of circumstances — lack of manpower to combat this scourge during the war, lack of netting and poison with which to wage war upon it today and the fact that rabbit skins and rabbit meat have become lucrative exports — has produced such a plague that woolgrowers protest that their industry, by far the most valuable in the Commonwealth, commanding three to four times the prices it earned before the war, is in dire peril. This season's wool clip is expected to sell for about $585,000,000.

Biologists declare that should drought overtake the wool industry, as it does periodically in parts of Australia, millions of the 100,000,000 sheep now in Australia could be lost and the value of the wool clip halved; for when dry weather comes the rabbits get most of the available feed. Ten or 15 years ago the statement that the damage done by rabbits involved a loss of $98,000,000 a year was generally accepted. Nobody knows how many times that amount is the loss today.

So disturbed is the Commonwealth Government by the magnitude of this menace that it has authorized the importation of $200,000 worth of wire netting from the U.S. in the first three months of 1949 for the repair of rabbit-proof fences. Increased imports of fumigant poisons also have been sanctioned and a factual is being built in Newcastle (N.S.W.) to house Itali immigrant labor for the works of Lysaght Brothers Pty. Ltd., and enable this company to increase production to its maximum capacity of 125 tons a week.

The dollars to be spent in the U.S. will buy 730 miles of netting and 3,400 miles more are being imported from Belgium, France and Germany; but woolgrowers say that in the 10 years since supplies were last readily available the back-log has accumulated to 100,000 tons.

There are now probably thousands of millions of rabbits in Australia from the east coast to the west. The progeny of one pair may reach as many as 1,000 in a year. Enormous numbers are being destroyed daily by trapping, fumigating, poisoning, digging out, ploughing out and dogging, but in most parts of the continent they are breeding faster than they are being killed.

On one property in Western New South Wales three men caught 12,000 in one week! In three months on another property 70,000 have been destroyed on 2,000 acres! Meanwhile the rabbit has become Australia's second largest earner of dollars — the sheep of course, being by far the largest.

In the 1947-48 trade year ex-furs, pelts or rabbit skins earned $11,000,000 and hatters' journals point out that these more dollars could be won by the thousand each of sheep that could be run on pastures now being destroyed by rabbits.

At a conservative estimate 10 rabbits eat as much grass as one sheep. It is estimated that the rabbits caught last year numbered 160,000,000, which would have eaten enough food to maintain 14,000,000 more, which could have produced well worth about twice the amount earned in a year by rabbit skins.

To add to woolgrowers' worries in recent months the rabbit has been taking highly skilled shearers from the wool sheds. When as much as $320 a week can be made from rabbit trapping in a good season, shearing find it much more profitable and much more agreeable to go rabbiting than to toil in the sheds.

Before the war a farmer would give a trapper a few pounds a week and perhaps his food, too, and let him have the carcasses and skins for nothing; he was glad to have someone keeping down the rabbits. But today a trapper may pay as much as $160 for the right to trap a couple of hundred acres during the Winter when rabbit skins are at their best.

About 90 percent of the rabbit skins exported to the U. S. and elsewhere go into hats and the remainder into the fur trade, where they are clipped and otherwise ingeniously treated to look like beaver and other expensive

New Fire Escape At High School Will be Built

Stirling—A new covered fire escape from top storey of the high school and fire doors at the top of the stairs leading to the top storey and between the old and new sections of the building will be constructed as soon as possible according to a decision reached at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education on Monday night.

The matter has been under consideration by Board officials for some weeks, as the present fire escape is considered too dangerous for the public school pupils who occupy the upper room in the high school.

It is proposed to construct the covered fire escape on the north side of the building. Prices from local contractors will be procured by the property committee at once.

Films Will be Shown

Principal C. A. Wells reported arrangements had been completed for showing films on Conservation of Wild Life and the presentation of the public school concert in Stirling theatre on Wednesday evening, April 13th. Each room would contribute a number to the program after which the films would be shown.

Travel-Weary Gunner Midgets Elimmated 9-5 by Midland B's, T. Lally Fractures Collarbone

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Midland, Ont.—Reserve strength was the deciding factor in—a strenuously-fought hockey battle here last night when the Midget "B" squad of this Georgian Bay summer resort town defeated Belleville Gunners 9-5 in a spirited third period rally that netted three goals.

The victory eliminated the Belleville team from further competition in O.M.H.A. circles. It was a fast-clash affair, due to the fact that a previous game won by Belleville 7-3 was tossed into the discard when two of their players were discovered to be over the Midget age-limit. Midland now enters the Ontario Midget "B" finals.

The game was marked with outstanding play, sustained speed and some officiating by Gerald-thirst arbiter that at times had a distinct aroma. Some of those rabid Belleville fans who rules bob in general with the officials down their way, should have seen some of the whistle-blowers efforts up here.

It was a leg-weary travel-tired crew of red-clad Gunners who battled to the last ditch after travelling nearly 400 miles in 24 hours. They played heartburn hockey from gong to gong and were deserving of a better fate.

Game Costly One

This game was a costly one by the Gunners, when Tom Lally, starry forward who scored two Gunner goals and assisted in another suffered what is believed to be a fractured shoulderbone in the early minutes of the third period.

It was nip-and-tuck hockey all the way with all front lines speeding to the attack and both goalies standing out with stellar performances. Don Barclay was brilliant in the Midland nets and thrust aside many Midland forays. Opposed, Midland goalie Webb also stood out especially in the second period when he kicked out a lot of invader rubber.

Green Stars

Peter Green and Bruce Milligan were outstanding for defence with both boys especially Green turning in grand performances. Lally, Barrett, Hall, Allen in fact all the Gunners played outstanding hockey throughout and proved a distinct credit to themselves, their sponsors and their city.

Webb, Truax, Quinn and Johnson with Thompson in goal were the Midland standouts.

Barrett Scores First One

Belleville whipped home the first goal from Barrett early in the first period to open the scoring. Midland got that one back but the count was even-Steven with Barrett and Lally scoring twice more for the visitors and Midland tallying from Scott.

The fortunes of the game went Midland's way and then the third and at the end of the second period the count was 5-5 all in five-all. Thirteen minutes of shiny hard play started the fast pace and fast-clash began to tell on the Gunners. A whirlwind push bobbed and bounded about the ice and gave a queer hop over Barclay's pads to give the Midlanders their lying goal and from that point on the Gunners faded, Midland took advantage of everything and popped home four goals in as many minutes to clinch the game and the semi-finals series.

Midland tied the score at three-all at the five-minute mark in the second period when they were shorthanded. Quinn broke in the clear and scored. Lally got that one back from Allen and Midland scored two quick goals from Scott and Webb to take the lead for the first time. It was shortlived. Hall tied the score Wright's pass to tie the score again while Johnson was serving his third penalty of the game.

Scores Two Rapid Ones

Midland broke the 5-all tie after thirteen minutes of furious battling at 5:30 of the period when Webb fining home Drinnell's pass. Gunners surged to the attack in desperate efforts to knot the count, but Midland took advantage of breakaways and scored two rapid goals from Quinn and Sturgeon to take a three goal lead and the game.

Gunners, minus Lally, flung everything in the dying minutes of the game, but Wright raced in with three minutes to go to give the homefolk a final margin of victory.

The red-shirts never gave up trying. They hung to their guns and were battling desperately when the gong ended the game.

FISHERMEN'S DELIGHT

In the time of Queen Elizabeth, the English were required by law to eat fish on 150 days of the year.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Midland, Ont. (Wee Sirtis).—Fly here in this town of four-foot snowbanks, drifts, elevators, rabid hockey fans and fresh-water lakers; they take their winter sport seriously. A hockey game at this northern resort hit the real heights here tonight and shattered themselves rabbits as their Midget "B's" carried an unfair strength in the last half of the third period, to fling home four goals in as many minutes to defeat our leg-weary red-clad Gunners by a 9-5 count. Up to that point the score was five-all with victory in doubt.

The turning point of the game sounded to smoke when Midland forward, with the score 5-4 against his team, lobbed a bounding puck toward Don Barclay in the Gunner nets. That puck disappeared in the web of the net and the 2,000 packed the rafters; correctly but it appeared to take a other look to be certain the red-clad goalie had it. Imagine the air over the defending boost and skate and rattled lastly to a decree of the fact.

From that point on the Gunners flung fearfully. (they played in Peterborough on Tuesday night) began to take their toll. They battled desperately but the speedy Midlanders landing their advantage surged to the attack and fired home four goals, as was said before, in such array of fire power.

Youthful Tom Lally suffered a severe injury early in the third period when he was crashed to the ice with a hard body check. He was rushed to the Midland hospital where X-ray examination revealed a fractured collar bone. He remained in hospital till the game was over and returned with the team. Lally was one of the best players on the ice last night, getting two goals and an assist. His loss was keenly felt by the lucky Gunners in that fast, furious third period.

The game was a rough, boisterous brand of hockey with the home town team not the least bit averse to laying on the hickory, legal or otherwise. They drew seven penalties as against three for Belleville and almost had a couple of more six fisters. On one occasion a husky Midlander drew a head on that part of Peter Green's anatomy that he uses while sitting down and set off a rolling ball of fist that would have done a golf ball 300 yards. Peter, obeying orders to stay on the ice, did not retaliate but the officials apparently were looking at the pair of blondes in the third row back. It was flinty officiating to say the least.

Just why the OMHA powers-that-be ordered this Belleville team to travel 400 miles in a two day period to play a first town Peterborough, necessitating a return trip of 160 miles and then another to Midland, 160 miles, is something for statisticers. Surely the playdowns are not so important as to stage this action. Twenty-four or forty-eight hours grace would have meant a big difference in the energy and fire-power reserve of establishment for the breach of rules when Carey was discovered to be over age. However, it's a pretty tough grind on a crew of lads—kids. We had enough for the flights and the brothers. Some of the sidelines who went along with the team arrived home with it at six a.m. Sunday after a hard session hanging out, and collective alibis for the all-night absence for the various parents.

However, its all over. The Gunners defeated, were by no means disgraced. They played grand hockey all through the season and but for the unfortunate Carey incident, might have done through to a provincial title. But there's no crying over spilled milk in the Gunner camp. The kids, grand little sportsters they are, gave all they had, which while not enough, was a distinct credit to their city. Remember the 9th Anti Tank Regt. RCA and to themselves. They have every reason to be proud of their record, and it is through no direct fault of their own that the fortunes of hockey were such that they were eliminated.

Here was no sulking or moaning at the bar on that long 190 mile jaunt from Midland which started after the fatal-night last night. The Gunners might have just won the playoffs. One if hockey smartness and good spirits can be judged a criterion. They sang, whistled and "recited." "Scotty" Elliott, the "Jack Benny" of the crew was at his entertaining best and he amused his pals until the wee-hours in the bus until well into the morning hours. But finally his tassels became thread bare and he subsided into slumber.

And now for hockey of a different calibre. Tonight should see a tidy till when the Peterborough Legion engage our Diesels in an exhibition jaunt in Memorial Arena. The Legion have been flying high up around their home-town diggings and are fast strangers to Belleville fandom. Ned Vitarelli's crew have improved tremendously since their last appearance here in 1942 and with Diesels at full strength, the Vitarelli-clad wizzes a neat brand of pastiming. Game gets under way at 8.30.

Stirling juveniles narrowly missed out in their search for a provincial title. The village crew defeated Uxbridge 6-3 in the second game of their home-and-home series but lost the round 7-6, Uxbridge taking the first tilt 6-1. Both games were close hard-fought affairs.

DIMAG'S HEEL ALL RIGHT

New York March 3 (AP) —Joe Dimaggio and his aching heel headed back to the New York Yankees' training camp today after a quick visit to his Baltimore doctor.

The right heel, from which a bone spur was removed last fall, flared up after the Yankee clipper's first workout Tuesday. Taking no chances with their star, the Yankees sent him winging back to Dr. George Bennett.

After an inspection, the doctor said, "There was nothing to do about Joe's heel at this time. I believe he and the Yankee officials became unduly alarmed over the reaction to the first workout."

Canadiens Move to Within Striking Distance of Second Place Bruins, Defeating Leafs

By BERT ALLEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal Canadiens are back in the hunt for the heavy sugar in the National Hockey League as they moved within striking distance of second place and threatening to overtake the second-place Boston Bruins.

Three weeks ago the Habitants were slumping precariously to 6th place, with both Chicago and New York threatening to shove them out of playoff spot. Now, only a complete collapse will shake up the Rink Rawles or Rangers to dislodge the Habs from the money series.

Wednesday night Canadiens helped by a sensational patrolling job on the part of big Bill Durnan, blanked Toronto Maple Leafs 2-0 to move within three points of second-place Boston who were being held to a 1-1 tie by the pace-setting Detroit Red Wings. In another game Chicago Blackhawks wrote finis to New York's playoff hopes by beating the Rangers 5-3.

Durnan's shutout was his second in a row and seventh of the season, putting him in a tie with Rangers' Chuck Rayner for shutout honors. It also boosted his lead a step closer to clinching his fifth Vezina Trophy for least goals scored against.

Durnan now has allowed 119 markers, eight less than the runner-up, Harry Lumley of Detroit. Lumley has played one more game than Durnah.

A Fishey Contest

The Canadiens' first goal by Gerry Plamondon was a fluky counter. The Montreal forward centred out from a corner and the puck hit Vic Lynn's stick and slithered past York Broda.

Lou Gravelle, scored the other marker at 4:37 of the last frame.

Detroit had to battle all the way for their 1-1 stalemate with Bill Durnan limiting the ace of the Boston Garden. The draw marked the seventh straight in which the Wings have failed to hit the win column, but it was enough to preserve their third point edge on second-place Boston.

After a scoreless first period the Bruins went out in front in the middle period on Milt Warwick's goal. The Wings were unable to score until 12:31 in the final period, Gerry Couture playpassed a rebound over the failing Frankie Brimsek, Boston goalie, for their only goal.

Chicago kept alive their playoff hopes by whipping New York 5-3 before a 18,566 crowd at Chicago Stadium. The victory moved them to within four points of 4th-place Toronto.

It was Doug Bentley Night and the Hawk forward, now in his ninth season with the team, received nearly $3,000 worth of gifts before the game, including an expensive car. Bentley had only an assist to show for his evening's efforts.

Jim Conacher, Gaye Stewart, Gus Bodnar, Roy Conacher and Ernie Dickens scored the Chicago goals, while Buddy O'Connor and Alex Kaleta tallied for Rangers.

Three Members Winnipeg Team Come to Toronto

(By The Canadian Press)

Three members of Winnipeg Monarch Junior Hockey Club left Wednesday by plane for Toronto where they will work out with Toronto Marlboros.

The workouts will be watched by Conny Smythe, Hap Day and other members of the Toronto Maple Leafs organization, who have a working agreement with Monarchs, who were eliminated from the Memorial Cup playdowns by Moose Jaw.

At St. Donat, Que., the visiting Frenchy Shi team Wednesday just about duplicated their overwhelming 14-1 victory in the Canadian downhill and Slalom championships when they swept the first five in the Class A special St. Donat open invitation meet. Once again the platters were led by the Canadian combined champion, Serge Patenaude with a first place time of 1.44.7. The first Canuck over the finish line was Pierre Talbert of Ottawa, member of Canada's Olympic team, who was clocked in 1:31.6. Jim Georgas placed 13th in 3:03.8.

At White Plains, N.Y., Fitzie Prudes, 143 P.A. St. Catharines, knocked out Pat Riccbra, 138 P-4, Buffalo, in 45 seconds of the fifth round of the scheduled eight-round main event Wednesday night at the Westchester County Centre.

At Hamilton, Joe Chocolat, star of Hamilton Tigers in the Ontario Rugby Football Union, said Wednesday he had turned down "an offer by a Toronto team to play on its big four team. "I'm playing football right in Hamilton," he said. "That's definite".

Tony Demers of Shertbrook's St. Francis Club in the Quebec Senior Hockey League, has been awarded the Syndicat-Vimy trophy as the player who during the 1943 season "combined team play with value to his team," it was announced at Montreal. Demers was chosen in a poll of referees

Jacobs to Get Dose of His Own Medicine

Miami, March 3 (AP)— Joe Louis plans to give Mike Jacobs a dose of his own medicine by using the exclusive-contract treatment to tie up the heavyweight title for his International Boxing Club.

When Louis wrested the crown from Jimmy Braddock in 1937 he agreed to fight only for Jacobs' 20th Century Sporting Club for the next ten years. Apparently the Brown Bomber learned a lesson in shrewd promotion tactics.

An important — but generally overlooked —factor in the signing of Ezzard Charles and Jersey Joe Walcott to fight for the championship with National Boxing Association approval was the exclusive contract clause.

Charles and Walcott agreed, if victorious, to fight only for Louis and his two partners, Arthur M. Wirtz and James D. Norris, for the next two years.

Felix Bocchicchio, Walcott's business representative, said Wednesday the contract calls tentatively for either New York or Chicago as the site.

Of course, Louis may wind up with only half a title. Jack Solomons has proposed a bout between Lee Savold and the winner of the fight between Bruce Woodcock and Freddie Mills for the London version of the crown, before 180,000 spectators at Dyke Park.

The 20th Century Sporting Club has a proposal coming up in a day or two that might appeal more to chairman Eddie Eagan of the New York State Athletic Commission than Louis' approach. Likewise the tournament of Champions is talking of an elimination tournament and also of a Savold-Charles match.

PETERBOROUGH HORSE WINS

Phoenix, Ariz., March 3 (AP)— Stewart Worthy, chestnut gelding from Peterborough, Wednesday night won the mile and 1-16 classified race in 2:00 4-5 at the harness racing program in Sportsman's Park.

Stewart Worth paid $4.80 to his straight backers.

Barrie Flyers Defeat Windsor In 4 Straight

By The Canadian Press

The Barrie Flyers shaping up in the Ontario Hockey Association playoffs, it appears that the writers of the regular schedule have been misled.

Wednesday night both league winners—Windsor Spitfires Juniors and Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen Seniors—were defeated by the two second-place clubs.

The Spitfires were cast aside in the Memorial Cup series as the Flyers defeated them 7-4 to take their best-of-seven semi-final series.

The Dutchmen suffered their first loss of the best-of-seven final series when Toronto Marlboros downed them 4-3.

The Spitfires, in particular, must feel they've been jinxed. Almost simultaneously with their entry in the series, Barrie Coach Hap Emms predicted the Flyers would lose four straight games. And then, the Flyers proceeded to whitewash them.

The Flyers Wednesday night overcame a one goal margin piling into the second period as they quickly scored the Spitfires 3 and then split four goals in the third period.

Only Four Seconds to Play

At Waterloo, a goal by Johnny McLellan with four seconds left in regulation time gave Marlboros their victory. It was a displaced pass by Kitchener defenceman Harvey Jacklin that enabled McLellan to tally. Jacklin passed to Toronto's Chuck Blair in front of the Kitchener net and Blair relayed to McLellan.

Bruce Dutchmen and Dukes split four goals in the first period. Then Toronto tallied the only counter of the second period. Kitchener's third goal came at the 16-minute mark of the third.

Other Toronto marksmen were Blair with two and Scotty Mair, Bobby Bauer, Doug Jerig and Ted Grasser accounted for Kitchener goals.

At St. Catharines, Hugh Bolton got the clinching goal mid-way through the third period that not only cost the Twepees the game but their semi-finals as well.

When Bolton broke away, he was tormented by Steve Black who carried him right into the goalmouth where goalie Don Campbell was pressured so hard against the post he suffered a fractured leg. George Douglas took over Campbell's duties.

Both clubs counted twice in the third period, and the Dukes got the only goal of the season. Other marksmen scoring were George Armstrong, Johnny McKendzie and Murray Grenke. George Sullivan got both goals for St. Catharines.

Tomorrow night, Toronto and Kitchener pick up the second game of the series. The juniors play their second game Thursday night Saturday with Barrie now idle until the series winner is declared.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Bill Durnan, Montreal goalie, who chalked up his seventh shutout as Canadiens blanked Toronto 2-0.

Jim Conacher, Gus Bodnar and Gaye Stewart, Chicago forward line, who each collected two points as the Black Hawks beat New York 5-3.

Flats Boys and Bells Win Semi-Finals Hockey Games

Flats Boys and Bell Telephone won the first double-header of the Maramichi Hockey League semi-finals in Memorial Arena last night. Flats won by an 8-6 score with the "Phones" reaping up a 7-5 victory. The series is home-and-home with goals to count.

The Flats - Quinn Paint game was a rough-and-tumble affair with the referee handing out 24 at the end of the first period.

Paced by Richardson and Harry Wardhaugh, the Quintes almost folded after the former player was hurt.

Adams and Steve Garvin started a mild brawl to enliven proceedings, with the former drawing down the wrath of the officials.

The second game was a hard-fought affair. Lyall scored two for the winners also getting two assists. Rollins got two as did Carey. Doug Day got the other.

The teams play the second and final game of the series next week the date to be announced.

Carl Liscombe Breaks Record For Scoring

Carl Liscombe broke the American Hockey League scoring record for a single season Wednesday night when he punched three goals into the Buffalo Bisons' net to up his total to 34 and lead Providence Reds to a 7-4 Victory.

The Pittsburgh Hornets trounced Cleveland Indians 5-0 with Sid Smith sparking the attack with three goals. Fleming Mackell had two and the others went to John O'Flaherty, Rudy Migay and Pete Langelle.

Steve Black broke up a high-scoring game in Philadelphia by connecting in the last 18 seconds of play to give St. Louis Flyers a 7-6 victory.

Barry Sullivan drew an assist on the play. Earlier in the period he scored his third goal of the game to tie it up. Tony Licari, Vic Grigg and Hersey Backor notched the other St. Louis goals.

Phil Hergeshaimer connected twice for the losers. Eric Pettinelice also tallied twice for the losers and Wally Stefaniew and George Defelice one each.

Hershey Bears scored a 4-3 win over Springfield Indians. Frank Marie scored twice for Hershey while Mark Marquess and Silvio Bettio got one each. Joe Conn, Bill Summerhill and Mike Marduzzi counted for Springfield.

Pete Gilbert Leads Ontario Rink in Spill

Hamilton, March 3 — (CP) — Pete Gilbert, "Mr. Curling" of Western Ontario fame, will lead the Ontario representatives in the Dominion curling finals here Mar. 7, 8 and 9, in the eight players on the three central Canadian rinks entered.

The veteran skip from Chatham will lead right at home in the spiel where he will be among Western Canada curlers with whom he started serious play 29 years ago. Gilbert, who captured the Ontario title last week, leaving behind his curling in Ridgetown, Ont., but picked up the wayward style in Rosetown, Sask.

Backing up Gilbert will be Bill Fleming of Gilbert will be his 33-year-old vice-skip son, Gord, who has been curling with his father for 10 years. Second is Don Painter, 33, in his fifth year of curling, and lead man is John Denning, 37, in his fourth year of play.

Northern Ontario's representatives will be getting their first taste of liner competition in the finals. The foursome from the McIntyre Curling Club in Schumacher is skipped by J. D. (Jimmy) Switzland, 55, a member of the club since it was formed 26 years ago.

Vice-skip is E. G. (Mosse) Dick, 42-year-old president of the McIntyre Club, learned his curling in Saskatchewan before coming to Schumacher. Second Ken (Sparky) Vail, 37, is serving his first year with the quartet and is known for his accurate sweeping ability.

Lead on the rink is Schumacher - born Hugh Caverley, 35, who has been curling for about ten years.

A Mstan, Que., rink that has been a fixture before provincial Quebec City will carry the Quebec colors. It is the first time skip Rodrigue Dion's quartet has ever won the provincial crown.

Second on the rink is Roland Dion, 36, is vice-skip, while Charles Cote, 43, is second, and Dr. J. M. Pinza, is lead. No Cotes are not related. They have been together as a unit for 15 years and are drew - game stylists.

Although the event doesn't start until Monday, officials have a weekend of celebration slated.

A pipe band will lead them from the railway station to the hotel where a monster reception will be staged. Guests including Premier Kennedy of Ontario, Hon. Secretary Gibson, Health Minister Matley of Canada and Mayor Sam Lawrence of Hamilton will welcome them.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

If you are unable to sleep some night, have a bridge puzzler on hand to keep you company. Here is a favorite of Frank E. Perkins of the Boston Sunday Herald.

It seems that south was declarer at a small slam contract of six hearts. His own and dummy hands took the first seven tricks. The six remaining cards in each hand are shown here:

NORTH
♥ None
♦ A 3
♣ A 3 2
WEST	EAST
♥ A K 7	♥ Q
♦ 3	♦ A
♣ 9	♣ Q J 7 6 4
♦ K Q	♦ None

South is now in the lead and must take five of the last tricks. The question is what should he lead? In that spot, Alex, what future plays he must make to keep from losing no more than two?

Assume that opponents can see all the cards. Assume they will do every possible thing to take more than one trick. Let them play first against it and try over again as often as possible.

Oh, yes. There is a way to make sure of taking five of these six tricks. Despite anything the opponents do. Your problem is to decide what that makes it possible.

Even if you do not find it, the practice is good for you. This sharpens your ability to see how some tricks are won. So, don't peek at the answer until you are exhausted.

Here is the answer: Are you already looking at it? Why, but you cheater. Why not cut off the balance of this piece and hide it to avoid temptation. Go ahead. Hurry it for swifts.

South leads a spade and ruffs with dummy's last ace. A small dummy discourages a return to end with the south jack. A trump throws east into the lead with the four as dummy shuffs diamond 3.

East must now score back a diamond and west is squeezed. A west shift of a club gives dummy two club tricks. A west spade shuff gives south a spade and dummy the club ace.

Now that you peeked, I hope you are not puzzled.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 3 — (AP) — Everybody's talking about it, but George Murphy plans to do something about improving Hollywood's bad public relations.

The actor has recorded announcements for an air show which would present a favorable picture of the movie town. Sponsored by M.G.M., the program is intended for independent stations and eventually the networks.

"We'll tell the truth," Murphy assures. "There are bound to be some things in any business that aren't too good, but lying about them won't help any."

Young Veteran

Here's a film veteran who has started half his life in the movies and 23 years in show business. He's 24-year-old Donald O'Connor.

It's interesting to watch movie kids grow up. Some turn into over-age brats. But some, such as O'Connor and Shirley Temple, manage to come out of the ordeal as level-headed adults.

"I'm very grateful to the picture business for giving me a childhood," he said. "When the family was in vaudeville, we were touring all the time.

"The only thing I missed was going to a regular school. I went to one on the studio lot."

Donald is old enough on a movie childhood that he wants his daughter to have one, too. At 3½, she already is doing some faltering dance steps.

Ma quick got up from her grapefruit diet this morning to turn off the breakfist room radio, saying to pop, Really, William, I mean really, I never want to listen to another announcement of how another woman somewhere or other won a whole houseful of goodness knows what all. Believe me I've sent in my last postcard to my last radio contest, after what happened, she said.

Why, what happened for Pete's sake pop said, and ma said, Well, just for instance, imagine a woman being calmly notified that she won 5,000 yards of bob wire fencing.

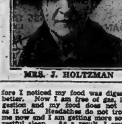
Who the dooce was told that? pop said, and ma said, I'll tell you later. And that was only one of the prizes that I like her so-called lucky lap. She was also told to expect 14 siamese cats with full instructions for feeding but no actual food.

Yee gods, pop said, and ma said, And wait till you hear prize number 3, a 24 foot telescope which naturally wouldn't fit into any room in any average house. It's always possible to knock a hole in the wall, I suppose, pop said, and ma said, I'm not in the end yet, by any means. There was also a gasolene tank with a capacity of 6,000 gallons. Or was it 8 thousand? she said.

I wonder, pop said, and ma

Gas, Indigestion, Sour Stomach—Tells of Relief

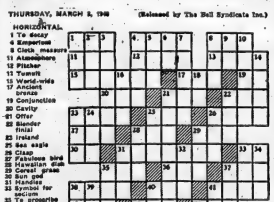
Got Grand Results by Taking Syntona Herbal Compound, Says This Woman. Also Free of Headache, Appetite is Improved, Sleep Better.



Sufferers of stomach disorders, sluggish kidneys and liver, constipation, nervousness and other symptoms of faulty elimination and poor assimilation of food can benefit by the experience of other local men and women and begin taking Syntona Herbal Compound. This medicine has helped thousands, and you, too, may know what it means to get relief from your suffering and to enjoy better health again.

Here, for example, is the recent experience of Mrs. J. Holtzman, 242 Prospect Street, South, Hamilton, Ontario, who said:

"I was suffering with gas, indigestion and sour stomach after my meals. Would get so constipated I had no appetite to enjoy my food. I also suffered terrible headaches and often couldn't get my proper sleep at night.



"I wasn't taking Syntona long before I noticed my food was digesting better. Now I am free of gas, indigestion and my food does not sour as it did. Headaches do not trouble me now and I am getting more sound, restful sleep. As a result, I awaken feeling refreshed and have far more energy.

SHANNONVILLE

Local Talent Presents Play

Ivanhoe—The presentation of the three-act comedy "Aunt Tillie Goes to Town" was given by local talent to a capacity audience in Ivanhoe Town Hall Friday evening, Feb. 25th. This hilarious play was sponsored by the Girls' Homemaker's Club and was under the direction of Mrs. Hugh MacMillan, assisted by Mrs. Charles Keeble. Proceeds amounted to $89.15.

Mr. G. A. Creaser, chairman for the evening's entertainment introduced the players.

This fast moving play is packed with laughs. There was never a dull moment and each player gave an effective portrayal of the character represented.

Entertainment between acts was as follows: Mrs. Milton Shaw, song; Piano duets were given by Mrs. Reg Haggerty and Bessie Fleming; A humorous skit given by George Wood and Earl McMaster, caused much laughter and loud applause.

This was the first presentation of the comedy and was a decided success. The players have several engagements in the next few weeks. These include an appearance at Carmel on March 11th.

Cast of characters:

Miss Wieland, who appears suddenly—Shirley Douglas.

Ronald Howland, who always has an explanation for everything—Jas. Donnan.

Luther Lennox, Ronald's wealthy employer—Harry Lovibond.

Charlie Coe Lung, a Chinese cook—Carl Hollins.

Mrs. Tillie Tucker, Mervin's aunt—Agnes McAvoy.

Dr. Hattie Bing, a chiropractor—Mrs. Jos. Kerby.

THOMASBURG

Thomasburg—The three act comedy "Cousin Jill From Junction Hill" presented by the young people of Foxboro and Carmel in the Oddfellow's Hall here on Wednesday evening drew a large crowd. The proceeds are to be devoted to the Thomasburg Sunday School treasury.

Mrs. George Priest, of Foxboro, directed the play, while Rev. Lloyd Shorten introduced the characters, and also led in a round of community singing between the second and third acts while between the first and second act two of the Foxboro young men gave a duet.

At the conclusion of the play the cast were entertained and served refreshments.

Mrs. Will Morton and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Coulter visited Miss Emma Porter in the Belleville Hospital on Sunday afternoon. Miss Porter is progressing quite satisfactory following an operation for a fractured hip.

Mr. Ross Robinson held a very successful auction sale of farm stock and implements at his home on Thursday. Mr. Robinson disposed of his farm some months ago to Mr. Russell Wood.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Doyle, of Belleville, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Willard McTaggart.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ray, Kenneth and Beverley, of Halfway, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Allan Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Clarke, accompanied by Miss Annie Henderson and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Clarke, attended the funeral of Mr. and Mrs. C. Clarke's brother-in-law, Mr. G. J. Jones, in Trenton last week.

Rev. and Mrs. W. Lougheed was a Sunday dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jeffrey.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Murphy were Saturday dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Elliott on the occasion of Mrs. Elliott's birthday. Many other friends wish her many more happy birthdays.

Birthday Club

The Ladies Birthday Club of Milltown held their regular weekly "get-together" at the home of Mrs. Wes. Stewart last Wednesday afternoon. Nine members were present.

Euchre was played during the afternoon. The prize winners were as follows, Travelling lone hand prize Mrs. Bill Houston; lucky chair prize, Mrs. Harry Bennett; lucky jello Mrs. Malcolm Little.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Stewart, bringing a very enjoyable afternoon to a close.

The next meeting is to be held next Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Bill Fitzgerald. Mrs. Earl Williams, of Belleville, will be hostess for that occasion.

Mrs. Stanley MacDonald was a recent guest of her sister, Mrs. Fred Carscallen, of Belleville.

Ladies Guild

The Ladies Guild of Holy Trinity Anglican Church held their regular meeting last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred Loula. The president Mrs. William Coles presided. Ten members were present and three new members joined the Guild membership at this meeting.

Quilting was engaged in during the afternoon. The quilts are to be sold when completed at a future date to augment the Guild funds. The Guild membership now has reached the large total of 42 members.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Fred Loula.

The next meeting will be held Thursday March 3rd, at the home of Mrs. Clarence Hill.

Local men returning home from work in the Trenton area on Thursday were quite surprised to see a large Lockheed plane partially across the ditch and the No. 2 Highway. They were informed the plane had landed in that particular spot, near the Trenton Air Station just a short time previous to their arrival. Traffic was delayed only a few minutes and was able to proceed around the plane.

Mr. Reynolds of Belleville, one of the local school teachers, was ill this past week. It is hoped that he has fully recovered in the meantime.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell McFarlane were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Clarke.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Kent and daughter Diane, of Toronto, were weekend guests of Mr. Kent's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kent.

Fourteen members of the Ladies Guild of Holy Trinity Anglican Church met at the home of Mrs. Fred Loula on Monday, when they completed the quilting on a very attractive quilt. Each member present brought a contribution of food and all enjoyed a pot luck dinner, beside a very profitable day's work.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Vivian, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Juby were visitors in Toronto, for several days this past week.

Birthday Honored

About fourteen friends and neighbors paid a surprise visit to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Coles, last Saturday evening on the occasion of Mrs. Cole's birthday. Euchre was played during the evening and refreshments were served. Mrs. Coles was the recipient of many lovely and useful gifts, with the best wishes for many more happy birthdays. It is pleasing to have Dr. McVickers in our midst again after his recent illness. By all reports he is kept busy with all the prevailing sickness.

Miss Mary Isabel Vivian of Albert College, Belleville spent the past weekend at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. R. Vivian.

Mrs. Robert Little has been in poor health this past week and confined to bed at the present time. Mrs. Kenneth Juby, her daughter has been taking care of her. It is hoped Mrs. Little will be out again soon.

Friends of Mrs. Albert MacDonald will be sorry to learn that she has had the misfortune of receiving a severe burn on her limbs this past week. Wishes for a speedy recovery from this painful injury are extended to her.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davolin and family of Stirling were Sunday guests of Mrs. Bertha Juby and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Juby.

Mrs. Curl is progressing nicely, but is still a patient in Belleville General Hospital. Mrs. Curl was threatened with pneumonia some two weeks ago and removed at that time to the hospital.

At the Sunday evening service in the Shannonville United Church, Rev. A. W. Lougheed, spoke on the last of a series of sermons based on the parables. His subject was "The Foolish Builders" and chose as his text Matthew, the seventh chapter. Next Sunday will be the first of a series of Lenten sermons, leading up to the Easter season.

United Church S.S. Ed.

The United Church Sunday School Board of Management held their monthly meeting on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wood. Eleven members were present at this meeting.

The minutes of the last meeting, which was the annual were read by the secretary, Mrs. Wm. Slavin and adopted as read. It was decided to hold future meetings the last of every month.

The Sunshine Girls Group reported a very fine project in view, in the purchase of a piano for the new Sunday School Hall. Nearly all the material for this hall has been ordered and a canvass for much needed funds for the construction will be held in the near future.

The number in the home department has increased necessitating the ordering of a larger quantity of supplies. Four dozen catechisms have been ordered for the Sunday School attendants.

It was decided to hold a teacher-training class in Shannonville United Church during the month of April. Mr. Charles Wood, Mr. William Slavin and Mr. Crispe, to act on a committee for arrangements.

A church membership class will be held beginning around the end of April.

Whisper In The Night

BY MARIE BLIZARD

Rosalie righted an overturned silver mug on the tray of the baby's high-chair without taking her eyes from the cook-book. "Two eggs for an angel cake!" she said. "Then we won't have angel cake."

The baby kicked a shoe off in protest and her sunsuit looked around at the rosy little face. "Why won't we?" she demanded.

"The more eggs cooks use the quicker our dairy makes money. Now, Miss Bates, if you'll keep this shoe on we'll show you how an angel cake is made. This may be the start of a whole series of angel cakes — or it may not be. Aunt Rosalie may be in distant parts tomorrow."

The younger Miss Bates gurgled sympathetically.

Rosalie broke the eggs into a yellow mixing bowl. Flour and sugar followed. And then the telephone rang in the hall.

"Hello, Rosalie, this is Lucy. Is your young man still visiting you?"

Rosalie's mouth made a tight little line. "No, he went on the noon train . . . and, Lucy, he's not my young man. He's . . . well, anyway, he's gone."

"Really? I thought I saw him at the auction this morning. I saw you, too, but I couldn't get to talk to you . . . Wasn't it a surprise?"

Rosalie said, "Wasn't what a surprise?"

"Judge Hanford bidding all that money! My goodness! Do you suppose he'd bid for an outsider? My husband doesn't think the judge would do anything like that."

"But what's he made such a mystery of it for? Everybody's talking about it. I was in Terry Keating's market and . . ."

Rosalie said evenly, "Did Terry have anything to say about it?"

"No. You know Terry. When he's got business on his mind, no one knows what it is. Did you know that Mr. Upham was going to finance him and take part interest if he got it?"

"No, I didn't. I suppose that was because of Marjorie." Rosalie wished she hadn't said that.

"Why because of Marjorie? Heavens, Rosalie, you don't think there's anything between them? Why everybody knows that Terry's never had any girl but you."

Rosalie said as evenly as she could, "Nonsense."

"And, besides, Marjorie's engaged to a doctor from Boston. He is in California and when they're married they're going to live in St. Louis."

Boston? California? St. Louis? "You don't say!" Happiness bubbled in Rosalie. "Lucy, I've got an angel cake in the making. I'll call you back. And don't worry about the dairy. I . . . I think it will be all right."

"Just wait until Lucy hears what happens next," she confided to her niece when she returned to the kitchen. Her stay there was not for long. Again the telephone summoned her.

This time it was the judge's voice. "I'm down at the printer's now. We can get the job done tonight, but are you sure you want to do it?"

"Very sure," she said.

"It beats me. As your legal adviser, I ought to tell you that."

Rosalie's voice cut in on him. "Judge, I know what I'm doing. I've not been getting any fun out of my money. I thought I could be a glamor girl. Now I'd like to prove that I'm a home girl—if I ever get another chance. You just do as you're told. If you get that print job done by seven o'clock, we can get everything in the mail tonight . . . Did you hire the boys to deliver the other ones?"

"Good! I'll be at the office tonight. And tomorrow—"

"Yes, Rosie."

"Tomorrow the minute you hear from . . . well, you know, you telephone me so I can get down to your office."

The angel cake — six eggs and all — was a flat sodden lump when Rosalie got back to it. She scraped it up and threw out the mess.

With tender arms she lifted her small sleeping niece to her shoulder and carried her into the bedroom. "When you say your prayers tonight," she whispered, her lips against the warm softness of the baby's neck, "you pray that your aunt Rosalie isn't making more a fool of herself than usual, because this could be a major error."

"Shhhh! The baby's going to sleep. How was the luncheon?"

"The usual thing, Rosalie. I was so sorry that I couldn't see Norman off with you. Is he coming again?"

"Never," Rosalie answered shortly. . .

"Oh, dear! There's something wrong, isn't there? You've been treating him so strangely since last night. As if you just couldn't be nice to him."

"I couldn't, Marion. But I thought I put on a pretty good show. All things considered."

"What things? Dear?"

"That he was an agent for the Central Dairies. And that he bid fifteen thousand for the place."

Marion sat down hard. "He did not! I mean he wasn't!"

"He was and he did."

"But did he get it?"

"He did not! Judge Hanford bought it for sixteen thousand dollars."

"Rosalie Bates, Judge Hanford hasn't got sixteen hundred, dollars."

"He bought it for . . . for some one else."

"He bought it for . . . I'll bet he bought it for some outside interest." I don't think he did," Rosalie said softly.

"What makes you think he did not?"

"A woman's instinct, Marion, a woman's instinct," Rosalie said softly.

"Well, maybe you're right. I hope so . . . It would be a good thing for Elmford if some enterprising person got that dairy going real good. You know I'm a modern-day in town since Mr. Kelsey died and it would mean work for more people and as Terry says, it could grow into a very important business . . . Well, I've got supper to think about."

Rosalie said, "I've got a few things to think about myself."

About seven she said she thought she'd take a stroll down to the village. "Don't wait up for me," she said. "I may stop in and see one of the girls."

But Rosalie did not stop in to see any of the girls. Rosalie was busy addressing envelopes.

"Any mail?" she inquired at breakfast the next morning, her voice full of studied casualness.

"Nothing that would interest you unless you want to buy the Kelsey dairy," Tom said.

"Why . . . what do you mean?"

He gave her a handbill which announced to her — and to all of Elmford — that the dairy was up for resale. It was not only up for resale, but it was "available to a local purchaser for a down payment of three thousand dollars."

"Imagine that!" Rosalie said and fled to her room to wait the ringing of the telephone bell.

When the summons came, Rosalie was dressed in her traveling tweeds, two empty suitcases by her door.

Fifteen minutes later, she was in the little office back of the judge's law chambers. Through the closed door, she could hear only two voices — Terry Keating's and the judge's. It seemed an eternity until she heard the judge say, "I you'd like to meet the former owner, you'll find her in my small office."

He closed the door back of him. "Did you do this deliberately, Rosalie? Did you know I could pay three thousand for it? Did you know it isn't worth ten thousand, the price you're getting?"

Rosalie nodded. Terry's face was so proud, so stern it hurt her. "It's said, "The judge said the former owner was willing to sell at a loss because she did not realize the proportions of the undertaking."

"That isn't quite right, Terry. The former owner only realized her own inability to handle it. But she wanted it handled right."

"That's what I'm trying to do, Terry. Please listen to me." Her voice was thick and a little frightened. "I . . . I love Elmford, Terry, and I don't want any one to come in here and take away what belongs to us. I want you to have it. It's a business arrangement. You can pay me back — when it pays you. I'm putting a kind of trust in you."

The lines of Terry's mouth softened. His eyes fell to her suitcases. "Are you going away again, Rosalie?" he asked softly.

Rosalie's heart gave a great leap into her throat. "I . . . don't know Terry. I thought perhaps I might go back to New York and find something to do. The judge has a new secretary and there isn't anything for me to do in Elmford. I don't find leisure easy or happy for me."

Terry's eyes leaped to hers, trying to read something there. "You said you . . . you didn't know whether you'd go or not? Don't, Rosalie."

Rosalie tucked her smile away into her heart. "Would there . . . would there be anything for me to do here?"

They moved, each a little toward the other. "Would there, Terry?" Rosalie's face turned up to his was like a little pansy face, he thought.

His hand reached out for hers and his arms went around her. Then it was his voice that was unsteady against the cloud of her hair. "If you want a job, the old one's open."

"Housekeeping!" she said.

"Housekeeping. You don't think I'd let such a bad business woman meddle in my business affairs?"

"Terry, darling, can' I have a part of every bit of your life for the rest of mine?"

That's what you think, my darling," but I know better. I'm an expert on romance. These were the things that Rosalie did not say to him. She spoke them only to her heart that had come home.

Communists Want Death Penalty For 4 Top Churchmen

Charge Accused Promoting Revolt Against Government

Sofia, March 4 — (AP) — The Communist prosecutor today demanded the death penalty for the top four of 15 Protestant churchmen who are charged with spying and treason against Bulgaria.

In a two-hour summation, Moscow-trained Dimiter Geshov accused the defendants not only of spying but trying to promote a revolt against Bulgaria's Communist-dominated government. He said the purpose was to have brought intervention by the United States and Britain.

The principal names of prominent Americans and Britons were mixed "in the spy network of evangelical leaders" as well as the names of various American church boards and the World Council of Churches.

The four for whom the prosecutor demanded the death penalty are the Vassil Georgiev Zlapkov, a Congregationalist; Yanko Nikolov Ivanov, a Methodist; Nikola Mihailov Vassilev, a Baptist; and Georgi Nikolov Cherneev of the Pentecost Church.

He asserted the real masters of the four were British and American "imperialists" and American church mission boards.

The prosecutor asserted all the defendants had made long public confessions in court and that these had been substantiated by the testimony offered by witnesses.

In denouncing the top four he said "with weeping and repenting they tried to clear their country."

This was a reference to the sobbing and hysterics of Zlapkov and Naumov when they recited their long public confessions.

Parents Receive Four Anonymous Telephone Calls

Toronto, March 4— (CP)—Four anonymous telephone calls Thursday added to the mystery of the disappearance of 15-year-old Elizabeth Walsh, missing from her home since she went to school Tuesday morning.

The girl's mother said Thursday night that she had received four telephone calls but that no one spoke when she answered. "I believe I heard the breathing of the other end of the line," she said. "I called to her to come home—that she'd be forgiven—but I got no answer."

The girl's father said the calls had been traced to a party line and police were investigating.

The search extended over a wide area as police checked with relatives in Midland, Lindsay and Oshawa. None was able to shed any light on the teen-ager's disappearance.

"We feel that if Mary left on her own accord it is we who are to blame," her father, Donald Walsh, said. "We must have failed her in some way and when she comes back we'll straighten things out."

Mrs. Walsh said a friend of the missing girl said Mary had often talked of "going north."

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, March 4 — (CP) — Synopsis: Cities and districts throughout Ontario and temperatures had risen to near thirty degrees this morning over most of the province. Light freezing drizzle is occurring in central sections. Afternoon temperatures were expected to reach forty in all regions except northern James Bay.

Very mild weather will continue over Southern Ontario on Saturday but colder air will push southward from Hudson Bay and reach Central Ontario by Saturday evening.

CCF AMENDMENT AGAINST GOVT. DEFEATED 51-36

Throne Speech Debate Took Three Weeks to Conclude

Toronto, March 4 — (CP)—The Ontario Legislature today will hear Provincial Treasurer Frost present his budget.

The almost three - weeks - long throne speech debate wound up Thursday night with a 51-36 vote in favor of the government. During the past week Progressive-Conservative whip William Murdoch (Essex South), Premier Leslie Frost and Mr. Frost presided House proceedings in an effort to clear decks for today's report.

The House sat until 11 p. m. last Tuesday and met Thursday at 2 p. m. — one hour earlier than usual. Shortly after 7 p. m. Thursday opposition members four-hour wind ended against the government.

Liberal and Labor Progressive amendments to the reply to the throne speech were each defeated by 56 to 36. C. E. Charlton (PC — Grenville Dundas), absent during the afternoon, returned to his seat in time to make the final vote 51-36 against the C. C. F. amendment.

Opposition leaders agreed vote on the motion of the reply to the speech from the throne be recorded as 51-36 in favor.

Only one member — Campbell Calder (Lib-London) — was not in his seat for any of the votes.

Speakers in the last day of the debate were: C. H. Millard (CCF-York West), Ross McFarlane (Lib-Wellington North), John Dowling (CCF - Hamilton East), George S. Gordon (Lib.-Brantford), William Temple (CCF-Toronto High Park)

MERCHANT MARINE DISCUSSED BY HOUSE MEMBERS

Govt. Has No Intention To Subsidize Fleet

Ottawa, March 4 (CP)— The future of Canada's merchant marine occupied the attention of the Commons Thursday afternoon.

It was first injected into the continuing Throne Speech debate by Transport Minister Chevrier as he outlined government policy on a Canadian flag fleet and turned aside suggestions that the Dominion consider subsidizing the fleet at this time.

The future size of the fleet, he told the Chamber, depends on the pattern of world trade and the prosperity of Canadian operators. But, for, the moment, none of Canada's 215 merchant ships is permanently laid up for lack of cargoes.

A Quebec member —Maurice Bourget (Lib.-Levis), whose riding includes a ship-building port — urged the administration to give immediate aid to ship construction industry as a means of warding off impending unemployment.

Angus Macinnis (CCF-Vancouver East) plumped for a "modest" government financed ship-building programme to provide fast modern vessels which could not be provided by private industry. At the same time, the debate swung to finance and a Progressive Conservative spokesman, Alan Cockeram (PC-York South), charged that exchange controls and "artificial" dollar parity had driven much needed foreign capital out of Canada.

Sanctity, Existence Of Christian Home Threatened by Divorce

Toronto, March 4 (CP)— Rev. F.W.G. Bradley of Toronto said today the British North America of the Christian home" is threatened by Canada's rising divorce rate.

More than 33,000 homes were broken up by divorces in the last seven years, he told the annual meeting of the Toronto Evangelism and social service of the United Church of Canada.

He estimated that outside of Quebec, there was one divorce for every 12 marriages.

The meeting asked for abolition of political retail liquor outlets to prevent drunken driving. A resolution said the cost of additional police and courts should be met by a special tax on breweries, wineries and distilleries.

Passengers and Crew Escape Ill Effects

Port Aux Basques, Nfld., March 4 —(CP) — The ferry Cabot Strait from North Sydney, N.S., reached here last night, four days behind schedule after being imprisoned in slog ice off the Cape Breton port.

MANAGER LURED TO BANK BY THUGS AT BROMPTONVILLE

Bandits Order Safe Opened and Scoop Up the Money

Brompton ville, Que., March 4— (CP) — Two thugs, one of them armed, robbed the Brompton ville branch of the Banque Canadienne Nationale of an undisclosed amount of money during the night, it was learned today.

One report was that the men made off with $11,000 but bank manager J. A. Ouellette declared, "The amount stolen was not nearly half of that."

Mr. Ouellette is mayor of this eastern townships municipality about eight miles north of Sherbrooke and he said he had been lured to the bank by a ruse and then held up soon after he arrived.

Mr. Ouellette said he received a telephone call from Sherbrooke yesterday from a man who spoke fluent French. The caller said he was a notary arranging a big deal which he would like to discuss with the bank manager.

They made an appointment for 8.30 o'clock Thursday night at the little bank building.

Soon after that hour, as Mr. Ouellette walked alone in his office, two men entered. Both wore masks. One was well dressed and spoke good French. He did most of the talking.

"The other man was dressed like a tramp," said the bank manager.

One of the two arrivals drew a gun while the other pulled down the bank's window shades. Then they forced the manager to open the bank safe and scooped up what money was available.

"They told me to wait in the bank and then they vanished," said Mr. Ouellette. "I left all the blinds drawn f could not see if they made their getaway in a car but I guess they did."

NORWAY DEFENCES LINKED TO WEST DEMOCRACIES

Tight Defence Alliance Against Red Expansion

By JOHN SCALI

Washington, March 4 (AP)— Strategic Norway has officially linked its defences with the North Atlantic democracies by over Russia's vehement objections.

Norwegian Ambassador Wilhelm Morgenstierne and Secretary Marshall was due at the State Department this morning to add his country for the first time to those drawing up a tight defence alliance against Communist aggression.

The Norwegian government's formal acceptance of an invitation to join the final stages of the negotiations came Thursday. Simultaneously Norway was reported to have turned down a non-aggression pact which would have tied its future to Russia.

The countries already at work on the North Atlantic treaty are the United States Canada, Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

The United States officials welcomed Norway's decision to join up as a significant cold-war victory over Russia. They said it would help increase the effectiveness of the North Atlantic treaty.

Denmark, following Norway's lead, said Thursday night that she, too, would like to join in treaty talk. That leaves Sweden the only Scandinavian country among the nations which control the approaches to the Baltic Sea.

It announced its neutrality country's move, Morgenstierne told reporters Norway would have a "free observation" of her own in make about the treaty's terms.

The Norwegian parliament overwhelmingly approved Norway's decision to accept membership. Morgenstierne said the only opposition came from the 11 Communist members.

United States officials cautioned that Russia now might try some new pressure against Norway — or against Sweden, which likely has notified the Soviets of the Scandinavian countries.

Russia's Finnish troop concentrations along the Norwegian-Russian border have been reported in dispatches from Helsinki. Officials here say they had nothing to confirm the reports.

Ejected by Police

Port Credit, March 4 (CP)— Frank Kelm, news editor of the weekly newspaper in this Toronto suburban town, was ejected by police from the council chamber Wednesday night after refusing to leave at council's request. Discussing a report by Kelm on a meeting with the recreation committee, council refused the editor's request that he be allowed to state his case.

Highlights of Budget

Toronto, March 4 (CP)—Highlights of Provincial Treasurer Frost's budget address today in Ontario Legislature:

Sixth consecutive budget surplus—$1,132,000 for the fiscal year ending March 31. Aggregate six-year surplus $42,500,000.

One-mill subsidy to municipalities cancelled; replaced by plan of assistance including guarantee that it will not fall below one mill of taxation.

Revenues up some $28,000,000 over estimates. Biggest increase: Liquor, up $9,000,000; corporation tax, up $6,500,000; gasoline tax and auto licences, $6,350,000; race track taxes, $1,124,000.

Two-per-cent tax on professional sport, other than boxing and wrestling, eliminated.

New corporations establishing in Ontario permitted to deduct early losses in computing taxes; broader corporation tax deductions for money spent on mining development.

Estimate that Ontario lost $118,190,000 by entering wartime tax agreements with Dominion; Dominion's post-war tax offer $17,468,000 under value of fields this year.

High income expected to continue with $56,500,000 expected from corporation tax, $52,500,000 from gasoline tax and $32,000,000 from liquor sales.

Highway construction and maintenance to cost $43,000,000 in coming fiscal year. Education to cost $40,784,800 including $37,-000,000 in grants to municipalities.

Capital grants of $250,000 and maintenance grant of $100,000 to McMaster University at Hamilton, first to be made to that school. Grant made possible through establishment of Hamilton College. Other universities get grants.

Provincial debt service charges form less than nine per cent of budget expenditures compared to 25 per cent 15 years ago. Per capita debt down to $111 from $136.

Net debt increases $26,000,830 and contingent liabilities up $77,-999,720. Further increase in liabilities to come from continued expansion projects of Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

Spending And Income Far Outran Estimates Because Of Pressure of Inflation

91-Year-Old Man Carried From Burning Building

Thessalon, Ont., March 4 (CP) —Fire of unknown origin started in an office and apartment building in this algoma district town early today, causing damage estimated unofficially from $25,000 to $30,000. It was partially insured.

One man, 91-year-old John Kennedy, was carried from the burning structure after being overcome by smoke. He quickly recovered.

Said to have started about 3 a.m. the blaze was still smouldering six hours later. A volunteer fire brigade of 15 men fought the flames through the night and was able to contain the damage within the building itself. Guests of the Sinton Hotel which adjoins the burned block had to be moved out although the hotel was not damaged except by smoke infiltration.

Cardinal, Priests Continue Task Digging Graves

New York, March 4 (AP)— Francis Cardinal Spellman and his band of priests and seminarians returned to their grave digging tasks today as a leader of striking workers at Calvary cemetery said that communism was an issue in their dispute which started seven weeks ago.

The cardinal and some 100 Roman Catholic priests and students reached the strike-bound cemetery about 10 a.m. and set to work digging graves and preparing graves for the bodies of the 700 dead who would have accumulated since the work stoppage began. They dug 50 graves and 45 graves Thursday, the first day of their volunteer operation.

The cardinal has charged that the striking unions are communist-dominated. The union seeks a five-day week for all except heavy, dirty work. Damage was reported caused by vandals to the chemicals and to the building.

There was no immediate announcement from the company.

No New Taxes Announced; Municipalities to Benefit

Toronto, March 4 (CP)—Provincial Treasurer Frost today announced his sixth consecutive surplus in Ontario government accounts—a margin of $1,132,000 in revenue over expenditure for the fiscal year ending March 31.

In his budget address to the Ontario Legislature, the tall, greying treasurer reported that government spending and income far outran his estimates of a year ago because of the pressure of inflation.

Costs mounted to $212,708,000 compared with an estimated $196,-948,000, including an additional $10,000,000 paid into sinking funds for capital expenditures. Gross current revenue, estimated at $188,-298,700, amounted to $213,840,000 largely due to increases of $9,000,000 from liquor sales, $6,500,000 from corporation taxes, $6,350,000 from gasoline taxes and auto licences and $1,124,000 from taxes on race tracks.

In announced a complete revision of the basis of provincial assistance to local municipal governments. A one-mill subsidy on municipal assessment which cost $3,325,000 last year is replaced by varied forms of assistance which involves estimated payments of $5,300,000.

The budget announced no new taxes. It eliminated a two-per-cent tax on professional sport other than wrestling and boxing. It forecast revisions to bring corporation tax laws into conformity with those of the Dominion and other Provinces and broadening of the deductions allowed mining companies for cost of developing new properties. The succession duty act is to be amended to exempt preferred beneficiaries from death duties on estates worth less than $50,000, instead of the present $25,000.

In a reference to Dominion-Provincial relations, Mr. Frost said that Ontario lost $119,100,-000 in revenue under the wartime tax agreements now in force. He added that the Dominion's post-war tax agreement offer to Ontario amounted to $17,468,000 less than the present value of the tax fields it sought.

One Person Killed In Explosion In Montreal

Montreal, March 4 (CP)— One person was killed and three injured in an explosion at the Pharmacy Manufacturing Plant of Charles E. Frosst Company.

The explosion is said to have occurred on the fourth floor in a chemical laboratory.

The plant is located on St. Antoine Street in adjoining Westmount.

Westmount firemen reported the death and injuries but lacked other details immediately.

Actual fire damage was not believed heavy, although smoke damage was reported caused by water, soaked the chemicals and to the building.

There was no immediate announcement from the company.

MUNICIPALITIES WILL NOT LOSE BY NEW METHOD

One-Mill Subsidy Will be Discontinued States Provincial Treasurer

Toronto, March 4 (CP)— The Ontario government will discontinue the one-mill subsidy paid to municipalities since 1937, and substitute other payments that will cost the government almost $5,000,000 more, provincial treasurer Frost said today.

No municipality will receive less than the equivalent of the one-mill grant based on 1948 assessments, Mr. Frost said in his budget address to the legislature. If their new grants fall about the government will pay the difference.

Municipalities had objected to the one-mill subsidy which for the present fiscal year will total $3,325,000. The new plan will cost the province, totalling $5,300,000.

Refundable' Cheques Being Mailed In This District for About $2,500,000

Residents of Belleville district will greet the postman with open hands this month when he delivers to them their share of the refundable portion of the 1943 and 1944 Income Tax which are being mailed by the Federal Government.

There is no danger of the letters getting lost as they are all registered and the cheques are signed for by the recipient. They are being sent in alphabetical order and the Post Office said today that they have come to the end of the C's.

There is approximately $2,500,-000 to be sent out to the residents of this district, and it is being sent at the rate of about 1,500 cheques per day.

Income Tax officials estimate that the average refund will be about $76 but there are some people who will get more than $1,000.

A lot of people had forgotten about the deductions from their pay back in the war years. These were known as compulsory savings. There were two purposes to these savings: to take some if the ready money out of circulation, at a time when good were scarce, thereby preventing inflation, and also to provide additional revenue for the government.

The money will be a great help to the people who are finding it hard to stretch their budgets, and the retail trade should find the extra cash a shot in the arm.

It is the largest refund in Canadian history and officials claim that it will be made in the shortest time on record. Refundable income cheques are being mailed out from district offices all over the country. Both Toronto and Montreal will receive more than 600,000 and more than 540,000,000 will be paid out in each of these two centres.

For those who may be dissatisfied with the refunds, or wish to make enquiries on the subject the department has this to say:

"Once the distribution of cheques has commenced, it will be impossible for the department's division to deal with individual enquiries until after March 31 when the distribution of cheques will have been completed.

One of the greatest difficulties faced by the Revenue Department was in finding the correct address of the 2,250,000 recipients. Many people have moved since 1944 and a large number of women have married and thus changed their names.

Want a Few Thousand? Join Pyramid Club and Have Fun

New York, March 4 (CP)— If you have a burning desire for a few thousand dollars, coupled with a long line of patience and a willingness to submit to the laws of mathematics — join a Pyramid Club.

Pyramid Clubs are the latest to take the United States by storm. They are illegal in Canada, but have penetrated to Canada.

Pyramid Clubs, of course, are just the same as the chain letters of the past. The only difference is that they do not use the mails. The United States government in 1935 decided that chain letters came under the statute of using the mails to defraud.

In Pyramid Club, you save at least the cost of a chain-letter stamp.

Basically, the idea is this: The Pyramid Club has a list of five signs with a bevy of 10 persons. These 10 form a sort of Jacob's ladder, with the 10th person designated to start the pyramid.

The figures vary, but assume that the designated pyramid number is six. That is, the 10th person on the ladder has to lure six friends into what might be called the pyramid's shoulder.

Assuming the 10th person has six friends, the thing then begins to burgeon out in arithmetical progression. Each of the six friends has to find six more, and each of the six more...you get the idea.

Each person joining pays one dollar to the person immediately ahead on the list. This money flows up the chain of command until the top-rung holder has collected the first day's take.

The next day the person on the second rung moves up and collects. And on the bottom, each of the last-level members are supposed to find six more friends. And up flow the dollars again.

So day by day the person at the top of the list changes and — theoretically — collects an amount generally advertised by the scheme's proponents at $2,080.

Mathematicians say it would take the 10th person approximately 1,111 United States to keep one game going after 30 days. About a day after that the hordes of Asia would have to be brought in.

Professional promoters obviously have already sipped off the cream. A few private individuals have struggled to the top of the list and garnered varying sums — but no one yet seems to have received the $2,080.

Human frailty enters the picture as the dollars pass up towards the apex.

POLICE TAKE MAN TO PEMBROKE

Chief of Police Carnegie, of Pembroke with a member of the police department of that town were in the city today. They stopped at the police station here where they deposited a man they were returning to Pembroke, who had been apprehended in Picton.

SEEK INFORMATION ABOUT DISTRICT

Twelve hundred vacation-minded tourists from Canada and the United States stopped at the Chamber of Commerce here last summer seeking holiday-spots information. Over, 6,000 publicity pamphlets advertising the vacation features of the city and Hastings County were sent through mails to faraway and nearby places.

JEWISH WOMEN TO HOLD RUMMAGE SALE AT ARMOURIES

The Jewish Women's Auxiliary of the Sons of Jacob Synagogue are holding a rummage sale in the armouries tomorrow. All proceeds are devoted to further their local welfare work. There are several fine articles of men's, women's and children's clothing in this sale, having been donated by several local merchants. Public would be well-advised to come early and take advantage of things selection and at the same time aid this splendid cause.

SKI ENTHUSIASTS NONE TOO HAPPY

With hockey fans enjoying the playoff cream of their favorite sport at this time of the year, ski enthusiasts are none too happy. The new Hastings County Ski Club trails near Stirling are almost barren of snow due to the recent mild weather and rains, and unless there is sharp change in weather conditions with a snowfall the ski devotees may have to hang up their paraphernalia for the season.

CITY RESIDENT FINED FOR ASSAULT

A city resident was fined $5 and $10 costs on charges of minor assault in magistrate's court this morning by Magistrate T. Y. Bailey.

A number of those gentlemen who insist on breaking the Liquor Control Act by "having" or imbibing too wisely paid the usual fines and costs while a large number of violators of the Highway Traffic Act were shown the error of their ways.

CLARENCE C. CLAPP HAD NO INTENTION OF BEING CANDIDATE

Clarence C. Clapp, whose name was mentioned in connection with the Liberal Convention held at the Kiwanis Centre on Monday last, wishes it to be understood that he had no intention of allowing his name to go before the convention as a candidate. He stated today that if he had intended to stand he would have had his own nomination and seconder, which is the proper procedure at a convention. It was stated in the report of the convention that Clapp's name was nominated but had no seconder.

TWO SONGS SUNG AT CONCERT

Two songs at the Y's Men's Concert were reported as sung by Miss Barbara Dimepl, but should have been rendered as Miss Barbara Joan Houston. The numbers were "Will You Remember Me" and "Coming Home".

Police Blotter

City police are keeping watchful eyes on drivers who disregard traffic light signals. Two motorists who ignored the red light yesterday will appear to answer charges of breaches of the Highway Traffic Act.

While William Graham, 40 Charlotte Street, was watching the Belleville-Peterborough hockey game last night a thief stealthily removed the battery from his truck parked on the lot at the rear of the city weigh scales.

Boys' Athletic Society Of B.C.I. Presents Splendid Gymnastic, Musical Program

For a third successive year the Boys' Athletic Society of the Belleville, Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, were again proud to present to the public of B.C.I. last night.

It was a first class show and it showed what the spirit of enthusiasm and co-operation of the boys can achieve.

The highlight of the program was the display of gymnastics that the boys presented on the high bars, parallel bars, pommelled horse and on the mat. These were performed by Jim Mackay, George Locke, Bob Wesley, Ken Trumpour, John Maxwell, Fred Wallis, Stan. Seeger, Joel Masar, Bill Coughlin and Don Killbank. There was also a demonstration of human pyramid building by the entire cast. Along with these there were two very enterprising young clowns, who seemed to be able to do everything but stand on their own feet, but, aside from the clowning, they displayed some very fine athletic art.

Musical Program

Art Duby, star of Club Commodore, gave a fine vocal solo as did another, Jim MacKay, Clarinet, piano and cornet solos were given by Jim Dowsett, Milan Gramaglia, Bill Kravache and Donald Charlton respectively.

Three Sharps and a Flat composed of Pat Shields, Ron Elmy, Brock Stackhouse and Jim Hawley, and also the Harmony Boys gave out with some fine old echoes of music in hard-practised harmony.

On the lighter side of the program the members of the cast gave a comedy version of "The Shooting of Dan McGrew". It was narrated by Cliff Summers. Band Program

The boys of the B.C.I. band, under the direction of Mr. A. Cooper, presented some nice musical selections including, 50 Years of Song, the Washington Post and Thunderer.

This year's primary purpose of "Boys' Night" is the same as in previous years, namely, to raise funds to help finance the activities of the Boys' Athletic Society throughout the coming year. At the Athletic Society manages all phases of boys' sports throughout B.C.I. it requires a great deal of money for its work. The show is being presented again tonight at 8.15 and by your presence there you will have helped to make possible the continuance and expansion of the boys' sports program.

OBITUARY

LEIGHTON A. HALL (Formerly of Belleville)

The following obituary of Leighton A. Hall, who was born in this city; will be of interest to old friends here and in the district. Mrs. Mary Hall, R.N., of Belleville is an aunt of the late Mr. Hall:

After an illness which had invalided him for nearly five years, Leighton A. Hall, 56, former president and general manager of the Coal Company of Fulton, Grimes and Mason and civic leader, died recently. Death occurred at the Central Nursing Home in Bleecker street, where he had been a patient for two years. His home was at 29 Dutch boulevard, Fulton N.Y.

Mr. Hall was an invalid four years and five months ago and for many months was a patient at Lifeline Hospital. He was later removed to the nursing home where, despite the fact he was confined to bed, he took active interest in and relatives until the passing. He was over a period of many years one of Gloversville's leading business men and citizens and enjoyed a wide friendship not only in his home city but in railroad, masonic circles and business throughout the state.

Native of Canada

The deceased was born in Belleville, Ontario, Canada, and lived there as a young man. He attended the public schools there and was graduated from the Belleville Business School, after which he was employed with the Toronto Seed Company as a telegraph operator. There he became telegraph and ticket agent at Rutland, N.Y. for the Rutland Railroad Company, holding the position until May 15, 1905, when he left that position as ticket agent and telegraph operator for the F. J. & G. Railroad Company.

Mr. Hall was a keen sportsman and thorough railroader, and for a time was purchasing agent for the F. J. & G. Company and private secretary to W. H. Collins, who was general manager. He held this post until January 15, 1918, when the Coal Company of Fulton County was organized and he was elected president and general manager, succeeding the late Howard Devore. He held this post until 1942, when he was taken ill and retired from service.

High in Masonry

Outside of business Mr. Hall was best known as a member of the Masonic fraternity. He was a member of Gloversville Lodge No. 429, F. & A.M. and served as master of the lodge in 1910 and 1920 at the time the present lodge room on North Main street was dedicated in February, 1919. He was also a member of Holy Cross Commandery, St. John's Knights Templar, Johnstown Chapter 78, R.A.M. and Johnstown Council, 72, R. & S.M. One of the high spots of his long Masonic career was that he held the offices in all four of the Masonic bodies at the same time. He was also a member of Cyprus Temple of the Shrine at Albany and the Adirondack Shrine club.

Besides his Masonic affiliations, he was a member of the Kenwood club, Gloversville Lodge of Elks and the Chamber of Commerce.

Survived by Three

The survivors are his wife, Mrs. Kathryn Hall; one son, William A. Hall; one brother, Lawrence Hall of Lancaster, Ontario; one sister, Mrs. F. L. Hicks of Toronto, Canada, and several nieces and nephews.

MRS. MINNIE ELLIS (Marmora District)

Marmora, March 4 (Special) — After an illness of three weeks, there passed away on February 25th., Mrs. Minnie Ellis, age 79 years, widow of the late Martin Ellis of Belmont township, a lifelong resident of the district. The deceased came here at 12 years of age with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. John Colby, from Murray Township.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Wallace Kelah of Oshawa, and three sons Donald of Buffalo, N.Y.; Clinton of Port Huron Mich; and Percy of Oshawa, a sister Mrs. George Gowdwin of Port Huron, Mich.; three brothers, William Colby of Marmora, N.Y.; Ben Cole of Trenton, and Fred Cole of Marmora.

The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon from the Currie Funeral Home, Stirwaick, to the United Church at Cordova Mines where service was conducted by Rev. C. A. Young, pastor.

Interment took place at Rockdale Cemetery.

FINN MELVARE (Fergus-Delore)

Word was received by Marmora friends on Thursday morning of the sudden death at Fergus at a former highly respected resident of Deloro in the person of Finn Melvare. His death occurred while he was at breakfast.

He was a native of Norway but had resided in Canada for several years during part of which time he was employed as lineman by the Deloro Scealting and Refining Company Limite'. Later he took a similar appointment in Chile. He had recently been living a retired life owing to poor health. He was popular in the Marmora district residing here and in recent years acquired a cottage at Crows Lake where with his wife and family he spent summer vacations. He was a member of the United Church and also a member of Marmora A.F. & A.M. 522.

Will Conduct Survey

F. J. MacArthur was authorized to conduct a survey to see how many persons in Picton desired hospital, with a view to having a housing plan inaugurated here.

The pro and con of hoop net fishing was discussed with no action being taken.

Winners Heard

Winners in oratorical contest held in the different grades at Prince Edward Public School were announced at the Home and School Association, Wednesday evening when the cup was presented with a book. Winners were Herman Andre, Grade 5, Patricia Calnan, Grade 6, Lorraine Armstrong, Grade 7, Edyth Hood, Grade 8. Each spoke on a different nation.

Mrs. Colin Carter presided. Piano solos were given by Miss Lorraine Barker and Miss Evelyn Boyd. A musical evening at the Collegiate on March 30 was announced.

Arrest 'Victim' And Two Alleged Accomplices

Toronto, March 4 (CP)— A "victim" in an assault and robbery court case and two alleged accomplices were arrested today on charges of attempted extortions. Police officers, who set a "trap" for the men, said the arrests followed an offer to "cook up evidence in the case for a $100 bribe.

Charged were George Oswald, 31, Clarence Bescock, 36, and William Hamilton, 23, all of Toronto.

Oswald was scheduled to appear in court today to testify against Robert McConnell and Arthur Castle who allegedly assaulted him Feb. 17 and robbed him of his wallet.

Police said Russell Castle, brother of Arthur, received a telephone call Thursday night from a man who offered to change his evidence in court and exonerate Arthur.

Russell, taking an envelope filled with newspaper clippings, and two policemen went to the street corner designated by the mysterious caller. When the three allegedly extortionists reached the officers "put on a drunk act" and overheard the conversation.

City and County To Have Booth At Toronto Show

The City of Belleville and the County of Hastings will be represented at the second annual Sportsmen Show being held in the Toronto Coliseum from March 18th to the 26th inclusive.

Through the media of the Publicity Departments of the city and county and the Chamber of Commerce here, a booth will be located at the show which will advertise the outstanding features of this district from a holiday standpoint.

The new publicity pamphlets will be distributed from this booth during the entire period of the show.

Secretary Manager Freeman Burrows of the Chamber of Commerce and Alderman Claude D. Tice of the city tourist and publicity committee will be in charge of the booth.

Knife Blade Embedded In Shoulder Bone

Knoxville, Tenn., March 4 — (AP) — Police Chief Joe Kinsey Thursday found out what had caused a pain in his shoulder for 30 years. An X-ray showed a knife blade embedded in the bone. The chief recalled being stabbed in the shoulder many years ago.

RURAL RELATIONS!

Your local Chamber of Commerce has set up, under the chairmanship of W. C. Miller, an Agricultural Committee, whose duty it is to foster a better relationship between the city dweller and his country cousin. Your Chamber of Commerce sees the important part played in the daily life of your city by the men who farm the country around us. Sixty-five district farmers recently benefited by a Chamber-sponsored meeting to discuss the control of animal diseases. Further monthly meetings are planned, so that we may assist in whatever way we can those farmers who support you and your business to such a great extent. You, too, can help by joining your local Chamber of Commerce now.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, March 4 (CP)—Trading slowed to a crawl as prices moved narrowly on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Industrial showed a slightly firmer tone for the fifth successive day while base metals were weakened. Western oils dropped the most ate gains chalked up late in Thursday's session.

Volume for the first three hours was 296,000 shares, about 132,000 shares less than yesterday's comparable period.

A handful of industrial issues edged ahead fractions in early action. Massey-Harris continued to attract demand following the annual report that showed record sales and earnings. Imperial Oil, Canadian Breweries, Brazilian Traction and B.A. Oil were also small gainers. Canadian Vickers backed down all of a point.

Anglo-Canadian lost 30 cents at $4.30 in western oils.

Base metals slipped steadily. Consolidated Smelters dipped $1 at $102 and Noranda was down 3-8 at 54 1-3. Gold moved quietly with a few junior producers showing losses up to seven cents.

Canadian Planes May be Used

By H. L. JONES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, March 4 (CP)—Canadian-built Canadair planes may be used to replace grounded Tudor IV aircraft of British South American Airways, a B.S.A.A. official said today.

Such a contract with B.S.A.A. would call for 19 planes from Canadair, which already has a contract to supply 22 to British Overseas Airways.

The official said that although no decision yet has been made on replacement of the Tudors the "authorities here can see no other aircraft but Canadairs to replace them, the general assumption is that Canadairs will be called for."

The official decision may be given in the House of Commons shortly by a spokesman for the Air Ministry.

The B.S.A.A. official said he understood Canadian authorities already had indicated willingness to "lend assistance" in meeting the dollar problems raised by further purchases of Canadairs from the Dominion.

Abandonment of the Tudor IVs as passenger aircraft was announced in the Commons March 2 by G. S. Lindgren, parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of Civil Aviation. Lindgren said that after modification the Tudors would be employed in the Berlin air lift.

The decision was taken after the unexplained disappearance of two passenger-carrying Tudors of the B.S.A.A.—the Star Tiger and Star Ariel.

Weekly Livestock Review

Toronto, March 4 (CP)—Active trading and a light run of cattle helped clean up receipts on the Toronto livestock market this week, the Dominion marketing service said today.

Cattle prices were generally 50 cents higher on all grades except bulls which lost as much as $1. Calves, sheep and lambs were steady. Hogs gained 50 cents.

The cattle run was a moderate 5,164 head.

Choice weighty steers were $20-$20.50 and good light steers sold at $19-$20. Good heifers were $18-$19.50 and plain steers and heifers sold downward to $17. Good cows were $16-$16.50 with a few at $17. Canners and cutters brought $8-$12. Bulls opened soft stronger on export demand but sheep sold at $10-$12.

	Cattle	Calves	Hogs	Lambs
This week	5,164	1,064	2,038	1,319
Last week	6,081	1,170	2,039	1,315

This week 1948	4,807	1,064	1,995	179

closed weaker. Plain to medium light bulls were $16-$18 and logs closed around $19. Fed yearlings were from $18.50-$20 for medium and up to $23.50 for choice. A few plain quality stockers sold at $14.75-$18.50.

A small calf run of 1,064 head sold steady at $25-$26 for choice with plain to medium vealers at $16.50-$22.

Hogs totalled only 2,038 head. Grade A advanced to $31 and grade B to $30.50. Sows were up at $23 dressed.

Sheep and lambs were 1,319 head with cars of western lambs included. Good westerns were $25-$25.25 with good locals mostly $23. Plain to medium lambs sold at $15-$23. A few good light sheep sold at $10-$12.

Greater Encouragement for Gold, Uranium Mining Urged by Readers

Timmins, Ont., March 3—That gold is undervalued in Canada at the present time and that the search for uranium deposits should be encouraged by awarding honorariums to prospectors making discoveries of this mineral were opinions expressed Wednesday night by Kelso Roberts, K.C., a candidate for the Timmins riding in the Ontario Conservative party, in an address to the Timmins Progressive Conservative Association.

"Canada is rapidly approaching the position of being the second largest gold producing country in the world, if that point has not already been reached," Mr. Roberts stated. "Steps have been now being producing something in excess of three million ounces annually. We should study the ways to step that production up to five million ounces, anything like favorable conditions."

Could be Bankers

"I don't think I am exaggerating when I say that we, in Canada, are asleep using gold effectively. We could, perhaps, even be the bankers for a large part of the world by the proper use of this basis for currency and international exchange," he continued. "It is about time we had some definite, clear-cut policy enunciated since with the subject and with some weight and influence in public affairs, saying something about it. I want to be numbered in the Gold Bloc, in favor of Canada when it comes to questioning the Bloc."

The former member of St. Patrick's riding in the Provincial Legislature then predicted that if certain unfavorable conditions were removed, Canada would be in the threshold of great mineral development.

"Given a free Canadian dollar," he pointed out, "which would probably sell at a reasonable rate of discount in respect to the American dollar, there would be a flow of American capital to Canada for investment in mining projects."

He referred, at some length, to relations. "It chosen leader of the Progressive Conservative party in Ontario, I am going to ask the Provincial Government to set up a joint committee to deal with labor problems," he said. "I would refer the present act to this committee for study." He informed his audience that he would ask for all possible help from the labor relations board, labor organizations, management and the public at large.

Lashes Communists

He lashed out at communists in Canada, who accepted from various authorities on the origin and activities of communism to show that this movement is basically revolutionary. Mr. Roberts then stressed the fact that in the past Ontario election the provincial wing of the communist party, namely the Labor Progressive party, put only two candidates in the field, and that they managed to support the C.C.F. candidates in other ridings. The group concerning but a handful in number is entitled to any recognition as a party, so that it is "pro-Russian elsewhere," he declared emphatically.

Continuing, he voiced the opinion that immigration, on a sound basis from the British Isles and if certain unfavorable conditions in France, is highly desirable.

Norway's Arctic Folk Reported Scared Stiff of Russ 'Neighbor'

By DANIEL DE LUCE

Fear of what they call "our great neighbor" grips 30,000 Norwegians scattered over 10,000 square miles of the far north.

The four quick land strikes Finland, Finnish Finmark and Province —is defended by a few Norwegian army ski-patrols. No-one lives there.

Kirkenes, the chief industrial community on Norway's Arctic coast is four quick land miles from Russia. But it is 1,100 stormy air miles from Oslo. It is seven farther by sea.

Unmolested by police, the Norwegian Communist party is feverishly active in all villages along the Arctic Ocean.

A Communist campaign is under way, warning that Norway by seeking an Atlantic military alliance is risking the fate of Finland in 1939.

Red agitators are touring fishing settlements, lumber camps and mining centers. They urge workers to join the Communist party "before it is too late."

They hint that only communists will be spared rough treatment if the Red army, feared by everyone, moves into Norway this year.

Less than one-fifth of the population has voted the Communist ticket since the war. An even smaller percentage wears the Communist party button — usually hidden on the underside of coat lapels.

As a competing party in Norway's free elections, the Communists are insignificant. As a fifth column demoralizing people's spirit, they are a handy tool for Moscow.

Firemen Help Woman, Child Escape Blaze

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., March 4 (CP) — Firemen helped a woman and her three-year-old son escape down ladders today as fire of undetermined origin swept through the second floor of a downtown business block. Damage was estimated at first at $5,000, covered by insurance.

Mrs. George Culvenhil and her two children were rescued by firemen, who answered an alarm at about 8:20 a.m.

The only stairway leading to the street exit blocked by flames, at least three others had to clear her down the firemen's ladders and a second-storey window.

Allan and Dorothy Walls and Mrs. Don Shields, occupants of the lower apartments on the second floor of the building, fled to the first floor roof at the rear of the building and reached safely by climbing down the ladders.

The upper portion of the building was severely damaged. One fireman suffered minor injuries.

Two Albanian Parliamentarians Reported Arrested

London, March 4 (AP) — The Albanian radio today said two members of the Albanian parliament face prosecution for "anti-Marxism and anti-Soviet activity."

Facing trial are Koichi Dzodze and Pandi Kristo. The Albanian radio asserted they "co-operated with Yugoslav Trotskyites to deprive Albania of her independence and reduce her to a Yugoslav colony."

Claim All Not Well in Valley Hockey League

By G. L.

Frankford — Frankford - Batawa Combines dropped a close one in the first game of the "B" series of the Trent Valley Hockey League playoffs Tuesday night in Norwood, as the second place Norwood club edged them 5-4, before a sell-out crowd. The game was fast, although a bit on the rough side at times. Ross Mason, Moffitt, Desjardins and Cooks were the marksmen for the Combines. Jerry Forester played a great game on defence, almost the entire sixty minutes. The Combines were without the services of their star defenceman, Schmidt, following a meeting held last night by the league executive, which ruled that Schmidt was ineligible for the team.

The Trent Valley Hockey League is in a state of chaos, following a series of disputes, charges and counter - charges, which threaten to break up the League by next week. A meeting held this week by league managers and executive, Lakefield was ordered to forfeit a game for having won the semi-finals from Norwood-Bata by default, when their field was using an illegal goaltender. The same goal tender was used in the game, but on previous meeting, and why he was allowed to play then, instead of waiting until the playoffs is a mystery, and a very poor example of league leadership.

At the same meeting, Frankford-Batawa protested that Jack Schmidt, was ruled out of the league on vote by team managers. Schmidt has been passed on two previous occasions, when his eligibility came under question. Why one team should be ruled out of the league for using an ineligible player, and other teams supposed to be guilty of the same offence, allowed to remain, without the slightest penalty, is another one for the league executive to explain. According to league regulations, Schmidt is one hundred per cent eligible to play for any team. Schmidt has in all ways been a clean player in every way, and it was a decision of very, very poor sportsmanship on the part of the ones who voted him out. Peterboro and Batawa protested the decision.

Word has been received that Lakefield is planning on taking action against the league, and if such action is possible, most people feel that they are fully justified in so doing.

Word has also been received that Madoc and Tweed are entering protests to obtain control for the four points each team lost against Lakefield, and the games they lost were forfeited. Either is would be sufficient to put at least one of these two teams in the playoffs.

It would appear that only one solution is possible in the Trent Valley Hockey League to ensure that the playoffs will be run off in an orderly manner, and that is to enter the league under the O. H. A. and play by O. H. A. regulations. In any dispute that may arise, the matter who finished victorious in the playoffs, a winner cannot justly be declared.

Bethel-Zion 2, Wallbridge 1

Wallbridge was eliminated from the semi-finals Tuesday night, as Bethel-Zion won the game by a 2-1, in the second game of the two-game, goals-to-count series. Wallbridge won the first game 6-1. The game was hard played by both teams, with the rink full. Feelings ran high, and penalties were frequent, particularly in the last period. Wallbridge is a much improved team, after the shaky showing they made at the first of the season. Bethel - Zion now advances to meet the winner of the Werl Huntington - Foxboro series. In the second game of the double-header, West Huntington took a 5-4 decision from the Foxboro Club. It appeared to be a walk-away for the Foxboro team when they lead 3-1 at the end of the first period, and had the better of the play through two periods. However, the boys in blue fought hard in the third period, and netted in the third period would have gained at least a tie.

The Petunias of Frankford took a single game from the Egg Graders, in the Trenton-Frankford Mixed bowling league, Wednesday night. The Shmoos showed their usual form, as they dropped all three games to the league-leading Spark Plugs of Trenton.

The Frankford Juvenilles and Banians travelled to Campbellford Wednesday evening for the return double header with the Campbellford club. In the first game, the Campbellford High School team blanked the Frankford Jurgvilles by a 4-0 count.

Jack Devine Guest of Lions Club

The Lions Club held their regular Tuesday meeting in the Community - Memorial Hall Wednesday evening. Their special guest for the evening, Jack Devine, Frankford - Batawa Combines, intermediate hockey club. Guest speaker for the evening was the sports commentator, Jack Devine.

Following a bounteous repast, Lion Raymond Howe introduced the guest speaker. Mr. Devine gave a very interesting talk on the subject of sports. He outlined the importance of the work of service clubs in sporting events, particularly in juvenile work. Mr. Devine said that he was very pleased with the way Frankford people had cooperated in connection with his sports broadcast.

Manager Herb Rankin was then called on for a few words on behalf of the hockey team. After a few remarks, he introduced the players in turn. Assistant coach Jack Mclnally then spoke briefly. The meeting closed with 'O Canada'.

Drama Will Bring People Emotion And Deep Feeling

Kingston, March 4 — (CP) — Robertson Davies, noted Canadian playwright, predicted today that developing Canadian drama will sharpen its claws on the Canadian scene.

It will also bring them the emotion and deep feeling we intend to hold at arm's length, he said.

Mr. Davies, editor of the Peterborough Examiner, spoke at the annual Drama Night Society lecture at Queen's University.

He said Canadian theatre was as old as Canadian history. But drama and theatre were not the same thing.

Canadian drama would be satirical because Canadians are by gloomy people, mistrustful of enthusiasm and slow to laugh."

Lack of Enthusiasm

Canadians were artistically unenthusiastic because they were afraid "that we might become excited about something which proved, upon examination, to be worthy of our applause, or we are too leary for fear that we might laugh at something which after long and mature deliberation, we found not to be funny."

He told the students that not all the "reactionaries, retrograde thinkers, stand-patters and old fossils" are to be found in older generations.

Fools of Future

"When you are engaged in the agreeable task of making fools of fools among your elders, take a few minutes to look clearly into the eyes of your contemporaries, for among them you will find the fools of the future, training themselves to take their place in that great army of folly."

If Canadian drama developed as satire, it would be criticized as destructive. But the people who made the criticism would be "stand-patters" and "play-safers" who feared "any intelligent investigation of the beliefs which they hold dear."

New National Labor Code Said Not National

Toronto, March 4 (CP)— Eugene Forsey, research director of the Canadian Congress of Labor said today Canada's new National Labor code isn't national.

He told the annual meeting of the United Church of Canada's Board of Evangelism and Social Service that the restricted coverage of the act excluded civil servants and failed to declare religion, colour, creed, sex, age or unfair labor practice.

Mr. Forsey said the section outlawing company-dominated unions was inadequate and the time limit for filing with conciliation proceedures was too long.

Plane Crashes, No One Injured

West Martinsburg, N. Y., March 4 — (AP) — An R.C.A.F. jet-fighter crash-landed Thursday near this Northern New York community.

Pilot John A. Robertson of Greenfield Park, Que., escaped injury.

He said the plane was travelling approximately 100 miles an hour when it crashed on the farm of Robert Adams. A wing tip was torn off when it struck a tree.

Robertson said he ran out of fuel.

He was on a navigation training flight from the St. Hubert air station, near Monireal.

Robertson said he attempted to get directions by radio to base from Griffis air field at Rome, N. Y., but that radio reception was poor and he was unsuccessful.

Cathedral Towers Crash in Quake, Worshippers Safe

Lahore, India, March 4. (CP) — An earthquake which shook this city today sent two towers of the Anglican Christ Church cathedral crashing to the ground. Worshippers in the cathedral escaped unhurt.

The tremor was felt at Delhi, about 300 miles to the south east, where buildings were shaken. No damage was reported there.

The shock here lasted fully two minutes.

The Cathedral Towers toppled on to the roof of the building and tore the roof apart, sending shattered brickwork crashing into the building. Inside the cathedral said they were saved "as if by a miracle."

PC Health Plan Less Expensive, Drew Declares

Oshawa, March 4. (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, today told his party press conference his Progressive Conservative program for health and social welfare could be operated on a "very substantial" decreased rate of taxation.

He said this was evident from the fact that at the moment the government was collecting taxes at the rate of about $600,000,000 a year in excess of budget requirements.

Critics of the Progressive Conservative program, he said, failed to take into consideration the fact that it contemplated a contributory system of health and welfare services, with federal and provincial governments, as well as employers and potential beneficiaries, participating.

On other subjects, he told reporters:

He was not bothered personally by unruly behavior of hecklingmembers of the Commons but thought it took something away from the dignity of parliamentary procedure.

No Speculation on Election

He would not speculate on the probable date of a general election, but planned to be out in the ridings as much as possible within the next few months to canvass the sitings of the House.

He would say only that when he had last talked with Premier Duplessis of Quebec but "I have found a little bird in the past and hope to continue to do so in the future."

He believed there should be the fullest disclosure by the Canadian farmers of any facts available to the government on the future possibilities of selling wheat abroad.

His reference to "bureaucrats" in the public service in a Montreal speech last week was not aimed at those in the Civil Service who were the "victims" of an economic system and had to carry out orders, but referred to those appointees to positions with extraordinary powers delegated to them without making them responsible to parliament.

Around the World Within Four Days

At last man has girdled the earth by plane without touching the surface. How far away seems now the age which read with avidity Jules Verne's story "Around the World in Eighty Days." In less than four days man has flown around. It is true that Verne's imagination conceived such stories as From the Earth to the Moon Direct in Ninety-Seven Hours, Twenty Minutes and a Trip Around It. Another of his works was the most widely read of all "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea." His story of the visit to the moon is yet in the conjectural stage of prophecy.

More than the actual achievement is the interest lying in the dramatic plane this event assumes in the present world situation. John M. Hightower of the Associated Press says the event may be taken as "the measure of the extent to which the relations between Russia and the West have gone downhill. The decline started at the peak of hopes for East-West co-operation in peacemaking. It's present low is characterized by the belief of the Western Powers that military readiness to strike back is now an absolute essential of peace." The non-stop world flight is seen as a single dramatic incident of the situation which the West is trying to accomplish on a broader scale and in a different way through the proposed Atlantic Security Treaty. In the flight of the B-50 the Soviet Union now can read unprecedented evidence of the range of American strategic air power."

As far as the State Department is concerned, the flight "apparently," says the correspondent, "was not made primarily as a saber-rattling gesture, whatever meaning other countries may attach to it. It seems to have been conceived as an effort by the Air Force — perhaps with an eye on Congressional appropriations — to prove that such a thing can be done. But officials confirmed that the proposal was put before the State Department and it was cleared there."

Average man will see in the triumphal flight around the earth without a landing to refuel the progress of the human mind in developing the means of transportation. Fuelling planes in mid-air is enough to make everyone realize the gigantic strides which have taken place in engineering and travel.

Jules Verne's seemingly extravagant dreams are facts in a world of many new facts, which have really changed the face of the globe.

This Lenten Season

Lent, that period of the year which prepares for Good Friday and the Easter festival, carries out the spirit of the ancient formula of sackcloth and ashes as symbols of penance and preparation for the Queen of festivals which crowns its close.

Man has not forgotten the value of this season of observance with its ruain rules of conduct during the forty days that end with Holy Saturday. Its lessons are not for past ages alone but for all time for it is well that man should turn his look inward, and turn away from any path that is not for his good, that he correct errors of conduct and thinking where they exist. The lesson of Lent is that through penitence and self mastery man may find his ways and find true peace. Repentance is not confined to Lent, but this season is in its very nature suited for meditation and correction of any ways of evil to which one may have become prone. Just as winter's depths come before the outflowering and release of spring, so man in the depths of these days of Lent prepares himself for the better life.

Today the world needs the lesson of Lent. Many of the troubles which afflict mankind such as the lack of the true presence of brotherhood which has not yet come to be the spirit of the whole world, can find their answer in this season and in the Lenten spirit.

March's 1949 Dress

March is carrying on the new tradition this winter set in its beginning with a trend to mild weather and to bright skies. There is some snow in these parts but not so much as to suggest that there has been anything to reasonable this winters of the average pattern.

The back of winter is broken whatever comes. Snow is almost gone, the Moira River which usually goes on its annual spring flood is clear to far north of the city and it is not yet the time when floods do usually occur.

By March I've had enough.

Mr. A. E. Fish went to Cornwall today on business.

Mr. George Pulmage went to Toronto today.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Across the intersection walked a tall, handsome man carrying a brief case; and by his side walked his wife, gently holding his arm.

They were in early middle-age, and had a distinguished bearing. But the interesting thing was the dress of the man. He was, of course, black.

His tweed coat had a distinct tinge of violet, his trousers, a rich tweed or heavy flannel, had actually a faint cast of cerise. And his mark you: the coat was not violet; the trousers were not cerise. They were merely the most remote suggestion of the slummy little cast about them, but unmistakable. But the contrary. From his hat to his shoes he was a figure of extraordinary distinction: and there was color, such as women contrive to get into their clothes, in every item of his dress.

His wife, beautifully dressed herself, walked with conscious pride beside the man she loved. But you knew that she chose his clothes for him. And he, being blind, was free from the interest or the timidity of masculine taste between her and her fancy. The fact is, she had done a wonderful job; and no one saw them without thinking what an amusing and pleasant world this would be if the women had the dressing of the men.

Just why and when men went drab is a matter of considerable controversy. Some people believe that when Queen Victoria started mourning that Prince Consort, Britain set a fashion in mourning that spread all over Europe, and has continued to this day. But it was earlier than that even. It began dressing humbly. Maybe the French Revolution and the republican ideas that it set loose had much to do with it. It became troublesome to look like a gent. When the London mob started throwing decayed cabbages at the Duke of Wellington as he drove through the streets, it was time the gentlemen agreed, to lay aside the plum colored waistcoats and brass buttons.

But, as the wife of that blind man might say, we don't have to be that scared!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

GROWTH OF HABIT

Some time ago I saw a motion picture of a natural aquarium on one of the islands in the West Indies. Fish, when they are small, can get through a certain little aperture which leads from the sea to the aquarium; but after the tourists have fed them for a few weeks, they are so large that they cannot get out through that same opening. Then they have to stay. To keep the numbers from increasing too much, the larger fish are scooped out once in a while and hung up in the fish market.

A generation ago practically every college student was familiar with that famous chapter on habit found in William James' text book on psychology. It gives a vivid picture of how habit grows by feeding until we find ourselves as fish prisoners in apparently unable to escape the disadvantages of our ways of life. Habit formation begins quite naturally and innocently. Like the little fish, we go through a small aperture in response to desire, and then after our desires are fed, we find we cannot go out the same place we went in.

Many a man, like the poor fish, has found himself hung up in the fish market because of an easy, indulgent attitude toward life which finally involved him in trouble.

Washington Spotlight:

Filibuster Has Played Colorful Role in U.S. Senate for Years

By GEORGE RONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington March 4 (CP)—If there's anything wordier than a filibuster, it's probably a pro-and-con discussion of filibustering.

The word crops up in the papers this week to decide how — and whether — to make a Senator shut up. Almost all the listeners find ally agree that he should be gagged.

The administration's move to assure its legislation a fighting chance against opposition tongues touched off just such a debate in street-car restaurants, buses and letters to editors. The argument goes like this:

Majority rule is a basic American principle, but—there but minorities have rights, too, you know —well, how can the Senate do a good job on a bunch of bills if just talk and talk!—that's okay, unless, it a minority's got to pull that kind of a thing to keep from being kicked around, that's okay, too, because filibustering is nothing more than a velo...

Whatever the Senate decision, nobody can deny the colorful role the filibuster has played in the Senate down through the years.

Record Talkfests

The first outstanding Senate filibusters came thick and fast. There was a two-month talkfest in 1846. A measure to reorganize the Senate was filibustered for 54 days in 1890 by an opposition Democratic Senate.

The Canadian reciprocity bill, passed the House of Representatives in 1911, was killed by a filibuster in the senate that never revived and passed by Congress in the following session. Then Canada turned it down.

The longest continuous filibuster speech on record is the 15-hour-and-35-minute effort of the late Senator Huey Long of Louisiana in 1935.

Senator Allen Ellender of Louisiana was credited with a one-day "one-man" filibuster in 1938 against another anti-lynching bill. But he had help from several colleagues, enabling him to rest without technically "surrendering the floor."

Mackenzie's Column:

Communists Owe Allegiance First To Soviet Union

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The reaffirmed adherence of American Communists to the line of the Moscow axis doesn't alter — it merely reiterates — their party's attitude towards the United States government. They owe allegiance first to Russia.

There's really only one unusual thing about Gerhart Eisler's report on behalf of William Z. Foster national committee chairman, and that's the source. It emanates from Communist parties who clearly have been acting in concert. Similar statements have been made by Maurice Thorez, secretary-general of the French Communist party; Palmiro Togliatti, Italian Red leader; Harry Pollitt, general secretary of the British Communist party; and the German Communist and Cominform parties. Such unified action has led observers to the conclusion that the various parties were acting under directions from Moscow.

Red Pledges

Obviously should Russia, mother of Communism, find herself at war, the Communists of all countries would be expected immediately to adopt the attitude best suited to serve Moscow's interests.

In some cases that might mean merely hewing to the party line with propaganda. In others it might involve actual sabotage and obstruction through strikes to cripple a country. In extreme circumstances, it would mean actual armed rebellion.

Various Guesses

What started this avalanche of pledges to Moscow? There are various guesses. One is that it is calculated to counter propose North Atlantic alliance. In any event, it's propaganda which clearly could be directed to two ends:

1. To strike fear in the chancelleries of the western world.

Greig Cautions Workers Against Undue Demands

Windsor, March 3 — (CP) — Douglas H. Greig, president of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., said in a letter that the company will study "with an open mind" demands of the security proposals of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.)

The letter, mailed to every employee of the company, cautions that full satisfaction of union benefit plans would be of little value if their cost eventually crippled the company.

Officially, the company has not yet received the union demands. The union has announced them but Greig, in an interview yesterday, Walter P. Reuther. They include demands for full monthly pay at age 60, medical, disability and hospital care provisions and a guaranteed annual wage. Reuther proposes the company should bear the entire cost.

Unusual Business

Mr. Greig said in his letter that business during the last few years has been "exceptionally good" mainly because there were no cars and few trucks made in Canada during the most of the war years.

"We thus have been able to sell them at the same time as inconvenient gossip may later be enlarged to something that is not at all kind. Say something good about your self and you make friends.

COMB, COMB, NOW, STOMACH IS STOMACH

We are living in a psychosomatic age, began a Portland internist, discussing heartburn.

No, no, I almost cried out—but the internist went on to say that, while he was treating the psychosomatic origin of many common ailments, he believes that organic conditions are overlooked frequently because of overemphasis of the pain, emotional or mental factors.

I have been afraid of that ever since I learned how to pronounce and spell the word three or four years ago. I even contemplated playing around with it here when I ran out of subjects I have not threshed over several times before. Then, you lucky people, I studied some of the current books on psychosomatic medicine, gave up the junk man and shunned facedly masked away, wondering how long the psychosomatic bubble will remain in fashion. Already it is beginning to sound trite in comparison with the still newer pedantics—I mean semantics.

The psychosomatic idea was pretty thoroughly exploited, if not done to death, in the articles of popular books on "nervous indigestion" written, indeed, extremely well written by top publicity agent for the best advertised "clients." Those books published at intervals in the past few years have been interesting perhaps correspond with periods ob good business at which "clients" were about to go out in the psychic forest as sensible doctors or patients can go without fear of their perspective and direction altogether. Let us hope dealing with psychosomatic medicine start out bravely enough with the A. C. specials, only to wonderful new country for exploration—but after that I fear chapters on the novelty wears off and you realize you are lost in the woods.

Psychosomatic medicine is a doctor who limits his practice to deformities, deformities of joint and spinal derangements—achieved front page mention recently when Dr. Sidney Haas died for flat bunions. The bosomless or boyish figure was fashionable in the thirties but, my gosh, doesn't the orthopedic specialist read the papers or even glance at the billboard announcements of good looking girls?

Modern, the orthopedist said, about a book, I quote the version of a Malibu lady—remember Malibu, the beach district favored by movie people in the news—the "noodle slouch about with their stomachs (he'll have to read Brady) thrust forward and their chest caved in."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SAY SOMETHING GOOD

I have just been reading about a man who seemed to have solved life to his own satisfaction. It doesn't matter what he did, or with whom he talked, he got much out of the operation. He never had much money — but sufficient to give him the pleasure that he was ever seeking. He travelled, and had loads of friendship. He lived alone. I say alone — but in reality someone always came to see him or be with him, for he always made them welcome.

Now this was only a part of the process that brought continual happiness to him. He was forever saying nice things about people. No one recalled him ever saying a mean or uncomplimentary thing about anyone — so you see he had a good time wherever he went.

Ever realize how much better you feel after having said something fine about another person? Sayings get around, and what you say appears at the time as innocent gossip may later be enlarged to something that is not at all kind. Say something good about your self and you make friends.

Every time we get a letter from someone who has written something kind or helpful to us we get a spiritual lift — and a spiritual lift does us good. We feel better all day. Better than any doctor's tonic or vitamin pill. It is certainly a good about a person and it comes back to us in the form of interest on a good investment. But when you invest in saying kind things about someone you get back both principle and interest.

Bruce Barton in his memory you get back both principle and interest. Bruce Barton in his memory book entitled "The Gentle Art of Making Friends" tells how he wants to learn such an art Too many already have been born with the gift of the gentle art of making friends is something that we all should practice at least each day of our lives. And what an art it is!

When you say something good about another person, all within that person's hearing, you are made to feel better. That's because it proves that you have said something fine said about another you make him feel good, and you make to hunt up that person—perhaps as a prospective friend—you have gained many a step that way.

5,000 Families Helped to Buy Homes Says Frost

Toronto, March 4 (CP) —More than 3,000 families who could not otherwise have made the down payment have bought homes under the Ontario government's housing plan, provincial treasurer Frost said today.

In his budget address to the Ontario Legislature, he said that the plan enables the Crown-owned Housing Corporation to advance up to half the difference between the first mortgage and the price of the house. The limit is $1,250 on each loan.

"Grant care is exercised to ensure that loans are made only on houses of durable construction, conforming to good building standards."

The government also has undertaken to reimburse Ontario municipalities for one-half the cost of acquiring land and installing services in rental housing to be built under agreements with Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, with a limit of $900 per dwelling unit made so far covered 2,915 houses.

During the present calendar year the government anticipated making agreements with 5,500 more houses and $1,200,000 is included in the budget to meet these commitments.

BRITISH COAL TARGET

London — (CP) — Britain's coal industry has been planned to achieve an output of between 210,000,000 and 215,000,000 tons of long-ton coal in 1949. The National Coal Board is also aiming to increase its labor strength to 736,000 men.

PEGGED FOR UNPEGGING

Forecast Heavy Spending

His forecast continued heavy spending with gross ordinary revenue for the new fiscal year ending March 31, 1950, estimated at $206,023,200 and expenditures set $207,865,754. A one per cent corporation tax is expected to produce $56,900,000, gasoline tax $32,500,000 and motor vehicle $32,000,000.

The surplus of $1,122,000 is based on 12 months actual and two months estimated expenditure and revenue. It compares with his forecast a year ago of a surplus of $1,000,000 and one of $69,093,183 for the previous fiscal year. Aggregate surpluses in his six years as minister amount to $42,500,000. A surplus of $157,546 is forecast in the new fiscal year. Highways to be Built

Major additions in the new year includes $89,600,000 to highway construction and maintenance, $40,794,000 for education including $37,000,000 in grants to municipalities, $26,000,000 for health services, $22,735,865 for public welfare, $10,218,600 for the Department of Lands and Forests and $10,331,665 for the attorney-general's department.

A capital grant of $250,000 was announced for McMaster University at Hamilton, first public assistance ever given to the school. The grant was made possible through incorporation of Hamilton College as a constituent of the university. Under the terms of its endowment, McMaster has not accepted Crown aid. In addition McMaster will also receive a maintenance grant of $100,000.

University Grants Given

Other universities to receive grants are the medical faculty of the University of Ottawa, $100,000; Queen's University at Kingston and the University of Western Ontario at London, $375,000 each; Ontario Agricultural College, $75,000. Also included in the estimates is $150,000 for the University of Toronto.

Mr. Frost reviewed the growth of assistance grants to municipal governments. This was reflected in the financial position of municipalities in the province. Their gross debt of $54,700,000 in 1939 has been reduced to $219,900,000 by 1947. Their tax levies, which amounted to $39,000,000 in 1939, were $135,300,000 in 1947. This increase was offset by an increase in assessment.

Municipalities had asked that the government assume the entire cost of social services. However, it was felt municipalities should administer the services more carefully if they contributed to the cost. They would be given assistance in other ways.

Basis Opposed

The one-mill subsidy was introduced in 1947 and had been continued since. Municipalities had opposed the basis of assistance on the grounds that assessments were not uniform throughout the province.

New forms of assistance included payments to municipalities of one-quarter of the cost of operating their police and fire departments in the year preceding that for which the grant is made, the amountin gto $1,500,000 for fire departments and $1,000,000 for police departments.

The province also would pay one-third of the cost of road expenditures undertaken by all cities and towns not under full-unit restriction and 50 per cent of cost to free-grant townships. Free-cent grants to cities are 50 per cent but the total expenditure is restricted to two mills on the tax rate. In the case of villages and towns, their free-grant share in grants are limited to twice the amount of their county road levies for the previous year. Total cost of the new plan is estimated at $700,000.

Assistant Measures Outlined

Other assistance measures include: Payment to municipalities of one-half the cost of maintenance of homes for the aged, estimated at $200,000; payment of 50 per cent of the cost of new municipal homes, estimated at $850,000; payment of 25 per cent of the statutory liability of municipalities for maintenance of children who are wards of the Children's Aid Society at a cost of $800,000; payment to Children's Aid Societies of 25 per cent of the money they raise from private subscriptions, costing $200,000.

The plan includes a guarantee that grants to municipalities will amount to at least one mill on their tax rates. If assistance falls below this level, the government will make it up on the basis of 1946 municipal assessment. Cost of the guarantee is estimated at $500,000.

Population Increases

Since 1939, Ontario's population has increased from about 3,700,000 to nearly 4,500,000. Provincial income now was next far below the national income of 1939. In 1946 and 1947 Ontario attracted more than 63 per cent of the new industries coming to Canada. From 1940 to 1946, $3,000,000,000 of new investment was made in Ontario compared with a Dominion total of $7,000,000,000. In 10 years employment in manufacturing increased 72 per cent, from 318,571 to 552,678 and payroll increased 219 per cent, from $378,000,000 to $1,207,000,000.

The province's net debt now was about the same as 10 years ago. However, debt service charges had been reduced to $17,400,000 from $19,300,000. In 1938 they formed 22 per cent of expenditures and now were less than nine per cent. The per capita debt was down to $111 from $130.

Net Debt Increased

The net debt increased $26,999,239 in the province's fiscal year while the funded debt had been reduced $9,061,061. However, contingent liabilities, bonds guaranteed by the province, increased $77,867,300 largely due to the construction program of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario. A further increase in this direct debt was in sight for the next year.

Under the Provincial housing assistance plan, 5,000 units were under way ago, more than 3,000 Ontario families had been able to buy homes. The province, through a new crown company advanced more than $4,000,000 to the difference between the amount of the first mortgage and the purchase price, with a limit of $1,250 on each loan.

In addition the Ontario government had undertaken to pay municipalities embarking on residential housing schemes through Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation half the cost of acquiring land and installing services, with a limit of $300 per home. Agreements had been completed for 2,015 homes and construction of another 2,500 was anticipated. The budget included $1,200,000 for this assistance.

Build Rural Lines

To assist agriculture, an additional 3,889 miles of rural hydro lines would be built in 1949. Existing electrical lines are 10 towards of 40,000 new rural customers.

A 20-per-cent tax on amusements, imposed a year ago, was retained. $9,050,000 in grants for hospitals. Additional hospital maintenance grants totalled $2,300,000 and capital grants to $1,150,000.

Salvage operations in the area of the great Mississagi forest prior to fire last summer had cost $1,500,000. It was estimated that 700,000,000 feet of logs, pulp and ties had been salvaged so far and another 400,000,000 would be cut in the coming year.

In connection with the funded debt, legislation was introduced to register provincial bonds to simplify investment payments. They would be interchangeable for bearer bonds if required. Legislation and set of the province would make interest payments directly to owners of bonds and will eliminate coupon-clipping.

MUNICIPALITIES

Each municipality will receive a percentage figure of the cost of operating its municipal fire and police departments, based on population and not over the year preceding the year of the grant, in the case of fire departments this will amount to a total of $1,500,000 and police departments, $1,000,000.

The government will pay municipalities half the cost of maintaining municipal homes for the aged. Municipalities will pay half the cost of constructing new municipal homes, $850,000; and 25 per cent of the statutory liability for maintenance of children who are wards of Children's Aid Society at a cost of $800,000.

The government will pay Children's Aid Societies 5 per cent of money they raise by way of subscription. Cost is estimated at $200,000.

Receive Half The Cost

Under present legislation municipalities receive half the cost of road expenditures. In the case of cities and towns with populations of smaller Northern Ontario centres expenditure by the city is restricted to two mills on the assessment. In the case of a town or village in a county it may not exceed twice the amount of the country road levy for the previous year.

New legislation will remove the restrictions and provide for the payment to a city or separated town of 50 per cent of half of all approved road expenditures and 50 per cent to every town or village in a county.

Municipalities had also argued that the Ontario government should assume the entire cost of social services. The government had already assumed "a major portion" of these costs. To assume them all would be unfair to the people of the value of administration. Only in capital level where certain matters can be dealt with more effectively."

Faces Two Charges Of False Pretences

Toronto, March 4 — (CP)—The arrest yesterday of Kenneth Dunstan, 58, former insurance company agent, is believed to have uncovered a bogus insurance policy racket, police said today.

Dunstan faces two charges of false pretences involving collection of money from Alfred Hall and James Burgin, both of Toronto, for non-insurance policies they claim were never delivered.

Police said they have received further complaints and may lay additional charges.

Assets Double In Value, Debt Cut in Half

Toronto, March 4 — (CP)—In terms of present-day-dollar values, Ontario's net debt is just half what it was 10 years ago, Provincial Treasurer Frost said today.

In his budget address to the Ontario Legislature, he said that in 1939 the net debt of the province was $475,200,000 compared to its present level of $493,753,206. Because of the reduced value of the dollar, the province's assets had doubled in value and the debt burden cut in half.

He mentioned also that debt charges, now $17,400,000, are down to $17,400,000, less than nine per cent of expenditures. Ten years ago they were $19,300,000, or 22 per cent of provincial expenditures. On a per capita basis, the debt now is $111 compared with $132 in 1939.

For the fiscal year ending Mar. 31, the net debt will increase $26,999,239, the treasurer said. The indirect debt — bonds and other securities guaranteed by the province — went up $77,963,720 to $280,492,371, largely because of cost of construction being carried on by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario. This form of debt will go still higher, he indicated, mentioning that hydro may need $150,000,000 of new money this year.

Commons Cracks Down on Sport Of Cock Fighting

London, March 4 —(AP)—The House of Commons today cracked down on the ancient sport of cock fighting.

The House approved on second reading a measure to tighten up the century-old law against cock fighting. Sir William Darling said he cleared the sport still flourishes in some parts of England and quoted an old tavern ditty which he said still is sung in some lustier pubs:

"To keep game cocks and hunt the fox,
"To drink the punch and whisky,
"We fear not no locks, we'll train the cocks,
"And care not if it's risky."

"The object of this bill," Sir William commented, "is to make it more risky."

The measure permits police to make arrests if they find roosters which have been clipped for cock fighting. It also bans the use of steel fighting spurs which are attached to the cock's legs.

Police complain they have been unable to combat cock fighting effectively because the present law says they must actually witness a fight.

MURDER FAIR IN "LONELY HEARTS" KILLINGS

Raymond Fernandez, 34, shown with Martha Beck, 26, in police headquarters, and Mrs. Martha Beck, 26, believ, are charged with the murder of a widow and her small daughter near Grand Rapids, Mich., and have also admitted to killing an Albany, N.Y., woman in their New York City rooming house and burying her body in the basement of the rooming house. Murder victims here are identified as Mrs. Delphine Downing, 28, a widow and her two-year-old daughter Rainelle. Police say the pair have confessed to this double murder. The third victim named was James Fay of Albany, N.Y., as the victim, killed and buried last Jan. 8. The authorities point out that the victims met Fernandez and Mrs. Beck through a "Lonely Hearts" club. The pair had lived in Mrs. Downey's home for several weeks.—Central Press Canadian.

Police, Firemen Will Benefit Under New Act

Toronto, March 4 (CP)—Attorney-General Blackwell today introduced in the Ontario Legislature two bills setting out a system of provincial subsidies to municipalities on cost of operating their police and fire departments.

He said in an explanatory speech all municipalities having full-time police and fire departments will receive grants based on a percentage of cost in the year preceding the grant is made.

Provincial Treasurer Frost forecast the measures earlier in his budget address, estimating cost of fire department subsidies at $1,500,000 and police grants at $1,000,000.

Mr. Blackwell said the two measures are similar. They provided for payments of grants varying this year on the following population and percentage basis: Centres under 10,000, 25 per cent; 10,000 to 25,000, 20 per cent; 25,000 to 70,000, 15 per cent; over 70,000, 10 per cent.

The grants are subject to two sets of conditions. The police will be paid as soon as municipalities satisfy the government they comply with the Police Commissioner. Firemen and policemen must be covered under the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Act, or receive some form of compensation approved by the government superintendent of insurance; they must not be in default of collective agreements made under the policemen's or firemen's acts; they must be paid a pension plan approved by the superintendent of insurance.

The remaining 50 per cent is payable on an efficiency rating basis determined by the Provincial Fire Marshal for firemen and by the Provincial Police Commissioner for policemen. The efficiency grants may be scaled [illegible]

The bills also provided for central training schools for policemen and firemen, some of which already exist, and the establishment of schools and travelling inspectors.

Gold Mining Companies Will Be Assisted

Toronto, March 4 (CP)— Provincial Treasurer Frost of Ontario today announced broader assistance for development expenses incurred by gold mining companies while in production.

He made the announcement in his budget address to the Ontario Legislature while also disclosed cancellation of the two-per-cent tax on promotional shares other than boxing and wrestling. This tax was cancelled because fans was also subject to the five-per-cent amusement tax for hospitals.

A year ago, Ontario provided that mining companies could deduct from their incoms for corporation tax purposes cost of development of mining properties started in 1946 or later. New legislation will extend the privilegions to mines started before 1948. It continues until the mine is sanctioned out to production.

Newly incorporated companies establishing their head offices in Ontario will be allowed to deduct from taxable income an amount equal to the amount of any they sustain from the date of incorporation to the start of the fiscal year in which they first make a profit. Thus a new company could use its losses in its first two, three — or more—year of operation to offset income when it starts to make money. The provision would also be extended to per-cent provincial corporation tax.

Mr. Frost also announced three changes 'in succession duty legislation. They would exempt donations to gifts to religious organizations anywhere in Canada; relieve preferred beneficiaries—such as widows and children—of death duties where the aggregate value of the estimate is less than $50,000 (present limit is $25,000) and extend time for payment of duty by beneficiaries receiving annuities or incomes.

Five Firemen Trapped, Killed At Charleston

Charleston, W.Va., March 4 — (AP) — Five firemen were trapped and killed when flames swept through two stores in the heart of the business district.

All the city's fire companies were battling a $500,000 blaze early this morning before it was under control. Nine firemen were injured, five fatally, authorities.

The flames were discovered in the Woolworth store about 4 a.m. Twenty hours later they spread to the adjoining building and part of it collapsed.

Trapped in the basement when the first floor of the Woolworth store fell in were Captain Ernest Sharp, Richard McCormick, Frederick Summers and Frank Sullivan.

George Cousins, another fireman, was missing and comrades reported he was last seen on the roof of the building after the trapped men.

Waste and Want

By ROY L. SMITH

Jesus of Nazareth was a skilled psychologist hundreds of years before anyone ever heard of the science of psychology.

There are those who profess to believe that many of the miracles He is reported to have worked were nothing more than the application of profound psychological laws as yet unheard of, and applied only very crudely and unused, but perfectly understood by the master. There may be some measure of truth in the belief. But it is more interesting to read the account.

As a rule, Orientals are skilful applications of psychological principles now well understood in the laboratory. The interesting thing is that Jesus was so far ahead of the scientists.

Life Depends Upon our Excellence

Each parable in our lesson text was told as illustrative of a fundamental principle of life.

The first is commonly known as "The parable of the sower," and recites the story of a man who went out to plant grain. Some of the seed fell on one kind of ground and other seed, of exactly the same sort, fell on another kind of ground, and the difference in the returns depended not upon the seed, nor upon the sower, but upon the soil.

One of the basic teachings of Jesus was the responsibility of the individual for himself. The Old Testament text. "Thou are the man," was one upon which He would have preached very frequently certainly, if he had been occupying an American pulpit in recent years. He saw very vividly the fact that life is determined by our own reactions, and not by outside forces or circumstances.

A colored main working in a hospital, in commenting on the differences she had observed between patients, said: "I have noticed that it makes a great difference in the world what kind of a conscience a person's got inside of them."

We Decide our own Destiny

It is very evident from Jesus' parable of the sower that he absolved the seed and the soil from all responsibility for the crop failure. "The trouble," he seemed to say, "is with the sower." The inference is that the soil ought to take itself in hand.

The Sunday School lesson for March 6: "Parables of Jesus" (Intermediate), Mark 4; Luke 15:11-36.

Now, of course, stony ground has no power within itself to become fertile and alive. A hard-hearted man can become tender and sensitive, and a callous soul can experience repentance. The fruitful and the evil-minded have it within their power to change and cleanse themselves and clean, if they set themselves to it.

Very few of us are able to choose the things that happen to us, but any of us can choose the way in which we will react to those happenings. Any man may be unfortunate, but no man need be bitter and vengeful.

The Prodigal was not Unlucky

It is entirely possible that the prodigal son of whom Jesus told persuaded himself, during the days when he was feeding the husks, that he was an unlucky person. He may even have convinced that he was an innocent victim of social forces beyond his control.

But he denied the truthfulness of all those arguments when he said to himself, "I will arise." There was something he could do about the situation and he did it.

No Alcoholism without Alcohol.

It is a common thing today to say that the alcoholic is a sick man, and of course that is true. He is desperately sick.

From various quarters we are being told that alcoholism is a disease, and that the alcoholic should be treated as a diseased person, and that too is true and beyond dispute.

There is, however, another fact that is not so frequently mentioned but it is highly important. No person ever becomes an alcoholic until after he had taken his first drink of alcohol. And it is also true that no person (except in extremely rare cases) ever took his first drink except by his own choice and consent.

Bishop Francis J. McConnell once said that the worst thing about the prodigal was the fact that he had no sense of values. It never seemed to occur to him that his father had worked for those values, and that the youth must work to save it. The drunkard is a diseased person, but he became diseased as a result of a false scale of values. Waste and want always go together, and the man never forgets that simple fact.

Timber Salvage On Forest Reserve To be Continued

Toronto, March 4 (CP)—Salvage of timber from the burned-over Mississagi forest reserve will cost the Lands and Forests department $4,500,000 in the coming year, Provincial Treasurer Frost said today in the Ontario legislature.

The department's estimates, meanwhile, will be increased over and above this amount from $26,000,000 to $30,000,000 to provide funds for extended aerial mapping, white pine and forest fire research, Mr. Frost said in his budget address.

Last summer forest fires in the Mississagi district had "brought about extensive aerial survey operations, which have been undertaken for the first time in the province's history."

"Excellent progress" had been made to salvage 80,000,000 board feet of lumber and railway ties had been salvaged. During the present year $1,500,000 had been spent on salvage operations.

Many years' estimates, including cost of salvaging, would be more than $6,500,000 higher than last year.

Fifteen additional Beaver aircraft have been purchased for fire-fighting and a new hangar built at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. K. Hannan is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. George Laughlin, of St. Catharines, is visiting friends in Belleville.

Mrs. Dorian McAvoy and baby, are visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Roach, Marysville.

Mrs. Fred R. Jarrell, Grier Street, is in Kingston today, attending the funeral of her brother-in-law, the late Isaac Jarrell at the Anes Reid funeral parlors.

Miss Myrtle Peck, Queen Victoria School was a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Carr, West Huntingdon.

Miss June Garbutt was a recent guest of her grandfather, Mr. M. S. French, of Melville.

H. and S. Fair Gratifying Success

At a meeting held at the home of Mrs. R. D. Mott, Bleecker Ave., the executive of the Queen Victoria Home and School Association reviewed the results of the recent Valentine Fair held at the school.

The Valentine Fair, which was the initial project of the newly-formed association, was a gratifying success due to the very capable planning of Mrs. Ivan Langdale who was responsible for its organization.

In charge of hot dogs and cokes respectively, Messrs. Ken. Reid and Stuart Riley reported rapid sellouts. The movies, convened by Mr. R. H. Tanner and operated by Mr. Bateman's crew, which drew "standing room only" crowds and the fish ponds, directed by Mr. W. Oliver, were the local attractions for the small fry. On the other hand, the adults there clustered around the heavily laden home cooking table and the apron booth convened by Mrs Mott and M. Martin. Mrs. Andrews, in charge of the candy table, Mrs. Judge, of ice cream, and Mrs. Reid Pringle, of white elephants, were delighted with the enthusiastic demand for their wares.

The executive were deeply grateful for the wholehearted cooperation and assistance of Mr. Wilkin and his staff, two of them, Mr. Cousins and Miss Wallbridge, were in charge of publicity. They were also delighted with the interest shown in their project by the other educational groups and the parents and children of the community as a whole.

Women's Activities

HOLLOWAY STREET W.M.S.

The regular meeting of Holloway Street Church W.M.S. was held in the church parlors on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Wilson, the president, presided at the opening and business periods.

Reports from all branches of the society were received.

The Community Friendship Secretary, Mrs. Wesse, reported 97 calls made during February by her committee, and displayed printed personal church cards to be used by members calling on new comers. These were donated to the society by Mrs. Wesse.

A letter was then read by the Supply Secretary, Mrs. Oliphant from Mrs. Truscott, president of the Presbyterial soliciting assistance and donations for Vacation School kits for student missionaries. It was decided that this be taken care of by personal contributions, and a committee was appointed to purchase the suggested list of supplies. Mrs. Truscott's letter also stressed the need for a drive for clothing for overseas and money to send them.

Plans were made for the Easter Thank-offering meeting, to which Centenary, Asbury and White's church societies are to be invited. The guest speaker to be Mrs. H. ity.

The members were again reminded of the World's Day of Prayer on Friday, March 4th in Bridge Street Church.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. L. Reid and her group. The theme of which was, "Thy Kingdom Come Through the United Witness of the Christians of the World". Mrs. Wilts and Mrs. Wickett received the offering, after which Mrs. Ackerman rendered the solo "Come Unto Me."

The Study Book was presented by Mrs. Potter, who painted a very vivid picture of the great achievements being made in training in China by the Christian citizens and by highlighting the life work of Dr. Stella Cheng.

After the close of the meeting, a social half-hour was had by all.

MASSASSAGA W.A.

Mrs. Geo. Flower was hostess for the March meeting of Massassaga W.A.

Thirty ladies were present, of whom, thirteen paid dues. Some new members were welcomed.

The offering was $4.

It was decided to hold a food sale on the Belleville markets on Saturday, and a committee to have charge of this, named.

Mrs. Cook had charge of the program which opened with singing of "Happy the Home" and Mrs. J. Beaumont read the Scripture. Mrs. Cook had the topic "Responsible Parenthood".

Mrs. Clarke gave a reading on the subject "Parental Responsibility" and a poem by Edgar Guest.

Mrs. M. Davidson sang hymn "I Would See Jesus" as a solo. Mrs. Cook also read a poem "Keep Mum".

The April meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Cunningham in charge of her group.

Mrs. Cook conducted a 'singing contest' with Mrs. McKillop being the winner.

Members of Mrs. Cook's group served refreshments and all enjoyed a social time.

KEEP THEM TOGETHER

Birmingham, Eng. (CP)— Medical opinion now considers that newly-born babies should be with their mothers, Dr. S. J. Scurlock, senior administrative officer to the Regional Hospital Board, told a meeting here recently.

Girl Receives Ranch, Money From Pen Pal

Toronto, March 4, (CP)—A Manitoba cattle ranch, cash and securities worth $30,000 are the property today of a surprised 18-year-old candy clerk through the will of a pen pal—a 75-year-old Winnipeg man she had never seen.

Red-headed Doreen Upsall was found Thursday night by reporters, selling chocolates in a theatre lobby in suburban Long Branch. She said she was still confused by the bequest from the man, who she had known for less than two years as a pen pal.

She said it was "true, all right" but she refused to divulge the name of the man, a cattle rancher.

The first learned of the inheritance in a letter Thursday from a Toronto lawyer.

Miss Upsall's step-father, Gilbert Crowder, met the man on a trip to Winnipeg two years ago, she said. Subsequent letters from him said he was lonely on his ranch and appreciated mail. Mr. Crowder suggested Miss Doreen start writing him, but they never exchanged pictures.

"I wrote once a week", she said. "He always answered right away. He seemed to be an awfully nice old man. Once he even asked me to marry him. I didn't mention it in every next letter."

She said she had made no plans yet regarding the ranch and its cattle.

30th Wedding Anniversary Is Celebrated

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Burr, Amelissburg, last Saturday, when a number of relatives and friends gathered to honor them and to offer their heartiest congratulations and best wishes on their thirtieth anniversary.

Although taken by surprise, Mr. and Mrs. Burr greeted their guests in their usual genial way, extending to all a warm welcome.

Games and contests conducted by Mrs. Earl Anderson and Mrs. Donald Spencer added much to the evening's pleasure. Mr. Morley Moran acted as chairman and a short and enjoyable program followed, consisting of sing-song with Mrs. Ewart Harns at the piano, solo by Mrs. Lorne Burr, humorous readings by Mrs. Stanley Werden and Mrs. Ewart Harns and reminiscent speeches by Mrs. Stanley Werden, Mrs. Blake Harns and Mr. Donald Spencer.

Mr. and Mrs. Burr were then invited to the living room, an address was read by Mrs. Stanley Werden and Mrs. Lorne Burr presented them with a large silver tray of grape design. Mr. and Mrs. Burr gratefully replied, thanking them for their kind thoughtfulness and the lovely gift.

The dining table was tastefully arranged in pink and white, centred by a prettily decorated wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom, and pink tapers and candles at each end. Places were laid for ten and the other guests were seated at small tables. Delicious refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed. Those assisting with the serving were Mrs. Earl Anderson, Mrs. Ronald Burr, Mrs. Donald Spencer and Mrs. Morley Moran.

At a late hour the guests departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Burr many more happy anniversaries.

A shower of cards, telegrams and 'phone calls arrived during the day bringing further and near making their anniversary a very happy and memorable one.

KEEN AGE CLUB

The Keen Age Club of the Tabernacle United Church, held its monthly meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Laura Belanger, Foster Avenue. One new member was welcomed to the club.

Lillian Hall opened the meeting.

Kit Cornish presided for the devotionals.

Edith Stanton read another chapter from the story book, "It Happened in Palestine".

It was decided to have a quilting bee at the home of Mrs. Pauline Huddleston, also the club decided to have a Bloomer tea again this year.

During the program followed. Refreshments were then served by the hostess, assisted by Doris Davidson and Ruth Garlapy.

Cheeseapple Pie Worth Trying

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, —(CP)—Tell the family there is apple-pie for dessert and chances are every member will be on hand when meal time rolls around.

While some may like their pie decorated with a dab of whipped cream, usually the men in the family consider apple-pie and cheese the only proper combination.

Home economists of the consumer section, marketing service, Dominion department of agriculture, have gone one step farther —they have put the cheese in the pie.

Cheeseapple Pie— Ingredients: six medium-sized apples; one-third to one-half cup brown sugar; one-quarter teaspoon cinnamon; one-eighth teaspoon nutmeg; one-eighth teaspoon salt; one tablespoon cornstarch; one tablespoon butter; one tablespoon lemon juice; one-half teaspoon grated lemon rind; one cup grated cheese.

Line a nine-inch pie plate with plain pastry. Peel, core and slice apples thinly. Mix and stir sugar, spices, salt and cornstarch and sift over apples, stirring gently until they are well coated. Place apples in layers in the pie shell. Dot with butter and sprinkle with lemon juice and rind. Bake, without a crust, in a hot oven (425 degrees Fahrenheit) for 25 to 30 minutes. Remove from oven sprinkle cheese over pie and return to oven to melt the cheese. Serve hot or cold.

While fruit juices may be delicious when served at the beginning of a meal, for an appetite teaser, nothing can take the place of hot soup.

Home economists of the consumer section, Dominion department of agriculture, suggest you mend soup and salad as the luncheon menu on early Spring days.

Beef Stock is easy-to-make, inexpensive, and rich in vitamins. Ingredients: Two pounds meat trimmings with bones; three small carrots; three small onions; three stalks celery; two quarts cold water; one-quarter teaspoon whole peppercorns; one-half bay leaf; one-eighth teaspoon dried thyme; one sprig parsley; salt and pepper to taste.

Put beef, carrots, onions, celery and water in kettle and bring slowly to a boil. Tie spices and herbs in cheesecloth bag, add with parsley to soup mixture. Cook 30 minutes in pressure-cooker at 15 pounds pressure; or simmer, covered, for two hours. Strain and keep in a cool place. Yield: six cups.

Not only does over-cooking injure the appearance of food, but frequently it destroys flavor, texture and nutritive value. Health and welfare department officials say the color of food on your dinner-table has an effect on your family's appetite. If the food is properly prepared and shows its normal coloring to advantage, your meal will be more successful.

Women's Institute

MOUNTAIN VIEW, W.I.

Mountain View. — The March meeting of Mountain View Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Reg. Barber of Huff's Island, with about 25 members and visitors present.

The president opened the meeting. Minutes were read and adopted. Other business was discussed. The roll call was responded to by answering "How You Can be a Better Citizen".

Mrs. Ernest Wallbridge was convener of the topic for the day, "Citizenship" and gave a very interesting talk on this subject. She was assisted by readings given by Mrs. Rod Fairman, Mrs. George Jackson, Mrs. Clark Sprung and Mrs. Alfred Peets.

Mrs. Kenneth Motley gave interesting Current Events.

Mrs. Barber, assisted by her mother, Mrs. J. Wallbridge and several other ladies served refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Mrs. George Jackson kindly invited the members to her home for the April meeting.

RAWDON

Mount Pleasant — Two-by-Two Club held their meeting Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McConnell with about thirty in attendance.

The program was prepared by Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay McKeown, and their group, owing to the illness of the president, Mr. McKeown acted and read a short sketch on religion.

In the worship period, Mrs. Millard Wrighman read the Bible lesson.

Mr. Carleton Potts outlined the topic on "The Art of Living Despite a Handicap".

Misses Lola and Marilyn McConnell sang a duet, and Miss Shirley Hicks accompanied a piano solo.

A Bible contest was staged with all participating. The host and hostess and daughter Betty, served tasty eats and coffee and were thanked for their hospitality.

Young Adult Group

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fyear entertained Carmel Young Adult Group at their home for the February meeting. Mr. Harry Brooks presided over the worship period.

Miss M. Scott sang two solos with Mrs. Fyear accompanist and Mrs. Ernest Grills contributed a reading. The recreation period was in charge of Mr. Clayton Stapley and Mrs. H. Brown.

A large array of cards secured boxes was auctioned off by Mr. John Armstrong.

Personals

Miss Joan Hoard spent the weekend with her sister Miss Sarles.

Miss Betty McKeown, Niagara Falls, visited Mr. and Mrs. J. S. McKeown over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Thompson, and children, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. George Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston Hall and and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walker, Campbellford, visited Mr. and Mrs. Don Heath on Sunday.

Mr. Robert Elliott of Toronto, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Elliott at Bethel.

Talented Silk Frock

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE DESIGNER of this polka dotted silk frock is talented,you bet . . . It's Adele Simpson. But the frock is talented, too, as it is one of those happy chosen which can go from office to bedtime through all but the most formal doings, never demands special under accessories, will twinkle but little though easy to press, and with its royal blue and black color scheme, will rest easy soiling.

It is a perfect resort dress, just a good for home dining or week-ending. The design is definitely directoire, including the long stole edged with both the blue and black in silk fringe.

Service Ends Scout and Girl Guide Week

As a fitting climax to Boy Scout-Girl Guide Week, and to their various individual activities, the Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Cubs and Brownies held Scouts-Guides Own Service on Sunday.

At 4 p.m. each Troop, Company and Pack met at the Armouries, whence they were escorted by the Belleville Pipe Band to St. Thomas Parish House.

Many friends and parents attended this service, who together with some 200 Scouts, Guides, Cubs and Brownies filled the Parish House to its capacity. It was a wonderful sight to witness when the flags were presented at the front with all standing at attention.

Rover Skipper A. R. Mangan-ell was in charge of the service which was opened with Hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers", with prayers being said by P. L. Beth Wilbur, followed by the Brownies Hymn, "Jesus Bids Us Shine" and Scripture reading: 1 Corinthians, Chapter 13, by P.L. Jay Howard. The hymn of Guiding was sung as a duet by Goldie Fagg Ferguson and Frances Thompson.

Mr. J. Musgrove was the guest speaker and gave an interesting talk on the challenge of Scouting and Guilding with illustrations from the life of Lord Baden-Powell, the founder of the movements.

The service closed with Hymn "Abide With Me" and prayers led by Rover Skipper Ingnell.

The local associations, Scouts and Guides wish to thank St. Thomas Church for granting them the privilege of using the Parish House.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Reader Disagrees With Me

I have just received a letter from a young man who takes me to task for an opinion I expressed a few weeks ago in answer to a somewhat similar question.

The question was asked by a young girl who was engaged to a boy of a different religious faith from hers. It seems that one day they decided to attend services at both their churches, and the girl was greatly disappointed when her fiance refused to contribute to the collection taken up at her church. She said she was glad to contribute when they went to the services in his church, and she wanted to know if I thought she was right or wrong in feeling hurt because he did not reciprocate.

"After all," she said "both our faiths believe in the same God."

I told the girl that I entirely agreed with her in her point of view, and thought her young man showed a petty and very narrow-minded attitude. I also said I thought his action might indicate a prejudiced state of mind that could lead to unhappiness in marriage between two people of different faiths.

In the letter which takes exception to my answer, my correspondent declares that so far from indicating a prejudiced mind, the action of the young man who figured in the incident might indicate "a very clear thinking and logical mind. For the young man to support an organization, which promulgates doctrines contrary to his own," he continues, "seems inconsistent and illogical to me. Why should he profess his faith in his church if he did not believe its doctrines? Why would there be a difference in doctrines if one church considered the other church's doctrines just as good, just as true? Why should the young man help to promulgate what he believes to be error?

"Rather than bigotry or evidence of narrow-mindedness, it should call the young man's refusal merely objective evidence of praiseworthy courage in his own convictions. Is not this a justified conclusion?"

To this I can only reply that I believe the conclusion justifies itself only to a person with a narrow mind, or, to put it differently, to a person who is able to see no further than his own point of view.

As I look at it, the attitude taken by the girl when she said, "After all, both our faiths believe in the same God," is the truly logical viewpoint. If two people start out for the same destination does it really matter if they travel different routes as long as they get to the same place in the end?

Unless two people of different faiths can meet on some such common ground as this, it certainly would be disastrous for them to marry as I think even the young man who disagrees with me would admit. I am afraid that I still believe in the soundness of what I told the young woman who wrote me.

Navy dress with white detail

By VERA WINSTON

THERE'S STYLE and charm to spare in the new little casual daytime dresses. Shown this year, are small little numbers that have it all over the old-time utility dress, for these frocks can fare forth proudly and go places. Navy spun rayon is used for this one which is enlivened by drawn work and white stitching on the bodice. White piping edges the neckline and the bodice closing. White buttons make the neckline to best closing of this swell new version of the house dress.

Housewife Gets Biggest 'Bargain' Of Her Life

Buffalo, N.Y., March 3 (AP)—A New England housewife who sent 50 cents to a Buffalo department store to "see what kind of a bargain I'll get" will receive a humdinger—gifts worth $2,500.

Mrs. Homer Stanton of Mill River, Mass., read about the department store, locally advertised as a "bargain store."

"I am not going to let the fact that I live way down east keep me from getting a . . . bargain," wrote Mrs. Stanton. "So I am sending you 50 cents in stamps just to see what kind of bargain I'll get. You pick it out and I'll accept it."

Besides a round-trip flight to Buffalo, including royal entertainment during her stay there, the store added the following gifts in return for Mrs. Stanton's half-dollar:

A radio, three-piece bedroom suite, three chairs, an electric blanket, eight rugs, four lamps, a fur coat, three slips, four dresses, a spring suit, a sweater, two pairs of shoes, a handbag, a scarf, a large bottle of perfume, an orchid corsage, gifts for her three children, and enough supplies for her husband, an electric iron, three record albums, 24 pounds of coffee, 24 packages of starch, a case of dog food.

The store also sent Mrs. Stanton change—11 cents.

Why did the store give her this bargain?

The store is using Mrs. Stanton's letter to launch a "great bargain-lovers' dream sale."

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Problem of shower presents when baby dies

A sorrowful and heart-touching problem it is this reader's question:

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What do you advise as the proper thing to do with shower gifts for a new baby . . . the shower was given before the baby was born, and the baby lived for only a short time after it was born. Are the gifts to be kept, given to charity, or returned to the givers?

The mother may, if she wishes, keep the gifts, making no further mention of the gifts or of her plan . . . but usually, and naturally, she prefers not to do this. She may send the gifts back to the givers, enclosing a brief note of thanks. Or, as is the usual procedure nowadays in this sorrowful circumstance, she may ask the givers for their permission to send the gifts to some organization that cares for the welfare of babies. It is very important, I think, that the mother ask the permission of the givers, so that each kind relative and friend feels in the mother's confidence and feels too that she has a loving part in the memorial gift.

Practical address-form for visiting-cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

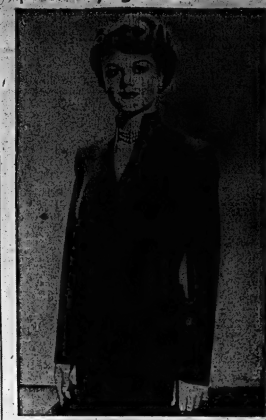
My husband and I have always lived in a large city, and so on leaving Mr. and Mrs' visiting-cards, we have our address engraved with the cards of ourselves. But we have moved to a small community, and since we plan to travel now that my husband has retired from his law practice, we would like to have a more definite address on our visiting-cards. Would it be correct for us to order our cards with the name of this small town, and also possibly the name of the state, as well as the street-address?

S. L.

Yes. Here is a practical, and entirely proper, form to use on your cards which, no doubt, you will use when you are traveling:

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Paul Clark
123 Park Place
Ourville, New York.

It's the bride's privilege to choose attendant



Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My fiance and I are planning our wedding. I have no sisters, my fiance has three sisters . . . and the problem has come up as to who is to be my maid of honor. I have several aunts, and one of them has asked if she could stand up for me. I told her that I wanted first to ask my fiance's sisters, but this aunt thinks that this if unnecessary and says that even an outsider can act as maid of honor. Who is right about this, my aunt or I?

F. E.

Although your aunt is certainly not "right" in saying you've chosen her as your honor attendant, she is theoretically right in saying that it is not necessary for you to choose a sister of your fiance to be your attendant unless you really wish to, and also that it is not necessary for you to invite a relative. In other words it is most important that you choose as your honor attendant just the one you wish . . . the bride-to-be has no strict or generally chooses her dearest friend. You might choose your cousin or your aunt or one of your fiance's sisters if you regard any of these your dearest friend, or even a 'dear friend,' . . . but you not anyone else, should do the deciding. Your fiance's sisters, or all, might be bridesmaids, who are, of course, not of such personal significance as your honor attendant.

Tips on Buying a New Dress

A good classic suit is always useful, says Movie Star Anneta Lansbury, who chooses this steel-gr[illegible] model with a pretty stand-up collar

By HELEN FOLLETT

LUCKY is the woman who has cultivated the dress sense. It helps her along that journey to the good looks goal that has so many travelers. If she can't be beautiful she can be chic.

The lady of fashion is never over-decorative. She does not want her ornaments to detract from her personality. She has no use for dry goods that are distinguished by cut and fabric rather than by trimmings that have little or no meaning.

Conspicuous Hats

She avoids hats that are crazy because they will make her conspicuous. This season offers all kinds of charming millinery, plenty of smart, plain effects that are a relief from little models that look as if they had been whipped together with an egg beater.

She is wary about jewelry, is fussy in making selections, a necklace will enhance a pretty throat, will call attention to a neck that has faded. Pretty arms can carry bracelets to emphasize their soft whiteness. But enough is often too much, as our smartie dresser is well aware.

Colors Important

She knows that colors play an important part in appearance, that certain ones will enhance her complexion, that others will drain it of natural coloring.

BEAUTY

Cold feet and red noses

Goody Two-Shoes has cute little feet. She is proud of their slender lines and delicate dimensions. She puts her dainty right foot forward, but her left as well, so everybody can see and admire them. What she spends for shoes sets back the balance in the checkbook, but what does she care?

It is Goody Two-Shoes, with mind intent upon the glorification of her beauteous instep, who scorns sensible shoes with leather soles sufficiently solid and durable to protect them from the chill of mid-Winter pavements. You will see her, from the first fluff of snow to the melting of the last crusty ice, cavorting about in shoes that were designed for light wear, wear in the house or at parties. It does not make sense. She pays. Her nose gets red. Serves her right.

Girls who are forever sniffling with colds are among the wise guided sisters who do not realize the need of keeping human pedals protected against chill and moisture. Cold feet interfere with circulation, they slow it up. With circulation sluggish, all manner of beauty ills can descend upon one.

Bus Stop

Perfume is a part of one's get up, the selection of a scent informing the public now what kind of a person one is. Fastidiousness will direct one to a delicate floretted odor. Lacking taste the perfume shopper will be likely to purchase something that is much too potent.

Make-up marks one. The effect of powder, rouge and lipstick should be subtle and slick. No hasty facemaking should be allowed. There should be a law against over-red cheeks. vivid lipstick, too heavy an application of eye shadow. But the girls are having every day.

Her feet may look better, but her face and figure look worse

No girl is beautifully dressed who is not suitably dressed. She must wear the right clothes for the occasion or she will look silly. It would be as sensible to wear galoshes in a ballroom as to fare forth in wintry weather in slippers that were designed for the evening.

There never was a time when one had so wide a choice in selecting shoes for street wear. But Goody has an alibi. She confuses these new designs with what we used to consider sensible shoes. Nothing to it. Those gruesome offerings have disappeared from the shelves of shoe stores. Mention walking shoes and she shudders has goose flesh. She says they make her feet look larger. What she wears makes her brain look smaller—if she could see her brain. Maybe she hasn't any, just some sort of a fuzzy substitute.

Thin-soled shoes do more than redden the nose. They make the eyes water.

A girl whose feet are cold buddies up into her coat collar, throwing her shoulders forward. Her chest flattens and her back humps. Without good posture she lacks style. Her clothes lose the good lines put into them by the designers. She may fancy that her feet look better in the latest shoes she wears, but her face and figure look worse.

Women will never be truly emancipated until they stop abusing their feet.

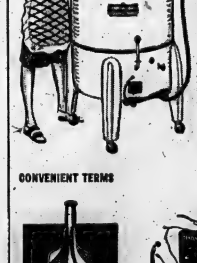
Fashion Flashes

VIOLETS FREE through misty veiling or may a florist tell. A smoothly contoured bonnet of mauve-pink felt is tied with violet-colored velvet streamers. Under a cloud of violet-colored pink veiling a cluster of violets shading from dark to light, marks one side of the hat.

SHARP CONTRASTS lend an impetus to navy. A good-looking suit of Glen Plaid worsted has the trig jacket in lemon yellow with collar tabs and pocket flaps in navy to match the slim skirt.

NEW BEAUTY adds allure to the newest lingerie. Pale blue silk chiffon is used for a handsome nightgown detailed with black Chantilly lace marking the curved bustline. Embroidered black lace medallion is centred on bodice, which has wide gathered fabric straps and self sash at the side.

A WONDERFUL ARRAY of inexpensive housecoats has been prepared for Summer selling. Seersucker gets new treatment in a dainty Dresden-blue and white print. Collar and sleeves are edged with eyelet embroidery, and blue velvet ribbon runs through the beading.



NEW NOTIONS abound in the latest millinery collections. One designer shows a handsome little pillbox of burnt brown pelisse, trimmed with big matching buttons. The buttons also serve to anchor a white chiffon slipcover which gives the hat a summer look. There is a bag of straw and piqué, and matching pique gloves as well.

IT MAY BE EARLY for colored silks but the sheen say that silk Shantung suit and jacket ensembles are sold on sight. Peacock blue silk Shantung is used for a simply-styled shirtwaist dress with fine tucking and big pagoda pockets. Tucking on the collar and pocket flaps of the matching jacket.

House Speaker Warns Against More Outbreaks

Ottawa, March 4 — (CP)—The normal House of Commons has been astonished to behave itself.

In off-and-on turmoil for days, the chamber Thursday was told by Speaker Gaspard Fauteux to observe "decorum" and "dignity" or he would be threatened to lose on the next member who made a certain remark about the Speaker.

Angered by House unruliness in a daily series of rather - shaking demonstrations, the harassed presiding officer finally threw the book at the members in a formal declaration from his throne.

He laid down the law to the Commons during a clamorous scrap over whether Transport Minister Chevrier be allowed to finish a speech after exceeding his 40-minute limit. Then he also shouted angling from both sides finished a remark apparently reflecting on the Speaker's fairness.

Dr. Fauteux, who had been up and down all week in attempts to confine the members to routine parliamentary rules of order, got up once more at that point to say that he will not put up with certain remarks from a certain section of the House.

"The next time I notice who has pronounced such remarks against the Speaker while I have all the ways tried to be fair it, both sides of the House shall be guilty and the chair shall act to do — to name the member or members who are doing it."

Can be Ejected

To "name" a member means that he is ejected from the chamber for the rest of the day's sitting.

The Speaker did not identify the remark he objected to. In the confusion of shouts and desk - thumping, it was not caught by the press gallery or by the official parliamentary reporters.

However, it was learned later. It was a remark to this effect—Why don't you be fair to both sides?

No one was sure from what quarter of the chamber it was spoken.

Upshot of the demonstration was that Mr. Chevrier, though he tried three times to go on talking beyond his time, had to sit down without finishing his speech when Progressive Conservatives insisted on observance of the House rules.

The rules say that a speaker can talk beyond his allotted time only with the consent of the members.

Besides having Speaker Fauteux shake the House by the ears this "courtesy," Mr. Chevrier also had — at one time or another — Prime Minister King, Labor-Progressive Member Fournier and M.J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader plead that he be given a peaceable hearing.

One of the importunities had only discernable effect on Progressive Conservative opponents who gave Mr. Chevrier one of the roughest hecklings of the session.

The prime minister was in evident wrath when he rose. Mr. Coldwell was irked, too, as he advised the Progressive Conservatives to "behave like gentlemen."

House, People Will be Given Facts on Pact

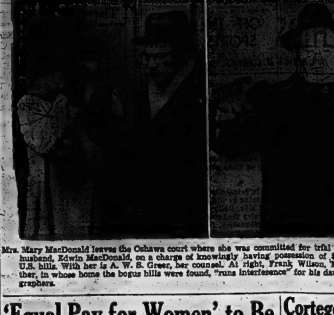
Ottawa, March 4. (CP)—Canada's parliament and people will be given the substantial facts of the Atlantic security pact before it is signed and offered for ratification, if present plans materialize.

This was learned Thursday from a high authority, but no immediate comments on details were available.

However, External Affairs Minister Pearson, who has viewed the next-to-final draft of the pact said Thursday that it is in substance quite satisfactory".

This was taken to mean that the "economic consultation" clause for which Canada has been the main proponent, was embodied in the draft.

Some of the negotiating countries—Canada, the United States, United Kingdom, France, Belgium, Netherlands and Luxembourg—have not been particularly interested in the economic clause.



Canada's negotiator, Ambassador Hume Wrong, has held out for a clause that will call for consultation and economic collaboration looking toward betterment of trade between the participants.

This is to give the pact an importance beyond the immediate needs of mutual defence for defence—something that will keep it alive even in periods when the present threats to world peace may disappear.

An opportunity for parliament to talk with intelligence on the substance of the pact is provided within a fortnight, possibly today when the house sits next week.

It is known the government feels it has a moral and parliamentary duty for Canada to take and one which should be taken with the full knowledge that the majority of the people are behind it.

There seems little doubt that the major political groups are for the proposed pact as a defence pact and will find little in its essential details to oppose.

Mrs. Mary MacDonald leaves the Oshawa court where she was committed for trial yesterday, with her husband, Erwin MacDonald, on a charge of knowingly having possession of $17,640 in counterfeit U.S. bills. With her is A. W. S. Greer, her counsel. At right, Frank Wilson, Mrs. MacDonald's father, in whose home the bogus bills were found, "runs interference" for his daughter against photographers.

Ontario Caribou Have Survived Winter Nicely

Toronto, March 4 — (CP) — Ontario caribou are surviving the winter nicely in the new Lands and Forest Department sanctuary serves in northwestern Ontario, the department reported Thursday.

An observation party recently flew over the area to check up on their large-horned charges. The flight covered the Red Lake valley, north and west around Coll, Nungesser, Windigo, Brough, Dogpaw, Maddicks Lakes, north towards Barens Lake and west to Chukuni.

Snow tracks indicated the caribou were milling about lake edges. The police of the plane presented the party from sighting within more than 100 feet of the animals but one group of three—a male and two females—stood still long enough to give the observers a good look.

They seemed in good condition with fine, light grey manes over the shoulders and with horns estimated at 10-12 inches.

The Woodland Caribou Game Preserve is on the extreme northwest boundary of the province and covers an area of nearly 2,000 square miles.

The woodland caribou have been seen occasionally in the southern James Bay area and in the rugged country between the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways north of Lake Superior. They are regarded as profitable game but there is little hope of an open season on them in Ontario for some years, Lands Minister Scott said.

Say Scotland Yard Has Evidence Enough to Charge Man in Custody With Gruesome Series of Murders

London, March 4. (Reuters)—Detectives of Scotland Yard were reported Thursday night to have collected enough evidence to charge a man now in custody with the most gruesome series of murders in Britain's crime annals.

The victims were five women whose bodies are believed to have been dissolved in acid and their property sold with the aid of forged documents.

According to one report, the murderer is believed to have netted £ 32,800 ($131,200) out of the sale of his victim's property.

John Haigh, 40, executive of a plastics firm, has been held on a charge of murdering Mrs. Olive Durand-Deacon, a wealthy widow who disappeared recently from a quiet London hotel.

Quite investigation into her disappearance has covered the area in which some of the five died, the newspapers did not take any direct connection between her death and theirs.

With the exceptions of the Yard, all London newspapers today devoted columns of their meagre newsprint allotment to the details of the police investigation.

The tabloid Daily Mirror stated: "It may take squads of police many weeks yet to piece together full details of the murderer and his ghastly practices."

The Mirror printed his description of the police interrogation of the man whom it calls only "The Vampire."

"Hour after hour, before relays of secretives and shorthand writers crowded into the bottle-painted interrogation room of a London police station, the vampire has been questioned.

"Drinking long after mug of strong police tea, but never forgetting to crook his little finger genteelly away from the horrible china — the vampire has shown himself a man of easy manners.

"He wears a quiet suit, of immaculate cut, with a discreet tie. His hair is neatly brushed his nails well kept."

According to the Mirror, "friends of the man believed to be the vampire knew him as a quiet little man of charm and taste, a pianist who played Chopin and Mozart to them."

Another report said a welding engineer in a south country town told detectives he had made an order for a man two oil drums lined with a special acid-proof paint and steel trough fitted with a drain. He added that he bought sulphuric acid for the man last Summer.

'Equal Pay for Women' to Be World-Wide Battle Cry By United Nations Commission

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Lake Success, N.Y., March 4— (CP)—"Equal pay for women" will be the world-wide battle cry raised by the United Nations Commission on the status of women at its meeting in Beyrouth, Lebanon, March 24.

The 16-member commission was created nearly three years ago to protect the rights of women all over the world.

It only debate and pass resolutions but its members point to the following as its essential "talk".

Eight countries have given women suffrage since the commission passed a resolution in 1946 recommending that United Nations countries to give women equal political rights with men.

The countries are Argentina, Belgium, Burma, India, Japan, Korea, Philippines and Venezuela. Four others—Chile, Colombia, China Rica and Panama—are drafting constitutional amendments for women suffrage.

The battle for equal pay is ex-pected to be tougher.

The Commission laid the groundwork at its session last January. It adopted a resolution backing the principle of equal pay and called on United Nations members to encourage it, especially in the civil service.

Twenty countries have made reports on the subject which will be studied at the coming session. Most say that the principle is written into their constitutions.

Australia replied that the commission's request for information had been passed on to provincial governments. In the Dominion, the question comes under provincial jurisdiction.

Britain conceded the justice of equal pay as a broad principle but said she could not apply it now because of economic and financial conditions.

After studying the reports the commission will plan its battle. It will also study and discuss women's political and civil equality, all opportunities and the conflicting laws relating to marriage and divorce.

The battle for equal pay is ex-divorce.

Cortege Passes Quietly Through Pickets to Grave

New York, March 3 (AP)—Francis Cardinal Spellman led 106 seminarians and priests peacefully through pickets lined today to bury dead at strike-bound Calvary Cemetery.

Ignoring the mounting Cardinal, dressed in street clothes, sat in the front seat of one of three buses that took the group past the silent pickets into the cemetery—largest Roman Catholic burial ground in the metropolis.

The priests and students from St. Joseph's Seminary in Yonkers, N.Y., immediately were divided into 10 groups of 10 men each and set to work to dig graves for about 600 bodies that have been left unburied in the seven-week strike.

The Cardinal, who has denounced the union leading the strike as a "communist-dominated," said on his arrival that "I hoped we'd never have to do it but we'll regard as here until our task is done."

Cardinal Spellman did not assist with the digging himself. He helped in allotting the work, however, and said he would remain at the cemetery all day.

The pickets made no effort to interfere with the volunteer workforce but several made bitter comments about the Cardinal and his helpers. One tipped his hat as the buses drove past him.

Ruggieri said the 300 strikers, members of the United Cemetery Workers (C.I.O.), are all Roman Catholics. He said the number of pickets had not been increased and that no demonstration would be made against the Cardinal.

The strikers want a five-day week at the same $59.40 pay they now get for six days.

U.K.'s Budget Biggest Since Before War

London, March 4 — (AP) — Britain next year will spend her biggest peacetime defence budget since the years before she demobilized after the Second World War.

The House of Commons Thursday night approved defence estimates of £ 759,880,000 ($3,039,-640,000) by a vote of 227 to 17.

This year, after Defence Minister A. V. Alexander had declared the huge expenditure was necessary "so long as Russia maintained her veto on peace and security."

He defended the budget as Communists chiefs in Mexico and the Philippines joined the Communist leaders of France, Italy, Germany, Britain, the United States, Finland and Denmark in declaring loyalty to Russia in event of a World War West way.

President Truman in Washington said American Communist leaders who indicated they would side with Russia were "traitors." Also alluding to the string of Communist declarations, French Premier Henri Queuille declared "Frenchmen must do their duty against all possible invasion."

French Budget

He spoke in the National Assembly which also voted early today the sum of 99,864,477,000 francs ($183,200,000) the January and Mar. forces for March and April. The French parliament has budgeted 580,000,000,000 francs for the armed forces in 1948, but authorizing actual expenditures in small amounts until the government settles on a long-term over-all defence policy.

The vote was 365 to 194 after Communists attacked the expenditure on grounds that the French government was preparing an aggressive policy against Russia.

The sum of more than $3,000,000,000 voted for defence in 1948-49 by the British House of Commons compares with a little over $2,500,000,000 which Britain budgeted early in 1939, before the outbreak of war. She spent $6,-000,000,000 in 1946-47 before she had demobilized, nearly halved that in 1947-48 and estimated expenditures at $3,770,000,000 in the year ending this March 31. Reapproving the defence budget the House beat down, 291 to 155, all conservative amendment questioning whether the money is being spent wisely.

104TH BIRTHDAY

Brantford, March 4 — (CP)— Mrs. Lydia Gordon will spend her 104th birthday on Sunday, receiving guests at her home near Harley, south of here. The house is a log cabin, about 120 years old. Mrs. Gordon, although her eyesight is failing, takes care of her own room and does her own sewing by hand.

Calcutta, India — (CP) — Mass radiography is to be tried in India for the first time to combat T.B. A unit will be obtained shortly by the government from Britain for experimental surveys among industrial laborers, the worst sufferers.

U.C. Missionary Fund Givings Show Increase

Toronto — The United Church of Canada has raised for her missionary and benevolent work through the Missionary and Maintenance Fund the sum of $1,540,-572 it was announced today by Mr. A. E. McBride, chairman of the National Missionary and Maintenance Committee.

Mr. McBride said that this is an increase of $365,537 or 17 per cent over last year.

Since 1942 the church has increased its givings for this Fund by over $1,000,057.

The objective for 1950, the Twenty - fifth Anniversary Year, is $2,000,000. Every Conference has secured an increase; the Bay of Quinte, Toronto and Alberta Conference reaching 100 per cent of the objective set by the last General Conference.

Television Experiments May Cost C.B.C. as Much as Three To Five Million Dollars

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 4 (CP)—Experiment in the field of television may cost the CBC—as a start—anywhere from $3,000,000 to $5,-000,000, it has been estimated unofficially. The money likely will come as a loan—or an advance—from the government.

Revenue Minister McCann Thursday told the Commons the government's policy on television will be "announced in due course" but he gave no hint of the time.

Dr. McCann, who reports to parliament on CBC activities, made the statement after Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) referred to reports that the policy will provide for a "government loan to the CBC to cover initial television developments."

The corporation has obtained loans from the government on several occasions in the past. In 1938 the corporation borrowed $300,000 and in 1939 it borrowed $750,000.

Loans Repaid

A. D. Dunton, CBC chairman, says both those loans were repaid with interest during the war.

In 1946, the CBC borrowed $1,-000,000 at 2¾ per cent interest and last year it borrowed $1,250,-000 at 3¼ per cent interest.

The loans were to form extension or improvement of capital works of CBC broadcasting facilities.

The $3,000,000 loan bears interest at a rate of 2¾ per cent from March 17, 1947, and will be amortized over 20 years, starting Jan. 1, 1953. Repayment is scheduled to be made in 40 equal semi-annual instalments of $99,-738, including principal and interest.

The second loan, at higher interest, carries similar conditions except that the payments do not start until 1957.

The loans, approved by parliament during passage of the estimates of expenditures and revenues, are repaid out of the revenues which the CBC contains from licence fees and from commercial programs.

Mr. Dunton has declined to say how the CBC will proceed with development of television if the money is obtained.

Some private firms which have applied to the CBC for television licences have estimated it would cost them from $1,000,000 to $2,-000,000 to install such a station and extent it to a revenue-producing basis.

CBC officials have estimated that the licence fee for a receiving set would run about $10 a year. That would be over and above the $2.50 fee now paid for ordinary radio receiving sets.

Angered Russians Run Down Flag of Red Mission Hdqtrs.

By BRACK CURRY

Frankfurt, March 4 — (AP) — Eight angry Russian soldiers ran down the red flag over the Russian repatriation mission headquarters today and roared off to the Soviet zone in Germany in a motor convoy packed with their belongings.

The Russians were grim-faced as they left the building in which they had been quartered for two days by American military police. One American girl bystander as he left the mission grounds.

The siege of the big yellow house finally forced Russian headquarters in Berlin to order the mission to comply with American orders to leave the United States occupation zone.

But Russian authorities struck back quickly. They ordered members of a United States grave registration unit to leave the Soviet zone at once. A five-man American grave registration team arrived in Berlin from Mecklenburg Thursday night. Another five-man unit was believed en route from Thuringia.

The eight men had been sealed in their quarters for two days by a "little blockade" imposed by the United States army after they failed to heed an order from Gen. Lucius D. Clay to leave the American zone by March 1. Clay, United States military governor, said they had no reason to remain, as the return of displaced persons to Russia had dwindled to almost nothing.

The Russians protested that the order to leave was a violation of the Yalta and Teheran agreements but their protest was rejected by the United States State Department.

Durnan Sparking Canadiens' Drive For Second Place

A brilliant goal-tending performance and the will to overcome injuries have fired Montreal Canadiens with far higher ambitions than they dreamed of a few weeks ago.

As the National League schedule nears an end, the Habitants—until recently unsure of a playoff position—are determined to bounce Boston Bruins out of second place and go on to win the Stanley Cup.

Montreal meets Boston tomorrow night at Canadian victory would leave the Habs only one point behind the Bruins with seven games to go.

In the other Saturday tilts, the last place New York Rangers play at Toronto and the League-leading Detroit Red Wings play host to Chicago.

The Canadiens have been spurred into their current optimism by the amazing performance of goalie Bill Durnan—who hasn't allowed an opposition puck past him for 163 minutes and 45 seconds—more than 2 2-3 games.

He hasn't been scored on since Chicago's Roy Conacher—the league's top scorer —pushed one past him at 16:15 of the first period Feb. 24. Montreal went on to win that game 3-1, then downed Detroit 1-0 last Saturday and pushed Toronto out of third place with a 2-0 shutout Wednesday.

Has Comfortable Lead

Big Bill also has a comfortable lead in the Vezina trophy competition with 119 goals against in 32 games. His nearest competitor is Detroit's Harry Lumley with 127 goals in 33 games.

So hot are the Canucks that Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll quotes Toronto general manager Conn Smythe as telling Montreal coach Dick Irvin that he thinks the Habitants will win the Stanley Cup.

The Leafs, however, may have something to say about Montreal's chance. Now in fourth place, the Torontonians are only two points behind Montreal. They also have been the victims of many injuries.

Chicago in fifth place, is four points behind Toronto and Rangers trail, three points behind the Black Hawks.

Detroit holds a seven-point edge over Boston.

2,715,000 BABIES BORN IN U. S. IN 1948

Washington, March 3 — (AP)— An estimated 2,715,000 babies were born in the United States in 1948, second largest number in American history, the government announced. The record was 3,076,000 babies in 1947.

Ezzard Charles Central Figure In Control Issue

New York, March 4 — (AP) — Ezzard Charles, heavyweight contender from Cincinnati, became the central figure today in the giant tug-of-war for control of boxing's big money.

The two warring promotional groups — the 20th Century Sporting Club and Joe Louis' newly formed International Boxing Club — both contend they have Charles under contract.

Louis, in announcing this week that he was vacating his heavyweight championship to become a promoter, said he would match Charles against Joe Walcott this summer for the title.

The Brown Bomber said he had both fighters tied up under "exclusive two-year contracts."

The men who run the 20th Century Club returned to New York from Florida yesterday and immediately fired a broadside at this newest challenge to their empire.

Sol Strauss, 20th Century lawyer and director, said he had a contract safely tucked away giving the club charge of Charles' next ring bout in November.

This statement brought a round of denials and gave rise to speculation that the first round of the promotional war may be settled in the courts.

Harry Mendel, assistant to Louis in the I. B. C., which is backed by wealthy James D. Norris and Arthur M. Wirtz of Chicago, said such a contract was signed.

The who's-got-Charles turn was only one in a series of fast-breaking developments. Others were:

1. Louis, now on an exhibition tour in the Caribbean, announced he planned to come to New York next Monday to complete some business in connection with his new undertaking.

2. Harvey Miller, executive secretary of the National Boxing Association, gave out a vague statement that the N. B. A. will insist the winner of the Walcott-Charles fight must meet the winner of a match between Gus Lesnevich and Lee Savold.

3. Phil Daly, Savold's manager, confirmed he had a verbal agreement with the 20th Century Sporting Club. Daly, however, said he would claim the heavyweight title if Savold could beat the winner of the bout between Ernie Woodcock and Freddie Mills.

Bob Masterson Has Been Offered Job at Winnipeg

(By The Canadian Press)

The Globe and Mail in a sports page story today said it had learned reliably that Bob Masterson, University of Toronto rugby coach, has been offered the job as coach of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

It was reported that Masterson was offered a two-year contract at $5,000 per season. The University of Toronto Athletic directorate met Thursday night to determine whether it could match such an offer but no statement was issued.

At El Paso, Tex., professional golfer Ben Hogan was operated on Thursday night to relieve a blood clot on his lung. The operation was performed by Dr. Alton Ochsner, New Orleans specialist who flew here Thursday.

After the surgery Dr. Ochsner said Hogan would "completely recover" and he should be "up and around within a few months."

Hogan was badly injured in an automobile-bus accident near Van Horn, Tex., Feb. 22.

Organized baseball will have a new set of rules for the 1950 season. The National Baseball Rules Committee agreed at Sarasota, Fla., Thursday to make the game, effective completely in time to be ratified at the major league meeting next December. It directed that a sub-committee of three be appointed for April 15 to get to work on the new code.

At Detroit, Grant Warwick, a Boston Bruin hockey player charged with assault against a hockey fan, Norman Kelley of Detroit, was absolved by a doctor Thursday in the death of Kelley.

Dr. C. W. Evarts told chief assistant prosecutor Ralph Garber that the injury reported inflicted Nov. 24 at the Detroit-Boston National Hockey League game was slight. Evarts said his patient died Feb. 22 of a heart condition for which he had been treated for some time.

Connie Mack thinks his Philadelphia Athletics can win the 1949 American League pennant "if we all do our jobs". The 86-year-old owner-manager of the A's made the statement at a training camp pep talk at West Palm Beach, Fla. Connie hasn't been so optimistic in nearly 20 years. The last time the A's won the pennant was in 1931.

Excellent skiing conditions at Collingwood, Owen Sound, Hallowell, Owen Sound and Summit were reported Thursday by the Ontario Travel Department. The department said skiing conditions were good at Haliburton, Huntsville, Orangeville, Barrie and Kenora.

Fred W. Hooper's Olympia, with Ted Atkinson aboard, won the $50,000 added Flamingo stakes at Miami's Hialeah track Thursday by a length and a half. Marlet Stable's Sneak was second and George D. Widener's service third. It was a half-length behind for third.

The British Empire games trials and the Canadian Senior track and field championships for men and women will be held at Toronto's Varsity Stadium, Senior Stadium probably July 15 and 16, it was announced Thursday night at Montreal. The Dominion Junior, juvenile and midget championships also will be held in Toronto, one week prior to the senior championships.

CHILDREN IN CARE OF C.A.S.

Brantford, March 3 — (CP) — Seven children of a family of eight of Mrs. Nellie Anguish, Kilchenny, sentenced here Wednesday to six months definite and three months indefinite for bigamy, have been in the car of the Haldimand county Children's Aid Society for nearly two years.

Magistrate R. J. Gillen, in disclosing this, said he wanted to "avoid publicity" and said in taking the woman away from her family and imposing what seemed to be a harsh sentence.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

So they clipped us, eh? Ned Vilarelli's many Peterborough Legionnaires came to town last night and in a well-played game they out a win over the CNR Diesels.

Ned, the gray haired veteran of many a hockey war, and "little peteen" along with Honey Tompkins a year ago, when any Belleville fan would have hung their hides on any farmer's fence, hasn't lapped much. The sarn, that is.

From what we understand, the Vilarelli Legionnaires are sitting pretty awaiting the outcome of their own Senior "B" playoffs.

The Peterborough Rockey Club, intra-city rivals of the Legionnaires have gone bye-bye insofar as the group is concerned, which is a trifle on the sad side. Belleville fans cognizant of the sweet or less bitter rivalry that existed between the Petes B. C. and Vilarelli's Legionnaires, figure perhaps that the lads might joust down here. But no soap, it seems.

That is heartless, although it is no business of ours, would seem to be a spot of news for the Peterborough Archives. But it appears, we may have to be content with knocking off the Legionnaires who after all, are representative of one of the best sporting communities in this neck of the woods.

Last night's game between Peterborough Legion and the CNR Diesels, while productive of brilliant hockey, saw neither side taking any chances. Injuries that in Belleville teams, while playing a wide-open brand of the game, and each contest mind you, of cupping the win and, gave a large crowd of spectators an inkling of what might be things to come.

The Legion matched stride for stride by the fast-skating Diesels front line which looked like a million dollars. They're good. There is no argument about that. There's fast opposition in the around the nets, have a fine system at play. They will do. So will Diesels.

Yep, the Diesels did not lose any prestige by that setback last night. In fact, they will do them good. They get a lot of kinks out of their collective, here-to-fore, non-working muscles and their performance last night ironed out plenty of muscular wrinkles.

Saturday night, at M'den William Cook informs us, sees his Belleville Rocket Junior "B's" travel to Kingston to take on the Navy team of that town in the last game of the district Junior "B" series. Navy, it seems, will be the nighcap of a double-header. The Nylons, (remember, a Senior B team) clash with either Napanee or Picton in the first game, we think it is "Navy" in an effort to decide the schedule playoffs.

If Nylons clip their opposition tomorrow night, for the second straight week-end, they will meet Diesels here Monday night in the first game of the group finals playoffs. It is presumed, we do not know as of this second game of the all-important series will be played at a date to be named by the powers-that-be.

While we do not know the exact score regarding this whipping of Eaton down Kingston way, we hope this bowler boy business will be over by time the baseball season rolls around. There's a meeting next week of the Belleville District Baseball League at Kingston centre—and maybe that will relieve this somewhat torrid hockey situation.

Toronto, March 4 (CP)—If the Canadian Rugby Union is looking for a big, new field for the east-west final this fall, the Canadian National Exhibition grandstand is there for the asking.

Permanent seating capacity at present is 34,000, but 24,000 additional temporary bleachers could be installed to raise the seating capacity by an additional 10,000 in time for the big game, says Dr. Gordon Eakins, CNE general manager.

Capacity of Varsity Stadium here, where the Dominion final was held last year, is about 20,000.

"All the seats are good," says Hughes. "The seats are closer to the playing field than at any big Dominion or Grey Cup game I've seen a lot of them."

Eventual plans call for temporary steel bleachers which can be taken down and stored. They would bring seating space up to some 40,000.

The stadium would not be available from July 15 to Sept. 15 as the stage for the Exhibition show would be on the field then. But even before July 15, the field would be available for soccer which seems to be gaining in popularity over here.

Companion Story

And about soccer, Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle hands readers a story with this story about the Scot wiring his mother on the death of his wife. The yarn illustrates the popularity of the game in the land of the heather.

The Scot handed the telegrapher the message reading:

"Mary passed away yesterday, funeral Tuesday." He was told he could send four more words without additional charge.

When he put the message in again, read:

"Mary passed away yesterday, funeral Tuesday, Celtic two, Rangers nothing."

London's Harringay Arena hasn't a hope of becoming a National Hockey League farm club. The reason: Dogs and hockey don't mix.

That is the opinion of well-informed sources who noted the arrival in Canada recently of Tony Nicklin, product of Fort Frances, Ont., and Harringay's managing director.

The G.B.A. operates Harringay Arena as a stadium to its string of dog tracks and this "mixes the two immediately," a source said. "Hockey interests don't wish to become mixed up with dog-track operators and think it's just whistling in the dark."

Nicklin and Frank Gentle, of London, top man of the G.B.A., came to Canada with the idea to last year's N.H.L. officials and returned to Britain empty handed.

Has-Tied Hockey

The idea of trying to get NHL farm club players to Harringay is aimed at slitinating the cost of sending a team of Canada every year in search of talent and also to stop players from using British offers —which go up to $100 a week in a few cases —in dealings with Canadian teams.

Under the Harringay plan, the N.H.L. club would direct players to London and would stipulate salaries to be paid. This means the players would be forced to give up the right of hiring themselves out to the highest bidder and the supposed set-up smacks of hog-tied hockey.

Sunny Speaks Up

John F. (Bunny) Ahearne of London, secretary of the British Ice Hockey Association which controls the game in Britain, has entered the discussion with an observation that pro hockey would not be a paying proposition in England because clubs would need at least 14 players. But Bunny's numbers are out—British clubs have been using 12 players for years and they would continue to use 12.

Bunny says also that such clubs as Streatham (in London), Brighton and Nottingham couldn't consider pro hockey because accommodation in the arenas ranges from 2,000 to 3,000.

But would they be included in the proposed setup?

Harringay (capacity 8,700), Wembley (capacity 8,000) and Earl's Court (capacity 7,500) quite conceivably could break away from the B.I.H.A. and link up with Paris (capacity 12,000) — an hour's plane hop from London. The smaller clubs would be left to their own devices.

Professor Says Sweeping Does Not Help Curling

Saskatoon, March 6 — (CP) Curlers regard sweeping as an integral part of the "frenzie" game.

However, few skips today are aware that a cheerful Iconoclast, Dr. E. L. Harrington of the University of Saskatchewan physics department, decided to investigate just how much effect sweeping has.

They probably would be amazed at the conclusion he reached: the effect of sweeping on the rock's progress, after the ice has gained a sufficient polish, is negligible.

The experiment Dr. Harrington devised was purposely simple—so simple that doubters could try it for themselves.

He constructed a mechanical form of propulsion for the rock in order to eliminate the personal factor in delivery. This was simply two wires supporting the rock on a form of saddle, in which a pin was inserted under the handle. The pin was attached to a wall in such a way that it would be jerked from beneath the handle the moment the rock touched the ice.

The speed of the rock was governed by a simple, simple "trigger" mechanism. This was a strap attached at one end to a ring at the "equator" of the rock and at the other to the wall. The distance the rock was pulled back in a pendulum motion would regulate the distance it would travel.

Alternate rocks were swept over a period of time to eliminate a possible personality factor in the ice or stone condition during the experiment. And the test was carried out under varying conditions of temperature to ascertain that this factor would have no bearing on the findings.

The outcome of such discovery might be expected to amount to a minor revolution in the game. Actually, it caused only a ripple of controversy when Dr. Harrington's results were published years ago.

As for the instigator of the whole thing, the professor is still an ardent curler though well advanced in years. And naturally, he continues to sweep the rock along with the rest of his rink.

"Sweeping has such a valuable psychological effect, and furnishes such convenient alibis. It would take the fun out of the game if one just stood aside and rolled the rock on its way," he says.

PROVIDENCE REDS BEATEN

Indianapolis, March 6 (AP) — Indianapolis Capitals won a 6-3 victory Thursday night over Providence Reds, Eastern Division champions of the American Hockey League.

Ed Nicholson got the Caps away in front at 1:26 of the first period, but Carl Liscombe tied the count at 3:34.

Indianapolis moved up the game with three goals in the second period while Providence matched shorthanded. Cliff Simpson, Nelson Podoloff and Al Dewsbury got the goals. Harvey Teno scored for Providence before the period ended.

Gordon Haldy made it 5-3 for Indianapolis early in the third period and Albert Paul rifled in a long one for Providence, but Eddy Bruneteau matched it.

Veeck Heading For California

Sarasota, Fla., March 4 (AP)— Bill Veeck heads for California today to take up his Cleveland hold-out problems after airing his dispute with Yankee Boss George Weiss before baseball commissioner A. B. Chandler.

Veeck's conference with Chandler, recalled over the signing of two Negro players.

Weiss protested the Indians' signing of shortstop Artie Wilson. He said Wilson agreed orally to play for the Newark Bears, a Yankee farm club.

Weiss accused Veeck of "unethical practices" and lodged a formal protest. Veeck answered with a counter-charge, protesting the Yankees' signing of one Luis Marquez. Veeck said the Indians had obtained earlier a 125-day option.

SCORES PERFECT END

Saskatoon, March 4 — (CP)— An unorthodox curling score was posted at Saskatoon Granite Curling Club Thursday night after one of the club matches. The score: Hemstreet 16; Todd 8 (extra end).

Al Hemstreet and Jack Todd were tied 8-8 at the conclusion of their regular 10-end game and Hemstreet settled the issue (but definitely) on the extra end, scoring a perfect eight-end.

The rare eight-ender in the extra end may have made curling history but sportsters are thumbing the pages of curling records.

Dusseldorf, (AP) — Village officers or nearby Dessel have rejected a proposal for a public bath-house in the village.

The rejection came after a debate in which it was pointed out that one official reached the age of 80 without taking a bath and suffered no ill effects.

Hamburg, (AP)—A German farmer who stripped and tarred his unfaithful wife and then put her in the pillory for all to see, for all the village to see, was given a suspended sentence of three months.

The farmer and his wife left the court arm-in-arm.

Santa Monica, Calif., (AP) — Miss Cock was Cent, 24-year-old Dutch artist who offered to sell her left ear for $34,000, has found a patron who says she can't sell her ear but allergic to spare ears.

Miss van Gen Iold reporters that Mrs. Marjorie Plant had agreed to sponsor her career. In exchange, Miss van Gent agrees to do the murals in Mrs. Plant's hotel.

The young artist, who, the United States immigration service says, must keep busy or go back to their native land, reported more than considering her ear.

"You know, I just wanted to find out if Americans are more interested in artists' ears or politicians," she said. "It was nip and tuck for a while."

Petes Legion Nudges Diesels In 8-7 Affair

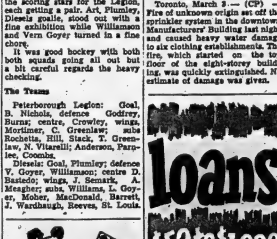
The Canadian National Railways Diesels Senior "B" hockey club went down to their third defeat of the current season here last night when the Peterborough Legionnaires nudged them by a 8-7 scores.

Apart from the exhibition aspect of the affair it was good hockey. Perhaps it was a forerunner of things to come with the chips not down but nevertheless it was one of the best games seen here this season.

The Diesels grabbed a three-two goal lead at the end of the second period with Speedy St. Louis in harness, starred for the railroaders scoring a sensational goal after an individual rush.

Diesels increased their lead as play speeded up and the second period ended with the Diesels on the top end of a 6-4 score. The Legion roared back into action in the third frame tying up the pastime with two goals from Greenlaw and forging ahead when Rowley scored from Burns.

Diesels scored nearly 1,000 saw the two teams in action and it was nip-and-tuck hockey all the way.



Tim Willms scored three goals to head the Diesel hit parade with Leo Goyer getting three assists. Greenlaw and Rochetta were the scoring stars for the Legion, Rochetta a pair. Art, Plumley, Diesels goalie, stood out with a fine exhibition while Williamson and Vern Goyer turned in a fine chore.

It was good hockey with both both squads going all out but a bit careful regards the heavy checking.

The Teams

Peterborough Legion: Goal, B. Nichols, defence Godfrey, Burns; centre, Crowley; wings, Mortimer, C. Greenlaw; subs Rochetta, Hill, Stack, T. Greenlaw, N. Vitarelli; Anderson, Parslee, Coombs.

Diesels: Goal, Plumley; defence V. Goyer, Williamson; centre D. Bastedo; wings, J. Semark, A. Meagher; subs, Williams, L. Goyer, Moher, MacDonald, Barrett, J. Wardhaugh, Reeves, St. Louis.

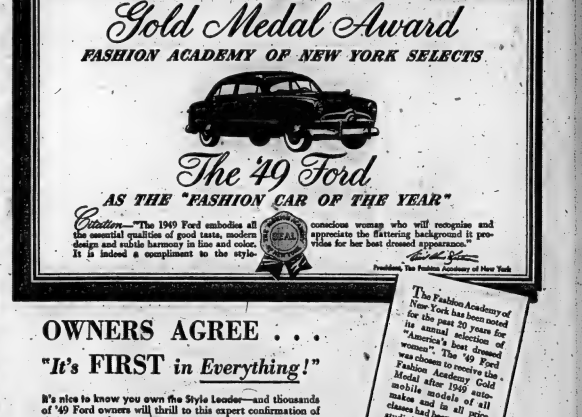
Gus Lesnevich Wins by First Round Knockout

Newark, N. J., March 4 (AP)— Gus Lesnevich was a highly popular heavyweight contender today, but he still wants to regain his light-heavyweight championship.

Mentioned as a likely candidate by retiring champion Joe Louis, Lesnevich made the suggestion look good Thursday night. He dropped Eldridge Eatman, Norwalk, Conn., heavyweight with two right-hand punches after 31 seconds of the first round of a scheduled 10-round bout at the Mosque Arena. Lesnevich weighed 184 3/4, Eatman 196 ¾.

Joe Vella, Lesnevich's manager, said jubilantly in the dressing room that he had received offers from the Tournament of Champions and the 20th Century Sporting Club.

"There is that Russian" Vella shouted as he stormed into the room. "The T. of C. offered us a match with Lee Savold or Rocard Charles, and the Garden people want us and Savold.



"And that guy still wants to fight Mills" (Freddie Mills, the English light-heavyweight lifted Lesnevich's light-heavy title in London last summer).

"We'll take anybody," he concluded, "although we have no definite commitments as yet."

FIRE STARTS SPRINKLER SYSTEM

Toronto, March 3 — (CP) — Fire of unknown origin set off the sprinkler system in the downtown Manufacturers' Building last night and caused heavy water damage to six clothing establishments. The fire, which started on the top floor of the eight-storey building, was quickly extinguished. No estimate of damage was given.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON

New York, March 4 (AP)—You half expected to find Dutch Dan Morgan out in Eighth Avenue pulling heavyweight truck drivers off their seats and asking if they'd like to fight. . . Instead Dan was in his usual spot in the 20th Century Sporting Club muttering softly to anyone who would listen "If I only had a heavyweight, I'd claim the title. Why, even Joe Louis think he is trying to dictate to the public. He can't pick two guys and say they're going to fight for the championship. . . The biggest laugh on that was when Jefferies retired and picked Tommy Root and Marvin Hart to fight for the championship . . . People just laughed at him; men a little fellow named Tommy Burns came along and licked Hart and all the foreign champions and eventually they began to recognize him."

Up-to-Date

Dan made a good point . . . when Gene Tunney retired, it was two years before Max Schmeling-Jack Sharkey emerged to fight it out. Even Joe Louis, having received only doubtful recognition because he won on a foul . . . some young fellow always comes along —Burns or Jack Johnson or Jack Dempsey or Louis—when the situation gets thoroughly confused the public, as Morgan said, recognizes a champion until he has proved his ability in ring with someone who have to lick everyone else in sight or Nick Lenza and Sharkey were one and his International Boxing Club will have the edge in any professional battle. There's always the implied possibility that Louis will "un-retire" for one more fight.

BIG CROWD WITH TEAM

Kitchener, March 4 (CP) — There'll be more fans from the twin cities of Kitchener and Waterloo in Maple Leaf Gardens tonight than ever saw their Flying Dutchmen play at home.

An estimated 4,000 fans will follow their Dutchmen to Toronto for their second game with Toronto Marlboros in the Ontario Hockey Association senior finals. Marlboros won the first game of the best-of-five series 4-3 here Wednesday night.

Only 2,500 people have ever watched the Dutchmen at home in one game because that's all the rink holds.

POLICE PROBING INJURY

Chatham, March 4 — (CP) — Provincial police are investigating how Earl Tobias, 21, of Birnhamthorpe, Mich., came to be lying injured and unconscious by the side of the road near Blenheim Thursday night.

Early today Chatham General Hospital authorities said the youth was still in a semi-conscious condition with severe head injuries but was resting comfortably.

Police said there was a possibility Tobias had been thrown from a speeding car or had been victim of a hit-and-run driver. He was found by a passing motorist.

The gals enjoy their bridge club each Thursday afternoon. The day to meet seems never to come around too soon. Not much do they of playing. But no one gives a squawk. The game is not important as long as they can talk.

Most social bridge clubs now play six hands and pivot, using the rubber bridge type of scoring. At the end of six hands they usually find themselves in an unfinished game or rubber.

This enables one to wind up whether the hour is late or early. Trent Valley bridge players have a short that gives this information exactly.

Bonus for part score in an unfinished game is 50 points. Bonus for one game in an unfinished rubber is 300 points. Thus, one game and part score in the unfinished game of an unfinished rubber pays a total bonus of 350.

At such a party, each pair had made a game during the first four deals. In the fifth deal, east and west had bid and made three hearts for a score of 90. The sixth deal is shown here:

	NORTH
	♠J 9 6 3
	♥8 7 4 3
	♦A J
	♣K 9 4
WEST		EAST
♠K Q 4 3		♠10 7 5
♥10 5		♥K Q 9 2
♦7 4 3 2		♦Q 10 8 6
♣Q J 10		♣5 2
	SOUTH
	♠A 8
	♥A J 6
	♦K 9
	♣A 7 6 3

South became the declarer at two clubs and made it for a score of 40. Thus, at the end of six deals each pair had one game and a part score. Each was entitled to bonuses totalling 600.

Suppose south and north had made a game in the sixth deal. Then east-west would get no bonus of any kind. They'd be rubber was ended. There was no unfinished game and no unfinished rubber.

The only bonus in such a case would be 500 to south-north. This is the bonus paid for winning a rubber when opponents have won a game.

The scoring committee once was asked why they did not provide a bonus for keeping quiet. They said such a bonus would never find any takers. Man made laws are like that.

TheMovieColumn

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood March 4 (AP)—Only one of every ten American movies can expect to make a profit at home.

That's one of the blunt facts facing Hollywood, which is slowly realizing that its current low employment may become normal.

Eric Johnston, head of the producers' group, has had some facts and figures about the movie industry whipped up by his experts. Among the findings:

Nine of every ten movies can't pay off in the United States and have to depend on foreign showings to make a profit.

United States movie attendance has declined during the last 10 years, compared to other amusements.

Production costs have risen so sharply that for every dollar spent in 1941, $1.25 is necessary today.

Hard Facts

Faced with these and other hard facts—such as the steady increase of film receipts from aboard —many movie economists picture the industry as going through a readjustment like that in aircraft or shipbuilding.

"A couple of years ago, there was widespread unemployment in those two industries," one of the economists told me. "Now there is little, because the workers have gone into other fields."

Unlike the war industries, the movie boom didn't end with the advent of peace. It came when post war spending slackened off and foreign countries from the money going to film companies.

Picture Brighter

The unemployment picture looks slightly brighter since the bleak days of last December. But there is no cause for undue optimism.

There has been a steady rise in the volume of applicants from film workers for state employment insurance at the Hollywood office.

Indications point to a gradual increase in the shift of unemployed film workers to other industries. But this has been a slow process. The glamor and easy money of the movie business is hard to leave behind.

ORDERED TO PAY DAMAGES

Toronto, March 4 — (CP) — An assine court jury before Mr. Justice Keiller MacKay Thursday ordered John Magus to pay $4,017 damage to John C. Wright who was assaulted by Magus last April 30 prior to opening a new cocktail bar above his restaurant.

Magus now is serving a three-year-sentence for the attack on Wright.

The court learned Magus had kicked Wright down the stairs, struck him over the head with a bottle after giving him notice to vacate the premises. Wright's injuries required 210 stitches.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

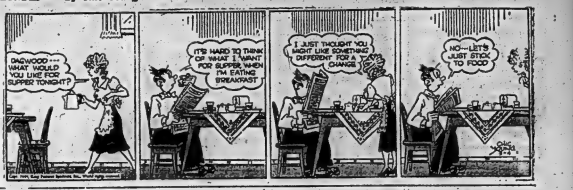
Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was looking at the financial page of his paper with a unsatisfied expression, and ma said, William, I've been trying to think of words to discribe the kind of a woman Bertha Cornhouse is, but the worst discription I can think of seems too flattering.

Dont abandon the serth, my dear, pop said. Maybe I can help you, he said, and ma said, I wish you would, it would fill a long felt need.

Is she the kind of a woman that asks you about your operation just as a flimsy excuse to interrupt you with a long boring account of her last visit to the doctor? pop said, and ma said, That's the very sort of thing I wouldn't put patssed her, but it's intirely too mild to cover her general caracter. For instance she's the kind of a woman who tells you with a gush in her voice that she never saw you with a more becoming hat, and all the time you can practically hear the repressed shrieks of disdain behind her little calculating eyes, but just how does one begin to do her justice either, ma said.

Perhaps she's the kind of a woman who'll write you out of a recipee for a dish she's famous for, and deliberatly leave out the only ingredient that was werth putting in, pop said, and ma said, Well, that comes closer, but even that isn't deep and diabolical enough.



Dont tell me she's the kind of a woman that crumples up one of your linen guest towels when there's a whole pile of paper towels staring her rite in the face? pop said, and ma said, William, you've hit the nale rite on the scheming head. That's Bertha Cornhouse to a tee, she said.

And she started to do the bridge problem looking like somebody feeling better instead of werse.

No Restraint Placed

He also charged the main defendants "before the war served for German Hitlerite Fascist intelligence and after the war for American Imperialism."

The prosecutor also claimed there had been "no restraints on the defendants," all of whom confessed publicly. He said the trial was "carried out with complete publicity in the presence of foreigners."

He accused all four of Bulgaria's Protestant churches of spreading anti-Russian rumors, these he said included stories about starvation in Russia and 15,000,000 people in slave labor there.

Angrily, he declared:

"As a national representative I have heard many rumors against the Soviet Union. But I have never heard such nasty rumors as those spread by the Protestant churches and these are God-serving people. Only people who have sold their consciences could spread such rumors."

Attempting to paint a picture of the Soviet Union as a leading progressive power, the prosecutor quoted from the writings of George Bernard Shaw and American authors Howard Fast and Upton Sinclair.

After the chief prosecutor, the assistant prosecutor was to make his final speech and then the defence lawyers were scheduled to take over.

The sentencing of the defendants is expected Monday or Tuesday.

Six of the defendants also are charged with black-market currency dealings.

Spying upon Bulgarian law can carry the death penalty. Minimum penalty on conviction is 10 years imprisonment.

The black-market charges carry a maximum of five years in prison and a fine equivalent to $14,000.

Other speakers included Hazen Argue, (CCF—Mt. Mountain), Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre), T.D. Barrett (PC-Norfolk), Park Manson (PC-London) and C. T. Richard (L-Gloucester).

Thrown Into Uproar

The Chamber was thrown into an uproar when Mr. Chevrier sought permission to go beyond his 40-minute speaking time and Progressive Conservative member Alan Ross, Toronto.

In the ensuing rough-and-tumble Sub-Sen. Speaker Gaspard Fauteux threatened to suspend an unidentified member if he repeated a "certain expression." It was learned later that the expression was to the effect that the Speaker should be fair to both sides of the Chamber.

In the opening stages, Revenue Minister McCann said the government's policy on television, still under consideration, will be announced in due course. He disclosed that the House committee on radio will be set up this session.

Resources Minister MacKinnon promised to consider a request for the tabling of order-in-council legalizing the entry of persons who crossed Canada's borders illegally.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner, questioned about reports of a possible break in butter prices, said there was a butter price floor which would support it against a sudden plunge.

Used to Gamble Claim

In what was taken to be an enumeration of Progressive Conservative financial policy, Mr. Cockeram charged that money collected from the taxpayers in excess of the cost of government was being used to "gamble" in foreign exchange. This included $370,000,000 of surplus funds used last year to buy American currency through the exchange control board.

Dealing with foreign capital, he noted that $134,000,000 came into Canada in 1946, the year the dollar was brought to parity. One year later, in 1947, the trend reversed and $18,000,000 went out of the Dominion. The outflow totalled $17,200,000 for the first 12 months of 1948.

He criticized the government's programme to extend exchange control for another two years and said government dollar policies have hampered development that would utilize resources, prevent depression and generally stabilize economy.

Mr. Chevrier, reviewing marine policy, said he felt it was better to have a few ships which could meet competition and give employment than to have a large number of bottoms which could not compete and would remain idle.

Construction Costs More

It should be remembered that ship construction cost more in Canada than in the United Kingdom and that the cost of Canadian operation exceeded that of the U. K. The government's ship replacement program was aimed at replacing slower, wartime ships with faster, modern vessels.

As for suggestions that 50 per cent of Canadian exports be carried in Canadian ships, he felt this would harm Canadian trade. For example, dollar-short countries might buy their goods elsewhere if forced to pay for their shipping in hard currency.

A subsidy plan, he held, would cost approximately $20,000,000 a year and would not guarantee employment of Canadian vessels.

Mr. Bourget warned that the closing of the shipyards in his riding, site of a busy wartime ship-construction program, would be disastrous to the people of Levis.

Deals With Unemployment

Mr. MacInnis touched in the unemployment situation in British Columbia and said 50,000 persons were out of work, 35,000 of them in Vancouver alone. Welfare authorities in Vancouver were worried about the situation and some feared suffering and hardship, possibly even riots, might come to the great port city.

Mr. Barrett dealt with the needs of his rural Ontario constituency and called for sharing repairs and the provision of a ferry for Port Dover, on Lake Erie.

He said the farmer was seeing his markets "slipping away" and fearful that the prices of his products would drop while the prices of those things he has to buy remain high. They blamed the condition on government policies.

The farmer was disturbed, too, by the methods of the income tax division. They could not sizable breaks in butter prices, and there was a butter price floor which would support it against a sudden plunge.

and T. H. Isley (CCF - Waterloo South).

The C. C. F. amendment read: "This House regrets the failure of the government to meet the needs of the people of Ontario and to extend exchange control for another two years and said government dollar policies have hampered development that would utilize resources, prevent depression and generally stabilize economy.

Mr. Chevrier, reviewing marine policy, said he felt it was better to have a few ships which could meet competition and give employment than to have a large number of bottoms which could not compete and would remain idle.

He said the farmer was seeing his markets "slipping away" and fearful that the prices of his products would drop while the prices of those things he has to buy remain high. They blamed the condition on government policies.

The farmer was disturbed, too, by the methods of the income tax division. They could not assess the hundred and one questions they were asked on the tax forms.

Mr. Monroe said the people were worried about the cost of living, housing and taxation. The government, through its taxation policies, had become the "biggest profiteer" in the country and, by accumulating a surplus of $600,000,000, had taken $50 from each man, woman and child in the country.

railroads application for freight-rate increase.

The tendency of the government was to centralize everything in Toronto. He suggested the government should support establishment of small packing plants and stockyards elsewhere in the province.

Changes were "badly needed" in the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph. Some of the officials should be "pensioned off and retired."

He did not advocate that margarine be "shut out of the market." No product, however, should be allowed to "imitate" another product and undermine it."

Unfair to Demand

Mr. Dowling said it was unfair to demand that unions receive votes of 51 per cent of employees in a plant before being certified as bargaining agent. If 50 of the employees were ill or otherwise unable to vote their ballots counted "against the union."

Mr. Gordon Conant blamed recent Hydro-Electric power shortages on "a lack of foresight" in 1943 when the present government was first elected. He suggested a director of temperance education for Ontario be appointed. His work might be financed by the revenue from the liquor tax and licence sales.

Medical authorities had said alcoholism was one of the primary causes of mental and nervous diseases.

Brantford had been one of the first communities in the world—"and the only one in Canada"—to begin to experiment with the addition of fluorine to the water supply to halt tooth decay.

Mr. Isley said that farmers, although they were unlikely ever to achieve a 40-hour week for themselves, approved the idea for industrial workers.

"However, the average farmer knows by now that he prospers only in times of full employment."

Purchasing Power Kept Level

By reducing hours of work, employment would be spread, more men kept earning, and the purchasing power of all families kept fairly level.

Premier Kennedy had said farm production had passed the billion-dollar mark.

"What he did not tell—is that these were inflated dollars."

Even before the government discontinued the subsidy on quality hogs farmers were getting out of hog production because they could see no profit in this line," Canadian hog growers were also competing in world markets. Encouragement to improve breeds had been taken from the producer.

"Some type of low interest mortgage money" was essential to encourage young people to go on sound agriculturists. Young farmers were deserting the farms and going to town "where they were sure of steady income."

Generous Friend of Trade

Mr. Temple said the Ontario government had been "the most generous friend of the liquor trade" in history. The 1946 liquor legislation had had the effect of "debauching" Ontario's major cities.

Mr. Millard charged the government was doing nothing to encourage teachers to remain in their profession. Many were paid less than unskilled workers and almost half of those who had entered the profession in the last 10 years now were engaged in other work.

There was "no rhyme nor reason" to the system of educational grants. There were "gross inequalities." He asked for "a complete breakdown" of all public school grants made from 1945 to the end of the first four months of 1948.

Fire in this Halifax tenement house yesterday claimed eight lives, including a crippled mother, and three of her children. Sixteen persons survived. Fire marshall has started investigation.

Molotov Relieved Of Post of Soviet Foreign Minister

Andrei Vishinsky Takes Over in Startling Shift

London, March 5. (AP)—Russia announced last night that seldom-seen Andrei Y. Vishinsky has replaced Vyacheslav M. Molotov as her Foreign Minister.

This major change in Russia's High Command was disclosed to a startled world in a brief dispatch over Moscow radio. The announcement said, too, that A. I. Mikoyan, Minister of Foreign Trade for the last 23 years, also had been replaced by his deputy.

Dispatches from Moscow said brief, routine stories about the shakup were carried on the back pages of Moscow papers.

Vishinsky, successor to the veteran Molotov, has been regarded as more hither to the west in his speeches than Molotov. Mikoyan was considered by many to be friendly to western powers. High diplomatic sources in Moscow said tals were reluctant to discuss what these change meant.

In general observers saw these possibilities:

1. Molotov, 58, long regarded as the No. 1 man in Russia and most trusted friend of Premier Stalin, is being relieved of some of his duties to give him more time to prepare for taking over Stalin's job.

2. Molotov, despite his long years of service to the Communist cause, has been sacked by Stalin perhaps because of the Soviet power failure to stifle the Marshall plan and the projected North Atlantic Alliance. And he's push the west out of Berlin by blockade.

Cost-of-Living Index Indicates Downward Trend

Ottawa, March 5 (CP) — A tiny crack in the cost-of-living index—an almost negligible drop of one-tenth of a point— today indicated it is possible prices are wards lower prices.

The Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday the index recorded between Jan. 1 and Feb. 1 from its record peak of 159.5 to 159.5 on the basis of declines in the all-important food index.

The index is calculated on the basis 1935-39 equalling 100. At its present reading— 159.5 —the index still is 59 above January 1, 1939. A year ago, at Feb. 1, 1948, it was 150.5.

The January decline, coming behind a jump of seven tenths of a point in December, reversed the trend produced when lower food prices just managed to equal-balance increases for fuel and light, homefurnishings and services and miscellaneous items in January.

The food-index, major factor in the price picture, has climbed since 1948, slipped again, easing to 200.4 from 202.2. Eggs were down again sharply while meats and shortening also declined.

The fuel and light series climbed from 130.0 to 130.2, propelled by firmness in coal and coke, while home-furnishings and services gained 0.3 to 167.2. Increases in tobacco, cigars and cigarettes and miscellaneous recreational items from 138.8 to 139.1 being eased fractionally to 181.8 while rents held even at 131.7.

The slight decline in January contracted with a drop of .3 per cent reported last week in the United States consumer's price index, in the U.S. foods, clothing and house furnishings are showing price declines.

The bureau said the index of industrial material prices still is moving lower. It fell from 160.3 for the week ended Jan. 28 to 159.2 for the week ended Feb. 22 on lower prices for oats, steers, grain rosin, raw wool and raw rubber.

Canadian farm products declined in the same period from 147.2 to 145.1. Poultry, eggs and potatoes went up, but failed to offset declines in grains, hay, livestock, raw wool and hides and skins.

MORE ATTENTION TO PREVENTIVE MEDICINE URGED

Members Request Health Standards be Raised

Ottawa, March 5. (CP) — The Commons talked health yesterday and heard a doctor in its membership urge that greater attention be paid to preventive-rather than curative—medicine.

Dr. W. J. Blair (PC—Lanark) lamented that Canada would fall by the wayside in international affairs unless she raised the national Health Act to the proper standard of any other country.

At the same time, he labelled as "inaccurate, mischievous and misleading" charges that the Canadian medical profession was discouraging the entry of displaced doctors from Europe because of the fear of competition. This was "utter nonsense," the physician declared. He said could establish themselves in Canada if they obtained an ensabling certificate, passed Canadian medical examinations and filed their certificate with the licensing body of the Canadian provincial profession.

Defend Program

From the government benches, Tom Reid (L-New Westminster), Labor-Progressive, M.P., supported Minister Martin ,defended the government's $30,000,000 health program announced last year, and said there has been an "upliftin" already in the basic health country as a result of operation of the plan.

The discussion arose as the Throne Speech debate ended its third week and touched on a number of other subjects, including unemployment. Mrs. Blanche Hanson Sesway and the cost of living.

Other speakers included Rodney Young (CCF-Vancouver Centre), Hazen Argue (CCF-Wood Mountain), Julian Forgeson (PC-Simcoe North), John Simard (L-Soulanges), Gerard Cournoyer (L-Richelieu-Yercheres), Harold Tremblay (PC-Chambly-Rouville), Ronald Moore (CCF-Churchill), D. King Hazen (PC-St. John-Albert), and Reconstruction Minister Winters.

Two Periods Considered

Prime Minister St. Laurent said two periods are being considered for the Easter recess—April 15 to April 18 and April 22 to 25. The cabinet will then spend on progress made by the Chamber.

Pedestrian Struck By Car and Truck Within Few Minutes

London, Ont., March 5 — (CP) —A 50-year-old pedestrian who was struck by both a car and a truck in the space of a few minutes last night died in hospital today of concussion at hospital today, it is Charles Gadbolt, 50, of Ilderton, who suffered facial lacerations and head injuries in the double mishap.

While a detective was attempting to stop traffic on Highway 2 and be lay in the street after being hit by a car, a second truck scattered police and spectators alike and came to rest above Godbolt's prone body. The driver, William Bonk, was arrested and charged with reckless driving.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, March 5 (CP)—Synopsis: Skies have cleared over Southern Ontario with the passage of the centre of the weak disturbance that caused unsettled weather over Ontario on Friday. Temperatures over Southern Ontario will reach the upper 40s today and tonight. Cold air moving down from Hudson Bay arctic drops temperatures to a more seasonal level. In Northern Ontario temperatures are dropping steadily this morning and light snow is falling as the colder air moves in from Northern Canada.

Wheat-Importing Countries Study $1.80 Per Bus. Proposal by Exporters

Washington, March 5 — (CP)— Wheat-importing countries today are studying an offer by exporters to pay wheat at $1.80 a bushel under a proposed international agreement.

However, exporting countries insisted that importing powers buy at least 550,000,000 bushels for a four-year period.

The exporters' concession was announced Friday night by Canada's delegate, Dr. Charles F. Wilson. He told reporters that "a considerable element" of the six prospective exporters offered the terms for a world wheat pact.

Besides a guarantee that the 33 importing countries will import at least 550,000,000 bushels for a four-year period, they required the maximum price to rise each year to be $1.80 a bushel with the floor price dropping 10 cents a year to $1.50 and the latter price to $1.20 in the fourth year.

Reports from Winnipeg said that Canadian farmers would be satisfied with the proposals.

W. J. Parker, president of the Manitoba Pool elevators, said he felt Canadian farmers would be satisfied if Canada's share was similar to last year's proposals which allocated 250,000,000 bushels to the Dominion.

St. Laurent Launches New Drive for Support Of North Atlantic Pact

Montreal, March 5 (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said today no person would have to lack "most elementary realism" to consider another war an impossibility.

Mr. St. Laurent made the statement in a speech prepared for delivery at a Richelieu Club luncheon, one of the many functions on the program for his first official visit to Montreal.

The Prime Minister blamed Russia for the current international unrest.

"I have no need to tell you that, because of the systematic obstruction, the bad will and the unrestrained ambitions of a great power, we cannot say that there is security in the world today," said Mr. St. Laurent.

"In the face of this growing insecurity, nations desirous of maintaining the peace must be self-safeguarding their Christian and democratic institutions and must together take the measures necessary to counter the growing menace of imperialistic totalitarian Communism."

Christian nations have not lost hope that the United Nations will work, but pending that time they are compelled to take measures specially for them to assure their security through the mutual assistance such as the North Atlantic pact.

"For my part, I am convinced that the surest and most practical way of assuring maintenance of peace is to bring about as soon as possible the union of nations friendly to peace.

"It is not sufficient to have rights on our side, we must also have the strength to maintain or make them respected. And that strength only unless we give us."

It was for this reason the government was negotiating the North Atlantic pact.

Mr. St. Laurent said Russian leaders wanted world domination. But if the democracies took steps to convince the communist leaders that they could not win a war they would not start one.

"Realists that they are, they will not start a war with a view to losing it," he said.

He wished to make it clear that if the democracies wanted to be strong it was because they wanted to prevent a war and not start one.

If another war started, the United States and Russia inevitably would be involved and it would not be possible for Canada to remain neutral.

"We are, in effect, situated between these two great powers and, whether we wished it or not, the war would be at our doorstep."

Such a war would not simply be a conflict between two nations, but a battle between a communistic, atheistic world and a Christian, democratic civilization.

"Between those two conceptions of life we have no choice."

The objects of the peace propositions behind the iron curtain are religious and civil liberty—proof that the expansion of communism is the gravest menace to our religious and civil liberty.

"I do not want Canada to become another Hungary," he said.

"And it is because we wish to do all in our power to assure the maintenance of the most cherished institution and our most sacred traditions that my colleagues and I have signed the signature of the North Atlantic Security Pact."

No Easing in Cold War Expected from Red Switch

Washington, March 5 (AP)—Startled officials groped today through a maze of speculation — much of its contradictory — for the meaning of Russia's sudden switch in foreign ministers.

The displacement of Vyacheslav Molotov by his sharp-tongued deputy, Andrei Vishinsky, had diplomatic authorities and commentators running the whole range of possibilities —from a new and dangerous move in the cold war to a sign that Russia may be planning a better attitude toward the west.

Some said it might be more than a simple administrative change.

One authority on relations with Russia who asked that his name be withheld said the change might forecast a "new deal" in relation between the Soviet Union and the west.

Negotiations toward an Atlantic security pact, he said may have "pushed" the Soviets into a clear demonstration that their present policies have failed."

Take Dimmer View

But most legislators who would comment took a dimmer view. Representative Lawrence Smith (R-Wis.), a member of the foreign affairs committee of the House of Representatives said: "I'm looking for some drastic move. I wouldn't be surprised to see Russians go into Helsinki, and Norway also."

Officials said, too, that it was no prior indication that Molotov was on the way out, or that he was due for a shift to a new job.

It was in 1939 that Molotov replaced Maxim Litvinoff, generally considered more friendly toward western Europe and the United States.

The change in that case was a prelude to Russia's surprise nonaggression pact with Nazi Germany on the eve of the war.

Despite murmurs of alarm from Capitol Hill, diplomatic officials appeared unanimous in the opinion that this time no such basic change is in progress.

Possibilities Listed

Their speculation included this additional list of possibilities:

1. The relief of Molotov and the Foreign Trade Minister, A. I. Mikoyan, might mean a political overturn within the ruling Soviet agency—The Politburo—although officials said they knew nothing definite to support that idea.

Lake Success, N.Y., March 5. (CP)—The consensus of United Nations diplomats speculating today on the switch of the chief in the Russian government's top brackets: there will be no letup in the cold war.

The announcement that Vyacheslav M. Molotov was relieved of his post as foreign minister and replaced by Andrei Y. Vishinsky in the Soviet hierarchy. The former foreign minister, the diplomats said, will probably be called his acid "war-mongering" speeches, the most bitter in U.N. history, against western delegates

Friendlier Attitude

But others noted his attitude at the Geneva assembly and meetings in Paris last Fall. At the close of the Paris meeting Vishinsky took personal pains to establish friendly relations with a number of western delegates, after a period of bitter exchanges.

Vishinsky was expected to be Russia's top delegate at Assembly meetings here April 5. But his promotion might mean that he cannot leave Moscow.

Molotov came here in 1946, but that was the first Assembly and there was also a new chief to assign minister on the schedule. He did not attend any subsequent Assembly sessions.

There was also widespread speculation on whether Vishinsky's promotion will change the attitude of Trygve Lie, Secretary, who was Russia's representative here until his recall last Summer.

Lie has strongly resisted with the same rank Vishinsky held until yesterday.

Jakob A. Malik, also a deputy foreign minister, has been delegate here now. No one in the Russian circles professed to know what plans are afoot for leadership of their delegation in the Assembly.

DEPLORE 'SERIOUS GULF OF MISUNDERSTANDING'

Toronto, March 5 — (CP)—The "serious gulf of misunderstanding and suspicion between the Christian church and organized labor," was deplored today by the United Church of Canada.

S.A. GOVERNMENT STARTS CAMPAIGN ON COMMUNISTS

Claim Reds Working Closely with Russia

Capetown, March 5 (CP)— The Nationalist government of South Africa is starting a campaign against Communists whom it accuses of working hand in glove with Russia.

Justice Minister Charles Swart promised the House of Assembly "vigorous action" against Communism.

It is known on the best authority that the government has a short list of South African Communists whose activities are considered a positive danger to the state. An equally good authority suggests that a longer list now is being prepared.

Speaking on authority of the Department of Justice Communists "with an international set-up, evidences of Communist activity in South Africa, Swart disclosed information hitherto unsuspected by the man-in-the-street.

He made his startling statement by the Commission was the result of a long investigation. Its party is closely affiliated with the Communist Party and that all its members give first loyalty to Russia.

This has been vigorously denied by leading South African Communists. They have consistently maintain that the ideal of international Communism was dropped many years ago.

The Commission said the position in trade unions is particularly serious because a considerable number already are controlled by Communists.

One prominent Communist in Africa is Sydney Bunting, Secretary general secretary of the Garment Workers' Union. He holds office by virtue of economic advantages for union members and it is more than likely that three-quarters or more of the G. W. U. membership is strongly anti-Communist.

Openly Communistic

Swart, quoting the commission's report, said some lecturers at universities and university cities are enthusiastic Communists. It also is known that a considerable number of primary school teachers at schools for non-Europeans are active Communists. A number of Indian organizations in the Union are openly Communistic.

Swart named the Springbok Legion, which is the ex-service men of the Soviet Union, and the Friendship with the Soviet Party and Friendship with the U.S.S.R. being some in the country's opinion "definitely Communist-inclined and Communist-controlled."

The South African Communists have two newspapers: The Guardian, an English-language weekly published in Capetown and Die Nuwe Stem (The New Voice), published in Afrikaans at Johannesburg.

The central committee of the South African Communist party characterized Swart's "sensational" statement as "crude propaganda for the provincial general elections March 9, intended to divert attention from the country's real problems. It said the aims of the Communist party are clearly set out in its constitution, which is available to the public.

It is difficult to determine the exact extent of Communist activity in South Africa, apart from the obvious propaganda the party issues. There are two minor newspapers and other channels.

Material Taken By Woman Was Planted, Worthless

Russian Employee in Red UN Delegation Also Accused

Washington, March 5 (AP) — A Russian employee of the Soviet delegation to the United Nations and a woman employee of the United States Department of Justice were arrested in New York last night for stealing American secret information.

They were identified by Attorney General Tom C. Clark, who made the announcement early today, as:

Judith Coplon, 27, since 1943 an employee of the justice department.

Valentin A. Gubitchev, 32, third secretary of the U.S.S.R. Secretariat of the United Nations, assigned to the Manhattan office of the U.N.

The arrests were made by agents of Federal Bureau of Investigation as Miss Coplon and Miss Coplon to New York yesterday afternoon. She had been under suspicion for some time, the justice department said.

Gubitchev was arrested when he had in his purse a flat package containing typewritten summaries of information abstracted from confidential documents involving security data and restricted information.

However, the justice department announced, without going into details, that the material taken by Miss Coplon had been planted, and was valueless.

Gubitchev Member of U.N. Secretariat

Both are being held in New York. Since Gubitchev is a member of the U.N. Secretariat, the matter is being discussed with state department officials and officials of the secretariat. Suspicion was first aroused during a loyalty check of federal employees, Clark said. An extensive investigation followed.

The F.B.I. said it found out that clandestine meetings were being held by Miss Coplon and Gubitchev.

Yesterday, when Miss Coplon left for New York at 1 p.m., EST, she was trailed by F.B.I. agents.

She and Gubitchev were arrested as what appeared to be their appointed meeting place at 183rd Street and Broadway in Uptown Manhattan at 7.23 p.m.

After almost two hours they "avoided direct contact, while they used the same evasive techniques used to detect" spotters, the F.B.I. said.

The agents then "effected a contact when both dashed around a two year block Street."

Gubitchev was arrested a block from Third Avenue between 14th. and 15th. Street. Miss Coplon was in conversation she had with her at the time of her arrest was not disclosed. She was held in it was from confidential documents involving security data and restricted information.

The charges against the two, filed in New York, are those of conspiracy to commit an offence against the United States pertaining to the removal of government records and "defrauding the United States of the faithful and impartial services" of Miss Coplon.

MUNICIPALITIES MUST HEW TO LINE TO OBTAIN GRANTS

Toronto, March 5 — (CP) — Ontario municipalities will have to toe the line if they expect to get the increased aid promised in Provincial Treasurer Frost's budget.

Legislation introduced yesterday following Mr. Frost's forhour budget address provides that municipalities must have "efficient and adequate" fire and police forces before getting help in these departments from the province.

Another bill provides for increased assistance in the construction and maintenance of old age homes but stipulates that all municipalities must establish adequate accommodation for their old people.

Other legislation, forecast in the budget speech and introduced yesterday, provides that the province shall receive a larger share of highway expenditures and will relieve municipalities of many of their share of supporting Children's Aid Societies.

All this legislation is designed to compensate municipalities for the loss of the now-abolished onemill subsidy. The province guarantees that total revenue from these sources will not be less than the amount received under the one-mill system.

Attorney-General Blackwell introduced bills affecting police and fire departments. They provide grants on a population basis, ranging from 10 per cent of the cost of the department for the previous year to 25 per cent.

One bill at the present is paid after costs have been calculated provided that: "all members of the department under an approved pension plan and the workers' Compensation plan or other approved benefit plan; there is no default under the act respecting the department and no argument, decision or award in respect to collective bargaining.

The second half of the grant is paid after the Ontario Police Commissioner or Fire Marshal de-

Girl Guitar Strummer and Song Writer Accused of Beating Woman

Toronto, March 5 (CP)—Composer of a love song which appeared a month ago on sheet music stands, Barbe Flait, 19-year-old Montrealer today was in a night-time hospital bed with a Brown-over the head with a long toy gun in a restaurant washroom melee Friday night.

Barbe, dressed in slacks and heavy fur-lined boots, looked little like the romantically-inclined guitar strummer who two months ago rendered tender ballads in Toronto's Don jail.

Gone was the grim solitude she affected when newspaper critics sat in on a sneak rehearsal of her song "There's a Pair of Silver Spurs." She was given suspended sentence on a fraud charge at that time, for passing bad cheques in stores on fictitious accounts.

Police said the whole restaurant was thrown into turmoil when the sounds of conflict and shrieking came from the washroom. When the manager shoved open the door, Mrs. Brown sweetged, blood streaming down her face in a corner was a girl identified later as Barbe Flait. She was held in the washroom till police came.

Two Masonic Lodges Guests At Degree Night

The Belleville Lodge No. 122 A.F. & A.M. were hosts to the two other Belleville Lodges, Moira No. 11 and Eureka No. 283, on Tuesday night over which W. M. Raymond Gunsolus presided.

Duplicate officers from the Moira and Eureka Lodges, exemplified the Initiatory Degree on a Belleville Lodge candidate, W.M., Jones E. Way, Moira No. 11 and W.M., Harvey Scott, Eureka No. 283 sat in the east with W.M., Raymond Gunsolus.

W. M., Donald E. Way, Moira No. 11, was in charge of the degree team while W. M., Ray Gunsolus was the toastmaster. Dean W. P. Voudaie, organist for The Belleville Lodge, provided music for the degree work and banquet which followed.

Two piano solos were given by Linton Reid. W. Bro. Kenneth Bird brought his class of new Canadians, Lithuanian, Polish and Yugoslavians, as guests. Three members of the class gave interesting word pictures of the conditions in the eastern European states, previous to the war, and during Russian and German occupations. They spoke of hardships, privations, concentration camps, people suffering with that and families being torn apart.

J. 'Ernie' Lang Dies Following Long Illness

A life-long and highly respected resident of this city in the person of Joshua Ernest "Ernie" Lang died at his home, 90 Catherine Street, early this Saturday morning, after an illness that had endured for nearly three years.

The late Mr. Lang was born in the city 69 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Lang. After receiving his early education in the public and high school he journeyed to Woodstock College to complete his training. He returned to the city and entered the employment of the post office in 1906 and rose through the various departments until his appointment as assistant postmaster in 1931, a position he held until October of 1945, when he retired from service. During his years in this federal office he made many friends and became widely known throughout the city district, where he was held in high regard.

The deceased took an active interest in sport. As a young man he played hockey and was rated as one of the best in this section of the province. Even his Woodstock College he entered the sports arena and was cited for his many excellent performances with that university. On returning home he joined a team sponsored by Sandy Burrows, Jack Marks, "Red" McMillan and others to give Belleville one of their finest hockey teams. When he could no longer play "Ernie" Lang was a public hockey fan and he was present at nearly every game in which a Belleville team participated.

A member of the Anglican Church he is survived by two sons, Franklin Lang, treasurer of the Stephens-Adamson Company and president of the Kinsmen Club and Eugene Lang, employed at the post office. Two grandchildren also survive. His wife, the former Hilda Bell died in 1942.

Funeral arrangements is made elsewhere in this edition.

Struck by Puck Spectator Has Nose Fractured

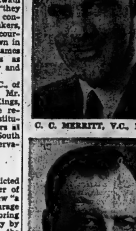
A spectator at a hockey game being played in Tweed and for a moment had taken his eye off the play. Just at that moment one of the players chose to shoot the puck, which left the intended mark and struck Menny square on the nose fracturing it in his face.

The injured man was attended at the Belleville hospital by Dr. A. C. Locke, specialist.

Progressive Conservative Party Solidly Behind Drew Speakers Stress at Meeting

Solidarity of the national Progressive Conservative party behind its newly-appointed leader, the Hon. George Norman Dreward here last night by Lieut.-Col. Cecil Merritt, V.C., Vancouver, and Lieut. George Nowlan, M. P. Wolfville, Nova Scotia.

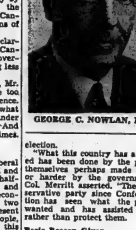
Addressing a crowded-packed Progressive Conservative meeting the east-and-west political twain extolled the old adage that "they shall never meet" and in conclusion left with Ontario's electorate said-pirbute to "a fearless, courageous man who will go down in political history with the names of such illustrious Canadians as the late Sir Wilfred Laurier and Sir John Macdonald."



Lieut. - Col. Merritt, V. C., of Vancouver - Burrards and Mr. Nowlan, Digby -Annapolis-Kings, were introduced to Ontario's segment by-election in that constituency were the guest speakers at the annual meeting of the South Hastings Progressive-Conservative Association.

Predicts Drew's Election

Lieut.-Col. Merritt predicted that the next Prime Minister of Canada would be George Drew "a man of great principal, courage and forthrightness". He will bring to this country national unity by "riding" the national party-by-leadership necessary to place Canada among the leading nations of the world.



Col. Drew, the speaker declared, was respected in Western Canada in triumph. He spoke to overflowing audiences. It was nothing less than a personal triumph.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Merritt said, it did not take long to feel Col Drew's influence. Each day new and more what bombshell would explode under the government benches. Several times

GEORGE C. NOWLAN, M.P.

And

C. C. MERRITT, V.C., M.P.

Critical of Liberal Govt.

He charged that the Liberal party were not Liberals at all and governmental practices differed in no way between free enterprise and socialism. "No political or economic philosophy can ride two horses at one time. The present government is one of the people not by the people. If this government were to survey we are paving the way to socialism and backwardness for this country."

"The people of Canada should know that this government is not the old Liberal party they knew. Mr. Mackenzie King was always behind what is right under the leadership of George Drew."

If we are going to be smashing majority we shall save the Canadian way of life and not one shall be starting on that long slippery slope from which there is no return for free men," said Col. Merritt.

Success Due to Drew, Claim

The Liberal government, the speaker charged, is doing things "no sensible politicians would do. It is giving away the store to visors advocate no matter what the people want."

The success and resurgence of the Progressive Conservative party, he went was not due altogether Col. Drew, although he had a lot to do with it. He had behind him the principles and ideals which has governed the party since 1867. Col. Merritt believed these principles expressed by Drew and his followers would result in the election.

"What this country has achieved has been done despite themselves perhaps made easier by Liberal rule," the government," Col. Merritt asserted. "The Conservative party since Confederation has seen what the people wanted and has assisted them rather than protect them.

Basic Reason Given

The basic reason for Canada's growing industry Col. Merritt said "is the policies of the Conservative party, since confederation." These policies, he added, have made possible one nation from coast to coast, to keep Canada for Canadians.

Canadian prosperity, Col. Merritt continued, could be that of individual Canadian in a framework of Progressive Conservative policy. This party a Liberal friend which will give the working man a greater freedom, and a greater take-home pay.

Mr. Nowlan, reviewed the misery of the Mackenzie King regime and said that the decline of former Mackenzie prosperity was blamed by Liberals on Upper Canada. "But we have discovered," he said, "that the old catchcry no longer works. The Liberals have been swindled, and four balance and found wanting. My opponent in the recent election admitted that the 'tide has turned against us'."

Returns Statements

Nowlan refuted statements made by the Hon. Stuart Garson, Mitchell at a recent Belleville Liberal meeting. "The Hon. Garneti governorment," he said, "made possible the Old Age pensions, turned against us".

Referring to the quoted "smoking brigade" he left behind him" charged to Col. Drew, the speaker said that Ontario has by far the most successful social legislation in Canada not excepting the C.C.F. province of Saskatchewan."

Mr. Nowlan took issue with those who use the word "Tory" as an approbrium. "If we are "Tories" then I think this country had more of them," he said. The return majority in this province to Ontario placed their confidence in Tory Drew and put him where he is."

Claims Partisan Attack

He levelled sharp criticism at the Hon. "Mike" Pearson, minister of External Affairs for his "bitter partisan attack on the Conservative party.

"It should be a fundamental policy" he maintained, "that the Department of External Affairs be kept out of politics. It was an unfortunate tactical error, the result of bad advice. Mr. Pearson's bitter attacks have gained him nothing. He will find that out in the next general election."

Mr. Nowlan suggested that no political party can call themselves a national organization unless they draw from every province. "If the provinces of Quebec ceases to be a part of Canada, who's fault is it? What power has monopolized Quebec in the last 23 years? Thank God, the time has come when Quebec sees that it is part of Canada. George Drew now has the nucleus of support from not only Quebec but the Maritimes as well, for a great national party."

Taxation will be Factor

The principle factor in this election, Mr. Nowlan said, "was the ruthless taxation of the present government. All across the nation, taxation has built up a billion-dollar surplus. This talk about reducing the national debt, is nonsense, he declared. The controlled expenses of the country increased last year by ten per cent. It was said in the Senate that the government could reduce taxation by one-half-billion dollars and still maintain good government.

Government administration came under the fire of the speaker. He listed the many bureaucratic forms and others as "stupid." Taxes were ill the same category. Thirty-nine per cent of the national revenue comes from indirect taxation, he declared, which means the consumer pays.

"There are 54 taxes on one loaf of bread; 200 on a suit, and 300 on a wire. This is substantial reason why a wave of national sentiment is sweeping the country."

"No bureaucrat in Russia is clothed with greater power than the present federal legislature," Mr. Nowlan charged. "Over 1200 order-in-council were passed last year. Forty-five the last four year an order-in-council has been passed every twelve minutes of a working day. Some of these orders passed by administration heads.

Given Distorted Vision

Referring to Mr. Drew, the speaker defined him as a "distinguished courageous leader, who has been maligned by the bitterest attacks ever made on a man in public life. He has been the butt of cruel caricature which has given the public a distorted vision of one of the most gallant men in public life.

"I do not suggest for one moment that Mr. Drew is perfect," Nowlan said, "but the Conservative party is fortunate in having him as a leader. He is a man of impulse, it's true, but better to have a man with fire in him than a casional mistake than one who is letter-perfect."

"Canada needs leadership," the speaker went on, "it needs a leader of strength and stature to lead a party with a new approach that will not lean on the bureaucrats. The people are sick and tired of drunk so deeply at the fountain of power that it is unwilling to relinquish it. A tired, droning government is now standing at the crossroads of time."

Appreciation Expressed

Appreciation of the association was expressed by R. D. Arnott, K.C. Frank C. Gerow, of Tweed, who was re-elected, occupied the chair.

Lieut.-Col. Merritt was eloquently introduced by Mr. Jack Wallace, K.C. Mr. Nowlan was introduced by George H. Stokes, M.P. Present were Elmer Sandercock, R.A.A., Hastings 'E' and Roscoe Robson, Hastings E. Mrs. Sandercock presented the selection of officers preceded the guest speakers, the story of which appears elsewhere in this issue. A meeting refreshments were served by the Belleville Ladies' Progressive Conservative Association under the supervision of Mrs. Harry Rollins.

Two Dogs Rescue Companion From Death in River

If there are such things as medals for bravery, two dogs, far from being bluebloods fully deserve the honor.

Yesterday afternoon members of the staff of Duffy's Service Station, Front Street saw two dogs acting strangely on the edge of an icefield in the Moira River at the foot of the C.P.R. Bridge.

The dogs appeared to be trying to haul an object out of the water. They pulled. They tugged. Finally they succeeded in hauling the "object" to the comparative safety of the icefield.

Even as the spectators looked the "object" got to its feet, shook itself in a cloud of spray, and proved to be a Labrador dog.

It was the third member of the dog party which had been exploring the icefield in that part of the river. It had fallen into the water. And it can thank its canine stars, that its pals did not desert it.

Veteran dog owners stated today that they had never heard of dogs rescuing another without the assistance of human beings. After "rescuing" stunt, all three dogs scampered off, none the worse for their experience.

POLICE CRACKING DOWN ON MOTORISTS

City police are cracking down on motorists who persists in "beating" the red lights at the various intersections in the city.

No less than three were caught Front Street at the Upper Bridge and given waiting for them by Constable Bruce Street from Coleman Street without bringing their vehicles to a stop and waiting for the light to turn green.

All offenders were charged with breaches of the local traffic by-laws and were assessed the nominal fine of $5. The offenders pleaded guilty and settled out of court.

Parents, Sons Enjoy Program Of Y Activities

Last night parents and sons took over the Y.M.C.A. at a social program designed to acquaint the parents with the type of activities conducted for their sons in the Y program during the season.

The activities included demonstrations of box boxing and pummelled horse drills, low organization games, basketball, floor hockey and a fine display of tumbling and free-standing number, by the recently formed Junior Leader Corps. Boys in this latter group are selected for their leadership qualities and undergo special training in order to be able to assist the physical director, Mr. Douglas Eaton, in instructing the regular boys' classes.

Following the gym display, while the boys were enjoying a swim in the Y pool, the parents adjourned to hear a thought provoking address on "Parent Education" by W. J. McIntyre, guidance director of the B.C.I. staff.

The evening was concluded by panels and sandwiches served in the "Y" lobby where light refreshments were served.

It is hoped by the Y.M.C.A. Boys' Work Committee that this type of program will set the pattern for a series of similar features which will be held for parents and boys to get together to promote the mutual interests in the mature development of their boys.

Hamilton Man Has Leg Broken In Highway Crash

William Cowburn, 34 Charles Street, Hamilton, suffered a broken left leg when he was admitted to Belleville General Hospital early last evening as result of a highway crash which involved two transports and a car.

Cowburn, driving west on No. 2 Highway near the cemetery crossing west of the city, sideswiped an eastbound Ballargeron transport and then swerved and crashed into a following Kingsway transport.

The steering gear on the transport driven by Cowburn and with the driver unable to control the vehicle the transport turned over on its left side. The driver of the transport, Henri Benoit, Montreal, was unhurt.

With the exception of clearance lights the Ballargeron transport driven by the Kingsway truck was considerably damaged as result of the collision and overturning of Cowburn's truck. Cowburn car was a complete wreck.

Provincial Constable J. T. Sheridan investigated.

Produce Prices Remain Firm On Local Market

Produce prices on the local farmers' market remained unchanged with prices for A-egg selling at the usual 45 cents per dozen. Medium were at 35 cents and pullets 40 cents per dozen.

The offering of fowl was small with vendors having no difficulty in obtaining 35 cents per lb. for roaster chicken. Mature fowl sold handily at 30 cents per lb. Honey was offered at 90 cents per four-pound pail.

On the outside market apples were in plentiful offering with McIntosh and Spys selling at $3.50 per bushel. Peck lots brought 90 cents and baskets 70 cents. Pippens sold at $2.65 per hamper or at 60 cents the basket while Snows sold at $3 the hamper.

Vegetables were plentiful and were offered at prices ranging from $1.50 to $1.75 per bag. Carrots, beets and parsnips brought 50 cents the peck.

Farmers still offered pork and beef by the quarter, the former bringing 27 and 40 cents per pound and the latter 33 and 38 cents for fronts and hinds respectively.

Vendors were on hand with hay sold at $14 per cord with stove lengths fetching $17 to $18 per cord.

A few young pigs were offered at prices ranging from $11.50 to $13 each.

Delegation Visits Highway Minister for Assistance To Finance New Building

Tweed—A delegation representing the Municipal Council and Tweed Chamber of Commerce interviewed Hon. George Doucett, Minister of Highways and Public Works Wednesday at Queen's Park, Toronto, regarding financial assistance for the new public building which it is proposed to construct here.

The group consisted of Warden S. A. McCrary, councillors L. C. Graham, Harold Roberts and Nelix LaSage. The delegation was accompanied to the minister's office by Elmer Sandercock, member for West Hastings since the local member, Roscoe Robson was in charge of a legislative committee meeting.

The Department of Lands and Forests is definitely in need of more adequate quarters in Tweed and with the proposed construction of a new public building to house the co.ell chambers, police quarters and clerks office, it is hoped to interest the department in becoming permanent tenants of the second floor. The minister of Public Works and officials of the Lands and Forests, have submitted the definite and immediate need of additional space and it is hoped to come to some mutual of partitions, a new village and the government in this matter.

LaSage's Garage Improved

Improvement to the interior of LaSage's garage have been completed and the firm is now in a much better position to render better service to customers. The removal of partitions, a new cement floor, a compact stockroom and display of floor space for displaying new model cars have created a greatly altered appearance to the premises. The show-room has been done in an attractive shade of green.

The garage section has been painted white and with the removal of some of the inside par-

Store Redecorated

The interior of Ray Quinn's men's wear store has been painted and improved, creating a most attractive effect.

Part of the haberdashery is now on the shelves behind glass doors, the remainder which it is proposed to construct here.

Tweed Steel Works

It has been announced that Tweed Steel Works will have a display at the International Industrial Fair to be held in Toronto from May 30th to June 10th.

This event attracted buyers from all over the World last year and the Tweed Steel Works hope to develop additional foreign trade by means of the display.

Work Held up on Trudeau's Garage

Improvements and alterations at the Tweed garage on Trudeau Motors Ltd., have been temporarily held up by the transfer of some carpenters and skilled help to Belleville where work is being rushed on the Station Street branch following the disastrous fire. The office and stock-room of the Tweed branch are being completely remodelled. The changes in th mechanical department are practically finished and there has been no hold-up in service to customers.

Personals

Allon Foster of the Tweed Hydro staff is in Toronto attending a refresher foreman's course under the direction of the Ontario Hydro. It is being held at Islington. This course is held annually.

Mrs. Albert Bradley recently received a medal for serving in the A.T.S. (Auxiliary Territorial Service) a branch of the British army during the Battle of Britain 1935-1945. This is the first medal of this type to reach a war bride in Tweed insofar as is known.

Miss Cook of the Tweed high school staff spent a few days with Mrs. J. F. Hurley of Moira.

Friends of Miss Annalena Cormeyea of Toronto formerly of Tweed and Stoco will regret to learn that she is seriously ill in a Toronto hospital.

Messrs. Warden S. A. McCrary, J. Rashotte, John Sage of Tweed Hydro Commission were in Toronto attending the Hydro convention.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

WINIFRED E. WILSON

DRESSED IN BLACK

Spring has come! Crows are passing overhead in migration, their raucous voices thrilling us in expectation of warmer sunshine and tiny green leaves. What a noisy flock member of the flock "caws" in its own key, keeping its place in formation. They are arriving from the United States. Certain localities there have communal roosts where, for many years, several hundred Crows have gathered daily throughout the winter. Now they are making their way to some clump of tall trees which will be "home" until the autumn.

After, a Crow seems to be jet black, originating the expression "black as a Crow." At close range, in good light, its plumage has a metallic gloss of blue, green and violet. This naughty bird is nearly 20 inches long, most of that length taken up by a sturdy body. The tail is comparatively short. The action of the long, pointed wings is distinctive: although we may not be able to describe or explain it, we unwittingly use this flight as a means for identifying a Crow in flight.

Sometimes one pair takes a fancy to a certain lone tree, occasionally right in the centre of a busy town. Every year they have grown up and left the nest, the parents may stay there until the end of the year, or possibly remain all winter. Usually, however, a flock spreads over territory to that a dozen or more pairs live near enough to have club meetings, where much talking is carried on at dawn. If the chosen bedroom is the bedside Poet's bedroom window, your slumbers will be broken.

A Crow's nest, though coarse, is strongly made of sticks, twigs, grasses, and bark, generally lined with something soft, like inner bark, fine roots, straw, hair, or wool. It is placed way up, sometimes as high as 75 feet, in the crotch of a tree.

This is an example of a species which has outlived with the advance of civilization. Open country and cultivated land is a hunting ground. The daily range is 16 to 20 miles. In spring and early summer insects are the chief food; beetles and bugs being fed to the young. Newly planted corn is a great attraction, thus robbing farmers. Eggs and nestlings of smaller birds are eaten in season; waterfowl suffer greatly, in August cutworms and caterpillars are taken.—The fruit destroyed by Crows is mostly wild.

MALAYA PLANS NAVY

Singapore — (CP) — The Singapore Legislative Council recently passed a bill to establish a Malayan navy. The bill is designed for recruiting a 750 men by the end of 1951. The force will be based on and financed by Singapore.

Bucks Thru Ice To Land Sick Man

St. John's, Nfld., March 4 (CP) —The Canadian weather ship St. Stephen bucked through harbor ice today in land two sick crew members for hospital treatment.

St. Stephen left station Baker midway between Greenland and Labrador to land steward J. A. Baxter of Halifax, suffering from mild heart attack, and able seaman Armand Turgeon of Montreal, believed to have appendicitis.

Six Nations Archer Will be Honored

Brantford, March 4 — (CP) — Cecil Froman, 17-year-old Six Nations Indian, will be honored in the near future by the Six Nations Council for his record winning of the Lower Lakes Archery Federation junior championship. A resolution to this effect was passed council Thursday. The presentation will consist of a suit of clothes for the youthful archer and will take place most likely at the Labor Day celebrations.

Armer Porter, 16-year-old Six Nations youth who battled with Bill Buck, Paris and won the interecounty Jointer class at the International Plowing match at Lindsay, last fall was honored by the Six Nations Council Thursday.

A purse of money was presented to Porter on behalf of Councillor Leonard Staats who said he hoped the youth's outstanding achievement would be an example to other youths of the Six Nations Reservation.

Seek Old Auto With Rusty Fender

Toronto, March 4 — (CP)—Police today sought an old-model car with a rusty right fender, believed to have been used by a smash-and-grab gang which has robbed two central Toronto fur stores within a week.

Early today, thieves grabbed $700 worth of furs after smashing a window with a brick. Police said the gang raided the furs in the street and then put them into an old-model car.

WELCOME "REFUNDABLE"

Not so many years ago Canadians were paying in their income taxes a refundable portion. The time has come for the repayment of these borrowings by the Government from the people.

In this district alone, which is a very large one, it is estimated that the cheques will bring in two and a half million dollars approximately. The average size of the cheque will be $76 and there are many smaller ones and there are some large ones, which will amount to $1,000 or so.

Into the wide area served by the Income Tax Branch from Belleville, the amount of money being returned will serve as an indication of the fact that total savings of many people mount rapidly and that people who save within reason can build a powerful economic and industrial structure.

From the standpoint of the recipients the refundable taxes, have served a number of useful purposes. These drained off from circulation a large amount of surplus money in a time of scarcity of goods. The return of that money with the added interest means something of real value. Yet so little did some people think of it that they have forgotten about it and this has caused considerable searching for those persons whose whereabouts have changed.

Returning money of this kind is welcome. To many it will be like something newly earned.

It should provide an example of the value of saving if at all possible. It has probably taught some people who thought they could not save that they can practise economy and still live well. That it may stimulate many to pitch away securely what they can for the future is one of the lessons it is to be hoped a good many have appreciated.

PEERING INTO SPACE AND TIME

The other day news came giving some faint impression of the immensity of the universe. It was in a story that at Mount Palomar, California, the world's largest telescope has photographed the far ranges of space as they existed not today but a billion years ago at lease from a distance of six thousand billion billion miles. And that is not the limit of space.

Now man with his limited strength and his almost unlimited mind has been able to make a telescope that can peer into the ages of the universe, so early in time.

If instead of on Mount Palomar, the telescope had been located in "space" as far away as Mount Palomar is from the space now photographed, it would picture perhaps the earth as it was seons of time before, perhaps in a state of gases long before it cooled and was solidified and out of which came the globe and the solar system.

What such a picture would be possibly a geologist could surmise.

But this earth's history is not ancient as far as human records go as compared with the ages of the rocks and the waters, as revealed by modern science and the radiation of energy of the atom as man has come to know. On this small sphere of earth man came to be and what he is, its leading religions have shown. He is known as a being who is able to seek and worship his Creator. Earth's records outside of those geological ages are not so ancient, and one of the marvels of civilization is its growth. In a few thousand years of buried time in the Orient lie the remains of ancient cultures, not many thousand years old but there are also the traces of very ancient cultures.

The past six thousand years have told a story of progress. Growing corn was known in the Western hemisphere of-the-world. Asia and the Mediterranean have seen many civilizations rise. Today in one sense the world is approaching unity, not that there is perfect accord but that the globe is linked up closely by transportation and trade. The world of today can be traced through those older developments revealed in the ancient history or in the rocks or in the finds of the archeologist.

Science has shown the delicate balance of the factors that permit or make possible life on earth, in the light, the gases of the atmosphere, the heat, the earth, the food, the fuels and the minerals that make the earth. The slightest deviation from this balance could have prevented or made impossible life here. But a benign influence guided it. Back of the revelations of archeology, the study of rocks and man's explorations, must be seen the influence of the directing hand of the Divine in life and human affairs.

He who is great when he fails is great in his prostration, and is no more an object of contempt than when men tread on the ruins of sacred buildings, which men of piety venerate no less than if they stood.—Seneca.

Nothing can make a man truly great but being truly good and partaking of God's holiness.—Martin Henry.

FUN

Fun follows when the work of day is done;
Not with the rise, but with the set of sun.
Fun is the sweet reward that is returned,
To be enjoyed when it is truly earned.

Fun is the second motive, not the first,
For work thought best may live to find its worst.

Who through the years takes pleasure for his guide
Misses the way to peace of mind and pride.

Work is the leader! When the tasks are done
They set us free to rest and turn to fun.
Oh, son of mine, remember and be wise:
Toil is life's purpose. Fun is just the prize.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 8th., 1929

Queen Mary School has come into possession of a natural exhibit of birds and animals which had been the admiration of many persons in this city and county. It is the private collection of Dr. Joseph Caldwell, dentist, of this city. The exhibits are in mostly enclosing glass cases and there are a few specimens on small plaques. There are about seventy-five pieces in the collection including several eagles, alligators, all classes of owls, water fowls, the smaller native birds and other wild life such as squirrels, chipmunks and others. Dr. Caldwell began making this collection many years ago and has preserved the specimens with great care. Mr. H. E. Frederick and staff appreciate very much Dr. Caldwell's kindness in presenting the exhibit to Queen Mary School.

WANTS TO REMAIN—Helmut Keune, 21, last German prisoner of war in Canada, sits in a wheel chair at Sunnybrook Hospital, Toronto, where he is a paraplegic patient. Keune was taken prisoner when the 88,000 ton German battleship Bismarck was sunk. Brought to Canada he was working at a prison camp near Port Arthur in March, 1946, when a load of logs fell on him, breaking his back and paralyzing him from the waist down. Now dan for repatriation to his native land, Keune wants to remain in Canada. This photo is copyright by the Toronto Telegram. (CP Photo)

Mackenzie's Column:

Molotov Shelving Is No Mere Domestic Affair

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Whatever may be the exact reason for the sensational release of Foreign Minister from his position as Soviet Foreign Minister, it strike me we may take it for granted that it isn't a purely domestic affair.

It portends some development of importance to foreign powers. There are many guesses as to what is in the wind. However, one can see that it might mean a change in foreign policy—either a hardening or an easing of it.

It even might be that Molotov himself isn't well, and is having his task eased.

The thing most difficult to accept is that the change represents a genuine relaxation. Not one of the original old Bolsheviks who came up through the revolution.

It has been generally expected that when Stalin got ready to retire, his mantle would fall on Molotov's shoulders. Has Molotov suddenly fallen from grace? It's hard to believe he has, though anything can happen these days.

Sudden Shift

Western Europe has been recovering economically under the Marshall plan. Along with that there has been a great strengthening of the defensive against aggression from any quarter.

The morale of the western European democracies has been moving steadily upward. We get a good indication of that in the Soviet office might be a part of the general strategy without meaning that he was in disfavor.

Whether these mysterious moves may signal some new tactics in the cold war remains to be seen. In any event, I believe it is not likely.

Goal Unchanged

Whatever change there may be in Soviet tactics, as I see it, there will be no alteration in the fundamental program of destroying capitalism and creating communist world. That goal always has been unchangeable.

That's about as far as we should go in speculation.

Killed During Siege Of Lonely Ranch

Tampico, Mexico, March 8 (AP) — Mexican soldiers and two civilians were killed yesterday during the siege of a lonely ranch 40 miles west of here. Police and soldiers were looking for cattle rustlers. After the battle a number of the suspects escaped and two surrendered.

LOSES TOE TRYING TO HALT RUNAWAY CRANE

St. Catharines, March 5 (CP)—Phillip Caroll's 20-ton mobile crane got away from him here yesterday and he lost a toe trying i ostop it. When the 28-year-old driver lost control of the crane he jumped out and tried to put a block behind the wheels. He crushed his toe and the machine toppled over a ledge, 10 feet below a drydock wall.

Basic Statutory Pay of Ministers Now $10,000

Toronto, March 5 — (CP)—Provincial estimates tabled Friday provide for total salaries of $18,-925 for Premier Kennedy and $10,000 for each of the 11 cabinet ministers. That is $2,000 a year more than they have been receiving.

The increase brings the basic statutory pay of the ministers back to the prewar level of $10,-000 a year. In addition, they receive $2,000 sessional indemnity and a $1,000 expense allowance.

In 1937, former Premier Mitchell Hepburn asked his cabinet ministers to take a voluntary pay cut of $2,000. Salaries have remained below the statutory ceiling ever since.

However, no legislation was introduced to cover the lower salary. As a result, the increase will be put through without any new legislation.

Breaks Ankle in Belfry, Rings Bell for Help

Conahoken, Pa., March 5 (CP) —Lying injured and helpless with a broken ankle suffered as he was making repairs to a church belfry, John Dewaan yesterday tolled the bell to summon aid. The ringing aroused the sexton, who helped Dewaan down from the belfry.

Quebec Moving Toward Ban On Margarine

(By The Canadian Press)

Backed by overwhelming approval of the legislative assembly, the Quebec government is moving toward imposition of a provincial ban on margarine.

The measure, which has been approved by a 71-to-6 vote a bill authorizing the provincial cabinet to draw up regulations for the ban on manufacture, sale and possession of butter substitutes.

Liberals and an independent member opposed the government in the vote and Liberal leader George C. Marler contended that outlawing margarine in Quebec would have no practical effect, particularly if margarine was allowed in the other provinces.

"The butter people won't stay up in Quebec if it fails in the other provinces," said Mr. Marler. "If we prohibit the manufacture and sale of margarine, the government will give the impression it is granting privileges to one class of the population."

Agriculture Minister Laurent Barre called margarine a "poor imitation" of butter and said sale of margarine would lead to thefair competition to farmers.

Fencesers Will be Fined

Premier Maurice Duplessis said persons found having margarine in their possession will be fined if not imprisoned.

Improvements in rural living, revision of municipal grants and reduction of succession duties were foreseen in the budget budget brought down yesterday, Provincial Treasurer Leslie Frost budged for a nominal surplus of $1,132,000, his sixth in succession. One of the chief items was the removal of the two-per-cent levy on admission to professional hockey and baseball, but the five-per-cent tax on professional boxing and wrestling was continued.

Budget Day in Alberta

It was budget day in the Alberta legislature also, and Premier E C Manning in his capacity as provincial treasurer announced for a deficit of $2,427,000. He estimated expenditures at $88,-769,000 and revenues at $86,342,-000 and said the deficit will be met from surpluses of past years. The budget provided for increased spending on education, public health and welfare and highway maintenance.

The budget address of Saskatchewan's C.C.F. government came in for criticism from W. J. Patterson, former provincial treasurer in Liberali cabinet. He charged in budget debate that this year's $56,000,000 budget showed lack of economy and attention to the careful spending of the public's money.

A program of provincial highways construction to cost nearly $30,000,000 in the next three vears was announced at Victoria by F. C. Carson, British Columbia works minister. He said the Federal government should share construction costs of main highways.

Premier D. L. Campbell of Manitoba said he hoped that a legislature resolution protesting proposed removal of the coarse-tions department staff of Transcanada Air Lines from greater Winnipeg to Montreal would have "a salutary effect." But he added that he had received no further word from the Federal government.

PSYCHOSOMATIC HEARTBURN

Nervous tension was apparently the commonest immediate precipitating cause of heartburn in 66 cases studied by an eastern internist. He described heartburn as a burning discomfort diffuse but localized behind the lower part of the sternum (breastbone), often radiating upward along the course of the esophagus (gullet). Heartburn was often associated with acid regurgitation (waterbrash), belching, nausea and epigastic (over the stomach) pressure.

Patients generally describe epigastric pressure as fullness, and often they try to help the doctor with the diagnosis by teling him it is "gas." Probably they get the notion from observing that sodium bicarbonate, taken as an antacid produces relief by belching, and relief of the heartburn or discomfort sometimes at the same time. Sodium bicarbonate produces considerable gas (carbon dioxide) by reaction with the hydrochloric acid in the normal stomach, and belching or gas. Other antacids relieve heartburn, sour stomach, waterbrash and the feeling of fullness or "bloating" or "gas" without formation of gas from neutralizing.

A western internist recognized that many common ailments are psychosomatic (in which mind affects body). He told folks, the $23 word means the relation in mental, believing or nervous, emotional, such as the sour lump in your throat and loss of appetite when you are upset or feeling pretty bad about something), but the distinction of several cases of heartburn and associated symptoms, which were usually proved to be hiatus hernia—part of the stomach protruding through the diaphragm (muscle) in diaphragm up into chest cavity.

Not a word about psychosomatic ailments in the pamphlet on "Yankee Stomach." It deals with hyperacidity, hunger pain, heartburn, acid indigestion, ulcer, bvash, uneasiness from fulness after eating, bitter taste and general crankiness, impatience and irritability engendered by these discomforts.

Some of you—oh, let's not say poor dyspeptics—may be fed up time, let's say you poor misguided souls will not like the first and quick remedy I suggest for corrective. I recommend in the pamphlet, for the time being, that you are such—such misguided souls. Yankee stomach is not confined to any section of the country. It occurs wherever people are found who eat in a hurry and drinking and careless about their digestive processes (as we say in the pamphlet) . . . particularly that part of digestion that goes on (it is) after swallowing mastication and (b) in the stomach for half an hour or more after the food is swallowed, if the food has been well chewed.

People in the habit of taking soda for stomach trouble generally find the combination of about two paris calcium carbonate with one part magnesium trisilicate more efficient and easier to take, as described in Yankee Stomach. For a copy send stamped, self-addressed envelope, and do give me attention to what it tells you about teeth.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

High Meat

Is meat that has started to spoil fit for human consumption if it is cooked in pressure cooker at 15 pounds pressure? (F. C.)

Answer—Not per se, health or sanitary regulations, but if the taste is satisfactory that's the way many epicures get meat and game "high". Don't worry about "germs"—which are nearly always hypothetical, as I shall explain in next Sunday's article.

Cramps in Feet and Legs

Aunt visiting us has terrible cramps in her feet and legs, has to stand or walk about sometimes most of the night. She is 62 and is not fat, but quite heavy. Her doctor keeps her on her feet most of the day. Would you think that I was a student nurse at—when you were staff physician here. (G.)

Answerby any chance, do you remember what are the peculiar things I taught you? For your readers, I refer to the daily ingestion of calcium and vitamin D. Send stamped self addressee envelope for booklet, Adult Tetany and Growing Pains.

The Gray Sickness

I am only 14 but my hair is getting gray prematurely. I also become almost pasty and wrinkled the past year or two. My mouth gets sore and I seem to swallow things that are not sufficiently chewed. (Miss)

Answer—Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask for booklet on nutritional deficiency. Anemia—The Gray Sickness.

Callus

Constant large corn or callus on outside of little toe. (M. W.)

Answer—Paint it once a day for 5 to 10 days with solution of thirty grains salicylic acid in one-half ounce flexible collodion. It will soften the corn and callus away, but it will form again unless you keep it soft or rigidly that make no friction or pressure upon the spot.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

IT'S THE LAW

Respect for oneself and for the law, go hand in hand. The citadel of personal security fall without laws. There are many laws that irritate us, and we dislike, but as long as they are in force they should be respected. Bad laws can always be changed.

I well recall when we had no traffic lights and no accidents were common at intersections and on curves. Now we expect the driver to be greedy, as though the whole road belonged to him. Now those simple traffic lights are respected, and safety is assured by their presence at dangerous spots.

It makes one proud of his city or country where there is a universal respect for the law, no matter what it is. Good citizens, on the whole, look to laws as their protection, and say honor them. This is as it should be. Laws that are good for most people should be good enough for any individual.

There are an abundance of laws that have become so worn out that they should be repealed. There are too many, anyway. But if we remember always to respect the natural rights of others, we will keep out of much trouble by violating no law. Laws are to protect justice, and there should be justice in every statute and edict. No one should be above the law. There are good reasons for every good law. We would be in a bad way without them. They are for our individual protection as well as for the protection of society.

If good international laws could be made to apply justly among all nations, there would be little fear of war. Peoples would respect expected secretds, as they should be. That is the purpose of the United Nations. Progress can be made to bless the entire world. It is the purpose of all that it may well succeed.

Bad laws, left unenforced, create disrespect toward all laws. All law must have behind it the good will of public opinion. You can't enforce law against universal public opinion. That law is strongest who abides by his self-respect, in conjunction with those of his fellow men. These self-made laws being his code of conduct in a democracy. It is the majority who must enforce its laws.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

FACING THE WIND

Lady Asquith, whose autobiography made a most extraordinary sensation in the English-speaking world when it appeared a few years ago, tells of how she met a beggar in the road one day and had an interesting talk with him. Before they separated, she asked him this interesting question: "How do you dedide which way to go?" His answer was very significant. "I always go," he replied, "with the wind at my back."

He was a true tramp, a derelict, a drifter, a slacker, a no'-do-well. He never faced the wind or anything else in which there was opposition. When the wind blew, he turned his back on it and went the other way. He turned his back on duty, privilege, sacrifice, personal living. What he was interested in was to avoid the effort of overcoming, to escape the hard things of life would involve.

All the world when it appeals to the wind. A kite stays in the air only against the wind. Every man who is worth his salt has some strength, duty, faith, affectionate interest in something or some one which holds him against the wind. Only the slacker turns his back to the gale and finds his feeble satisfaction in going the easy way.

Remember That Night

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

Twenty years ago a company of young actors and actresses stopped in the small town of Hamilston for a week. On Saturday night after the last performance the little company disbanded for lack of funds and trains that left after midnight took them in many directions.

Early Sunday morning a maid, coming in to clean the room occupied by the leading lady, found a baby, all alone in the bed, cold, hungry and crying.

The next day all Harriston knew that the young actress had deserted her child. The police were notified and the mother was sought while the child was placed in an institution. But the young mother was never located and not long afterward the little girl was adopted by a woman who had never had a child and thereafter she was known as Karen Mallare.

* * *

"So you are going to New York to go on the stage," Jerry Forbes said.

It was the first Sunday in June and Karen and Jerry had driven to the lake, parked the car, and were sitting on a grassy knoll beneath a tall spreading tree.

A slim girl with thick black hair curling softly about a brown skirt and a short tan jacket. A vivid, vital, beautiful girl, men thought and always turned and looked her. There was something about her candid, clear blue eyes, her natural grace and brilliant smile that made men notice, and women more than a little envious.

"Yes," Karen said. "I'm going to New York to go on the stage. There's nothing to keep me here — now."

The young man, brown - haired, brown-eyed, turned to her and smiled hopefully.

"Can't I keep you here? Stay here and marry me, Karen. That's what I've wanted since the first time I saw you last winter at Betty's party. That's one night I'll never forget."

She knew, of course. She had known for months, though she had never let him say it. She had come to Harriston last winter to work in his uncle's bank. She had heard more than one young matron say, "Jerry Forbes will get all the old man's money and he'll be president of the bank some day. He's the only male relative the old man has! Yet of all the girls in Harriston, girls with money, girls who had been sway to college, he had singled out Karen after that night at Betty's.

Turning her dark head, she looked at him kindly. She did not want to hurt him. But she did not love him. Wasn't love something magical that happened to you suddenly and completely?

He spared her by smiling again and saying, "Darn. You're not in love with me. That's it, isn't it?"

She nodded. Then, sitting up straight, she leaned her head against the old tree and looked thoughtfully over the lake.

"Hasn't anybody ever told you about me, Jerry? Hasn't anybody ever told you that my mother abandoned me when I was about six months old? So, you see, I don't know who I am. I'm not even sure how old I am. I — I don't think your uncle would want you to marry a girl who doesn't know who she is."

Looking down at her, his eyes loved her.

"You're just trying to let me down easily. I don't care about that!"

Yes, he had heard. That was one of the first things he had heard when he came to live in his uncle's house. He knew the story of Karen's life until now. He knew that her foster - parents, Betty and John Mallare, had been in very modest circumstances but that they loved her as if she were their own child, had sacrificed to give her singing and dancing lessons, and had been touchingly proud of her. He knew that John Mallare died when Karen was in her last year at high school and that immediately after graduation she began to work in the dress department of Harriston's most exclusive little shop.

And he knew also that all her life she had wanted to be an actress; that in church plays and school plays people had recognized her ability. After graduation she had joined a group of amateurs who played to full in the high-school auditorium in winter. He had seen her and her portrayals had stirred him. Like mother, like daughter, he had often wondered.

Only two weeks ago Hetty Mallare had passed on, leaving Karen several hundred dollars. And Karen had moved from the second floor flat where she and Betty lived after John's death and was now living in Mrs. Moore's boarding house.

"Yes, I heard," he said now. "But I never brought it up before. Several times I thought of it because I wondered why you didn't call Mrs. Mallare 'mother'."

Aunt Hetty . . . Karen felt a twist in her heart.

"She wouldn't let me. One night she told me that there was only one woman in the world who deserved to be called that by me. She said that the woman, my mother, had left a big piece of her heart here in Harriston and that whoever she was and wherever she was, she hadn't been a happy woman since. Aunt Hetty had a big heart and a big mind, Jerry. She knew I wanted to be an actress. She understood. So," she looked at him gaily, "I gave up my job yesterday and I'm leaving Tuesday. Cora Hillman who works in New York two years before she came back to marry Ted, wrote and found me a room."

Jerry frowned. "Karen, don't you hate her? Your mother, I mean. Has she ever been a real person to you? When did you know—"

"I forget how old I was when Jimmy Akers shouted at me one day that my mother had left me on a doorstep. In tears I ran to Aunt Hetty and she told me about it, I'll never forget how angry she was. She was going to tell me about it but she was waiting for me to grow up a little more. She didn't want me to feel different from other children. But all through my childhood, whenever any of the children were angry with me, they'd remind me that my mother hadn't wanted me. It — it hurt. But I've gotten over that."

Karen was different from any girl in Harriston, he thought. Suddenly he remembered the first time he'd seen her. There had been a party and when he walked in, he saw her standing by the piano, wearing a simple blue dress, and singing a popular song. Later he learned that at parties she was always asked to sing.

Karen said in her rich contralto voice, "Since that day I've thought about my mother a lot." She smiled. "I've made up the wildest stories about her! But all I do is ask myself questions. I get no answer — probably never will answer. Was she ill and frightened? Or was I a burden? You see, I don't know anything. I don't know if I hate her or not."

"New York is a big place," Jerry said. "But anything can happen there. It's a crossroad. You might find your mother there. She can't answer — probably never will answer. Was she ill and frightened? Or was I a burden? You see, I don't know anything. I don't know if I hate her or not."

"New York is a big place," Jerry said. "But anything can happen there. It's a crossroad. You might find your mother there. She might be one of the great lights on the stage today? It would be strange."

"I've thought of that, too. I've thought of everything. But she might be dead or a thousand miles away from New York." She shook her head. "I'll never find her and I'll never tell anybody there my story. And even if I came face to face with her, I'd never know. No woman is going to tell a secret like that."

The twilight was descending like a purple mantle. The sky had become painted with new and brighter colors. The lake had darkened.

Shivering a little in the sudden breeze, she stood up. Jerry stood up, too, with the thing he loved so. "I suppose I'm selfish thing is to keep you stop and spend all your money and come back to me. But I don't wish that, Karen. But I wouldn't make such a bad husband, would I?"

"You'd make a fine husband." She began to brush her dress. "You'd be fortunate who married him. She thought suddenly, "The girl he'll marry. Some of his attention to me will be glad when I'm gone. That is the most dignified young man in Harriston and does not know it."

Jerry asked, "But isn't love important to you, Karen? Or isn't love in your scheme of things?"

Again she remembered Aunt Hetty who had said one night, "Love is the most important thing in the world to a woman. Don't forget that. And you have a capacity for love, Karen. You're not fickle. You don't play with fire the way a lot of girls do these days. You're honest. I hope love is good to you, dear, because you will be good and faithful to it. "How had Aunt Hetty, born and raised in Harriston and married to a boy she adored at seventeen, known so much?

She lay her hand on Jerry's shoulder. "It's the most important thing in the world. I sometimes it. If I have everything else and miss that, I'll have nothing." Aunt Hetty had also said, "Some day, Karen, you will meet a man you will love more than you love your own life."

"One more thing," Jerry said as she drew away, "New York is not so far away. I'll drive up to see you. And if you don't—"

"But I mustn't fail!" Karen said. "I mustn't!" She laughed suddenly. "We'd better go. You have to be the first at the table at Mrs. Moore's tonight, Jerry!"

* * *

On Tuesday at noon, with two traveling bags beside her, she stood on the station platform with Jerry beside her. She was wearing a gray tailored suit, small, high-heeled black pumps, and a small black hat.

For quite some time she had not been able to say anything fearing that if she spoke her voice would break. Was she doing the right thing? On the "right" thing smothering her dreams and telling Jerry she would marry him? He offered security, and his name New York offered nothing. It was already cool with the city, Jerry had said, "I am going to be an actress. Many came but few succeeded. Fame was an elusive lady, granting few favors, promising nothing . . .

But she knew she could not smother her dreams. She had to pursue them!

Down the track she saw the smoke from the train curling upward.

Jerry took off his hat and looked down at her. One corner of his mouth twitched. "Good luck." he said and tried to smile. "I'm — I'm here if you need me. And I'll be driving up to New York one of these week-ends."

"Please do, Jerry. I know I'm going to be lonely. I don't know a soul." She stood on tiptoe and kissed him lightly. "Good-bye, Jerry. Thanks for — for many things."

On the train she did not look back at the tall youthful figure in gray. She pressed her hand against her mouth to keep from crying. Her throat ached. Good-bye to Jerry, to Uncle John, to Aunt Hetty . . . One part of her life had come to an end, the Harriston part, but of it she had sweet memories and Aunt Hetty's wise advice to lean upon. From now on she would be a girl alone . . .

If only you could see just a little way ahead of you! If only the future were not such a void! Her heart raced. Sitting up straight, she looked ahead and thought, "I won't be afraid. Aunt Hetty taught me never to be afraid in the dark."

* * *

New York . . . To fall in love . . . To be a great actress . . . Her dreams. And she was following them.

* * *

At seven o'clock that night Karen stepped off the train and followed a red-cap with her two heavy bags through the great station. So many people coming and going. Tipping the red-cap, she slid into a taxi.

The buildings reached optimistically toward the sky. Streets were choked with people. Already in the twilight the lights on Broadway were blinking and shining. How remote Harriston seemed now, she thought.

Through correspondence, she had found a room occupied by a Mrs. Graham who was going to spend the summer in the country. Mrs. Graham was a friend of Cora Hillman. The apartment house was on Fifty Seventh Street and before long the cab stopped and several minutes later she was on the elevator.

Mrs. Graham, tall, middle-aged and gray-haired, opened the door.

"Oh, Miss Mallare! Come in."

The room was small. The mahogany dresser and the desk before the window were old and cheap. But a new chintz cover on the studio couch and new chintz curtains at the one window added cheer.

They talked awhile about Cora Hillman and about Mrs. Graham's long anticipated summer in the country. Then Mrs. Graham put on her hat and her gloves and turned to Karen, extending her hand.

"I hope you like the room and I wish you luck. Cora wrote you were going on the stage." She smiled. "You're pretty enough but it takes more than that. Before I go, I'll stop down the hall and say good-bye to Roxanne Dell and tell her about you. She works in a night club and may be able to help you."

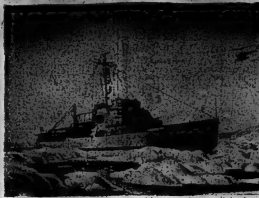
When Mrs. Graham had left, Karen went to the window and opened it and stood in the cool air. From Harriston to New York in seven hours! It seemed incredible! She thought, "Well, I'm here!" It had taken courage to say to Mr. Brennan, manager of the dress shop, "I'm leaving on Saturday. I'm going to New York." She had told no one except Jerry and Cora that she was coming to go on the stage.

Karen Mallare. It was not her real name. But she would take the name of Karen Mallare to glittering heights. She would! She would! And perhaps in the struggle and fight to come she would meet a man whom she would love more than she loved her own life.

In a little while the impersonal room became Karen's room, with her dresses in the closet, her books and Aunt Hetty's photograph on the desk, and her comb, brush and mirror on the dresser. And just as she realized she had not eaten since breakfast, some one tapped at the door.

Going to the door, opening it, she saw a small plain girl with yellow hair. She wore a severe black dress with a glittering pin at the neck.

"I'm Roxanne Dell," she said. "Sara Graham thought we should know each other. But she didn't tell me your name." Her voice was husky and even a little hard. She appraised Karen coldly.



Karen stepped to the door wider. "Come in." She held out her hand. "I'm Karen Mallare." A friend? Somebody to talk to?

Roxanne's handclasp was firm. Long ago Karen had learned to judge people by that.

Sitting on the studio couch, Roxanne Dell smiled. And her smile had pity and cynicism in it. "Sara said you wanted to go on the stage. You picked a fine time to come! In a few weeks everything will be closed tight for the summer and the producers will be either on their yachts or in Europe. Of course, there are those summer playhouses but I don't know anything about them." She shook her yellow head and her smile was sympathetic. "It's a tough racket."

Navy to Get Large Icebreaker

This is an artist's conception of the large, modern ice-breaker which is to be built for the Royal Canadian Navy by Marine Industries Ltd. of Sorel, P.Q.

The vessel will be 269 feet in length, 53 feet six inches in breadth and will have a displacement of 3,400 tons. She will be propelled by a diesel electric system with a total of 10,000 horsepower. Her total complement will be about 13 officers and 160 men.

Among the features of the ice-breaker will be the thickness of her shell plating— 1 3-8 inches of special high tensile steel; improved habitability and storeroom capacity over other craft of similar type, and a flight deck off which will be capable of landing a helicopter of the type in current use by the R.C.A.F., or of accommodating a seaplane. As a safeguard against being frozen in, the vessel will be equipped with heeling tanks.

The R.C.N. icebreaker will be similar in most respects to the U. S. Coast Guard "Eastwind". Class but will include some modifications to suit Canadian service and others which have been suggested by experience with the US. ships and by observations of the performance of these and other ice-breaking vessels.

Two types of boats will be carried, a motor life boat for use in open water and landing craft specially strengthened for use in ice (R.C.N. Photo)

Analyze Population

Report on Toronto

Toronto, March 4 — (CP) — Mayor Hiram McCallum of Toronto promised last night an immediate investigation into the civic assessment department's "population analysis which indicate a drop of some 20,250 persons in the city during the past year.

The mayor said the figures were "strange" and "must be investigated at once."

There are "25,000 Immigrants now living in Toronto and 14,000 more names on the voters' list," he said.

Well-known residents of this city, Mr. and Mrs. David Wardle, 177 John Street, celebrated their fiftieth anniversary on Monday last. Ten Pounds Pork Chops for $1.50, When? Just Seventeen Years Ago

A local resident G. W. Morrall gave us an item of interest that might be interesting to the working public but especially to the hard-working budget-planning housewife.

It is a clipping from a newspaper dated May, 1932, of a sale in one of Montreal's largest department stores.

Ladies, are you having trouble with the paper dollar that just will not stretch? Just sit back and try to remember the days of the early 'thirties when the prices were lower and one could live more comfortably. Those were the days when you could go out and buy ten pounds of pork chops for only one dollar and fifty cents. Try it today and it costs you a small fortune out of your sugar bowl.

Butter Cheap Too

It even costs you close to two dollars to get a couple of pounds of cooked ham that would have only set you back twenty-seven cents a pound. Imagine buying real creamery butter for twenty cents or a dozen eggs for only seventeen cents. Oh, it really sets you to thinking, doesn't it? Those were the days were ten to twenty cents cheaper.

Sugar only cost about four cents a pound and ketchup was five cents cheaper. But, ladies, there is one thing you can still revel in and that is the fact that pork and beans are one whole cent cheaper than they were seventeen years ago. Those, too, were the days when you could get your hosiery for twenty-seven cents a pair, plain cotton sheets for fifty-nine cents each and four heavy, thick bath towels for only one dollar.

59-Cent Shirts

You men, too, may be able to remember back into the 'thirties when you were able to buy a shirt for fifty-nine cents, sport sweaters for $1.19 and khaki trousers for one dollar. You could also go downtown and get yourself a full course luncheon for twenty-five or thirty-five cents.

In those days it did not cost you very much to furnish a house either. A four-burner combination gas stove would only set you back about twenty-five or thirty dollars and an electric washing machine was only forty-five dollars along with ten hours which were $9.75.

Maybe now you will believe the old timers when they say they wish they were living in the old days again. Ha!

W.M.S. by the late Mr. W. H. Nobes. The money came at a most opportune time to buy some bed blinds for windows in the hospital.

Miss Hunt had been a pupil of Mr. Nobes at one time and also knew many Wallbridge friends. It was decided that Mrs. F. Harris and Mrs. W. Sine be delegates to the presbyterial meeting to be held in King Street Church, in Trenton, in April. As this meeting is on the regular meeting day of the local meeting would be held the following Wednesday.

Mrs. S. Nielson then gave a synopsis of the first half of Chapter four of the study book and was assisted by Mrs. B. Hamann, Mrs. L. Ketcheson and Mrs. Cecil Sine. This chapter gives a story of the work of Dr. Stella Young, a Canadian Christian girl, who received her preliminary education in the schools of the W.M.S. at Junghsien, later coming to Canada, where she secured her M.A. degree from the University of Toronto. She secured her M.D. degree from Cornell, which is carried on under great difficulty through over-crowding, lack of equipment and missionaries. Dr. Young is devoted to her work and is ready to face any difficulty in her great work of training Chinese young people to be good citizens.

Mrs. Sine was tendered a hearty vote of thanks for her hospitality.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Harvey have returned to Wallbridge after spending the last few months with friends in Florida.

F.O. Grant Millar and Mrs. Millar and family, London, are spending a few days with relatives here.

Mrs. B. Harris spent Monday with her brother, Mr. B. Langabeer, Belleville, who is a patient in Belleville Hospital.

Mrs. D. Trow is under the doctor's care suffering from a severe cold.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lazarulk on the arrival of a baby daughter at the Belleville General Hospital on Monday, Feb. 28th.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Mitchell, Mrs. Gummer, called on Mrs. Harry Grills, Corbyville, on Sunday afternoon. The latter remained for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Leeming, Mr. and Mrs. F. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Corbyville and boys, Corbyville, and Mr. Bert Grills, 5th Thurlow, were Wednesday night supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. Grills.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Atkins were recent supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mitchell.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. W. Gray and the family of the late Mrs. Latchford who passed away at the home of her son, Mr. W. Latchford.

Mrs. A. Mitchell, Mrs. Moncrief called on Mrs. E. Vivian Thursday afternoon.

FOXBORO W.M.S.

Foxboro—The March meeting of the W.M.S. was held on Thursday afternoon in the S.S. rooms, following a sumptuous dinner served under the auspices of the Mission Board, at which over $36 was realized.

Mrs. J. W. Daniels was in charge and Mrs. Giles sang, music played by Mrs. Eggleton, the call to worship, "The Seasons Come" was given, Mrs. W. Wickett gave the World Council of Churches meeting in Amsterdam and Mrs. Hodgen gave the challenge, which came from the meeting in Amsterdam, explaining some of the work expected of Christian workers, that there may be a new Heaven and a new Earth.

A few members of the prayer were observed for fellow-Christians, and for the country and nation.

The Scripture lesson Psalm 19 was read by Mrs. H. Stewart and Mrs. W. Hombough favored with a solo "Tell Me About Christ in Jesus". The remaining chapters of the study book were well given by Mrs. P. Kilpatrick and Mrs. E. Tummon. Some personal knowledge of the work was given by Mrs. McPherson.

Mrs. W. Hombough took charge and a report on Supply work was given by Mrs. E. Tummon. A call plans were made for the World's Day of Prayer and Mrs. I. F. Rogers was appointed as a representative to the Church Board.

The Easter Thank-offering meeting will be held in April with Mrs. Wickett, Mrs. Ross Stewart, in charge. Mrs. I. G. Rogers will be the delegate to the presbyterial in Trenton.

Douglas Atkins attended the meeting at Holloway Street Church, Belleville, when Rev. Dr. Morgans, of Melbourne, Australia, spoke on Monday night.

Miss Freda Bell spent the tea hour and evening on Saturday with Miss Emma Bell, Wellington Ave.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Grills and Barry visited with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Atkins on Wednesday night.

Mrs. D. Atkins had dinner on Thursday with her brother, Mr. R. T. Boldrick and Miss Isabelle Atkins, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Mitchell, Messrs. Arnold Mitchell, Don Leeming, Douglas Atkins attended the Milk Producers' convention in Toronto on Thursday and Friday. Mrs. Mitchell is visiting with Mrs. Clare Leavens and Mrs. Walter Leavens and families while there.

SURE IS A GRIM, GRIM WORLD

Those who maintain that babies and children have no real problems may be able to account for all this seeming unhappiness. However, the only explanation the photo editor could find was the 7-month-old Bobble Lou Schlaake, of Orlando, Fla., had just received a new bonnet and, in the manner of all women, complained that she just didn't have a thing to wear with it.—Central Press Canadian.

LATTA

Latta— Mrs. Edmund Carleton spent the dinner hour and afternoon with Mrs. Rose Bailey, Belleville, and Mrs. George Bailey and Miss Evelyn Bailey of Bonarlaw, also spent the dinner hour and afternoon at the same home.

Deepest sympathy is extended to Mrs. Harold Goodfellow and family, in the loss of a loving husband and father.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hamilton called Sunday on Miss Margaret Moult, who is ill at her home with Miss Henderson as her nurse.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Roblin of Kingston, spent the weekend with Mrs. Donald Hall, who returned with them to spend the week.

Mrs. Walter Hall returned to Mrs. W. Elliott's on Saturday after spending a few days at Napanee, and while in Belleville with Mr. and Mrs. K. Hall and family.

Mrs. Fred Hall entertained her adult Sunday School class of Plainfield Church on Wednesday evening. There were about 40 present and an enjoyable evening was spent in cookiodle, checkers, cards, piano music and singing.

Mr. Clayton Hall favored with selections on his violin. Refreshments were served by the hostess and her daughter, Mrs. Norman Hall.

Mrs. Harry Harrison moved a vote of thanks to the hostess for her kind hospitality and Mrs. Hall replied in her usual capable manner. Mr. Harry Harrison and Mr. Fred Colling, superintendent, made a few remarks, after which all sang "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" and "God Save The King", bringing a very pleasant evening to a close about midnight.

Mrs. Norman Hall, Front Rd., spent Wednesday with Mrs. Norman Hall, Jr., and family.

$500 AWARD RECEIVED FOR PAINTING

Toronto, March 5 — (CP)—L. A. C. Panton of Toronto won the Tober Package Fabeley purchase award of $500 for the painting which makes the greatest contribution to Canadian artistic development at the opening of the Ontario Society of Artists annual exhibition.

Mr. Panton's "Sun Rising from the Rocks," an abstract landscape in tempera, was the winning painting.

Another $500 purchase award, the Ralph Clark award for a painting which will reproduce well, went to Tom Roberts of Toronto for his landscape "Mild Winter."

ASSEMBLY

As we paraded into the auditorium for assembly we wondered what was in store for us; a basketball battle or a lecture.

Hearing Mr. L. Reid lead the devotional exercises I'm wondering if he ever considered being a gentleman of the cloth. After the general announcements were read the assembly was turned over to the Dramatic Club. It presented the play which is entering in the competition this weekend. The play "Enter the Hero" is an amusing account of a girl who tries to get her romantic imagination run away with her. This girl was played by Janet Ashbury, the unwilling fiance by Kip Summers, Ruth by Marian Rawson, and the mother by Marcia Blathwerick. Judging by the smiling cast, even if they don't get the prize for acting they are sure to convince the audience that B.C.I.'ers are extremely good natured.

GIRLS' SPORTS

On Monday night B.C.I. senior defeated the O.S.D. seniors 21-14. Marie Marinoff was the highest scorer for B.C.I.

The B.C.I. juniors also defeated O.S.D juniors in a close contest this week.

On Thursday night both the senior and junior teams went to Picton to play the double header. The B.C.I. seniors defeated Napanee 14-13 in a hard fought contest. Both teams were very evenly matched, Marie Marinoff scored 5 points for B.C.I. while Betty Hall, son, and Donna Ferguson each scored 3 points for B.C.I. this game completed the senior schedule. They have won 3 games and lost 1 game.

In the junior game, Napanee juniors handed the B.C.I. juniors their first defeat of the season. The score was 25-19. Erma Ritchie was the highest scorer for B.C.I. Joanie Harbeck started BCI rolling in the first quarter by scoring three points, but that was the last we saw of Joanie in the game. This game completed the B.C.I. junior's schedule. They have won 8 out of their 9 games.

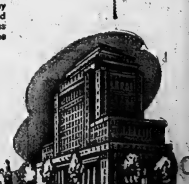
Business Protection Assurance for Key Men

... To Meet the Special Needs of Management by Providing Compensation for the Loss of Essential Personnel in Business or Professional Partnerships.

To what extent does the successful operation of your business depend upon those few key men—your partners and trusted associates in management—whose technical and executive ability ties make them indispensable?

If one of these men were to die tomorrow, how would the sudden loss affect your business? Could you take it in your stride?



Here indeed is a problem which the Sun Life can help you to solve!

SUN LIFE BUSINESS PROTECTION ASSURANCE is extremely flexible and can be readily adapted to the individual requirements of your own organization. Here are some of its principal features:

- Assures management of adequate compensation for the eventual loss of a key man.
- Provides business and professional partnerships with protection on a reciprocal basis, thus guaranteeing the consolidation of capital in the hands of the surviving partners.
- Provides optional forms of protection:
  - for a constant risk—a fixed amount of protection
  - for a diminishing risk—a high initial amount, decreasing as the need for protection becomes less
  - for an increasing risk or a decreasing premium—

  If business expands, the amount of assurance may be increased without medical examination, and without change in the premium; if business slumps, the premium may be reduced while the protection remains constant.
- Allows conversion into personal life assurance should the business risk cease.
- Provides that extra collateral needed where emergencies or opportunities occur.

Let us show you how SUN LIFE BUSINESS PROTECTION ASSURANCE will enhance the value of your particular business and give you complete protection. There is a friendly Sun Life representative in your own community who is always at your service. Get in touch with him now, or write to the Company's nearest Branch Office. There's no obligation.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beekman

Not tomato juice or fruit juice as first course

After a lecture or informal talk on any subject pertaining to table setting or table service or food, there are always many thought-provoking questions that come up. And it's a healthy idea, too, for it shows that women are eternally interested in the "dining table that little else is the gods of hospitality." Here's one of these post-lecture wonderings:

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

Yesterday at a lecture in our largest department store here, the speaker said that it is not correct to serve tomato juice or other fruit or vegetable juices as the first course at a luncheon or dinner served at table. Is this really so? If so, I must mend my ways, for, because my husband and I are teetotalers, I very often serve tomato juice cocktail or, sometimes, a combination fruit juice as the first course at either Sunday luncheon or week-day dinner, when we give very small, informal dinners. What do you advise I do?

S. L. N.

Don't worry . . . for many hostesses do just what you do, and many guests enjoy these fresh-vegetable drinks, particularly as the first course of luncheon. However the lecturer was probably right in saying that this drink—and juice (canned or fresh fast, of course) is not really correct, and I think should be added or at least implied that the hostess should choose a more interesting, first-course idea. In my judgment the hostess who is a teetotaler doesn't wish to serve alcoholic drinks to her guests, should serve the tomato juice or tomato juice cocktails and/or fruit juice in the living room before luncheon or dinner . . . and she can make a charming feature of this service with attractive equipment—good-looking crystal glasses on sparkling glass or crystal plates (bread-and-butter plate size) tiny linen or lace napkins—by having the glasses thoroughly chilled, the drinks interestingly made, and with delicious, "just right" food-accessories ingeniously chosen. The it with an air of bright ideas. And this leisurely service in the living room means that a first course can be omitted at the seated dinner, which is particularly practical for the hostess who is also cook and waitress!

The Bride's Thank-you Notes

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

1. In our group most relatives and friends give money as wedding gifts, and these money-gifts are usually presented to the bride and groom at the wedding reception Therefore, is it necessary to send thank-you notes (saying my honeymoon or may I wait until after?

2. Is it absolutely incorrect to address thank-you notes to the husband and wife? I can't get used to the idea of addressing them to the wife only.

M. L.

1. With this money-gift proceedure, I should think that you and your bridegroom's relatives and friends would not expect to receive thank-you notes until you have returned from your wedding trip. Unless, of course, it is a very extended trip.

2. The rule is that the bride writes to the wife, and in her note also includes enthusiastic thanks to the husband. But if addressing your notes to both husband and wife makes your words of appreciation sound "more like you", there's no great social error in the double-addressing.

Always on the Go? Leave Time Out for Relaxation

A good way to relax and rest tired eyes at the same time is this: Soak pads of cotton in good-quality witch hazel, place them

By HELEN FOLLETT

THERE are women who need more work to do, more exercise. But the majority of women these days need more relaxation. They are galloping at too fast a pace, and the marks of fatigue are evident. Eyes look tired, facial muscles are tense, movements of the body quick and jerky. Physicians say that there are more cases of nervous exhaustion than ever before. Life is too rushed, too delirious.

Give yourself a test. See if you can relax. Do a flop, close your eyes. Don't forget that if the body is to relax, the mind must be at peace. Uneasiness of mind is reflected in tension of the muscles. Vast stores of energy, unnumbered calories, are used up with nothing to show for it but premature wrinkles, grey hair and lagging steps. Full, free breathing is restricted, physical poise is lacking. So rest yourself, now and then, dear lady. Shift your energy motors an opportunity to be recharged.

If You're Nervous

When you're nervous and jumpy drop everything, get out of doors. Or if that looks like too much of an effort, lie down on your bed and do stretching exercises. Stretch your arms above your head, extend the legs, even the toes. After each vigorous stretching, go limp as a rag. Relax completely. Exhale as you stretch, exhale as you relax. Turn on one side and stretch your legs diagonally as far as you can.

After five minutes of body tensing and relaxing, relax your mind. It can be done. Lie on your back, arms at your sides. Take long, deep breaths, forcing the air out through your lips with a whistling sound. With each intake of air repeat in your mind the word "relax." You can do a little self-hypnotizing this way.

That exercise is especially helpful to the worrier. The only way to get fretful thoughts out of your mind is to substitute hopeful ones. You can do that little thing by repeating a cheerful word over and over again. If you can't sleep, repeat the word "sleep". This just often works like a miracle.

Another good way to relax is to stretch out on the couch, place pads of cotton over your eyes that have been soaked in good-quality witch hazel.

BEAUTY

Don't fail to get your beauty sleep

Mothers of girls of high school and college age find it a thankless business to urge their daughters to eat properly and get enough sleep to keep them in form. Youth, ever on its toes, full of gingr, busy with its own affairs, is not particularly interested in the subject of health. The subject bores girls to tears. They fancy they can tear around all day, dance half the night and still keep their lovely bloom and freshness. They just can't miss out on any of these social activities. They fancy they are made of wire and fiddle strings. Fatigue bugs can get them, same as they get their elders.

From eighteen to twenty is only a breath of time. From twenty to thirty isn't much of a span. At thirty the radiance of youth is waning. The complexion hasn't the same character, the underpadding of the skin may not be quite so firm. Many women of that age have premature wrinkles around their eyes. If a girl of eighteen would be kind and sweet to the woman that she will be ten years later she should have respect for the laws of health. She can't beat the game.

Refreshing sleep not only rebuilds cells, makes body repairs, but it creates high spirits and good looks. A healthy girl should awaken in the morning, looking fresh, feeling gay.

That sleep is conducive to good appearance is made evident by the bloodless, haggard condition of those suffering from short hours of slumber. It is during these hours of physiological unconsciousness that growth takes place in those who have not yet reached maturity and repairs go in those of full stature.

Mothers find it a thankless job to urge their daughters to adopt proper eating and sleep.

Writes Dr. Charlotte C. West in her interesting book "Ageless Youth": "Poor nights result in to lessen, can be endured.

Fashionable New Fabrics

By ALICE ALDEN

INTERESTING weaves and beautiful prints and color schemes add pleasure to the Spring sartorial parade. From one of New York's topflight designers, Samuel Kass, comes a delightful dress and jacket costume, a worthy introduction to the new season. This fascinating shadow print crepe is patterned with wavy hearts in pink on brown. The dress has a short-sleeved bodice, and back-draped skirt. A small, stiffened bow of the fabric is brought outside of the jacket and buttoned to a peplum that dips in a point in back.

sallow skin, lack-lustre eyes, bad taste in the mouth, crumpled tempers, dull head and other symptoms. These are indicative of a self-evident fact, that while one slept, it was a profitless sleep, in which nature was unable to do more than induce this state of unconsciousness. During it she was hampered; she could not build up wasted tissues and revive tired nerves, much less store up renewed strength."

"To find restful sleep one should go to bed before one is spent and worn out. There should be an abundance of fresh air in the bedroom. When the lungs are freely inhaling pure air, and the body is constantly bathed inside with nature's elixir, restful sleep is likely to come.

Peace of mind is an important factor. The body cannot relax if the mind is overactive, especially if it is engaged in worrisome or depressing thoughts. One's troubles always look more terrible at night. When one is active during the day they seem

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Letters and Answers

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am planning on getting married within the next few months, but my folks, who are rather old-fashioned, have always shied away from telling me the facts of life and other things I will need to know when I marry. My mother absolutely refuses to discuss anything regarding sex with me, with the result that my knowledge of sex and marriage relations is terribly limited.

What I want to know is, is there any place or person I can go to for information, or are there any frank books published that will enlighten me? Or just what would you suggest, as I know I won't get any help from my mother? If there are any such books, I would really appreciate your recommending a few.

"Perplexed Miss"

Dear "Perplexed Miss":

It always seems incredulable to me that in these modern times there should still be so many mothers with a mid-Victorian philosophy of life. From the letters that come to my desk, I am well aware, however, that there are a vast number of such people who are unable to see how badly they let their children down by persisting in such an attitude.

You will send me a stamped addressed envelope, I will be very glad to send you a list of books that will be very helpful to you at this time.

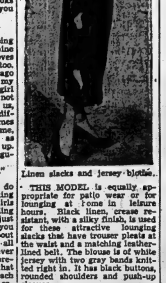
* * *

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17 and have been going steady with a girl 16 for nine months. She has told me she loves me and wants me to be her too.

The trouble began a month ago when I took another girl to my prom with the consent of my girl friend. She said it would not make any difference between us, but ever since she has acted differently toward me. Sometimes she acts nice and agrees with me, and other times she acts as though she wanted to break up. Today we had a serious argument. What shall I do?

"Puzzled"



Dear "Puzzled":

The first thing you should do is to stop talking and thinking about being in love. If you girls and boys would only be willing to look upon each other as just friends, instead of thinking you must get all steamed up about one single individual and let all the others go, you would never get into these foolish little predicaments. The trouble is, that when you attempt to tie each other down to your exclusive society, you leave the way wide open to all sorts of misunderstandings and hurt feelings to come in, as has been proved to you.

The smartest thing for you to do would be not to try to get back on the former basis with this girl again but decide to forget about "love", and let the girls know that you intend to be friends with them all now instead of concentrating on one. You'll have lots more fun, too.

Lock Haven Pa., (AP)—Move over, Mr. Groundhog—here comes the Maple Tree as a harbinger of Spring.

A month ago, the groundhog saw his shadow and thereby indicated six more weeks of winter.

Thursday, farmer Stuart George of nearby Hawbtown reported that since Feb. 18, he has tapped 940 maple trees and obtained 7 gallons of syrup.

That, says Farmer George, is the earliest tapping in Pennsylvania's Clinton County since 1907.

Pittsburgh, (AP)—Rebekahan William Heagy claims top honors in the police stork department. He delivered his 17th baby on Thursday.

Called to the home of Mrs. Lucinda Allen, 15, to "make a hospital run", Heagy instead was pressed into action to deliver a 6 1-2-pound baby girl.

At hospital later, mother and child were reported "doing nicely".

Tokyo, (AP)—Along with the new look, which some Japanese women have adopted, many have adopted a new outlook on life.

Instead of the meek, mild little wren who cense at the male's beck and call, the Japanese woman today is growing aggressive.

In fact, the aggressiveness has a lot of males worried —particularly those of a marriageable age.

The war left Japan short of men. Husband-hunting Japanese women have taken to burning men of their choice, whether they are married or not. The new tactics have the men terrified.

Eligible bachelors are reluctant to head for the altar. There are many reasons for this—it cost 10,000 yen (about $29) for only a routine wedding.

Moscow, (AP)—New music by Dmitri Shostakovich is being heard in Moscow.

An announcement said the Russian composer wrote the music for a new film, "Meeting on the Elbe".

Shostakovich last year apologized for his "mistakes" after the Central Committee of the Communist Party accused him of "Bourgeois tendencies" in his music.

The new picture features a meeting of Russian and American soldiers, an American Senator, a general and "typical agents of Wall Street."

Universities Not Pleased With Grants Received

(By the Canadian Press)

University grants and provision for community homes for elderly persons are the main Ontario budget items attracting comment in Ontario municipalities.

Officials of the universities, faced with rising costs and declining revenues, say the grants are only a partial answer to their problem.

The $375,000 grant for universities of Western Ontario $35,000 larger than last year, but less than the London university expected. President G. E. Hall said recently that a $500,000 grant should be "at least $600,000."

Chancellor C. F. Gilmour of Hamilton's McMaster University said the 1948 grants—a capital grant of $300,000 and an additional $100,000 for maintenance—fall short of meeting needs. Financing of Canadian universities continues to be a serious administrative problem, he said.

London may build a $1,400,000 municipal home for the aged, with the city paying half the cost of construction and maintenance and the province the other half. Health officers there say some elderly persons are occupying hospital beds because no other shelter is available.

Receive Less Than Last Year

Officials at Windsor said it appeared their city will receive $37,000 less this year than last in provincial road grants. Windsor last year received $137,000 as its municipal subsidy, plus $107,000 road work grant.

Hamilton expects to lose about $30,000 on the road subsidy but will probably gain through increases in other grants, officials at the city treasurer's office said.

J. S. McLarty, Middlesex county treasurer, said he believed his country might benefit by $6,000 a year in grants for maintenance of the County Home for the Aged. He said the net cost of operating the home last year was $12,000.

The proposal that the province underwrite 10 per cent of the cost of police and fire protection caused some misgivings among London city officials, who said they thought those costs should continue to be charged against real estate. But Mayor Roy Dennis said:

"If there are any clauses in the new regulations that the city of London can take advantage of and reduce the demands on real estate, we will take advantage of them."

Ottawa's Mayor E. A. Bourque said he would be "glad indeed" if the new plan means more money for Ottawa. He said it would take a day or two for the civic finance department to make an accurate estimate of what Ottawa will lose or gain by it.

Pearson Praises Pact as Deterrent To Starting War

Fort Arthur, March 5 (CP)—L. B. Pearson, Canada's Minister of External Affairs, said Friday night that development of the North Atlantic pact has been the greatest deterrent to war "devised by democracies in modern times."

Addressing the annual meeting of Port Arthur Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Pearson said Canada has played a "useful and often leading part" in the development of the pact, now in its final drafting stage in Washington.

"It is a pact for peace," he said "and if peace is impossible— and I don't suggest that—then it will be a pact for victory.

"It can give us a breathing space to convince anyone that would break the peace that they would be destroyed.

"Don't let anyone tell you that war is inevitable but if we don't take steps to preserve peace, war might be inevitable."

In acting to further the pact, he said, Canada had not become a satellite of anybody.

Canada had acted independently, choosing her course in the national interest. Because that course had led Canada to work in concert with the United Kingdom and the United States did not mean that she had become their satellite. But it did mean that Canada was joining the democratic powers in presenting a united front to "those people on the other side of the house."

FARMS IN SPRINGTIME

The more modern the farm, generally speaking, the more profit the farmer makes. That's the thought early Spring brings to many progressive Canadian farmers. That's why they're busy putting repair and modernization ideas into effect before routine work begins to take all their time.

Men like these are go-getters. If winter leaves them short of cash, they don't let that stop their progress. They simply arrange for a Farm Improvement Loan from the Bank of Montreal.

Listen to Glenn Kane comedies at straight five per cent. Farmers like the easy repayment terms and freedom from other charges. They know this service more than pays for the cost by providing quick economical money for many useful farm purposes. Henry Becker, manager of the B. of M. branch here, will gladly discuss Farm Improvement Loans with interested farmers.—(Advt.)

BATTLES EPIDEMIC—Credit is being given Dr. J. P. Moody, federal health department physician, for his fight against the epidemic, believed to be a form of poliomyelitis which has taken the lives of 11 Eskimos near Chesterfield Inlet on Hudson Bay. The disease was reported Friday to be waning. This photo of Dr. Moody, shown taking the temperature of an Eskimo baby while in Manitoba, on was taken last summer during a visit to the area by Dr. H. GIVEN FREEDOM—Hardy West, left, and his brother Herbert, right, were released by immigration officials in Montreal Wednesday night after a month's detention for entering Canada illegally. Shown here with their brother Thomas, the Dublin brothers were surprised at their release. They came to Canada as stowaways and worked several months in Montreal before reporting to immigration authorities. Now, the main object of the three brothers is to bring their mother to Canada from Eire. (CP Photo)

TYPICAL FAMILY—This Eskimo family, photographed last summer outside their tent at Chesterfield Inlet, is typical of the natives who have been stricken by what is believed to be a form of poliomyelitis. A team of medical experts were flown to the scene after federal health authorities were informed the disease had reached epidemic proportions and a quarantine was placed on a wide area. The disease is now believed under control. (CP Photo)

Liberal Stirs Brief Flurry In the House

Ottawa, March 5 (CP)—Thomas Reid (L-New Westminster) stirred up a brief flurry among Progressive Conservatives in the Commons Friday when he suggested John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) would have made a more formidable opposition leader than George Drew.

Mr. Reid, speaking in the Throne Speech debate, said Canadians would have been "a little more uneasy in our minds" if Mr. Diefenbaker had won the leadership last fall.

He said he thought Maj. Gen. G. R. Pearkes, D.C. (PC-Nanaimo)—who nominated Mr. Diefenbaker at the party convention — was right when he said Progressive Conservatives across the country were saying: "We want John."

Gen Pearkes leaped to his feet immediately to say he hoped the westerner was not suggesting he and Mr. Diefenbaker were not loyally behind Mr. Drew.

Mr. Reid retorted that Interpretation could not be taken from his words.

"That's why you put it in," exclaimed E. D. Fulton (PC-Kamloops.)

Mr. Diefenbaker writing a letter in his front row seat, went right on scribbling. Mr. Drew was not in the chamber.

MORE ATTENTION

In the Throne Speech debate, Mr. Reid detailed suggestions that the government has discriminated against some provinces in making allotments from the $30,000,000 provided for new hospitals. The grants were available and it was hoped all provinces would accept them as quickly as possible.

Every province had been served.

Dr. Blair, dealing with European physicians, said medical standards in Canada and the United States, in many cases, were higher than those in Europe. At the same time, Canada, with one doctor for every 1,000 persons, had a higher average of medical aid than any place in the world.

Mr. Winkler said the government's plans to cope with unemployment and said there was a large pool of public works projects in various stages of development. They, however, could not absorb all of the unemployed in a future depression. The Provinces and the municipalities would have to do their part.

Opposes Project

Mr. Hazen struck out at the St. Lawrence Seaway project and said it would mean "several more calls in the coffin of maritime hopes and maritime economy." It would be a major step toward the centralization of power and wealth in Central Canada.

Mr. Cournoyer spoke Quebec's support for the North Atlantic security pact and said those who believed that French-speaking Canadians would refuse to stand with others against the menace of Communism was misjudging the intelligence, the energy and the Christian spirit of Quebecers.

Mr. Timmins warned the government that unemployment would develop if the government did not change taxation policies. Industries were being stifled by taxes and would be forced to lay off their employees if they were not removed. Personal income tax exemptions, too, should be raised.

Responsibility of Govt.

Mr. Ferguson said responsibility for the housing shortage was at the government's feet. There had been improper planning and the government had never gone to the builders and asked them to do their utmost to solve the housing shortage. He said that during the war workers never failed to answer such appeals.

Mr. Ferguson urged the government to provide a pension for the disabled. He asked that the government abolish the regulation which requires that an immigrant child be in Canada for three years before being eligible for family allowances.

He recalled that the C.C.F. party long had criticized the Progressive Conservative Party for backing private enterprise. They spoke of private companies as octopuses which robbed the poor and gave nothing in return.

His pointed to the Bell Telephone Company as one firm which had been fair to its workers. Canada Packers also had bonused its employees. So had other firms. The C.C.F. party should not continually criticize.

He recalled that George Drew, the Progressive Conservative leader, had mentioned the issue of provincial rights.

"Hear, hear," shouted a Liberal member. "What about Duplessis?"

Mr. Ferguson said he did not know what the Liberals wanted to mention Mr. Duplessis for when they could discuss Mr. Drew in the House or Mr. Duplessis in Quebec. He wondered how they would make out if there were two "Maurice-Duplessis" men—both Mr. Drew and Mr. Duplessis—in the Chamber.

MOLOTOV

3. The sudden shift may herald a drastic change in Russian foreign policy, such as in 1939, when Molotov succeeded Maxim Litvinoff as Foreign Commissar (later changed to Foreign Minister). Less than three months after he took over, Molotov signed a 10-year non-aggression pact with Hitler, paving the way for the first attack on Poland and the war.

If a new policy is coming, observers had no idea whether it will result in harder or softer Kremlin attitude in the cold war.

The Mikoyan - Menshikov change was overshadowed by the sensational replacements.

But Mikoyan, regarded by some as one of the most pro-western members of the politburo, also had the important job as head of the economic council for mutual aid, Russian organization of satellite states formed recently as a counter to the Marshall plan. There was no immediate announcement that Menshikov would take over this job, too.

MUNICIPALITIES

cides the force is adequate and efficient. If it is not, the amount of the grant is reduced accordingly. Provision is made for appeals.

Welfare Minister Goodfellow introduced a bill providing that all Ontario municipalities must establish adequate old age homes.

The previous act specified that counties must do this but cities and separated towns "may" do it.

Provincial payments towards cost of new construction of such homes are increased from 25 to 50 per cent. For the first time the province will pay 50 per cent of the cost of maintaining municipality and district homes. The province will pay the full cost of maintenance of a person who, at the time of his admission to an old age home, lived in unorganized territory.

To Pay For Wards

Under an amendment to the Children's Protection Act, the province will pay a municipality 25 per cent of its liability for the maintenance of Children's Aid Society wards. The province also will pay the societies 25 per cent of all funds collected by public subscription.

Highways Minister Doucett's bill provides for payment to cities and separated towns of one-third of all highway expenditures and one-half to towns and villages. Formerly these grants amounted to one-third of expenditures equal to two miles on the assessment in the case of cities and separated towns and twice the previous year's county road levy in the case of towns and villages in a county.

Chicago Black Hawks to Sink Or Swim in Weekend Games Against Detroit Red Wings

Chicago Black Hawks, who boast the two highest scoring forward lines in the league and hold a virtual monopoly on the individual scoring race, seem in be a team of destiny which has failed to arrive.

Charlie Conacher's unpredictable squad can score plenty of goals but can't stop the opposition from doing the same.

The Hawks have gone in spurts all season. They dropped eight of their last 11 games.

Today they are three points out of the cellar, but still four away from the fourth-place Toronto Maple Leafs and the last playoff spot.

It's do-or-die for the Hawks who take on the league-leading Detroit Red. Wings in a home-and-home series, opening at Detroit tonight. Double dates are the vogue, with Montreal and Boston tangling twice as well as Toronto and New York.

A double loss for Chicago would just about settle the issue and put the Leafs and Canadiens into the Stanley semi-round.

Here's How Race Stands

Here's how the race stands at the moment: Montreal has 53 points, Toronto 51 and Chicago 47.

If Montreal wins only two and tie one in their eight remaining games, they will have 59 points. Chicago could win five of their seven left and still have only 57 points.

If Toronto wins only three of eight, they'll have 57 and Chicago would still have to win five of seven to tie Toronto.

If Montreal and Toronto split even the rest of the way, winning four and losing four, they would have 61 and 59 points respectively, and Chicago would have to win seven to tie Toronto.

Montreal has four home games, four away; Toronto three at home five away; and Chicago, three at home, four away.

So take your pick, but if it's Chicago, be sure to get hefty odds.

Getting back to those Chicago marksmen, shooting the Hawks be in there with two lines like the Roy Conacher-Doug Bentley Bill Mosienko and the Jim Conacher-Gus Bodnar-Gaye Stewart threat. These six players have scored 122 goals and racked up 169 assists.

The answer probably lies in the team's for and against record which shows the Hawks have hit the target 157 times. But allowed the opposition to score 181 markers. A powerful offence can't make up for the club's defensive lapses.

HOMUTH GIVEN WELCOME

Ottawa, March 5 — (CP)—Karl Homuth, colorful Progressive Conservative member for Waterloo South, was given a resounding welcome Friday when he made his first appearance in the Commons since recuperating from a serious illness.

Rodney Adamson (PC — York West), Mr. Homuth's desk-mate, rose and said the chamber frequently said tribute to members who died but he wished to pay tribute to a member "who has refused to die."

Brown Bomber Never Intended To Fight Again

(By The Canadian Press)

Joe Louis never intended to fight again, Harry Mendel says, but the champion hid this secret so well even his manager, Marshall Miles, was kept guessing.

Mendel has been directing Louis' exhibition tour, so should know a little about his subject.

Joe, he said, at New York Friday, was high-pressured into making vague statements.

"He has a big heart," Mendel explained, "and he wanted to help Uncle Mike (Jacobs). Ed Strauss of the Twentieth Century kept after Joe all the time, wanting him to fight again.

"Joe's plan to announce his retirement, and enter the field as a promoter had been cooking about 10 days. It was his own idea to get Ezzard Charles and Jersey Joe Walcott to fight for the title."

Players of Britain's 88 major soccer league clubs Friday threatened to go on strike.

Delegates to a meeting of their union in Manchester Monday will be asked to vote on whether to walk out in support of a pension scheme and a new form of contract.

The players union has been negotiating with the English football league, but have said the football association for months.

The pension scheme would make an athlete free to change clubs after a term of from one to three years.

Two years ago the union called a strike which was stopped by government intervention in the form of a national arbitration tribunal.

James Fay, secretary of the players union, said the union has already applied to the ministry of labor to intervene in the current dispute.

Livio Minelli of Italy won the European welterweight title at The Hague Friday by defeating Giel De Roode of The Netherlands. The ring doctor and referee halted the bout after the 11th round because of cuts on both of Roode's eyes.

At Basle, Switzerland, the Sudbury Wolves who represented Canada in the world hockey championships, Friday defeated Switzerland 9-2.

Bob Masterson, who last year coached the University of Toronto to its first football championship since 1936, is considering an offer from the Hull-Ottawa Bombers club.

Rumors became definite Friday when Masterson flew back from Montreal. Bombers officials offered him a two-year contract at $9,000 a year — a figure the university admits it can't match.

Masterson said: "I can't make up my mind."

Johnny Samis, star Vancouver badminton star and runner-up last year to Dick Birch for the Canadian title, announced that he will compete in the Toronto Granite Club's invitation tournament that starts next Wednesday. Samis is favored to win the title, since Birch has been sidelined. His entry promises stiff competition for the United States experts expected at the event.

World records may topple Sunday when some of the greatest names in ski-jump tackle what is said to be the biggest ski-jumping hill in North America, the Nels Nelsen ski hill at Revelstoke, B.C.

Believed to be the highest in North America, the ski hill is guaranteed safe for jumps of more than 300 feet. Its long run and steep incline are in peak condition.

Peter Hugstead, of Norway, 1948 Olympic jumping champion, tops the list of competitors who will attempt to break world records.

CHIPS
OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Tonight the Rookies Junior "B's" trek to Kingston where they take on the Navy team of that town in the last scheduled game of the season.

The juniors play a half of a double-header. The other fifty per cent will be the Senior "B" Nylons tangle with the Kingston Navy in the second game of their two-of-three semi-finals series. If Nylons can find their scoring range the lads with Diesels here on Monday night in the first of the group finals games.

If however, Navy springs a startling upset, and defeat Nylons in the first two series, the third game of that argument will be played on Monday night. In that case the first game between Diesels and the semi-finalists will be played here on Wednesday night with the second game scheduled for Kingston next Saturday night.

But, if as is expected, Nylons take the semi-finals series in two straight games, the sizzling crew will be here, as we said before on Monday with the second game in Kingston Wednesday night, and the third in Memorial Arena here next Saturday night.

Belleville Rockets will be at near full strength tonight against Kingston Navy, Kenny Trussel and Graham will be back in hockey harness, but Milligan will be off the lineup. He is not expected to be available for the remainder.

Spring training has ushered in another season of baseball and with it comes that ever-fascinating business of sign-making, sign-stealing, and tip-off detecting.

This highly specialized activity in according to sportswriter Arthur Daley, "inside baseball in its most intriguing form, and it is an utter mystery to the average fan." What makes it even more mysterious, says Daley in a March American Magazine article, is that the fan knows it's always present, even though he doesn't see it or recognize it.

Signals are as essential to baseball as the players themselves, and Daley relates many of the things that have taken place on the diamond simply because of a missed or stolen signal, or a tip-off somewhere. Every opposition player or coach has been alert enough to detect and flash to his teammates.

The art of sign-stealing has been developed to such an extent that managers have been known to change their signals not only from game to game but even during a contest. Bucky Harris, when managing the Senators, is said to have at least one occasion used a different combination of signals for every player in his line-up.

"The only manager who probably never cared who else got his signals was Casey Stengel," Wilbert Robinson of the even more droll Brooklyn Dodgers," writes Daley. "One day a player came to the latter complaining: 'Uncle Robbie,' he said, 'I think we oughter change our signs. The other teams are starting to get them.'

"Uncle Robbie seemed indignantly: 'I don't give a damn if they do. I wanna make sure you guys get them, too.'"

Signs generally are flashed in a pattern that involves either the hands, the feet, or the spoken word. But there have been times when the signals have been a shade shorter.

Daley recalls the day when Manager Leo Soudreau was astounded when he saw a batter in his lineup bunting when he'd been on first and second, attempting a double steal with none out. When both were thrown out Leo bellowed for an explanation. It was then that Leo was surprised to learn he, himself, did quiet inadvertently. Shifting with a heavy coat, he had, with his pocket for his hands, scratched and unconsciously gave the signal for the foolhardy play.

Chuck Dressen, the erstwhile major league pilot-coach who sent manager Dobbins, was renowned for his signal-stealing ability.

"There was one occasion," Daley relates "when Johnny VanderMeer of the Cincinnati Reds, the only pitcher ever to hurt pre-season training camp fan games, was tossing against the Dodgers, with Dressen in the third base coaching box. The shrewd Dressen instantly called in advance every pitch that Vandy threw. The Brooks drove Johnny to cover fast."

Even after a signal has been stolen there must be split-second transmission of it to opposing players to be of advantage. Rare is the situation when a sign is missed deliberately, but it has happened.

"Many years ago," recalls Daley, "John McGraw flashed the sacrifice bunt sign to Moose McCormick, a famous pinch hitter for the New York Giants. The Moose couldn't resist a luscious pitch and tripled to right to win the game.

"When the inning ended, he happily rushed to the bench to accept congratulations from McGraw. But little Napoleon was in a black rage. 'I told you to bunt,' he stormed. 'That will cost you fifty.' And the Moose paid a $50 fine for the privilege of bashing out a triple!"

Canadian Sport Snapshots

Toronto, March 5 (CP)—Probably quite a few junior hockey players are taking a guilty peek at their birth certificates following the recent controversy in the Ontario Hockey Association over Pierre Cadieux of Stratford Kroehlers.

Cadieux's team has a certificate showing his age as 20 but the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association has one that says he is 22. According to the Quebec's League registrar, Cadieux played for Montreal Royals in the 1944-45 season, switched to Hamilton Tigers of the O.H.A. Senior series last season and this year played junior hockey.

Art (Cornwall Standard-Freeholder) Cameron says that the Cadieux charge is the third over-age case brought to light this season.

"We can't know how many more cases similar to this are hidden deep in the tangled mess of hockey's organized disorganization."

"Do the various associations simply take the hockeyists' word that their records are in order?" Cameron asks. "Or do they check back as closely as possible to make sure there are no slipups?"

Cameron urges that some type of centralized organization be set up to keep a record of a player from the day he first enters organized hockey to the day he quits.

Born Twice

Laurie (Galt Reporter) Brain says that the O.H.A. has two different birth certificates for Cadieux. The second one he used when he played for another junior team two seasons ago.

Brain believes that a housecleaning is necessary to prevent further similar occurrences in organized hockey.

LIONS EDGE INDIANS

Washington, March 5 — (CP)—Augie Herchenreiter tallied the winning goal as Washington Lions edged Springfield Indians 4-3 Friday in an American Hockey League game before 875 fans.

Herchenreiter's tally came at 5:43 of the third period with Bryan Hextall and Tom Fogle receiving assists.

Springfield started the scoring early in the first period when Harry Frost beat Washington goalie Lon Crowdis. Doug McMurray scored an equalizer midway through the period.

Norm McAtee and Paul Murdrick were the other Washington marksmen. Doug McMurdy led the Springfield attack with two tallies. Mike Narduzzi accounted for the third Indian goal.

113 Nommations For Kentucky Running May 7

Louisville, Ky., March 5 (AP)—Churchill Downs today announced 113 nominations for the Kentucky Derby's Diamond Jubilee running May 7.

The list includes most of last year's leading two-year-olds and is headed by J. M. P.Roebling's Blue Peter, the 1948 juvenile champion. There are four more potential derby winners than last year, when 109 nominations were filed.

Canadian owners made their strongest bid in many years for a derby winner. With five nominations, W. J. Addison named Arise and Blue Regent, both stakes winners last season. E. P. Taylor nominated Illuminable, another Juvenile stakes winner. The partnership of Nem and Kretchman nominated Polly Lea, a filly with four victories in eight starts last year. All these owners are from Ontario. Francis R. Graham of Vancouver nominated Imported Rethore, the first to be at derby headquarters.

The derby, North America's oldest continuous turf event, is open to three-year-old colts, fillies and Geldings. It is run at one mile and a quarter.

The derby again will feature a purse of $100,000 added money. Its value to the winner will depend upon the number of starters, but usually it ranges between $80,000 and $90,000.

Solmar Tables:

Sporting Books of Unusual Merit

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solmar Tables

During recent years a veritable "flood of sport" in books has manifested itself in the book shops of the country. To acquaint oneself with all of them would be a chore that takes on all the aspects of a full-time job.

Thus, what is said here should be viewed in the light of being the comment of a selective mind, rather than an all-inclusive selection.

No book should be written unless its writer or editor brings to the reading public something of exceptional, definite value. Already there are far too many books, dealing with the outdoors or the outdoor sports, which serve the dubious purpose only of taking up space on the library shelves.

However, one does show up now and then which has certain qualities that set it apart from the others. The five books which are discussed here in brief survey possess these attributes.

Lucas on Bass Fishing, by Jason Lucas, Robert M. McBride & Company, 1947, $4.00.

Jason Lucas certainly is master of the casting rod. What he has to say of casting bass, particularly about off-shore, open-water fishing, will be of interest to any bass fisherman.

Duck Shooting, edited by Eugene V. Connett, William Morrow and Company, 1947, $15.00.

This is an omnibus of accounts by sixteen men who be unduly-quoted authorities in their representative fields. The chapters are familiarize the reader, pleasantly and reliably, with wild fowl shooting, past and present, along the Atlantic seaboard and the Gulf coast as far west as Louisiana.

No matter how long you have shot ducks and geese, the probabilities are that you will find herein a great deal of news information about shooting methods.

Lavishly Illustrated

The book is lavishly illustrated with excellent photographs, sketches and color plates by Dr. Edgar Burke and Lynn Bogue Hunt. If you are a duck shooter you will find it very much worth while.

Training Gun and Woodcock Dogs, by Dr. Logan J. Bennett, G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1948, $3.00.

For a good many years Dr. Bennett was the Leader of the Research Unit of U.S. Fish and Wildlife Department, stationed at State College, Pennsylvania. His time was devoted to the study of grouse and woodcock.

An important part of all equipment was a kennel or reliable hunting dogs who could be depended upon to find every bird, every day, in any area under study. To get such dogs Dr. Bennett evolved his own training methods.

It has been my good fortune to shoot over several of these setters and, at last, to own one of them. Believe me, it is both a pleasure and a privilege.

The only way to realize how many mediocre hunting dogs there are in this world is to shoot behind a Bennett dog.

While the writer has in mind only grouse and woodcock, his training methods can be applied to dogs for upland shooting.

Gunner's Guide by George Sackeland, The Macmillan Company, 1947, $3.95.

Nine of Information

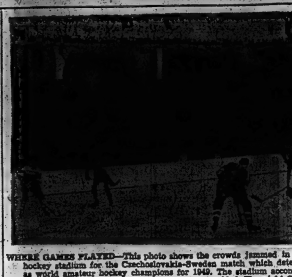
This is a short book of only 111 pages, but these same pages are indeed a mine of information for any man who uses a shotgun.

Mr. Sackeland has included between the two covers of his book the answers to all of those questions in your mind which have gone unanswered for so many years. Without question, it is the most complete manual on the subject that has yet been publish ed—really a "must" for every shotgun enthusiast.

Old Man Crow's Boy, by John Baumann, William Morrow & Company, 1948, $2.50.

This is one of the most astonishing books that it has ever been my good fortune to read.

The scene is laid in central Idaho. It is a first-hand account of life in the wilderness from 1880 until 1908, with verified accounts of virgin forests, wild horses, outlaws, rustlers, complete with all the trimmings.



It seems inconceivable to a pampered and civilized Easterner that one man, now living and managing a successful dude ranch can bring to you eye-witness participator's accounts of wilderness conditions, when every man enforced his own laws, on down over the years through the gradual transition to law, order, and an organized society.

If you would learn of the "Wild West" as it really was, read this book by Al Hemry.

And speaking of reading, don't forget that your Solunar Tables make interesting and profitable reading for anyone who likes the outdoors.

Once again let me remind you that it pays to keep track of the daily Solunar Periods.

WHERE GAMES PLAYED—This photo shows the crowds jammed in Stockholm's vast open-air ice hockey stadium for the Czechoslovakia-Sweden match which determined Czechoslovakia's position as world amateur hockey champions for 1948. The stadium accommodates 13,000 persons who had to stand for all the games since no seats are provided. The night Canada played Sweden 8,000 more fans than the stadium was meant to hold literally crushed the gates. (CP Photo)

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 5 (AP)—The names of a hundred or-so hopefuls for the Kentucky Derby, of which maybe a dozen will be starters, were given out to the public today... and that recalled the story of the most surprising starter in the history of the race ...back in 1930, the late Pat Joyce had nominated a 2-y-o named Dick O'Hara...he soon learned the horse didn't have a chance and had no intention of running him... but when the entry box was opened, in came the name of Dick O'Hara, and he started, too...it seems Joyce had learned that a character in Chicago was running a derby "pool" which guaranteed a 1-to-1 on a ticket if the horse started. The operator, feeling sure Dick O'Hara wouldn't start, had sold a lot of extra tickets on that horse . Joyce's effort to protect the suckers was fruitless, for the sure-thing guy took a run-out with the dough he had collected.

Sportspourri

Revelle, George D. Widener's colt which looked good while finishing third in the Flamingo, is not eligible for the Kentucky Derby. Seems that trainer Bert Mulholland doesn't read the paper carefully and overlooked a published notice of the closing of the entries... Cornelia Bob Mealey, a favorite in the hepping-al 1,000 yards tonight, received some early coaching from his father, a former sprinter for the New York 13th Regiment Track Club.

Toronto Marlies Beat Dutchmen In Overtime

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Marlboros have proved they can come through when the chips are down. A crowd of 13,001 will vouch for that.

Last night Joe Primeau's charges took a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven series for the Ontario Hockey Association senior A title by defeating Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 5-4 in a sudden - death second overtime period in Toronto.

The Dukes looked polished as they garnered their sixth straight playoff victory as a sell-out crowd was on hand at Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens — the first time a senior game has packed the house in two years.

Marlboros did it the hard way. They overcame a 3-0 first period handicap to score once in the second, twice in the third, split two goals in the first overtime period and came up with the winning tally at 6:36 of the second extra period.

Johnny McCormack, Scotty Muir, Alex Davidson, Al Buchanan and Ray Hannigan tallied for Toronto. Kitchener goals were scored by Ted Grasser with two and Mickey Roth and Bill Dinning with one apiece.

The game had just about everything. It was held up nearly 18 minutes just after the 10-minute overtime session started when fans littered the ice with papers, peanuts and miscellaneous items.

Dinning sent the Dutchmen into a 1-0 lead early in the first period on a three-way play with Roth and Grasser. Roth made it 2-0 when he flipped in his own rebound minutes later. Grasser added another for the Dutchmen with less than two minutes left in the period.

In the second period McCormack got the only marker as he put Toronto on the score sheet. Then Davidson and Muir scored late in the third period to get the equalizer. Muir got his goal with 1 second remaining in the game. After Primeau took Harvey out of the nets and sent six forwards into the battle, Hannigan and Grasser each counted in the first overtime period.

Today, Toronto Marlboros juniors take on St. Catharines Teepees in the second game of their best-of-five semi-final series. The Dukes lead the series 1-0.

Govt. Housing Plan Will Be Revived

Ottawa, March 5 (CP)— The government's suspended integrated housing plan is to be revived, with a new method of operation aimed at protecting war veterans' investments in prospective homes.

Reconstruction Minister Winters told the Commons yesterday that the plan was to be resumed with a series of new regulations tightening up on contractors.

Major provision is that down payments by purchasers will be placed in trust until houses have been delivered to the buyers. Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation will advance part of the working capital thus lost by the contractors.

Another change is that no sale will be made final until a house has been 80-per-cent completed.

A third is that when a house reaches the first-floor joist stage, the title has to be turned over to Central Mortgage.

The Corporation is to hold the title until a sale is arranged or until it takes over the home under the existing arrangement whereby it acquires such homes which contractors cannot dispose of to private buyers.

About 43 such acquisitions have taken place up to now, Mr. Winters said, out of 13,000 units built under the plan since 1945.

The minister said contractors' financial difficulties have hit at about 100 veteran purchasers as the reason for stoppage of the scheme at the end of the year. He said all these cases were being reviewed.

However, he declared the new method of operation could not be made to apply to those cases where a purchaser already had made a down payment.

KITCHENER—CANADA

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Akoslop Ozhead plays bridge as if he cards were crooked. He spends no time trying to learn the right rules. Instead, he wants rules to adjust themselves to his flair for long shots.

An opening bid of one shows a better than average hand. It is a type of hand that may not make a game with less than three tricks help from partner. It promises from five to eight tricks.

An opening bid of two in a suit shows a hand that expects to make a game by itself. In theory, such a hand needs no help from partner so far as a game contract is concerned.

An opening of three in a major (or four in a minor) shows an independent suit. Also a sure trick of some kind in a side suit. Eight tricks will such a hand take.

An opening of four in a major (or five in a minor) shows only a flock of trumps. It may have few big cards, even in trumps. Such a hand expects to be defeated two or three tricks doubled.

Mathematics proves the foregoing are the best rules. For the vast majority of hands, that is. over a long period of time. Exceptions that work on rare occasions are not sufficient to make them a habit.

For a long time Akoslop opened every good hand with four. Mostly he went down or missed a game. It began to dawn on him that his four hids were unlucky. Then he got this hand:

♠A K 8 7 4
♥A
♦K J 8 2
♣K Q 7

To change his luck he opened this hand with a bid of one. And everybody passed. It was the one time he could have made a game.

Reminds me of a fellow waiting back from the Marne party. "I always play nothing but long-shots," he said, "and in the last race one of them finally came in."

"How much did you win," he was asked. "Oh," he grumbled, "by that time I was so deep in the hole I was afraid to bet on it."

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 5. (AP)—With the Academy awards less than three weeks away, Hollywood's annual pollicking bursts into full swing.

Press agents to the left of me, press agents to the right of me, all volleying and thundering for their pet contenders.

Amidst all the sound and fury, let's hop into a shell hole for calm consideration of the five films up for the top award.

This is no minor matter. It's estimated that an Academy award can add $1,000,000 to a picture's gross. Here's this movie goers opinion of the 1948 nominations:

"Hamlet" is a superlative job. Only a British cast could present Shakespeare so ably. The mood and action is just right. But it is still Shakespeare.

Credit to Rank

The Bard of Avon is the one who should take the majority of the credit for the film. For all of Laurence Olivier's imagination, it remains a pictorized play, and not a motion picture achievement.

"Johnny Belinda" is a fine melodrama. Carried by the tender performances of Jane Wyman and Lew Ayres, it remains believable and moving throughout. But it is still melodrama and not a great movie.

"The Red Shoes" presents a wonderful picture of the ballet. The backstage life, which is so phoney in most films, is here well captured here. So well, in fact, that you think the whole thing is real. Added drawbacks: its length, the swishy humor, the fantastic ending.

My Own Choice

"The Snake Pit" is an arresting study of mental illness. It offers a fine portrayal by Olivia DeHavilland and stark view of the institution asylum. But such an advance in film material doesn't necessarily mean it's a prize picture. Among the children are a ridden idiot and some mawkish sentiment.

"The Treasure of the Sierra Madre" is an inspired movie of character-driven plot. Without rare insight, he shows the effect of gold lust on the minds of men. The picture starts slowly but develops power. Fine photography and the acting of Walter Huston (John's father), Humphrey Bogart and Tim Holt make it a gem.

You may gather from this that "treasure" is my choice. It is. But who can fathom the vagaries of the Academy?

Scotland Yard Knows Nothing of Threat

London, March 5 (AP)—London newspapers today reported that someone had threatened to blow up the parliament buildings and that security guards had been strengthened there for the weekend. Scotland Yard said it had not heard of such a threat. The newspapers said the plotters were a group of "freedom-loving men."

Cincinnati (AP)—The Edward Voll home had another roof-top visitor yesterday. An automobile crashed into the roof just a few feet from the roof where another car made a similar visit 14 months ago.

And, just as it was in January, 1948, Mrs. Voll and her grandson were seated in the kitchen of the one-story frame dwelling.

The right front wheel of the vehicle broke through the roof of the kitchen.

Mrs. Voll, 50, and two-year-old Eddie Voll were on the other side of the room and escaped injury, just as they did 14 months ago.

Police said the automobile had been parked in a vacant lot, adjoining the Voll home. The house, with a retaining wall in the rear, is eight to 10 feet lower than the lot.

Frankford Combines Even Playoff Series Defeating Norwood 7-4

Frankford—Frankford-Batawa Combines won the playoff game Thursday night in the Trent Valley "B" series playoffs, as they defeated Norwood 7-4 before a capacity crowd in the Frankford Arena. The game was fast and clean with only four penalties being issued for minor infringements. The locals had the better of the play throughout the entire game, except for a desperate comeback in the last period by Norwood. Both goal tenders were on their toes, holding rushes and break-throughs alone on several occasion.

Rankin counted first for the Combines, on a pass from Schmidt and two minutes later, Schmidt soloed in for a second. From then on, the local team was never threatened.

Frankford-Batawa were lined up that Schmidt, Rankin, Desjardins and Howard, all suffered injuries. Schmidt got a cut in the forehead, Rankin a bad clout in the face, Desjardins suffered a cut nose, and Howard sustained a back injury. All were accidental and not as a result of unclean play.

Norwood: Goal, Morrison; defence, Puffer, Simpson; forwards Goodfellow, Fennel, Kelly, alternates; Webb, Rogers, Brown, Peterson, Payne, Hamilton, Hill.

Frankford-Batawa: Goal, Aquino; defence, Schmidt, Forester; forwards, Cooke, Rankin, McKee; alternates, Duncan, S. Mason, Desjardins, Mufftit Howard Hood, Farmer, Heldman.

WIN OVERTIME VICTORY

Toronto, March 5 — (CP) — University of Torohto closed out the senior intercollegiate hockey season, Friday with a 5-4 overtime victory over McGill Redmen to clinch second place in the standings. McGill stayed in third place.

The home club overcame a 3-goal lead in the third period and added two goals in overtime to take the decision.

Henry's two goals topped Blues' scorers, with Spence, Ferguson, Howson, Digby and Fox tallying one goal apiece. Sinclair notched two to lead McGill Marksmen and he starred throughout. Howard May, Costello and Hackett were the other McGill scorers.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was making kind of funny faces at himself after supper, and ma said, William, is anything wrong?

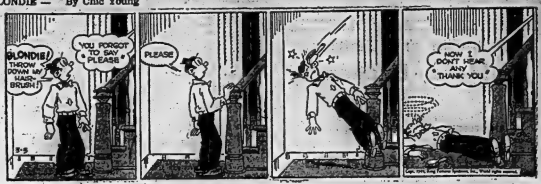
I wouldn't wo so far as to say that, pop said. I'll just go so far as to say I've got an unusual feeling in the region of my stummick. But just because it's unusual, that's no proof that it's necessarily wrong, he said, and ma said, But of course it is, you silly thing.

Oh, it'll probably go away, pop said, and ma said, There's many a slip-between probably and certainly. Really, I mean really, William, I think you awt to go rite around and let Dr. Rorer look at it. I mean listen to it, or at least I mean ask you about it, said.

You're quite wrong, my dear, pop said. A famous doctor once said that seven cases out of every 10 would get better without medical assistance. Do you realize what a gamble that is in the doctor's favor? If I could find a roulette wheel that gave me chances to one, I'd stop twirling and spend the rest of my life raking in my winnings, he said, and ma said, The 2 things have nothing whatever in common.

Oh yes they have, pop said. I assure you my stummick feels decidedly like a roulette wheel as this very moment, and 7 chances out of 10 it's stop turning an behave itself without a docks, so why should I waist my good money by giving a doctor any such oddse as that? he said, and ma said, I wish you'd try to make more sense when you talk. I'm going to call up Dr. Rorer this in here and see you this evening, she said.

Let's toss up for it, pop said. If you win 7 times out of 10, you can call him up, he said, and ma said, I'll call him up.



Which she did, and Dr. Rorer came around and told pop to take some bicarbonate of soda.

Which he did.

Charles 'the Martyr' Greatest Royal Patron Art Ever Found

(By Hugh Trevor-Roper in the London Spectator).

Charles I had a touch of quality. He was an aesthete. His court was the last Renaissance court in Europe, and himself perhaps the greatest royal patron that art has ever found. Even the fragments and recollection of his great pictures galleries bewilder us.

His taste seemed universal: while bidding for old masters he could detect a living genius, and while he commissioned Rubens he could invest in Rembrandt. Neglecting politics he seized every artistic opportunity. On his romantic visit to Spain he missed the Infanta but secured a set of Titians. When Rubens visited England as an ambassador he was made to decorate the Banqueting Hall of Whitehall.

Through his own ambassadors through cosmopolitan financiers and travelling virtuosi, Charles continually enriched his collection and his purse was refreshed by questionable taxation only to be exhausted on works of art. In Rome Bernini carved his head from a triptych by Vandyck: Vandyck who, more than any other, has captured the elegance and refinement of that doomed Cavalier generation.

* * *

Nor was it only painting that Charles patronized. Inigo Jones was his surveyor of buildings, Henry Lawes his musician; and if the great poets—Milton and Marvell and the metaphysicians—were too serious for his taste, he took care of the lesser, granting them here a benefice or a bishopric there a pamphlet by a perquisite—Herrick and King, Suckling and Lovelace, and those fashionable academic wits, Waller and Randolph, Cleveland and Cartwright, whose reputation has lately evaporated.

From the King's court the fashion of culture spread outwards to the lesser courts of the nobility. The Earl of Arundel would return from Vienna with marbles and pictures; the Earl of Pembroke gathered in Rembrandt, Vandycks than anyone else in the world; Clarendon's Continuation of Lawes' music were played in the Earl of Bridgewater's castle; Palladian houses and Italian gardens enclosed a privileged life which seemed exempt from revolution; and the romantic Cavalier Montrose that exquisite generation contrived to produce a poet even in Scotland—the last poet ever to arise in that protestant peninsula.

An aesthete need not be an intellectual. Charles I had perfect taste, but he was not interested in thought, and in literature as in life he sought not meaning but sensuous beauty and theatrical effect. In religion he sought not a rule of conduct but a graceful liturgy. Above all literature he preferred the drama and the masque. Oxford was his spiritual home; at Cambridge they thought too much, but in Oxford Laud had corrected that. Oxford was "the only city in England that he could say was entirely to his devotion."

To the end he retained his love of masques and pictures, poetry and plays. A prisoner at Hampton Court, he commissioned a portrait from the newly-formed Dutch painter Lely; and immured "in his doleful restraint in Carisbrooke Castle" he consoled himself with Tasso and Ariosto, George Herbert and Edmund Spenser, and a book of plays. Driven from comedy to more melancholy thoughts, he turned to religion.

Charles' taste for religion, his taste for drama, and his refusal to compromise all combined at the end. He managed his last act with flawless taste; Inigo Jones could not have designed more perfectly that final make-an-exeunt.

* * *

When mythology is sustained by art, history strives in vain. The regicides, when they cut off King Charles' head, sealed their own historical doom. If the King's faults were personal, his death logically ended them; they could not invalidate the claims of the monarchy. By destroying him the rebels had destroyed his liabilities, which were their own assets and sole justification, and had to fight against the myth which they had enabled him to create.

They sought to liquidate the monarchy and the Church. They

U.K. Railways Develop Bigger, Better Service

By JAMES MCCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)—British railways are being polished and streamlined to serve as the brightest and the dinghy of nationalized services.

The railways, with their 700,000 employees, £1,000,000 ($4,000,000) daily traffic receipts, 20,000 locomotives and more than 1,000,000 coaches and freight cars, have been owned by the nation since Jan. 1, 1948.

Sir Eustace Missenden, railway executive chairman, said the purpose is to give the country "cheaper and better transport services without imposing a burden on the taxpayer."

The Labor government and friends of nationalization look to the railways to demonstrate quickly the benefits and economies of nationalization. Trains operated by British Railways, glistening with new paint, running on time, offering pleasant accommodation and maintaining a high safety record would be a handsome contrast to the austerities of wartime travel.

The Conservatives in reply insist railways operated by private companies under government supervision could do the job just as well.

Meanwhile, the railway executive reports:

In 1948 there were 813 more trains each Saturday than in 1947, sleeping car services have been extended, more refreshment boilers rumble about railway stations and there are 117 more trains with refreshment cars. Better freight services are being provided with more efficient use of freight cars.

Future Plans

For the future it promises:

New light weight steel cars.

Extension of buckeye coach coupling throughout the system, beyond two out of six railway nations where it is now used.

Twelve standardized types of locomotives will replace the 400 now in service.

Radio service will be installed after tests to allow communication. If desirable, between shunting engines and control points, between depot and road collectors trucks and between staffs on engineering projects.

Automatic warning control systems will be developed.

Three hundred miles of heavy flat-bottom rail will be laid within a few months to speed fast traffic.

All resources will be mobilized and new methods used to cut down pilfering.

Leaders Must Have Seasoned Veterans for Advice, Guidance

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, March 5 (CP)—Political leaders cannot think of everything nor can they know everything about everything if they are newcomers in the federal field. They must have seasoned veterans behind them for advice and guidance. George Drew, new Progressive Conservative leader in the Commons, has such men.

One is 56-year-old Rod Finlayson, a Winnipeg lawyer who was slightly crippled while serving in France in the First World War. He has been "Man Friday" to two Tory leaders.

Some of the strategic moves that have enabled Mr. Drew to keep the Commons hopping since the present session opened could be traced directly to Rod Finlayson.

Knows The Ropes

He knows the statutes, the rules of procedure and the wiles of politicians.

Mr. Finlayson is a former Winnipeg lawyer who once advised the late Viscount Bennett when the latter was Canadian Prime Minister.

Since 1940 he has almost constantly been the strategical adviser of the Conservative—later the Progressive Conservative party—and has spent most of his time in Ottawa.

He doesn't write speeches for Mr. Drew nor does anyone else. When the opposition leader is making a speech, he gets perhaps a couple of hundred words of notes from Mr. Finlayson.

With this data Mr. Drew might speak an hour or two. He makes his own speeches as he goes along. But he relies on Mr. Finlayson to keep him straight on statutory and procedural facts.

Other Helpers

Mr. Drew has a straight political adviser in D. Roland Michener, former Provincial Secretary in the Ontario government. Liaison with party supporters is handled by Mel Jack, a veteran in the organization.

Mr. Finlayson sees in Mr. Drew many of the qualities of the late Viscount Bennett, particularly his determination to stubbornly adhere to any stand he may take on principle.

Mr. Drew's strategic adviser and statutory expert is a familiar figure in the galleries of the House from where he has been known to send down pencilled reminders or facts to his leader during debate.

sold their lands and property, but they could not dispose of their intangible assets. They cut King Charles' picture, and kings and cardinals and bankers sent their agents to so memorable a sale. They nearly sold all the English cathedrals for scrap. And they protested, ever more shrilly, the virtues of republics, the justice of the dead, and the clarity of their consciences. But it was no good; they convinced no one.

FIRST BRITISH STAMP

The first postage stamp of Great Britain was made in 1840 and bore the portrait of young Queen Victoria.

RAPID GROWTH

Pulp and paper production in Canada has increased from $8,000,000 in 1900 to $800,000,000 annually in 1948.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was reading his paper and ma was reading hers, saying, Here she is again, Mrs. Gerstein Willows with her picture on the elastecy page, and this time she's had her hair done in the new shingle stile.

It sounds like something that should be done to a roof, pop said, and ma said, I suppose every woman I know will want to rush off and have her hair done the same way now, they're all actch sheep in the dark. Well, I flatter myself that my hair looks very well as it is. If it came time to my time of life and the shape of my head, so you're not going to catch me with my hair shingled, William, she said.

If that's a promise, I wont set any traps for you, pop said, and ma said, Of course I'm not inferring or implying that I'd injoy the reputation of being a back number. I certainly wouldn't want to give the impression that I'm living in the dark ages of 2 or 30 years ago, forever sleeping out of the pages of my own grandmother's family album. I dont want you to get any such idea as that about me, William, she said.

You may reassure yourself on that point, my dear, pop said. To me you're the mold of fashion and the p. as of form, not to mention the status of stile and the high tide of timeliness, as said, and ma said, Oh, then you mean you really wouldn't think it was out of place for me to have my hair shingled?

Heh? Why no, of course I wouldn't, pop said, and ma said, I know a dozzen women older than I am who are going around with successful shingles, so after all, William, if that's a way you really feel, I assure you you're the only one I care to please. I'll think it over, William, she said.

Meening she would proberly have it did.

Wheat Will Not Be Surplus Commodity

Ottawa, March 5 (CP)— This capital received with interest and appreciation today a Washington statement that wheat has now and will not in the near future— be declared a surplus commodity under the United States European recovery program.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said Friday night he was "pleased" to hear the news.

He was commenting on a statement in Washington by Agriculture Secretary Brannan that he did not have the matter under consideration, that he had not been asked to consider it and that it could be concluded from his statement that no surplus declaration" was likely in the near future. Canada's interest in U.S. action on wheat arises from the Anglo-Canadian wheat agreement, under which Britain is buying 140,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat and wheat flour in the current 1948-49 crop year and a similar amount in 1949-50.

The United Kingdom pays for that wheat partly in funds derived from E.R.P. If wheat is declared surplus in the United States, it means that Britain cannot use E. R. P. funds to buy wheat from Canada. E.R.P. regulations require that funds for specific goods must be used first to buy surplus quantities in the U.S.

Would Have Little Effect

However, there were some authoritative sources here who felt that such action, if it were taken, would have little effect on United Kingdom purchases of wheat from Canada.

They said that the United Kingdom still would have the $140,000,000 which she receives monthly from the Canadian loan as well as dollars which she earns from transactions with other Dominions in Washington for multilateral wheat agreement.

Britain would be a party to that agreement, as importer, and government sources here speculated that the U.S. negotiators might have used the threat of surplus declaration as a method of "pressuring" the British delegates into agreeing to a ceiling of $1.20 a bushel under the proposed pact. That is the price which the U. S. is seeking to have incorporated in the agreement.

SUPERVISES GRAVE-DIGGING FOR BODIE AWAITING BURIAL

Francis Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of New York, stands six graveside in Calvary cemetery, New York, as seminarians from St. Joseph's seminary at Dunwodie, N.Y., prepare a grave for one of scores of bodies that have been waiting burial for two months. Gravediggers have been on strike for seven weeks, at Calvary and Gate of Heaven cemetery. Toll number of bodies to be interred is 1,200. Both cemeteries are operated by St. Patrick's cathedral trustees as non-profit religious corporations and the cardinal pointed out, as such, are not bound to recognize a union. General view at right shows caskets awaiting burial.—Central Press Canadin.

McNaughton Says Writer Shows Bias for Russia

Lake Success, N.Y. March 5 — (CP)—Development of atomic energy for peaceful uses without strict international control involves the risk that atomic bombs will be made secretly.

On that statement Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian delegate on the Unit ed Nations Atomic Energy Commission, and P. M. S. Blackett, top-rank British physicist, agree.

But that is about as far as the agreement goes on atomic energy control.

Blackett says in his new book, "Fear, War And The Bomb" that "reasonable risks" should be taken. He holds the view that western nations which hold atomic secrets should turn them over to Russia and other countries.

Gen. McNaughton says "no country can afford to take the chance of a surprise atomic attack." He contends that strict control of all atomic energy must be assured before atomic secrets are made public.

The General's opinions were given to The Canadian Press in an exclusive interview. Speaking as a trained scientist, diplomat and soldier, he said Blackett, a Nobel prize winner in science, shows "political bias" in favor of the Soviet Union.

Commission Still Stalled

After nearly three years' work, the Atomic Energy Commission still is stalled in its effort to arrange for international control.

Blackett says Russia should be helped to raise her standard of living through peaceful development of atomic energy.

The difficulty, McNaughton said in his interview, is that the nuclear fuel used in any atomic pile —including those for peaceful purposes— is the same as the material used in the atomic bomb.

"Without adequate control there is too serious a danger of misuse," McNaughton said.

Blackett says Russia is right in refusing to accept the majority plan because it would permit the western powers to limit her development of atomic energy for peace uses and learn the location of Soviet arms factories.

Mr. McNaughton said there is no "serious justification" for Russian refusal to accept the majority plan on grounds that her peaceful atomic development would be hampered. He said it is doubtful whether some method of control of atomic energy for power development is in early prospect.

"The question whether power plants based on atomic energy will be built, on a considerable scale, is academic at the present time."

LIVING COST DROPS—Canada's cost-of-living index, which hit a record high of 159.5 in December, 1948, took a drop of one-tenth of a point as of Feb. 1 to make it 159.5. Lower food costs, which just barely overbalanced increases in fuel, light and other services, were given as cause of the decline. (CP Photo)

GROMYKO SECOND TO VISHINSKY IN FOREIGN MINISTRY

Shift May Bring Big Four Meeting

By EDDY GILMORE

Moscow, March 7 — (AP) — Foreign observers here speculated today whether the dramatic shift in Soviet foreign ministries might bring about new efforts to arrange a meeting of the Big Four council of foreign ministers.

Tied in with this question was discussion of whether the appointment of Andrei Y. Vishinsky as successor to V. M. Molotov might lay the groundwork for another big Four conference on the problem and the whole German question.

The Russians have made a meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers on all German problems one of the conditions for lifting their Berlin blockade.[1]

The appointment of Andrei A. Gromyko Saturday is the second spot in the foreign ministry, meanwhile, was seen as an indication of no sweeping change in Russian policy is in prospect.

Gromyko has been an outstanding spokesman for the policies of Molotov, who, on the basis of official announcements so far, continues in his distinguished job at first deputy prime minister and member of the policy-making politburo.

Gromyko, smooth and soft-spoken, has been a key minister under Molotov since December, 1946, and served as Russia's chief delegate to the United Nations from 1946 to 1948.

Head of Section

Since his return to Moscow last July he has been head of the American section of the foreign ministry.

Taking over Vishinsky's job is likely to mean that the 40-year-old Gromyko will be frequently at international conferences and meetings of the United Nations.

Vishinsky, with his customary energy, went about the routine of his new job. Saturday night he was with Prime Minister Stalin when the Soviet leader received the premier of the Korean people's republic (Russian name for Russian-dominated North Korea).

Vishinsky's first chief deputy, Gromyko, also lost no time in taking over his new post.

Gromyko was named Saturday when Nikolai Shvernik, chairman of the presidium of the supreme Soviet, received a foreign delegation.

"AN INSIDE JOB"

Toronto, March 7 — (CP) — Police today investigated the theory of safe robbery at the Walnut Dairy and indicated it was "an inside job."

The newly-purchased safe had two combinations and both were changed when it was delivered with weekend receipts yesterday.

Investigating officers said the burglars knew the combinations.

Plague in Arctic is Pollo Authorities May Extend Quarantine Boundaries

By JACK AVESON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, March 7 — (CP) — Extension of the quarantine already covering 40,000 square miles of the Canadian Arctic was under consideration today following confirmation of reports that the death - dealing plague sweeping the northwest coast of Hudson Bay is poliomyelitis.

Confirmation of the diagnosis came early today from Dr. W. J. Wood of Winnipeg, regional superintendent of Indian Health Services following his return here aboard an R. C. A. F. Dakota which also brought 18 stricken Eskimos to a local isolation hospital from the storm-swept outpost at Chesterfield Inlet, 1,000 miles north.

The Eskimos flown to Winnipeg all stretcher cases — were the only ones most seriously affected by the epidemic which, since its outbreak three weeks ago, claimed 13 lives and brought illness in varying degrees to 90 persons.

Hospital authorities said that the Eskimos here "are comfortable and generally seem in pretty fair condition." They said that examination of all the Eskimos would take some time, particularly as the language difficulty presents a barrier that makes progress slow in seeking out symptoms.

Probe, Spread of Disease

Quarantine was one of the most effective ways of limiting spread of the disease, he said, adding that this was the first time on record poliomyelitis had been known to occur as far north as Chesterfield Inlet, where a dozen or so buildings are clustered in a snow-bound, treeless waste 225 miles south of the Arctic Circle.

It was not known how the poliomyelitis germ had reached the Chesterfield Inlet settlement, he added, but there must have been a carrier. He did not explain what strong this carrier could take, but said attempts were being made to trace it.

Six of the Eskimos flown to Winnipeg were 12 years of age or younger, two of them girls. The oldest range from 15 to 23 years.

Eight ambulances met the all-weather plane at Stevenson field here and were under supervision of Dr. Woodall the patients — all stretcher cases — were swiftly transferred from their flying quarters to hospital beds.

Immediate members of the medical team were Dr. J. D. Adamson, Professor of Medicine at the University of Manitoba; Dr. A. F. W. Peet, chief of the Dominion Health Department's epidemiology division; Dr. J. C. Wit, assistant pathologist at the Winnipeg General Hospital; and Maj. R. A. Smillie, hygiene officer for the Canadian Army Command here.

Also aboard the aircraft on its final hop from Churchill were Indian and authorities said nine was in prospect for several days. All the lowest in inhabited and were inoculated today against typhoid. Water and sewage facilities in four feet deep around 300 homes and it is now frozen.

The trouble spots in Nebraska appeared to be the towns of Crete and Wilber, 25 miles apart. Valley. Younsteer crews worked through the night to protect the town of Ashland from the rising Platte and Elkhorn rivers and Wahoo and Salt Creek.

Nebraska city escaped a flood crest that missed Omaha yesterday but hundreds of acres of nearby lowlands were inundated.

ATTORNEYS WILL PRESENT EVIDENCE AGAINST PAIR

Miss Coplon; Gubitchev Unable to Raise Bail

New York, March 7. (AP)—Government attorneys today were scheduled to present to a federal grand jury, evidence upon which, a Russian engineer and a woman employee of the Justice Department are being held under suspicion of espionage.

Two special assistants to the Attorney-General, Raymond P. Whearty and Thomas Donegan were assigned to present the evidence.

The two defendants, Miss Judith Coplon, 27, and Valentine A. Gubitchev, 32, who has been suspended from the United Nations staff, have been served with subpoenas to appear before the grand jury.

Unable to raise bail, they have remained in jail since their arrest Friday night. Bail for the Russian was set at $100,000 and for the woman at $20,000.

Conspiracy Charge

They are charged with conspiracy to commit espionage to remove government documents relating to National Defence. The espionage conspiracy charge is understood to turn over to the Russian typed extracts of government papers she allegedly had taken from Justice Department files.

The New York Herald Tribune reported today—without official confirmation—that more suspects in the alleged theft of United States Security documents are expected to be rounded up shortly.

The Russian government is expected to insist that Gubitchev be diplomatically released and therefore is immune from prosecution. He is employed by the Secretariat of the United States, Alexander Pavlov Nin, already has hinted the State Department to release Gubitchev. Wilder Foote, director of the U. N. Department of Public Information, has been paid his salary.

Yesterday afternoon, two members of the Russian U. N. delegation staff were reported to have been denied admittance to see Gubitchev at the federal house of detention here.

Foresees Canada Possibly Uranium Centre of World

Rickaby Sees Significance In Find in Ontario Granite

Toronto, March 7 (CP)— Canada may become the "prime source of uranium in the world in the not too distant future," H. C. Rickaby, Ontario's Deputy Minister of Mines said today.

Because the Theano Point radioactive discovery north of Sault Ste. Marie was made in granite formations, this will open new prospects to change their outlook on the best places to look for such materials, he told the prospectors and Developers Association.

Eldorado, Canada's outstanding radioactive find in the Northwest Territories, was made in sedimentaries and lava rather than granites.

Ontario Underlain by Granites

Allarge part of Ontario is underlain by granites, he said in an address prepared for delivery. Ontario's many offers the world give fast, accurate identification of radioactive minerals because it now is equipped with the most modern devices.

Ontario's probable iron ore resources were in the hundreds of millions of tons.

"We can confidently hope to be producing in the near future at least enough ore to satisfy the needs of our own steel industries," said Mr. Rickaby.

Besides producing 70 per cent of Canada's steel, Ontario held a decided advantage over other provinces because of its nearness to the great markets for steel. Ontario's coal was comparatively close at hand "yet the province is still seeking ways by utilizing Canadian deposits from Alberta and Nova Scotia."

He suggested prospectors should look for new sources of industrial minerals, particularly in eastern Ontario, where geological conditions warrant further exploration. Prospectors have been asked by the department to follow a limit of ebb in recent years because of the great increase in the cost of producing an ounce of gold, as well as the return to the parity of the Canadian dollar. Passing of the emergency-gold assistance act of 1942 "is accordingly only a temporary subject."

Because of this, the act did not inspire the confidence of prospectors nor risk of capital in financing the development or exploration of new gold mines.

March 18 Deadline For Auto Plates And Licences

Toronto, March 7 — (CP) — March 18 is the last day to get your vehicle registration plates and driver's licences, Highways Department announced today.

The highways department had extended the period in which 1948 plates and licences were valid to avoid crowding at registration offices. The department found in recent weeks, however, that the offices were operating at only one-third capacity.

Deputy Minister Dowell predicted long queues if motorists don't apply soon. Motor vehicles registered in Ontario number 863,711. So far only 363,000 have been registered this year. Driver's licences issued in 1948 number 1,240,406 and so far this year 550,000.

French Canada In Spotlight At Western U.

London, Ont., March 7. (CP) — French Canada will be the spotlight in today's procedure-setting-convocation ceremonies at the University of Western Ontario.

Nearly 2,000 Arts and Science students, released from studies for the official occasion, thronged to convocation hall to see three distinguished Canadians receive honorary degrees from Arthur E. Ford, chancellor, Western Ontario's senate university.

Those honored with the degrees they received were:

Monsignor Ferdinand Vandry, rector of Laval University Quebec (LL.D.).

Reginald K. Stratford, director of research for the Imperial Oil Company of Canada and vice-chairman of the Ontario Research Foundation (D.Sc.).

Frank Stewart Rutherford, deputy minister of Education for Ontario (LL.D.).

Founded in the 71st anniversary of the founding of the University, was marked by ceremonies in the University's own convocation hall.

Pembroke Jeweller, Wife Are Found Dead in Home

Pembroke, March 7. (CP) — George J. Simpson, Pembroke jeweller who made newspaper headlines 20 years ago when he refused to collect the federal government purchase tax on goods in his store, was found dead, at his home today. Also found in the house was the body of his wife, Rachel Simpson.

Police investigating the deaths were not immediately available for comment.

Mr. Simpson became prominent last November when he waged a one-man battle against the government by refusing to collect the 10 per cent luxury tax on "any jewelry sold in his store. He utilized newspapers, radio and every available medium of publicity in his battle with the government, claiming that he would not act as an "unpaid tax collector."

Three weeks ago the purchase-tax fend fizzled out when Mr. Simpson said he had decided not to appeal court convictions on 10 counts of refusing to collect or pay the luxury tax on retail sales.

Twenty-Six Flee, Later Re-occupy Their Apartments

Ottawa, March 7 — (CP) — Twenty-six persons were forced to flee temporarily from their apartments today when a $10,000 fire swept through the basement of Bedsall Brothers fruit store and smoke filled apartments in the same building block.

The residents, at the corner of Bank and Second Avenue in Ottawa's Glebe district, were able to reoccupy the apartments after firemen confined the blaze to the basement and brought it under control.

ARRESTED WITHOUT STRUGGLE

Toronto, March 7 — (CP) — Sought for nine weeks since his escape from Burwash Industrial Farm, 27-year-old Sam Rispoli was arrested Sunday night and surrendered without a struggle.

He escaped from a work gang while serving a one-year sentence for a Hamilton shooting. He said he had lived here since his escape.

Odom Trying For Record in Light Plane

San Francisco, March 7 (AP)— A brisk tail wind speeded distinguished aviator Odom of the California coast today on his record-seeking light-plane flight from Honolulu to New Jersey. He said he was ahead of schedule and past the world of a Pacific storm.

His latest report showed him beyond the half-way mark on his long ocean hop. It was estimated that he was less than 1,100 (statute) miles from San Francisco, already having flown more than 1,900 miles without a slightest hitch.

Honolulu, March 7 (AP)—Dapper Bill Odom bee-lined over the Pacific today in the second try for a world's light plane record. His goal: Honolulu to Teterboro N.J., 4,283 miles non-stop.

The 29-year-old flier eased his gasoline heavy Beechcraft off the runway at 7:05 Sunday night (12:05 a.m. EST today). Assured favorable take-off weather of the day, he expected to be over San Francisco in 12 hours on the ground at Teterboro in 32.

The single-engine craft made a perfect take-off — skillfully nursed by the man who flew solo around the world in the record time of 73 hours, five minutes, 11 seconds in 1947.

The 185-horsepower engine pulled the 2,779-pound load into the air far short of the end of the runway. The plane carried 328 gallons of gasoline — 28 more than on the earlier flight. The total load was well under the 2,863 pounds allowed for the light plane class.

Scandinavian Countries Basically Feel Nordic Union Way to Avoid War

(Editor's Note: The following article, first of a series by a Canadian who has been touring Scandinavia, describes the conflict of opinion which has arisen there over the east-west cold war.)

By WILLIAM ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Oslo, March 7 (CP)—There is misgiving in Scandinavian capitals over the divergent paths that Norway, Sweden and Denmark are taking toward a common goal: Security.

Norway has cast her fortunes for security by agreeing to join with seven in a North Atlantic defence pact. Neutral Sweden still is holding out for a regional nordic alliance. Denmark hasn't officially made up her mind yet, but indications are that she, too, will join the Atlantic agreement.

Basically all feel that a Nordic union is the way to avoid war. The Scandinavian "family" has been split, however, by the west's flat "no" to proposals that such an alliance be assisted with new materials, technical advice, weapons and licences to produce arms locally.

Sweden is bitter toward Halvard Lange, the Norwegian foreign minister, for leading his country away from a Nordic grouping. The Swedes, as well as influential Norwegians when approached privately, say that Scandinavia's safest way to avoid trouble with Russia.

Denmark is riding out the storm, feeling that in the end she likely will follow Norway into an Atlantic grouping.

Both were "neutral" in thought before the Second World War. But both suffered attacks and occupation when changing their conviction that a country can sympathize with the Allies in a war without supporting it actively.

Sweden's willingness to enter a Nordic grouping on a mutual-aid basis represents a marked change from her traditional policy of unswerving "neutrality."

None of the three countries shows any urgent desire to change their foreign policy, but bitterly-placed persons in Norway and Sweden privately admit that they have been under "pressure" to decide on membership in the North Atlantic pact. They say that, rather than military crisis wrenching from the east, a political crisis has been induced by the west.

Diplomats in Oslo and Stockholm are mindful of the consultation" clause in the Rome-Pinilich pact entitling Russia to "consult" with Finland whenever she considers herself threatened.

NAVAL OFFICERS TERM AFFAIR "FLASH IN PAN"

30 Young Sailors on 'Athabaskan' Created the Incident

Ottawa, March 7 — (CP) — Some sailors, "full of high spirits and don't like getting up too early in the morning and therefore like the crack of a story that stretches from here to Mexico.

It started, Reuters here said Sunday night, the "affair Athabaskan," which first trickled out when an anonymous letter writer sent a missile to the editor of the Vancouver Sun, telling of crew members on the big destroyer who "mutinied and refused to serve" Soviet, received a foreign delegation.

"AN INSIDE JOB"

The letter, written on Athabaskan notepaper and signed "An Athabaskan," was mailed Feb. 27 from the Stadacona Fleet Court report and port, Acapulco, about 300 miles southeast of Mexico City.

It was in Manzanillo Bay, from where the Athabaskan sailed Saturday on her way with other Canadian ships to Esquimalt on the Caribbean, that the disturbances occurred.

Just Disgruntled Seaman

The letter writer, believed by naval spokesmen here to be a disgruntled seaman, said he wrote the note "in the hope that the public may at last hear of this."

The Vancouver paper published the anonymous letter in its final edition Friday and received denials from high naval officers termed the affair "a tempest in a teapot."

Part of Cost To be Financed By Federal Grant

Ottawa, March 7 — (CP) — Part of the cost of building the West Memorial Hospital, Grimsby, Ont., will be financed by federal grant, Health Minister Martin announced in a statement today.

The hospital which formerly served this area was burned a year ago and since then a small temporary hospital has been in operation; It serves 10,000 persons in Grimsby, Beamsville and neighboring townships.

Construction of the new hospital began last summer and will be finished later this year. It will have a bed capacity of 36 and will be equipped to handle medical, surgical and obstetrical cases.

ONE DEAD, TWO MISSING, FLOODS THREATEN HOMES

10 Iowa 1,000 Persons Homeless and Waters Continue to Rise

Chicago, March 7 (AP)—One man was dead and two university students were missing today as floods inundated or threatened hundreds of homes in western Iowa and Nebraska.

Near Council Bluffs, Ia., more than 1,000 persons were homeless and disaster threatened some towns among the Missouri and Big Blue rivers in Nebraska.

The dead man was George W. Johns, 58, who was drowned in his flooded Missouri Valley, Ia., home. The missing are Thomas M. Nolan, 22, and Charles Wermuth, 20, students at Creighton University, Omaha. They were last seen Sunday in the flooded area near Missouri Valley, Ia., and Omaha. They were on a hunting trip when they disappeared.

Iowa's hardest hit town in the flood areas, the town of Hamburg, with 1,500 persons and authorities said nine was in prospect for several days. All the lowest in inhabited and were inoculated today against typhoid. Water and sewage facilities in four feet deep around 300 homes and it is now frozen.

The trouble spots in Nebraska appeared to be the towns of Crete and Wilber, 25 miles apart. Valley. Younsteer crews worked through the night to protect the town of Ashland from the rising Platte and Elkhorn rivers and Wahoo and Salt Creek.

Nebraska city escaped a flood crest that missed Omaha yesterday but hundreds of acres of nearby lowlands were inundated.

Second Arrest Made by Police In Bank Holdup

St. Georges De Beauce, Que., March 7 — (CP) — Provincial police made known today the arrest of the second man alleged to be involved in the holdup of a Banque Canadienne Nationale in Bromptonville, Que., last Thursday.

The first arrest was made in Sherbrooke, Que., Saturday and here it was indicated by authorities that a third man now is being sought.

Police recovered $6,000 when they made their first arrest but said the second man arrested — they divulged no names — possessed only a few hundred dollars when taken into custody here about 11 p.m. Sunday night.

They estimated total loot from the bank holdup was about $10,000 and said one reason the second man arrested had so little cash was that he had purchased a car since the holdup.

L. Parent Remanded

Brockville, March 7 (CP)—Leo Parent, 27, of Montreal, pleaded guilty when charged with the murder of Michael Donald Skelton, 20, who was wounded in Monday, March 14, when he appeared before Magistrate George A. Wright today.

Skelton died Saturday, Feb. 28, five hours after he was shot in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Dean and told them a story of being kidnapped. Dean's wife was shot and locked in his shack at the north end of the limits of the town.

Parent is still not represented by counsel.

Seamen Want Wage Increase

Toronto, March 7 — (CP) — The Canadian Seamen's Union (T. L. C.) has announced that negotiations have started between the union and Great Lakes shipping companies for 1949 agreements.

The C. S. U. is seeking contract revisions providing for $30-a-week basic wage scale and a 40-hour work week for its lake sailors. One meeting has been held with a group of shipping company representatives and another is scheduled for later this week.

The union has agreed to meet individually with Canadian Pacific firms which have refused to participate in joint negotiations, although it demanded a master contract.

Newfoundland's Entry Observed By Special Stamp

Ottawa, March 7 (CP)— A special four-cent stamp commemorating Newfoundland's entry into confederation will be issued April 1, Postmaster-General Gibson announced today.

The stamp will bear a reproduction of John Cabot's ship, the "Matthew," under sail. Cabot, British explorer, is regarded as the first European to discover the island, in 1497.

The stamp will be about 1-1-2 by one inch, the same size as current pictorial issues. The order will be green.

Mr. Bertrand's announcement said it is planned to have the stamp placed on sale in the principal Canadian post offices, including those of Newfoundland, on April 1—the day after Newfoundland's expected entry into confederation.

U.K.'s 100-Million-Pound Year Film Industry Slipping--Korda

London, March 7 — (AP) — Don't look now, but your show is slipping.

That's what film producer Sir Alexander Korda told Britain's 24,000,000-a-year movie industry last night.

The man who made "The Private Life of Henry VIII" said some producers were trying to make pictures a pulpit. It would be a better idea to make them a good show, he suggested at a meeting of London's critics' circle.

Korda spoke as Britain's slumping cinema industry slid slowly down the slide.

Ninety feature films were planned this year, but rising production costs, distribution troubles and high admission taxes are the figure to 50. Sixteen of 37 major studios are idle and 8,000 of 8,000 workers are out of jobs.

Yesterday Tom O'Brien, Labor member of parliament and general secretary of the National Association of Theatrical and Kine (Movie) Employees, suggested nationalization might be a way out.

Others have urged more government loans to the industry, salary cuts for high-priced stars and encouragement for American producers to make films in England.

City and District News

SEVERAL CHANGES IN WEATHER OVER WEEKEND

A fickle-minded weatherman suffered quite a number of changes in variance over the weekend.

On Saturday he maintained the spring-like atmosphere that featured last week. On Sunday he called on his snow reserves and mantled the city with a mushy-like covering which rapidly disappeared, as rain began to fall Sunday night he cleared the skies and sent temperatures plummeting to the lowest mark in some time.

At seven o'clock this morning the mercury stood around 25 above. The air was chilly but temperatures gradually rose as the sun's warm rays chased the frost.

WOMAN SUFFERS SLIGHT KNEE INJURY

Mrs. Roy Ridley, 238 Albert Street, suffered a minor injury to her knee Saturday when the motor vehicle in which she was a passenger collided with another car at the Front and Bridge Street intersection.

Mr. Ridley was driving west on Bridge Street and in attempting to turn left onto Front Street was in collision with an oncoming vehicle driven by Frank Wannamaker of Carrying Place. Front end and fenders of the two vehicles were damaged in the collision.

CHILDREN WARNED TO STAY OFF ICE IN MOIRA RIVER

Children playing on the rotted ice of the Moira River opposite Riverside Park below the Lower Bridge, caused a bit of uneasiness on the part of pedestrians using the bridge over the weekend.

Throughout the week children have been in the habit of playing on the ice which is weakening rapidly through action of the river current and the sun's rays.

Police were notified of the children playing on the ice and warned them to stay away as there was danger of them falling into the swollen river current.

PERSONS BREAK OPEN NEWSPAPER BUNDLES

They cost only a nickel but they are well worth stealing.

That apparently is the attitude of a certain sneak thief who for the past several days has been breaking open parcels of morning newspapers left for distribution at a West Bridge Street business place.

The police informant stated that papers had disappeared from the parcels intermittently during the past two weeks.

Freak Accident Causes Injury To Three Persons

In a freak accident which police stated, defied explanation, but once in a hundred years, three persons Sunday afternoon were sent to hospital with injuries, while two automobiles were considerably damaged.

In hospital were Mrs. William Latchford, R.R. 3, Belleville, with fractured ribs, lacerated forehead and shock, and her daughter Marlene age 9, with a fractured collar bone. Also in hospital is Isaac Hill, 53 of Point Anne, who was admitted to hospital in an unconscious condition.

The accident occurred at Shannonville when a driverless car dashed from a service station directly into the path of an oncoming auto.

Michael Brant, Tonawanda, N.Y., with four passengers in his auto had pulled into Vivian's service Station for gasoline.

Stepped on Starter

As the tank was being filled it is believed Brant must have had the ignition switch turned on and the car in gear. He stepped out of the car to pay the attendant and as he did so the pressure in the front seat accidentally stepped on the starter.

The car darted out of the service station lot and directly into the path of the westbound vehicle driven by William Latchford. Mrs. Latchford and Marlene were injured, while Mr. Latchford and two small children escaped injury.

As a sequel to the accident provincial police stated Michael Brant and the four passengers in his car were arrested on L.C.A. charges. The passengers included Jack Hill, Shannonville, Isaac Hill, Point Anne, Lawrence Brant and Leslie Hill of Shannonville.

Member Says Municipalities Will Benefit

Ontario municipalities will benefit nearly double through increases of special grants to be made in lieu of the former one-mill subsidy, Elmer Sandercock, M.L.A., Hastings West, told the South Hastings Progressive Conservative Association's annual meeting Friday night.

Different governmental departments will make grants for roads, more substantial grants of police and fire departments, the Child-ren's Aid Society, universities, schools, etc. A grant of $1,200,000 will be allowed for housing.

In the construction of county homes, the subsidy prior to the budget was 35 per cent. "This has been increased to 50 per cent," Mr. Sandercock said. Maintenance costs to the extent of 50 per cent, it is expected will be borne by the provincial government.

The grant of the one-mill subsidy was $3,325,000. Under the new arrangements the government will give $6,300,000 in grants. "This without any increase in taxation. In fact, taxes will be reduced on some items," the speaker said.

Roscoe Robson, M.L.A., Hastings East, spoke briefly warning that the Hastings County riding must not be won again. He predicted they would be lucky if they were able to make a lot of gains in Ontario." He urged that organization be started immediately to prepare for the fight, which lies ahead.

Fellowship Group Hears Splendid Singing, Sermon

Spontaneous congregational singing, inspired musical offerings by the C.Y.F. Chorus and a young men's quartet of Kingston, a deeply spiritual message on the love of God by Rev. John Morsn, of Bethel Church, Kingston, all contributed to make the Christian Youth Fellowship meeting in Alliance Tabernacle recently a veritable feast of spiritual blessing.

"If you want to know the depth of God's love, stand at Calvary," said Rev. John Morse. "Calvary is the great manifestation of the love of God. It is God's response to sin, not to righteousness. God hates sin. He has no pleasure in the ways of the wicked. Yet He loved the sinner, so much that He was willing to offer salvation at His highest cost, the sacrifice of His Own Son.

"Without a Saviour men perish, are perishing; but to have Christ is to have righteousness for our sinfulness. . . . It is not what I am but whom I trust that gives me eternal life."

The quartet, composed of Walter Gould, John Carnegie, Phil Hanna and Albert Revell, with Orma Revell, accompanist, contributed four numbers, "In That Resurrection Morning", "When I Was Drifting Out in Sin", "Blessed Be the Name of Jesus" and "Shall I Crucify My Saviour?" The splendid tenor voice of John Carnegie was heard in two solo offerings, "The Love of God" and "The Depth of Jesus' Love". Stan Leasels led the C.Y.F. chorus in the singing of "A New Song at Glory", Dorothy Mitchell accompanying at the piano.

Robert Brown, who was in charge of the service, gave the opening prayer and benediction and also led in chorus singing.

Rising Birth-Rate Causes Industry To Spend Millions

By FORBES REUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

That little stranger in your home, or in the house next door, is one reason why industry is spending millions of dollars in expanding its facilities.

So, the current monthly review of the Bank of Nova Scotia contends in a study of the birth rate:

"When population is increasing rapidly there is a strong stimulus toward capital investment, since it is a demand for steadily increasing quantities of goods and services of all kinds."

And the little fellow, and his hundreds of thousands of brothers and sisters of recent times, have made Canada a distinctly younger country than it was in 1931-41, when it was showing signs of aging.

Effect Felt Now

Birth-rates send waves up through the years, the review recounts. "We are reasonably good birth-rate of the prosperous '20s turns up in the large numbers of persons of marriageable age of the last few years, with the departure and return of young men because of the war accelerating their marriages."

Similarly, from today's births there should be an increase in marriages in the years ahead, increase in births which in turn will start a new wave of growth through the age pattern. Then, there should be another rise in demand for housing and home furnishings.

On the other hand, the low birth-rate of the depression '30s, says the bank, will mean that for the next few years will be fewer native - born workers coming of age to take jobs. This will last till the late 70s when the children of recent years start to take over.

Pressure on Schools

Just now, direct pressure is being felt in the nursery schools, kindergartens and the primary grades of public schools. In a few years it will be at higher levels.

The building of new schools is a significant factor sustaining capital investment at a high level."

The review draws attention to the fact that Canada's population now crowding 13,000,000, has increased by more than 3,000,000 since 1929, and soon 17 per cent since 1939. In 1947, the peak year, 381,000 babies were born while there were born than in 1937, the low year preceding the war.

The basis for considerable likelihood that the birth rate will fall off for a while, as it in fact did last year. An important factor will be whether the long - term trend towards small families continues or is reversed. The Review thinks there is a fair possibility that the trend towards "the fashionable family of two" may be reversed in favor of a somewhat larger family.

A more favorable economic climate, family allowances, and better and cheaper health services may also exert an influence in this direction, though inadequate housing is clearly a limiting factor."

TRUMAN ENJOYS VACATION

Key West, Fla., March 7—(AP)—Presidential confidants disclosed today that Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall is the next high ranking administration official to go.

These reputable but unquotable-by-name officials said Royall will step out within 10 to 20 days. His successor has not yet been decided upon, they reported.

Meanwhile, the President settled down to the enjoyment of a fortnight's vacation at this naval submarine base on the Florida tip to Florida. He flew in Sunday.

Shaves, Changes Clothes, Reports Fatal Shootings

Exeter, N.H., March 7 (AP) —A 33-year-old man who shaved, changed his clothes and then drove in a police report the fatal shootings of his wife and nine-year-old son was held today on a murder charge.

Harrison E. Cobb was booked on the murder charge after his wife, Florence, 33, and his son, Richard, were found dead in their beds from bullet wounds.

Police quoted Cobb as saying he awoke between 4 a.m. and 5 a.m. Sunday morning and "did not realize" what he was doing until he heard cries from three young car children.

Then, according to police, Cobb said he gave them sleeping pills shaved, changed his clothes and drove to Exeter to give himself up.

Police found the bodies of Mrs. Cobb and her son in their beds with the two children, seven-year-old James, three, and Rita and Hersey, two-year-old twins—in a "deep sleep". The children were taken to hospital where doctors said they would recover.

Police Blotter

That city police are no second raters when it comes to sprinting was learned by the scurry by a local resident who over the weekend defied officers to evict him from an apartment where he was unwelcome.

The man had been making a nuisance of himself at an upstairs apartment on West Bridge Street and when asked to leave had made no effort to comply. He Enfield police to take him out and then suddenly changed his mind and made a break for it. Police chased him up Everett Street, where he was apprehended and taken to the police station and charged with disorderly conduct.

Inebriates occasioned police officers a bit of trouble over the weekend and at least half a dozen men being taken to the police station and charged with L.C.A. offences.

One local restaurant was fined for having illegal possession of intoxicants and paid $103 fine and costs. When questioned there was a pint bottle of native wine in his possession.

A former employee of Monkroe Dairy was arrested and charged with the theft of an electric motor from the dairy premises. The motor was recovered.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, March 7 (CP) —Prices crawled slowly ahead as trading increased slightly on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Golds showed the best gains, especially in early dealings when trading was active. Industrials added fractions and a few base metals and western oils tightened.

Volume for the first 5 hours was 449,000 shares, about 153,000 shares more than Friday's similar period.

Action tended to slow as the session progressed and by mid-day was barely crawling along. Bell Telephone was ahead in a slightly firmer utilities list and a few papers firmed in the industrial groupings. Changes were held to fractions in most cases.

Golds showed moderate strength as both junior and senior producers gained.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, March 7 (CP)— Trade was active with prices $5-50 cents higher on the livestock market here today. Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 3,100; calves 350 hogs 500; sheep 30.

Choice weighty steers were $30-$31 and good to choice light steers were$19-$20.75 with good heifers at $19-$20. Plain to light steers and heifers sold downward to $18. Cows were $16-$17 with canners and cutters at $10.50-$12.50. Good bulls sold at $19-$20 with plain kinds downward to $17. Choice fed yearlings were $22-$23 with mediums at $19-$20.

Calves were steady at $28-$30 for choice with plain to medium kinds at $21-$27. Grassers sold for slaughter at $15-$17.50.

Hogs were steady at $31 for grade A and $30.60 for grade B1. Sows were $25 fed and shed.

Sheep sold steady at $7-$12.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, March 7 — (CP) Produce prices on the spot market here today were quoted as follows:

Butter prints are down with first grade at 68 cents and second grade at 60 cents.

Receipts are ample on the egg market. Prices are steady and unchanged. Country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free: grade A large 43; grade A medium 42; grade A pullet 40; grade B 40; grade C 34. Wholesale to retail: grade A large 46-47; grade A medium 43-46; grade A pullet 43-44; grade B 44; grade C 37.

Butter solids are quiet with no definite price change established. Last price quoted: first grade 68; second grade 67.

Western Germany Exports Over $400 Million Yearly

Berlin, March 7 (AP)—Western Germany by about 10 per cent during the year beginning July 1 — but they will still be about 5 per cent below 1956.

Industrial production already has roared past the target set for June, 1961.

German coal miners are setting production records even as the Communists strive to stir resentment against the Allies in the Ruhr.

German goods are flowing into world markets at the rate of about $800,000,000 a year—four times what they were a year ago. Imports purchased from the proceeds of German exports are running well over $400,000,000 a year, or about seven times what they were in 1947.

The German people have what some areas in the world still lack —a stable currency. United States officials say the German debt schemata compared last year in buying power with the Swiss franc, one of Europe's soundest currencies.

This is on the positive side of the recovery picture in Western Germany. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States military governor, says, however, "There is still a long road ahead to self-sufficiency."

Under the Economic Co-operation Administration program, living standards will rise in Western

Butter, Creamery Prints Down

Toronto, March 7 (CP)—Prices of butter sold and cream paid to farmers dropped from one to 7½ cents on the produce market today and it was indicated that consumer prices would reflect the change.

Number one creamery solids were down one cent to 67 a pound while number two was down 7 cents to 60, and creamery prints dropped 7½ to 67 cents. Cream prices were off four cents in all grades.

Jim Ross, butter supervisor for United Co-Operatives Ltd., said there will likely be further changes every day for several days."

W. H. Black, wholesale produce dealer, blamed competition from margarine for the lower prices.

Regina (CP) — The price at first-grade butter dropped three cents a pound in many parts of Saskatchewan today.

Also effective today are a three-cent reduction in the prices being paid producers for cream Producers are being received 73 cents per pound for butterfat now will take home 69 cents per pound.

Butter prices were reported in Regina, Yorkton and Swift Current.

BUFFALO LIVESTOCK

Buffalo, N.Y., March 7 (AP)—Buffalo, N.Y. March 7 (AP)— Cattle 700 including 165 Canada-Calves 200 including two mixed steers and heifers $24.50-$25.50; cows mostly $16-$18; good weighty sausage bulls $21.50-$22.50.

Hogs 1,800; good and choice hogs $16.50-$16.75; sows $14-$15.

Lambs and sheep 800; good and choice lambs $26-$26.50; culls $23 down.

HOGS

Toronto, March 7 (CP)—Hog prices at Stratford this morning were unestablished. At Brantford hogs were unchanged with grade A at $30.85.

Mother, Daughter Fatally Beaten

Eldorado, Ill., March 7 — (AP) —A mother and daughter were beaten to death at their Eldorado home early today.

Mrs. Ida Davis, 79, was found dying in the street fronting her home. Her daughter, Mrs. Mildred Gibson, 58, was found dead on her bedroom floor.

Police said that Mrs. Davis' son by a previous marriage, Sylvester Denton, 50, was found about three hours later six miles south of Eldorado.

They said the man, who had been staying at his mother's home since last month, was held without charge for questioning.

Police said they had been advised that Denton had asked both women for money to buy liquor yesterday but had been refused.

Says Countries Producing Gold Need Consideration

London, March 7 (CP)—The International monetary fund should take steps to improve the position of gold-producing countries, the Financial Times has said in comment on South Africa's move to sell semi-processed gold at a premium price.

The newspaper, in a comment published last month, said many observers fell that the South African move had as its primary objective to draw the attention of the fund to "this serious situation" resulting from the fact that the real value of gold is far greater than it was before the war.

The Financial Times said there was need for action by the international monetary fund to improve the lot of the gold-producing countries. It added:

"That the issue is becoming increasingly of vital importance is obvious and hopes are expressed that the fund will get down to fundamentals as quickly as possible. Its present attitude towards the gold trading now going on may well defeat its objects in the end. As long as possible distrust currencies there will always be some willing to pay a premium for gold. No amount of legislation and regulation will alter that fact."

Believed 40 Clergymen in Jail in Bulgaria

Sofia, Bulgaria, March 7 (AP) —A British official here says he believes at least 40 protestant clergymen are in jail in Bulgaria. There was no immediate comment from the Bulgarian government.

"I am convinced," said the British official, who declined to permit use of his name, "that they (the Bulgarian government) have at least 40 pastors in jail. They could not try them at once for fear of the stink it would arouse in the western world. They can try the others secretly . . . This is only the beginning of the persecution."

The Communist publication Free Bulgaria, meanwhile, angrily denied charges of religious persecution in the trial of 15 protestant clergymen now awaiting judgment. The publication called the ministers "squealing little rats."

Judge Postpones Sentencing of Montreal Father

Montreal, March 7 (CP)—A judge today heard a jury's recommendation of mercy and postponed sentencing of Alexandre Ayotte, 31, until Sept. 12 on a manslaughter charge growing out of the "William Tell" death of his son, Guy.

"You are poor and have six other children," Ayotte was told by Mr. Justice Wilfrid Lazure. "Conditions myself will until Sept. 12 and we shall see what will be done."

Ayotte, who killed his son last summer in a "William Tell" act on which the father fired a 22 rifle, was released on bail. His trial heard that the shooting "poor judgment on the part of the father."

Ayotte was cleaning the weapon at his home in suburban Ville La Salle when the children were playing around him. There was some talk about shooting and finally Guy stood with an object on his head while the father shot at it. The boy dropped dead.

Ayotte was found guilty of manslaughter last week.

60 Fishermen Marooned on Vast Floe of Ice

Menominee, Mich., March 7 — (AP)—Sheriff Edward Reindl said at noon today that 50 to 60 fishermen were marooned on a vast floe of Green-Bay ice which broke away from the shore and began drifting into Lake Michigan.

Aircraft were dispatched from several nearby fields, including the coast guard station across the lake at Traverse City. Some fliers said they would try to land on the floe to try evacuation.

Grinds and "rafts of the town" was out trying to aid the marooned men. .

Observers at the scene were unable to estimate the size of the break-off. It might have been apparently extended northward toward Cedar River, 25 miles away.

Won't Allow Russians to Poke Noses Around

Berlin, March 7 (AP) — The Russians will not be "allowed to go poking their noses around" the United States zone looking for the newspaper, which claim the Germans looted from them, a high American official said yesterday.

He was commenting on a letter Marshall Vasilly D. Sokolovsky, Soviet commander, sent Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States commander-in-chief, complaining "blasting American restitution policies and laying claim to widespread properties. The letter was published by Russian agencies Saturday.

"What the Soviets are trying to do is to get fishing expeditions in to the American zone," the official said.

Sokolovsky, in his letter to Clay, has asked that three-man teams of the Soviet Restitution Mission be allowed to operate in each state of the American zone, inspecting factories, archives, museums and art galleries.

Communist Says Pact War Contract Without Options

Windsor, March 7 (CP)—Leslie Morris, editor of Toronto Canadian Tribune a Communist daily newspaper, calls the North Atlantic pact a "war contract without options."

He said that "Canada is at the mercy of the United States . We are a satellite of the U.S. which maintains our economy."

Newspapers, new commentators and all Canadian political parties, with the exception of the L.P.'s came in for criticism from Morris.

Newspapers "stifle and garble anything," he said. Vishinsky and Molotov make a shift and "they write something different in it... But nothing is said when Marshall Stalin becomes because he is an American."

Fear Theft Outbreak

Toronto, March 7 —(CP)—Reorganization of the suburban York police department is the result of a series of break-ins and thefts "which threaten to become an epidemic at any time."

"If things keep up as they are it may be necessary to have our men on all-night patrols," commented Chief George Stuart. "The number of thefts is so high it might even be necessary for residents to maintain all-night guards against thieves.

"We may have to go back to the days of vigilantes."

24 Charges Laid Against F. Lowe

Toronto, March 7 (CP)— Fred Lowe will face 24 charges of break-ins and robberies — the largest number of charges laid against any one man here in recent years—police said here today.

A joint investigation by York township and Toronto police uncovered the robbery charges after Lowe was trapped Saturday at gun-point as he hauled a safe from a York Township factory and broke it open. His activities are said to have spread over the last four months.

Police describe Lowe as a lone-handed burglar "as strong as an ox." They say he carried quarter-ton safes out of buildings on numerous occasions. Lowe is reported to have admitted other robberies, many of which he is "difficulty remembering."

Paper Blames The U.S. for Prolonging War

Nanking, March 7 (AP)—The Roman Catholic newspaper, Yi Shih Pao, today blamed United States aid for prolonging the Chinese civil war.

The newspaper, which is controlled by Archbishop Paul Yupin, called for an immediate end of United States aid to the Nationalists. The archbishop is on an extended visit to the United States.

Yi Shih Pao's editorial was in support of a resolution proposed by Hal Lee in Canada and some 50 other members of the legislative Year, which will ask the government to stop receiving further aid from the United States.

The newspaper said such a step by the Nationalists would show sincerity for the peaceful solution of the civil war with the Communists."

English Crooner Wins Adulation Of Bobby-Soxers

London, March 7. (AP)—British, at least, are not all for the new "Sinatra", complete with bow tie and a fantastic following of females.

The home grown trendsetter is 42-year-old Donald Peers, the BBC's "Cavalier of Song" who needed only the carefully tousled casts to start new thumpings in bobby-soxers' breasts.

Peers, amazed, says his stuff is "just corn."

One radio critic noted that he is not a crooner. He just sings along in a medium baritone. Correct, the critic guessed, is "a strange personal magnetism that makes each girl think he is singing for her."

Wavy-haired Donald is old enough to be daddy to many of his bobby-soxer worshippers in fact, he is, to one of them. He has a 17-year-old daughter. And he stands only five feet, six inches.

Last night 1,500 women and girls journeyed to the 100 miles to hear Donald cut a record in a theatre for next Tuesday's half-hour broadcast.

The girls were practically at his side in deck chairs when he sang "Slow Boat to China".

They swarmed to the stage door for autographs, tried to kiss him, cried out "Do you want a secretary!"

Said Donald: "It's overwhelming. I've been singing the same way for 20 years."

Former Union Official Enters Plea of Innocent

Detroit, March 7 (AP)—A plea of innocent today was entered by the court for Carl Bolton, a former minor union official charged with assault with intent to kill Walter P. Reuther last April 20.

Bolton, 38, executive vice-president of United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) union here, was arraigned on the state's information. Bond of $75,000 set after preliminary examination was continued by Recorder's Judge John J. Maher.

Two Detroit hoodlums testified at the examination last October than Bolton offered them $15,000 to kill the U.A.W. President. Reuther's right arm was nearly ripped off and his side pierced by a shotgun blast through the kitchen window of his home He now has recovered partial use of his arm.

Judge Maher entered the innocent plea after Bolton stood mute. No trial date was set.

Police Disperse Threatening Crowd

Durban, South Africa, March 7 (Reuters) — Streets here today were sealed off after police dispersed more than 1,000 Africans said to have gathered in threatening attitudes outside a shop in the main Indian area.

Eyewitnesses said the Africans entered several Indian stores and an who alleged she had been poisoned by candy bought from an Indian shop.

About 120 people died when race riots between Africans and Indians flared up in Durban last January.

$25,000 Scholarship Awarded Medical Man

Edmonton, March 7 (CP)—The University of Alberta today announced three Rockefeller assistant professor of medicine, has been awarded one of 18 Markle scholarships. The award —worth $25,000—is part of a five-year program to keep young doctors on the teaching and research staff of medical schools.

Under the program, begun in 1948, twenty-nine doctors are being supported with total grants of $725,000. It is estimated that within five years 50 scientists will be aided, with grants totaling $1,250,000.

DISCOVERIES

Columbus, Magellan and others made world names in their time. Today new records are being made but so fast that it will be difficult for the world to remember them. One reason probably is that so much of modern effort is the achievement of an organization of a large number of men. Especially in the field of aviation is this true. Who can now call all the men who have made world names for themselves by their achievements? Rather the honors will go to groups of men.

The two poles have been discovered within the memory of very many and the discoverers known, Admiral Peary who discovered the North Pole in 1909 and Captain Amundsen the South Pole in 1911. Admiral Byrd was the first to fly to both poles and back. The names of early aviators are not forgotten, for the Wright brothers are remembered as the first to fly a heavier-than-air machine. That was in 1903. Alcock and Brown were the first to cross the Atlantic in 1919 from Newfoundland to Ireland. Lindbergh made the first solo flight eastward over the Atlantic in 1927 and the first Pacific flight was made by Kingsford-Smith and his companions in 1928.

Since then countless numbers of records have been made by planes. But the names of the new champions do not linger in the mind so well for their triumphs are outshone by the earlier explorers.

Now the continuous flight around the globe, achieved last week by the United States Air Force bomber Lucky Lady II was a mass effort, the sequel and outcome of all the achievements so far made. These triumphs are becoming so numerous that names do not attach to them as they did to the expeditions of Columbus, Magellan or Sir Francis Drake or to the discoverers of the poles and the first flights across the oceans.

WORLD ROMANCE

What the spirit of brotherhood has been able to do in recent weeks is one of the crowning glories of democracy, that is, the armistice which was arranged through the mediation of Dr. Bunche in the Egyptian-Jewish conflict. Here was the grandson of a slave who assumed the role of mediator succeeding the grandson of a king, Count Folke Bernadotte of Sweden, who had been shot down because of his efforts to arrange a truce. Bunche carried on the effort and the truce was arranged. Winnipeg Tribune refers to the world aspect of this romance, which it calls "one of the most remarkable of our time." It is of especial importance to Egypt and Palestine because Dr. Bunche came from ancestry in the African Continent to solve a problem which had existed.

The Tribune notes:

"The Nubian slaves of Cleopatra could never comprehend such a denouement in the affairs of men, nor could the Sanhedrin of the Holy Land in Biblical times imagine such a Daniel come to judgment . . .

"The man has done much to bring honor to his own race, through his "inexhaustible patience," and he has done an equal service to the United Nations' organization which badly needed a feather in its cap on the world's stage."

THE NEED

The Canadian Red Cross needs funds to maintain the help which it is constantly extending throughout the year. Not only in times of disaster but in normal times the Society has a humanitarian work to do in carrying out its purpose. Peacetime services cost money and are readily rendered to those in emergency.

The free blood transfusion clinic which the society has launched is one that strikes the people's imagination very forcibly. No one knows at what time who will require this service for in this age of motor travel there will be accidents and cases of illness which will call upon the free transfusion service.

Generous and thoughtful contributions to the campaign here and in every other Canadian community will be welcomed as the appreciation of what the Society is doing for suffering humanity. That this will be the answer to the appeal throughout Canada is naturally to be expected. That means that each person will consider its merit and through the local drive contribute to this great effort whatever he or she can.

GREATNESS

What is greatness? Skill surpassing
Or the art of wealth amassing?
Just some trade or craft to master
Or the power of running faster
For the mile that can another
These are triumphs shame can smother.
Fame and fortune, though alluring,
Are not always long enduring.

Greatness, whersoe'er we find it,
Has the love of God behind it.
Greatness feels what others suffer;
Never leaves a pathway rougher
Than it found it, but should stumble
Those who follow. Ever
Greatness stoops to pick the
By the wheels of traffic thrown up.

Some win fame by being
Shrewdness may be gentle never.
Greatness, gracious is to
Looks on all good men as brothers.
Greatness serves its street, its city,
Understands man's need for pity.
Others may be richer, stronger;
Greatness lives in memory longer.

JOY AND SORROW INTERMINGLE

Displaced person, Moritz Rubenstein, at Ellis Island, N.Y., from Shanghai, China, en route to Israel, was allowed to leave the Island under escort to visit his aged mother, Emanuel, in the Hebrew home for orphans and aged of Hudson County, N.J. The dramatic meeting, probably the final one in a lifetime, is recorded here. Joy and sorrow intermingle as father and son exchange greetings, and almost in the same breath bid each other farewell.—Central Press Canadian.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

During the war, honey was rationed along with sugar, and because of production was diverted into commercial and industrial sweetening, such as in candies, and into medicine and preserving.

Now it appears that public taste can be very easily changed and honey is fighting a hard battle to win back its place in the public's affections. Honey has all the fun of it; and the merchants are obliged to promote it when, in pre-war days, it was not as naturally as pork and beans or margarine, a matter of course.

During the six honeyless years, a generations of infants grew into childhood without knowing the long and honey. A generation of children grew into adults having formed tastes that did not include honey.

Something the same happened to Canada salmon. For a time nearly the whole salmon pack was commandeered for Britain and Europe. Remember how your favorite grocer used to tip you the wink and whisper that he had a few tins of salmon under the counter . . .

Now, salmon is readily available; according to the store keepers, the public has to be reminded of its delicious flavor. Salmon for a few years has channeled us into other tastes.

Food has proved to be our most fixed habits. Despite the familiar fiction that the domestic male is always growing for something different he supports the fact is that the vast majority of us get set in certain habits of eating as rigid as the eating habits of a canary.

There is nothing, however, that can make the mouth water so readily as cold tinned salmon on top of some lettuce, with a squirt of lemon hard by. And as for honey it is delicious. It makes a man spring like a flea.

CHRISTIAN MISSIONS IN REVERSE

There is a man in this country who represents the Japanese government. He received his training in a mission school, the child of Christian parents who had been converted from a state that might almost be called barbarous, this man has become highly educated and is outstanding for his Christian character.

His addresses to American audiences are particularly stimulating because he urges his hearers to take firm stands on moral questions. He himself grew up a member of a small group conspicuous for its moral strictness, and so he knows by experience. It costs to oppose the crowd. He believes that we Americans often compromise on moral issues for a shocking degree. He keeps urging Christians everywhere to take their stand on what they know is right and to stop the social custom, ridicule, or financial pressure to make the least difference.

Here is a man whose moral character has been fashioned by the work of missionaries sent from America. Now he is here in America urging men and women to adopt a policy of moral strictness and stick by it. This is Christian missions in reverse.

Mackenzie's Column: Russian Shift May be Due to Western Progress

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst

If the Molotov mystery presages a shift in Russian foreign policy, this may be in large degree to be laid to the uncertainties of western Europe are showing a slightly growing confidence in the future.

They are demonstrating faith in themselves with aggression if it should develop.

Looked at in full, of course, is the courage inspired by the success thus far of the Marshall plan in rehabilitating great blocs of countries.

Moral Lift

Striking evidence of this lift in morale is seen in the attitudes of Norway and Denmark towards the highly controversial North Atlantic alliance. Both these countries had been warned to steer clear of the Atlantic pact, yet Norway has rejected Russia's offer of a non-aggression pact and has joined the Washington negotiations for the Atlantic treaty. She defended her right to decide her own security problems, and told Moscow a non-aggression pact wasn't necessary since both countries were members of the United Nations.

Meantime Danish Foreign Minister Rasmussen is scheduled to leave for Washington tomorrow to seek "the best possible basis for Denmark's final attitude" towards the Atlantic pact. Diplomatic observers interpreted this as indicating that Denmark finally had decided to play ball with the west, although there has been no official announcement to this effect.

Justifiable Fear

Norway's attitude puts here in a delicate position—or does it? Anyway, on Jan. 29 Russia warned her Scandinavian neighbor not to join the Atlantic alliance. The warning bluntly pointed out that Norway and Russia have a common frontier.

The significance of this warning is seen in a dispatch by Daniel De Luce, Associated Press correspondent, from Kirkenes in northern Norway. Says De Luce:

"Fear grips Norwegians scattered over this northernmost tip of far north.

"This isolated region — Finnmark Province—is defended by a few Norwegian army ski patrols. The frontier with Russia is 50 miles long unmolested by possible Norwegian Communist party is feverishly active in all villages along the Arctic Ocean."

Warnin that Norway, by seeking an Atlantic alliance, is risking the fate of Finland in 1939."

U.C. Asks Remaining Controls be Retained

Toronto, March 7 (CP) — The United Church of Canada Saturday asked the Dominion Government to maintain the remaining controls on prices, rents and supplies of scarce materials.

The government was asked "to extend such controls if need be, especially to protect further increases in the price of necessities and in the cost of housing construction" in a resolution passed by the Board of Evangelism and Social Service of the church.

A statement telling of the resolution said the board also recommended a study of the free enterprise system by the church "to meet more fully the needs of men and society."

The board stressed the need for Dominion-Provincial co-operation in labor relations, old-age pensions and other social legislation.

De Gaulle's Party Losing Momentum Say Observers

Paris, March 7 — (AP)—Gen. Charles De Gaulle's party, Rassemblement Du Peuple Francais is losing momentum in the opinion of many French political observers.

Such a development promises a more solid future for the middle-road coalition government, and improves the chances of negotiation with other western Europe countries.

While outspoken anti-Soviet, De Gaulle has injected ideas into French politics which appear to be bound to disturb France's domestic, European and world positions. Some of his ideas, such as constitution, alter Labor laws and restrict the role of parties in French political life. He wants France to stand clear of U. S. influence even at the cost of sacrificing Marshall plan aid.

French political observers say the current popular reaction to the general was demonstrated most clearly at the recent R.P.F. party congress in Lille.

At Lille, the overwhelming spontaneous outpouring of emotional excitement which marked the general's appearance a year ago was noticeably lacking.

The general public seemed to shun De Gaulle, foreign observers considered the congress a flop.

Strength to be Tested

The thesis that De Gaulle's strength is declining will be tested to some extent March 20 and 27 when municipal, county, elections will be held throughout the country to replace half of the present departmental council members. However, these are local ballots on a plane where personalities can influence the vote.

Most observers agree that a decline in De Gaulle's chances is important because the mere event of his coming to power probably would precipitate the communists to violent action leading to civil war. Stability and ability to solve labor unions would certainly provoke some observers give four chief reasons for the apparent drop in De Gaulle's guiding power:

Decline of communist strength, improved economic conditions. The lack of any definite opposition to him. The many ex-Vichyites in the near future. De Gaulle's somewhat wearisome repetition of a program calling first of all for constitutional reforms.

Thirteen Given One to Eight Years in Prison

Budapest, March 8 (AP)—Thirteen persons charged with black-market money dealings in connection with the Cardinal Mindszenty case were sentenced today to one to eight year imprisonment.

Three of the thirteen were Roman Catholic priests. One of these was Imre Boka, who served the Cardinal as treasurer. He was sentenced to four years in prison and loss of political rights for another five years. He was also fined 1,000 forints ($83).

Dr. Gabor Horvath, former secretary to Duke Paul Esterhazy, drew the longest term —eight years.

He took all the blame in the currency speculations charge of which his employer was accused, saying he would rather face death than be disloyal.

Esterhazy, once the richest man in Hungary, was sentenced Feb. 8 to 15 years, when the Cardinal received a life term on conviction of illegal money dealings, coupled with spying and treason.

Those sentenced today were described by the communist run government as minor actors in an alleged plot against Hungary. They included several bankers and brokers.

British Iron Steel Output at Highest

London, March 7 — (Reuters) — The British Iron and Steel Federation announced Sunday that the annual rate of 16,178,000 tons in steel production, reached in February, was "nearly the highest rate in the history of the industry." Weekly average for the month was 311,100 tons.

. QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

The Signs of Degeneration

You said a lot in a few words in your recent articles Pardon My Pessimism and I Guess I'm a Gloomy Geek. Knowing you as we do we believe your essay on the woe and ills of many Americans will help some of them to discover the happy way. Some time please comment on medications that picture and radio and movie scenes in which her and heroine invariably hold fancy alcoholic drinks in hand and light a cigarette to create an inferiority feeling or dull appetite for food and drink. (R. W.)

Answer—Thank you. I have done so many times, but I'm afraid the thought is beyond the grasp of nervous-mental or moral.

Ventilation

Do the cold air registers keep the cold air in the house. Some people do not open doors or windows even once a day to air the house. (Mrs. R. W.)

Answer—If you refer to the registers in the floor which air from the house returns to the furnace for reheating, no, that system does not keep the cold air in the house. From the viewpoint of health, ventilation and health however, it is immaterial whether the cold air leaks in through the house or from outdoors. Natural ventilation—through cracks around doors and windows and occasionally opened doors or windows is usually more than fresh air without that daily airing of which you speak.

Menstrual Cramps

Have you any advice for menstrual cramps, backache and headache? (Miss R. W.)

Answer—Yes. Send one stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing (no chipping, please) for pamphlet Hygiene for Girls and Health for Women. This is written by a medical service.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

YOUR FAMILY TREE

I have always been a little shy of those who boasted of their family trees. I am always just a little sad that too many monkeys had a climb upon it. It's the roots that I like to consider. Most trees anyway — not the branches.

The Duke of Marlborough has been a very fine product, for he was to Britain and for mankind because of his weakness in the presence of Eve. Since that early date there have been billions of Adam's products, and some of them have not turned out well. On the other hand, many have, and to them we owe a debt we have of goodness in the world.

I like that word fellowman. It sounds like billions of people. That one may be my neighbor, my workmate, my business, my friend, or my prospective friend. At any rate, as fellowman he may be the best and worst qualities that I possess — my fellowman. The fellowman is responsible for many in nature where many a branch decays and is either blown off or else is expertly trimmed, so that often good results. Sometimes that have long gone to their death and oblivion.

It is said of Sir Walter Scott that "he talked to every man as if he were a blood relation." That surely made him a fellowman de luxe. He was easily understood by great popularity during life, and how his memory is revered to this day, especially by Scotsmen who knew him best.

The story is told of Napoleon's great Marshal Ney, who was being entertained in Russia during Napoleon's adventure there. It was a great occasion and many of the high-blooded tribe of Russian men and women were there. One woman asked the Marshal Ney with her tale of great ancestry, when she had finished exclaimed: "By the way, Marshal Ney, what is your ancestry?" Ney replied: "Madame, I am an ancestor."

Regardless of the noted family tree, however, good blood does run thin in the multitude regardless of boast or heraldry. Sometimes the root is good but one branch of the tree has remained good anyway. Worth and character also run without much in the life — and they are to be found among the rich and famous as well as among the wealthy and mighty. Your family tree is with you make it!

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

BEDECK HOME IN LIFE-LONG GARB

If you're building a new home, or remodelling your present one, there's one thing you'll want for sure. That's a siding shingle that is long-lasting, beautiful and requires no costly upkeep. The answer, of course, is Johns-Manville Cedargrain siding shingles.

In remodelling, Cedargrains can be applied right over old-fashioned sidewalls. For free illustrated folder write Canadian Johns-Manville, 199 Bay St., Toronto, or see your nearest J-M dealer.

Will Use Refund On Income Tax To Pay Bills

The doctor, the baker, the candle-stick maker, as well as the income-tax payer. Joe on the street, are wearing broad smiles these post-spring days.

It's not the weather, this time, although that may have something to do with the sudden cheery dispositions of a winter-weary citizenry.

It is the baseball parlance, financial triple play with the government as umpire, that seems to start the great put-out. John Doe is on the receiving end of the first toss with business, the professions and others on the final play. Everybody is happy, with staffs of the Income Tax Office here, and the banks, coming in for plenty of extra work.

Two and one-half million dollars will be passed along to income tax payers of the district this month. The district comprises the counties of Hastings, Northumberland, Prince Edward and Peterborough.

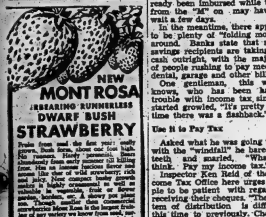
This amount will be distributed in 35,000 cheques which leave the Income Tax Office here at the rate of 1,500 daily. It is expected that total distribution will be made by March 30th.

Compulsory Savings

The great exodus from government cash registers represents compulsory savings of income tax payers during the years 1943-44.

Those who have not yet received their cheques need not worry, especially those who have sent forms in with letters in the latter half of the alphabet. The "Adams," "Browns, "Carters," etc., have already been imbursed while those with names that may have to wait a few days.

In the meantime, there appears to be plenty of "folding money" around. Banks state that many savings recipients are taking the cash outright, with the majority of people rushing to pay medical, dental, garage and other bills.



One gentleman, this writer knows, who has been having trouble with income tax, since it started growled, "It's pretty near time there was a flashback."

Use It to Pay Tax

Asked what he was going to do with the "windfall" he bared his teeth and snarled, "Whaddya think. Pay my income tax."

Inspector Ken Reid of the Income Tax Office here urges people to be patient with regard to receiving their cheques. "The system of distribution is different this time to previously. Cheques are going out in alphabetical order. Those who do not receive their cheques by the end of the month should make enquiries and we will do our best to straighten matters out."

In the meantime be respectfully requested those who have not received their cheques to desist from making telephone inquiries.

St. Laurent Pays Montreal Visit Talks on Pact

Montreal, March 7 (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent, using his weekends to make personal appearances in various parts of the country, concluded a two-day official visit to Montreal Sunday.

Mr. St. Laurent, who visited Toronto last weekend and who goes to Chatham and Windsor next weekend, moved cheerfully through a lengthy program which brought him into contact with people in all walks of life.

On Saturday he moved from Windsor Station to the Roman Catholic Archbishop's palace where he was greeted by Bishop Conrad Chaumont and Bishop Lawrence Whelan. From there he went to city hall where he was greeted by members of the city's executive committee.

Mayor Camillien Houde stayed away from the ceremony. Veteran city hall reporters said his absence was explainable. Mr. Houde interned for advising the people not to vote in a national registration during the war, made several unsuccessful applications for release and Mr. St. Laurent was Justice Minister.

Why Canada Backs Atlantic Pact

The Prime Minister appeared at the Metropolitan-tinged Richelieu Club and told them the reason why he and his government were supporting the Atlantic collective security pact. He said that only strength on the side of the democracies would prevent Russia from launching a third world war.

Anyone who had seen the horrors of war or who had seen what war meant did not want to see another war come upon the world.

In a speech to party supporters he warned that they should not rest on the party's laurels of the past. He said they should get out and convince the people that the federal party's program is the right one.

With a smile, he said:

"Of course, I am ready to be Prime Minister as long as you will have me."

He chided the opposition parties and said that George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, now is being given credit for popular measures of legislation by the Liberal party. He did not mention the C.C.F. by name but he said following parties supported programs which would bring every-one to an "equality in misery."

Princeton-by-the-Sea, Calif. — (AP) — This seller went to see the hard way.

James Ford of the United States fleet air wing, stationed at Alameda, Calif., had boasted of his swimming prowess. Friends accompanied him in a private plane yesterday a 50 set out to prove it.

He planned to parachute down two miles out and swim ashore. There was a miscalculation.

He hit the Pacific waters 12 miles off this fishing port 20 miles south of San Francisco. A life raft was tossed out. It surfaced 600 yards away. The current carried it faster than Coates could swim.

Deferiet, N. Y. —(AP)—Frank B. Reynolds, the only mayor this Northern New York village ever has had, today celebrated his 94th birthday with the announcement that he hopes to seek re-election.

Reynolds was named mayor of this village of 620 when it was incorporated in 1921 and has been re-elected every two years ever since.

Reynolds also is treasurer of the local school board but neither he nor his family can remember when he assumed the post. All he could say was: "It's been a long time."

Attleboro, Mass. — (AP) — Burglars ransacked the Rocco W. Phillips Lumber Company office here sometime Sunday, but stole nothing and made no effort to force open the office safe.

Perhaps that was because a sign pasted on the safe door said: "Mr. Burglar" this safe is used to protect records in case of fire, never over $10 in cash kept in it, it isn't worth your time nor the chance you take."

Conference May Be Early April

London, March 7 (CP)—The Daily Telegram today predicts that the conference of Commonwealth foreign ministers which had been scheduled for May will be advanced to April and will be held in Ottawa or London instead of Ceylon as originally planned.

The paper in a front-page story says "various difficulties," including the United States election meeting in April and the impending elections in Canada, Australia and possibly South Africa," are responsible for the change.

The article, the paper's political correspondent, "does not quote any source."

The conference is expected to be concerned primarily with the matter of Pacific and Far Eastern interest. Arrangements to hold the spring conference were made in London last fall at the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference.

Three R.R. Men Jump to Escape Rear-End Crash

Pembroke, Ont., March 7 (CP) — Three persons were forced to leap for safety when a passing-bound C.N.R. freight train Saturday plowed into the rear of C.N.R. passenger-baggage-logging train on the eastern outskirts of the town.

Wilfred Wagner, 44, of Pembroke, one of the C.N.R. employees who made the leap from the trains, suffered knee injuries as he swung free of the front end of the freight-passenger-logging train.

At the locomotive of the freight train crashed into the rear car, the impact lifted the caboose completely from the tracks and swung to the south side of right-of-way. It was badly wrecked.

Three flat cars, piled high with logs, were split open and a maze of logs buried into the air and scattered over a 600-yard area along the right-of-way.

Engine of the stationary combination train pushing ahead had been about to start shunting flat cars to a nearby siding of the Pembroke Woods Mills when the crash occurred.

Engineer Hall the locomotive in time, engineer of the eastbound freight, Wilfred Smith of Ottawa and his fireman, Raymond Marshal, also of Ottawa, jumped from the engine cab. They were not injured.

About 23 passengers in the passenger-logging train had disembarked just a few minutes previous to the crash.

NAVAL OFFICERS

Then, from unofficial sources. It was learned there had actually been a mutiny aboard the ship involving about 30 young ratings. The ratings' chief objections:

1. The ratings didn't like getting up for breakfast too early in the morning.

2. They did not like being told they should not sleep while refueling the ship.

An official naval headquarters statement, which blasted the letter, dealt with some of its implications, said:

No Senior Involved

1. No senior rating was involved; no leading seaman, petty officer or chief petty officer was concerned.

2. The men, about 30 of a crew of 140, were ordered to take fuel aboard ship, when they asked to see the ship's captain.

3. Cmdr. M. A. Medland, 39-year-old executive officer, spoke to the men, not as commanding officer but as the most senior officer available to them at the time.

4. After he spoke to them, the men carried on with their duties, which was to refuel the ship. They did this without incident.

5. Senior officer of the task force, Capt. Eric Brown, commander of H.M.C.S. Ontario, described the incident in a signal to headquarters as a "flash affair."

Neither was this "the third mutiny in the west coast squadron since June, 1945." There had been no mutinies during that time. However, there has been a disturbance aboard the cruiser Ontario about a month ago. This already had been made public.

"Most striking of the demands was that the executive officer be removed from the ship. A second request was that Canadian money again be accepted by the ship's canteen. American money only is received now by order of the executive officer," a naval spokesman said.

Question of Duties

The ship's executive officer, Lt.-Cmdr. C. R. Parker, said headquarters, was a highly competent officer with pertinent qualifications for his duties. The 34-year-old officer was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for duty aboard a landing craft at the invasion of Sicily in 1944.

On the American money angle, a spokesman said Canadian money has been accepted by ship canteens. But there may have been circumstances which made the acceptance of Canadian money in Mexican waters temporarily impossible.

Naturally, added naval headquarters, the persons responsible will be disciplined for their failure to carry out orders. They'll all be charged with nothing more serious than "slackness."

INQUEST INTO CHILD'S DEATH

Toronto, March 7 — (CP) — An inquest will be held into the death of a newly-born baby girl whose body, wrapped in newspapers, was found Saturday at the rear of a Toronto home. Dr. C. N. Crutcher, coroner, said there was no indication of foul play.

Western Govts. Acting Speedily On Communism

Washington, March 7 (AP)—Western governments still puzzling over the Moscow Kremlin's ministry shake-up are acting speedily to bolster their "fronts for" against Communism.

The main conviction in Washington, London and Paris is summed up by diplomats this way: Whether Moscow's diplomacy forward the west gets tougher, softer or continues unchanged the primary responsibility of the western powers now is to be prepared to meet any contingency.

Actually many responsible authorities here believe that the removal of V. M. Molotov from the foreign ministry and his replacement by Andrei Vishinsky means that the Russians are about to intensify their internal program and let up on Communist expansion temporarily.

It may also mean further Communist crackdowns on the satellite countries of eastern Europe to assure absolute control over the governments and peoples of the region.

In addition, a few highly-placed informants privately believe that Premier Stalin and his associates in the politburo may be preparing for a spring showdown with Marshal Tito over control of Yugoslavia.

The hardening Communist line in the world this side of the iron curtain—the stand by the party leaders who say they would side with Moscow in case of war—is considered by some experts on Soviet Communism to be evidence of a toughening up of the party. This would be in line with the purges which have been going on for months in eastern Europe and which may now be leading toward the climax, a test of power with Tito.

Expect to Move Forward

It is to meet this ultimate challenge as well as to strengthen the west against possible Russian aggression that United States State Department authorities expected to move forward on several fronts this week.

Germany — State Secretary Dean Acheson is sending his top police planner, George Kennan, to get a first-hand look at conditions in Germany.

Atlantic Pact—Acheson hopes to get final approval all around for a tentative draft of the North Atlantic security treaty so that it may be released by the end of this week.

The weekend line-up: Eight countries are already in the treaty negotiations—the United States, Britain, Canada, Norway, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg. From Copenhagen, Foreign Minister Gustav Rasmussen will leave for Washington Tuesday to find out the best possible basis for Denmark's becoming one of the original signers of the treaty. Iceland and Portugal also may join and United States officials say they would be welcome.

Police Charge Driver With Drunk Driving

Toronto, March 7 (CP)— When his truck was pushed onto a level crossing at suburban Islington yesterday, William C. Hopkins jumped out, gauged the distance to the oncoming train, climbed back in the cab and drove clear before the train thundered by. Police charged Leander Davies, also with drunk driving after investigating the car which pushed the truck.

$935 Cash, Cheques Taken by Safecrackers

Hamilton, March 7 (CP) — A gang of safecrackers, who made off with $935 in cash and cheques from a warehouse vault during the weekend, apparently thought poorly of their haul. Inside the vault was scribbled "no good, kid. R.B." The previous weekend $3,100 was taken from a shoe store. Police said an acetylene cutting torch was used in both cases.

No Barriers Against Prayers Meeting Told

On Friday afternoon the women of the various churches of the city met in Bridge Street United Church to join the women of other countries, united in prayer, to the throne of God, to commemorate the World's Day of Prayer.

The service, whose theme was, "The Lord is Thy Keeper" (Psalm 121:5) was under the direction of Mrs. W. H. Finkle, pastor of Bridge Street Women's Missionary Society, assisted by the representatives of the other churches and consisted of the "Call to Worship" in responsive form; adoration; prayer for general confession; prayer for China; scripture; thanksgiving, offering of self, offering of gifts, and prayers of intercession.

All Are Equal

The message of the afternoon, which was both heartsearching and enlightening, was given by Mrs. F. R. Hardack, of Tabernacle United Church, who stressed the thought, "The Significance of the World Day of prayer" In her opening remarks, Mrs. Hardack stated that, in the realm of prayer there was no barrier of language, race, or colour, for we all can pray, and all are equal in the sight of God. She then called the worship Him. No one can assess the power of prayer; for, more than anything else, it is the key that this world knows of. It changes circumstances, it changes the world, it changes the world, and brings it the kingdom of love and peace.

Some years ago, continued the speaker, a group gathered in prayer, and from that small but faithful group, the World's Day of Prayer was born. In 1920 a few Canadian women met and five years later it had become a world-wide movement; in 1928 fifty countries were observing this day, until in 1940 there were 37 countries whose women took part in the offering of this year of the Christian women of the West.

Funds to Buy Bibles

Speaking on the theme of the day, "The Lord is Thy Keeper," Mrs. Hardack emphasized the point that, "the Lord would be our Keeper if we would only permit Him to be, and were seeking His will for our lives, as found in the Bible. In refuge camps in China, Japan, Germany, they had brought their Bible with them. What would you take if you were suddenly called to leave your home?" asked Mrs. Hardack. "Would it be the Bible?" The people of the world are asking today for Bibles. The Japanese have purchased 3,000,000. The money received in offerings from the Day of Prayer is used to send Bibles and Christian literature to those in need, as well as bales of clothing. In 1947 the hymn book was first printed for the Ojibway Indians. All this the result, because one woman cared enough to pray and get others to join her. Missions, which were out of danger of the wars from home support, were "orphan missions" were kept open by the Day of Prayer offerings.

"If you are living for the peace of the world; if you are praying for the peace of the world, then send God's truth to the world." were the closing words of a message replete with wisdom and poignant in its appeal.

Appreciation was extended to Mrs. James Gordon of Holloway Street Church and all who assisted in making this combined service possible.

World Citizen Subject of Talk At Y.W. Guild

The president, Miss Alice Hasman, presided, and conducted the business session.

Mrs. H. Gibson was in charge of the devotional period. She based her remarks on the theme of the week "He increased in wisdom and stature, and in favour God and man." The probable reception that would be accorded Christ were He to visit the earth now, when everything everywhere seems so unsettled, as taken from a recent issue of McLean, was read. The need for practising our belief in the Fatherhood of God, and the Brotherhood of man is very evident.

Miss K. Daly, assisted by Miss Olive Kique, presented the topic "Science Challenges Us." The world today is one world, and a small world. The advance of modern science has made all the peoples of the earth fellow sufferers, if the catastrophe of a third world war is allowed to engulf us. Our knowledge of human relations has lagged far behind our scientific progress. Psychologists and social scientists are struggling desperately to catch up.

What are the requisites of a world citizen? Different people have varying ideas. Some people put their faith in the United Nations, and advocate ardent, patient support of its sometimes faltering efforts.

Must Change Attitude

Dr. Brock Chisholm sees the only hope for the future, in bringing up the children properly - a world citizens. To do this it will be necessary for many adults to change their attitudes, and get rid of prejudices, because children get their attitude by copying a pattern from some adult on whom they pin their faith. Children should be taught to accept responsibility; first in the home, then in the community, then in the nation, and later in the world at large. He decried the figure of the three monkeys, who see no evil, hear no evil, and speak no evil. If there is evil we need to see it. Wherever it lies, we need to talk about it, and we need to take our responsibility about doing something about it.

Some believe that internationalism like charity should begin at home. By endeavoring to promote the good of the home community through participation in the various organizations in his own community, the individual sights will be gradually raised, and his horizons widened. He will come to realize that, what is good for the home community is good for his province, for his country, for his world."

There are several organizations that aim to develop an informed public opinion on international affairs. The United Nations Association, The Canadian Institute of International Affairs and the Canadian Institute on Public Affairs. Their purpose is roughly education for world citizenship. Many publications are available from these agencies.

Miss Elson and Mrs. Walker Jones, who attended the Couchiching Conference last summer, gave a brief report. It was their privilege to hear several eminent

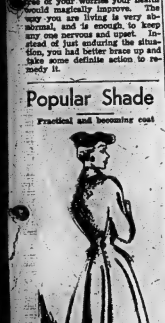
ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
LETTERS AND ANSWERS

Dear Miss Fairfax:
Recently I asked a boy who I like in a swell guy.
One night he told me he would like to take me out, but for some reason he could not. Later he told me that when he went out with a girl he went in for petting, and he thought I was too dignified to go for that.
Do you think that if this fellow liked me, he would put this aside? Or do you think we could start in between us, as we are still good friends and can talk quite frankly with each other?
—Anxious.

Dear "Anxious": I don't see why it should require very much frank discussion between you and this boy to make you more than close to him. All you have to do is to tell him that you like him and you are definitely "too respectable" to go in for petting, and let him know you mean what you say. I certainly think if he likes you enough he will want to be with you on your own terms.
If he doesn't, but tells you that he doesn't want to take you out because he always expects to pet with any girl he has a date with, you'd better let him go, and find somebody with more gentlemanly standards.



* * *

Dear Miss Fairfax:
I am 25, and have been married four years. I have a son 18 months old.
My husband has a job at which he makes $63 a week. He pays my mother $25 board for just him and myself. He doesn't pay for the baby at all, or support it in any way. My mother and father pay for the baby's clothes and any other bills.
My husband is very slovenly in his personal habits at times. I don't even sleep in the same room with him. I would put him out, as I am definitely estranged from him, but my mother needs the money he pays for board, as my father only gets paid every two weeks. I am very nervous because of him, and I have heart trouble too. If I have him around much longer I will go crazy.
—"Worried".

Dear "Worried": It seems to me that what is needed in your family is a little gumption. If there are good reasons for your not wishing to have your husband around any longer, then I think both you and your mother should tell him so, and find some other way of making up the money that he pays for board.
Are you sure that you are too sick to do any work yourself and earn some money? It seems perfectly possible to me that most of your trouble might come from nervousness, and that if you were free of your worries your health would magically improve. The way you are living is very abnormal, and is certainly not likely to be nervous and upset. Instead of just enduring the situation, you just have to go and take some definite action to remedy it.

Practical and becoming coat

By VERA WINSTON

BRIGHT ORANGE tweed is used for a coat that, while it is eminently practical, doesn't lose sight of feminine flattery, and soft lines. If features classic reverses with a double-breasted closing with four black bone buttons. The deep folds in back converge to a V detail that terminates in an unpressed unpleated inset. Deep pockets are at the hips. May we note that the deep-brilliant orange shades are moving fast up the color card for general, street and sports wear?

THE DUTIES OF THE HOSTESS COMMITTEE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
In our Home Making Group another friend and I were installed on the Hostess Committee. The Group meets once a month at the home of a different member. Every member brings either a home-prepared casserole dish, or cake or other dessert. Every member also brings her own dinner plate, cup and saucer, knife, fork, napkin and is responsible for washing these after the luncheon. Besides setting the table, what are our duties as the Hostess Committee?
Your special hospitality duties would, I should think, be assigned by the head of the Group. In general it would be your responsibility to arrive early at the member's house where the meeting is to take place and, after seeing that everything is supposed to be supplied by the Hostess Committee (perhaps, for example, flowers or other decoration for the table centrepiece, perhaps decorative or specially appropriate paper napkins or lace-paper doilies or other novelty accessories that will be gay "conversation pieces"). As hostesses-on-duty you should take a thought and effort to set the table or tables as attractively as originally is possible. Then be all ready to receive the visitors with grace, and during the luncheon be graciously attentive to make every guest comfortable and happy. And when good-bys are being said, make each guest feel that the coming of her delightful to the joyous success of the occasion! "Thank you so much for coming!"

Don't Write City and State on Same Line

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
My brother always addresses a card or envelope with the city and state on the same line. My teacher has told our class that it is better form to write the name of the city on one line and the name of the state on the line underneath. Which form do you prefer?
Your teacher is right . . . s.s. parate lines for each. This makes a better address-appearance, more balanced, and is much better for the postal attendant and the postman to read. Also it means that there is a clear space for the writing of the Zone Number after the name of the city.

Groom Says Thanks for Both — Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
When the wedding toast is proposed to the bride and groom, are both supposed to rise and thank the guests, or does only the groom rise?
—Doris F.
Only the groom rises . . . and expresses the thanks of his bride and himself.

Engagement Party
Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
Who pays for the engagement party?
—M.A.R.
If the party is given to announce the engagement, it is given by the parents of the engaged girl, and so they, as hosts, pay for the party. But if it is a party to celebrate the engagement (after the engagement has been announced) then the expenses of the party are paid by the hostess or hosts who give it.

BEAUTY

By ALICE ALDEN

REDUCING OVER-DEVELOPED LEGS

Considering that walking is something that nearly does any more, except those individuals who trail over a golf course, it is safe to guess that the average pair of legs is almost scrupulously from lack of use. It is the way of women to hop into the family car, even if they need go no further than the corner letter box. Sedentary legs not only collect fat or go flabby, but they soon become muscle-bound and wobbly.

The girl who is afflicted with fatted calves can slenderize them by exercise. That's a fact, and no fooling. She won't be able to sport a pair of trim pins in a few weeks, but after a few months, but if she persists, the miracle will happen. Bulky muscle will melt into the lines of the gazelle.

A simple exercise, one that can be done in odd moments, and should be done three times or more a day, is walking tippy-toe. It works faster if done with the bare feet, but that is not really necessary. With every step the heel should be raised as far as ever you can, and there should be lightness and spring in the movements. This practice will make for alertness and grace. It will strengthen weak ankles and prevent conditions that make for awkward locomotion.

Bending the ankles is helpful. Sit in a low chair. Place your feet straight ahead, lift up the heels, and bend on the muscles as the heel lifts. Then pivot on the toes, turning the ankles from side to side. You can read your mystery story while doing this. Your reward is as if you are busily wasting your time then and your legs getting slender at the your moments of figure remodeling. Cross your knees, rotate the ankles first on the inside calf of the upper leg will rest against the ankle bone and fat cells will be bumped off.

Illustrated by Ray Osborn Studios

Tap dancing will work faster than anything else to reduce fat. You need not be sensitive about joining a dancing class. You can do the steps alone, and those afflicted with adipose tissue south of the waistline. This form of dancing will have no effect upon the torso, but will thin down the thick large thighs, fatted calves and ankles that do not qualify.

Massage will cause the dissolution of fat cells, but it must be deep and heavy. Knead your hands well into the flesh. Knead the fleshy part of the legs with your knuckles. Pick up the flesh and roll it between fingers and thumbs. Finish up with an open friction.

While going through this pretty-fingers act, wear stockings of the darkest colors you can find. Select plain shoes that will not call attention to your legs.

Keep Your Figure Shapely

Cyd Charisse, of the movies, likes to exercise while she's sunbathing. She starts this one by lying flat, easily raises herself up like this.

By HELEN FOLLETT

It doesn't matter what styles prevail; they are flattering only to the svelte, graceful silhouette. Though fashion designers may sing in favor of long, snug, slinky skirts, or billowing dry goods from hips to toes, the feminine frame must be of good proportions if it is to carry them beautifully, with flair and distinction.

Beauty allows that do figure remodelling flourish in all large cities. What they accomplish is almost beyond belief. In Hollywood, especially, they do a thriving business because no movie star or little starlet can afford to let her shape get the least bit shapeless. She must retain the neat waistline, the bosomy bust, the hip measurement that is precisely right. Don't think that figures just take care of themselves. Time brings changes and seldom for the better.

one part of the bod yand build it up elsewhere, where build-up is necessary. They accomplish these miracles by making the cash customers do normalizing exercises. If there is general overweight, then diet is a part of the routine. Fats, sweets and starches are cut down to the limit.

If a woman has plump shoulders and flat-developed upper arms, while the rest of her figure is fairly slender, she is made to swing Indian clubs and chin the bar. Does she protest? Of course she does, but a lot of good it does her.

To reduce fatted calves and to develop thin ones the candidate for beauty must ride a stationary bicycle, pedaling on her toes, and lifting herself from the saddle so her entire weight is on her legs and feet.

In a super cabinet bath built for reclining, excess fat cells are sweated out of existence. This part of the treatment stimulates circulation, puts color in the cheeks and her eyes word happy. "I still can't understand why he picked me!"

Karen smiled. "I know, Because beneath the hard layer Roxanne was kind, tender, and honest."

"You're sweet," Roxanne said. "Sorry for talking so much about myself. . . But Bill left yesterday and I — I miss him terribly. He was quite a friend already of a small blonde girl who sings on a hotel radio. She's bare-bodied but because that she's loyal and very kind."

The next evening she had dinner with Roxanne again in the same small inexpensive place. She spent the first morning seeking places of interest, asking her way from one place to another, and looking in shop windows. She had spent the afternoon at the zoo watching regal, dark-haired Gilda Marsh.

That evening at eight-thirty Karen saw another pair of velvet curtains part and saw tall, fine-looking Roxanne Dell step forward resolutely. She stood there, poised, cool. Of all the famous actresses, Miss Brends Bond was perhaps the most famous. Karen had not yet like Roxanne, but it was over too soon. The lights went on and people began to move down the aisles slowly.

It had begun to rain and the lobby was jammed. Karen found herself wedged between a giant of a man and a buxom woman evidently some distance to the front, hit her arm and sent her black leather bag out of her arm. sent it several feet away from her where it was trampled upon and kicked still farther away.

In panic, seeing all the money she had being kicked by several pairs of well-shod feet, she could not move. Her arm was numb. Her heart seemed to drop. Then, half sobbing, she cried, "let me thru' please. My bag . . . my money!" But the barrier of people would not budge. Then a hand reached contemptuously. A woman cried indignantly, "Really, young woman!"

Karen pushed and fought. In two more steps . . .

But some one bent down and picked up her bag. When the girl glanced at the bag out to her, she saw how tall, how handsome he was. Her heart leaped, she thought later, she noticed him. His face was as bronzed as his hair, his eyes brown. He had a firm but amusing mouth.

"Yours?" he asked.

Later she admitted she had acted it rudely.

"Yes," Karen said breathlessly. "Thank you—"

He smiled. "It's all right," Bill said. Then he turned away.

Outside she walked hurriedly to Broadway in the rain. If she had lost her bag, if somebody else had claimed it. The thought sickened her. Tomorrow she would go to a bank.

The traffic light was red on Broadway. Feeling the rain beating on her small black hat, feeling it drip from the ends of her hair, she waited impatiently. Who was he, the man who had said in a deep, suave voice, "It's all right!" She would never know.

Just as the light was changing, a large green car came to an abrupt stop. Karen saw him the instant he saw her.

He smiled again. "Hello! You've got soaked. Get in!"

Get in a car with a strange handsome man who had picked up her bag in the lobby!

"Thank you but I can't."

"Don't talk nonsense. Get in. You're holding up traffic".

It was the maddest thing she had ever done but she slid into the luxurious car beside him and turned and looked at him.

He smiled into her eyes. "You might," Philip Ashley said, "put your hat on straight."

Suddenly fear and embarrassment left Karen, for it was cozy, warm and delightful in the limousine. Straightening the little black hat over her dark curls, she was aware of people turning down Broadway in a luxurious green car with a strange man. And on her second night in New York.

Philip Ashley smiled again. "That's better." Then, "let's introduce ourselves." He hesitated and said, "I'm Philip Ashley."

Karen turned her head and raised her eyes. Philip Ashley! She said his name over and over again—Philip Ashley, apprentice! Why, it was his play she had seen tonight! She liked his handsome face and his name. He had said it quietly and modestly.

"I'm Karen Mallare. Of course you noticed, how scared I was when my bag got away."

"You shouldn't carry a lot of money with you."

"I never will again. But, you see, I just came to New York last night."

He glanced at her with a frown. "You mean you just came here last night—to live."

"Yes. I came to go on the stage." She expected his sudden smile. "You're the third person who has felt sorry for me when I said that. Smiled and felt sorry. Poor girl. She thinks she can act. She's a fool. That's what you think."

He lifted her voice. Glancing at her swiftly, he found himself liking the delicately chiselled features and the absurdly long black lashes that curled upward.

"Forgive us for our cynicism," he said. "But you seem to have a great faith in yourself."

For him it had begun as an adventure when he saw how young and frightened she had looked in the theatre lobby. Then, on the crowded street corner with the rain falling, he had felt sorry for her and thought it might be amusing to know her. A little working girl, he had thought, who had paid her hard-earned money to see his play who had nearly lost her money, who had been trampled upon, or, but it was a different story. An astonishingly beautiful girl, she loved the stage as Philip loved it. There was no nonsense about her. She had not said she'd be coolly-vivaciously thrilled when he said, "I'm Philip Ashley." It took more than a name in ladies to impress this girl.

Realizing that he was driving aimlessly, Karen gave him her address.

Realizing that, "Look here, do you really have to go home? I'm starved. Over several hundred sandwiches and several cups of coffee you can tell me what you think of my play. Brenda Bond. And I think you'd be a pretty good critic. I'm sweet myself. What do you say?"

Sandwiches and coffee with Philip Ashley.

Remember That Night

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

Karen thought, "she thinks I'm just another stage-struck girl. She doesn't know that I have a better reason for wanting to be an actress than most girl. My mother was an actress."

Roxanne said, "sorry for throwing the cold water but you might as well know."

"I'm here and I'm not going back," Karen said. "I'm the world to go back to. Everything I possess is with me."

"Small income?"

Karen nodded.

"Roxanne closed. Why was she bothering? Was it because four years ago somebody had walked with her and had been kind? You needed kindness and friendship when you were alone. She knew. And Karen Mallare was no ordinary girl. She wasn't shy or hard. She was beautiful, Roxanne thought, and sensible and courageous.

"I'm going out to dinner," she said. "Would you like to come with me? There's a place a couple blocks away that isn't bad. And it's cheap. You've got to get my hat. See you downstairs in the lobby."

In a booth in a restaurant Karen heard Roxanne Dell's story.

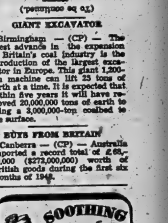
"I didn't have far to come to New York," Roxanne Dell told Karen. "I came from New Jersey." She smiled. "Beauty contest winner. I thought that would get me by. But I was young then, seventeen, and I didn't know much. I haven't any family now other except a sister who's married and lives in Atlanta."

Roxanne looked across the table at Karen. "I've done a little bit of everything but I've never been anywhere near fame or the big money. And I've been as low as my last 15 cents. I was in vaudeville for a year and last summer in a night club in Atlantic City. Now I'm singing on a hotel roof. It's the best job I've ever had. But I've had enough of this business. I'm going to be married."

Her voice wasn't husky or hard when she said, "I'm going to to get married," Karen noticed. It had become amazingly tender.

Roxanne buttered a roll and smiled. "I'm going to marry a man I'm so crazy about I don't know how I live or work when he isn't here. Bill McGrath. But he isn't here most of the time."

"What are you waiting for?" Karen asked. When people were in love, why did they wait?



Roxanne laughed softly. "We're waiting for Christmas! He gets his vacation then and he expects to be made sales manager of a branch in Louisville. And when I do walk out of that hotel roof, I never want to see the inside of another night club! Christmas," she repeated, looking down, her red mouth curving. "I've known Bill two months and it's too good to be true. He came up on the roof one night and waited for me afterward. It scared me at first. I didn't think he was serious and I was afraid of being hurt. He comes from a good family and I . . . well, I'm nothing. Just a female crooner." She smiled again

Rockets Jrs. Sweep Schedule Defeating Kingston Navy 7-2 For Tenth Straight Victory

Belleville Junior "B" Rockets romped through their OHA group schedule undefeated, turning back the Kingston Navy team by a 7-2 score in the Jock Harty Arena on Saturday night to record their tenth straight victory.

The game was anything but an Alphonse - Gaston affair with both teams appearing willing to mix matters. Eight fights broke out at times and officials dished out seventeen penalties, nine of them going to Rockets.

Don Semark and Lattimer started a battle late in the second period and both drew misconduct penalties. Lattimer also drew a five-minute sentence for fighting and a two-minute one for slashing. Semark also got himself a five-minuter for using the fists.

The group playoffs are scheduled to start in Memorial Arena here on Tuesday night when Rockets meet the third place team, which will not be decided till Monday night, in the first game of a best two-of-three series. The second game is scheduled for Kingston on Thursday night.

Goalie Hurt

Holland, Navy goal keeper, received a severe injury to his face near the end of the first period, necessitating six stitches. His place was taken by O'Donnell, member of another team, by consent of the Belleville coach.

Rockets hit pay dirt twice in the first period when Jud Semark fired Peter Jones' pass to open the scoring after six minutes of play, and Johnny Green scored on a solo effort halfway through the period.

Navy came back strongly in the second heat, tieing the score in three minutes of play with goals from Bailey and McCormick. Art Wright gave the Rockets a 3-2 lead near the period's end after the smoke of fisticuffs and penalties had cleared away.

Rockets took over the situation in the third period when the teams settled down to hockey. Faced by Ronny Trussell who hit the rigging for two goals and an equal number of assists, the Rockets sank gang slung home four markers to put the game in the bag. Art Wright got his second goal of the game in this period with Joe Nolan contributing the fourth.

The teams:

Rockets—Goal, MacKay; defence, G. Graham, Nolan; centre, Trussell; wings, J. Green, D. Semark; subs: Schrieder, Taylor, Jones, Rogers, Wright, Bone, Semark, Barrett.

Kingston Navy—Goal, Holland, O'Donnell; defence, Wiskin, Lattimer; centre, Bailey; wings, Moulder, Tinkers; subs: Jackson, Clark, Wesse, McCormick, Fuller.

Track Athletes Ready For Meet At Montreal

Montreal, March 7 — (CP) — A star-studded array of track athletes poured into Montreal during the week-end, each one of the more than 200 eying the Dominion track and field championships that will go to the winners of events in the Canadian Legion indoor track meet at the forum today.

Canada's participants, making up the majority of the trackers, will have visions of the 1950 British Empire games. Others, like Harrison Dillard, who will race in three events, will be out to break records.

Seven senior Dominion championships will be decided.

Dillard's main opposition in the hurdles is Kim Kimbark, racing for North Toronto Track Club and a promising Canadian youngster.

Special trophies have been donated for the Canadian Legion mile, a feature event which has attracted five of the best milers on the continent.

Willy Louis, of The Netherlands, is top favorite, with Ronald Wittcutt of Princeton University and Eddie O'Connell, the fighting Irishman, selected to give him a run for his money. George McMullen, of the University of Toronto, a terrific sprint finisher, and Neil Pratt from Syracuse University round out the contenders.

Another trophy will go to the winner of the women's relay race in which four teams will compete.

30 TEACHERS ESCAPE

Toronto, March 5 — (CP) — Thirty teachers escaped through dense smoke today when fire caused by spontaneous combustion, broke out in the teachers' residence of De La Salle College.

Brother Willfrid, college principal, battled the flames with an emergency extinguisher and was credited by fire officials with checking the blaze.

The fire, which started in material stored in a basement room, caused an estimated $300 damage.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A FINE RECORD

The Rockets Juniors put the finishing touches to something of a hockey record for this city on Saturday night when they defeated Kingston Navy 7-2 to rack up their tenth straight consecutive victory in their Junior "B" Group series to the record all ready established by their big brothers the CNR Diesels not last year. In fact, this city has had some of the sins of the Old Lady of the Metro can boast that two of its teams went through the seasonal schedules undefeated, especially in OHA competition. We realize what happens in the playoffs or playdowns, both Rockets and Diesels, their supporters and the city as a whole should be proud of their record.

PLAYOFFS AND PAYOFFS

But now to the business at hand. Tonight the chips are down. Diesels clash with the strong Kingston Nylon team in the first game of a two-of-three series for the group title and the right to travel down the track championship trail. The Nylons although defeated by the Diesels twice in the regular schedule are no mean foemen and should give the Trainmen the hockey battles of their lives. They have powerful front lines, especially that of Gervey, Partle and Caille, and the games should be productive of the old-time fire and vigor that always characterized playoff clashes between Kingston and Belleville squads.

Diesels, according to the latest word from their camp, will be at full strength for tonight's all-important first game of the series. They have been through a strenuous workout Saturday night and all appeared to be in good shape with perhaps the exception of Maurice LeGeyt whose injured hand is not quite 100 per cent. However, Leo will be in the action even if not Saturday, and it is quite possible the Coach Jim Ehler will start him.

DON'T SELL 'EM SHORT!!

While the Diesels and their supporters are proud of the team's unbeaten record in the city series, they will be remembered that tonight they are starting from scratch, so to speak. Records don't win playoffs, and that's even for the Rockets, too. Many a proud team that has dominated the field in schedule play has gone down to defeat when the money games start. There is much more at stake in playoffs than the mere winning of the game. Diesels and Rockets should not sell their Kingston opponents short. Timestones pockets have the reputation of being tough teams to beat when the chips are flying—and this will likely prove the case in the coming playoffs. While the Diesels are favored to win the group, it is hard to predict that both Bellevilla teams will emerge victorious in their respective series, both are still a very good hockey team, participated in hockey games. Titles are not won until the last whistle tests—and remember, anything can happen in a hockey game—over a series.

The Diesels flit back to Kingston on Wednesday night for the second and if necessary third game which they will put back for support. The CNRAA is sponsoring a special train which will accommodate 400 of the faithful and this should provide some enthusiastic support for the Trainmen on the Tricolumn. The special leaves Memorial Arena at 6.15 of the clock and all it costs you is a buck, seventy-five cents for the round trip. It stops at Bleecker Avenue to pick up any passengers and from then on it is non-stop to Kingston. The Jerry Arena is about ten minutes hike from the train-stop. The CNRAA has reserved 400 reserved seat tickets in the Kingston Arena, so that Belleville fans will not be disappointed.

FAST TRAIN TO KINGSTON

Train tickets and Coupe for the Kingston Arena are now on sale at Bill Cook's Cigar Store and the CNR Ticket Office. Better get yours early as the first come get their choice of the arena seats.

On the other side of the hockey picture the Rockets Juniors clash with the whizzers of the third and fourth spot occupants in the Junior "B" grouping. These winners will not be decided until tonight and whoever it is must play two games on consecutive nights fo the game of the group semi-finals has been ordered here tomorrow night. The second game is scheduled for Kingston on Thursday. It will be a two-of-three series.

FUCKS ON THE NETS—SOCKS ON THE JAW

Rockets emerged from a much-mad jumble exhibition of hockey on Saturday night when all apparent friendship between them and Kingston Navy went by the boards. Rocks won the brawl 7-2 to record their tenth straight in the group. Both squads threw caution to the boards at times when temporary flared and fisticuffs broke out at intermittent periods. Don Semark and Lattimer of Navy drew misconducts after both heaved gloves and got into fisticuffs with majors with Lattimer drawing a five-minuter as well. Seventeen sin-bin sentences were handed out by the officials.

THE BOYS DID WELL

Ronny Trussell proved the sniping ace of the tilt on Saturday night when he got two in the third period and being credited with two assists. Art Wright was another scoring here on the piece while Joe Nolan and Schreider stood out on the defence. Bill MacKay turned in another fine performance in the nets. The Rocks with the weekend rest should be fit and rarin' to go tomorrow night against whatever team wins the third slot-post in the group standing.

HELP THE DUTCH

The Ontario Amateur Softball Association sends out an appeal for used softball equipment which will be sent to Holland where Dutch softballers are unable to obtain equipment due to foreign exchange restrictions. The game, it appears, has spread through the Netherlands like an epidemic but the lads in the wooden shoes and the gals of the little Dutch Mills are handicapped by inability to obtain the necessary bats, balls etc. Secretaries or representatives of softball teams in Ontario who have equipment to spare are requested to forward same to J. M. Birkhoff, Physical Director, YM-YWCA, Nanaimo, Utrecht, Holland or to OACAS Secretary Frank Feaver, 526 Maple Street, Hamilton, Ont. It will be appreciated.

Leo Durocher Faces Greatest Challenge of Life

Phoenix, March 7 — (AP) — New York Giants, long one of baseball's proudest clubs, fell back into the National League's second division last year, four full games behind the fourth-place Pittsburgh Pirates.

Leo Durocher, one of the game's most controversial figures, faces the greatest challenge of his life as he begins his first full season as manager of a team which has once nothing but disappoint.

Many believe that the fiery little pilot will be expected to lead his collection of sluggers to a pennant somewhere near the top in the coming campaign — or else. The manner in which he is driving them in training suggests that Leo is thoroughly aware of his position.

This is the over - all picture of the Giants. They have a wealth of hitting power, at least potentially and they have sufficient speed.

Durocher is determined to infject hustle, and he hopes to threst together a round staff which will not give up runs in clusters.

The team has two real good pitchers in Larry Jansen and Sheldon Jones. They won 18 and 16 games, respectively, in '48, and their earned-run marks were good.

Monte Kennedy, who at times has looked like a great lefthander, has been told already that he will start every fourth day. Sam Webb, brought up last autumn from Jersey City where he had won 18 games, is considered a fine prospect to round out the quartet of regular starters the club must have.

Cooper's Knee Bad

The next biggest question after the pitching is whether Walker Cooper's knee, which was operated upon twice, is going to stand up under rugged duty, and whether the big catcher will come back to help pace a mighty attack, as he did two years ago.

The rest of the club appears to be set.

Eld Gordon is set at third base. He had a great season last year, hitting 30 homers and driving across 107 runs.

Johnny Mize, the big first-baseman-hit 40 four-baggers in '48, enough to tie for the league lead again. Willard Marshall, who had a miserable year and fell off to a .272 average, took off a lot of weight during the winter and expects to bounce back big in right field.

Johnny Kerr, a stubborn holdout a year ago, is satisfied this term and still is a polished performer around shortstop. Bill Rigney has a sound arm again and has first call at second.

Bob Thomson, the club's fastest man, is being switched to centerfield to give the team the advantage of his great throwing arm with Whitey Lockman swinging over to left. It is a fine outfield — one of the best — if all threemen play up to the form of which they have shown themselves capable.

Canadiens Rolls Into Second Place of N.H.L. While Durnan Comes up With Fourth Shutout

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

"The Hart Jos Durnan!"

That jubilant chorus rose from Montreal hockey fans as Les Canadiens rolled into second place in the National League, almost solely on the performance of goalie Bill Durnan.

Until a couple of weeks ago, the Habitants were just a so-so-club, fighting with Toronto and Chicago for a play-off berth. Then Durnan started a shutout streak that has carried him through four straight games. It now is 232 minutes and 46 seconds since Chicago's Roy Conacher pushed the last puck past Durnan.

With that kind of record, the fans and sports writers are yelling that Durnan should receive the Hart Trophy as the most valuable player to his team in the 1942-43 N.H.L. season. In addition, Durnan is almost sure to win the Vezina Trophy as the league's best goalie and may well win a berth on the first all-star team.

Over the weekend, Durnan shut out Boston Bruins twice, 4-0 and 1-0, to run his total of games to second place, one point ahead of the Bruins and 10 points behind the first place New York Rangers. Red Wings, who also won twice over the weekend, 3-2 and 5-3, over Chicago Black Hawks.

Leafs Win Two

Almost lost in the bullseboo about Durnan, was the spaghling performance of Toronto Maple Leafs. The Leafs beat the last-place New York Rangers, 7-1 and 4-3. That kept Toronto clipping right along in fourth place, only one point behind Boston and two behind Montreal. The Leafs have lost only two games in their last 13 — both to Montreal.

Durnan's recent brilliance has lifted him among the all time goaling greats of hockey. Only three other G. H. A. goalies have run up better records. Alec (the Human) Connell of the old Ottawa Senators, the late Charlie Gardiner of Chicago Black Hawks and Normie Smith of Detroit Red Wings. Connell is far ahead. In the 1927-28 season Connell had six consecutive shutouts for the tremendous record of 446 minutes and nine seconds without a score.

Checking fiercely and attacking swiftly, Les Canadiens rapped in two goals and Roger Leger and Elmer Lach one apiece to down the Bruins. Last night, the only counter was by right wing Manville Boesch at 12:33 of the first period. After that, Boston could not do a thing.

Turned over Rangers

Toronto swarmed all over the Rangers Saturday, after New York had taken a 1-0 lead halfway through the first period on Goalie Flaher's goal. Harry Watson tied it up late in the opening. Joe Klukay made it 2-1 with two second period goals, and Ray Timgren, Cal Gardner, Watson and Harry Taylor completed the rout in that order in the third.

On Sunday, New York again took first blood and led 2-1 at the end of the first period on goals by Nick Mickoski, Frankie Eddolls and Clint Albright while Gardner was counting for Toronto.

In the second period, Timgren made it 3-2. Neve, in the finals, Max Bentley and Bill Juzda both counted for Leafs.

In the Red Wing - Hawk Saturday night high-scoring thriller in Detroit, the battle was close all the way. Bud Pulle led the scoring for Detroit with two goals, the first and one in the last period. Other Detroit marksmen were Lorrie Dowell, Sid Abel, Pete Horeck and Jerry Couture. The Chicago scorers were Red Hamill, who found the range twice; Doug Bentley, Metro Prystai and Doug McCall.

Sunday night, Ted Lindsay, Couture and Howe scored in quick succession to give the Wings a 3-0 lead in the first nine minutes. Prystai and Doug Bentley in match Howe while Doug Bentley and Metrol Prystai counted for the losers.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 7 — (AP) — Just a couple of cold-blooded questions:

While his boss, Shag Shaughnessy was sitting in on a baseball rules committee meeting in Florida, Harry Simmons, the International league publicity man, propounded a question that would give the committee a headache.

When is it necessary to have a four-ball set to prevent a run from scoring? . . . Harry says he'll show it wasn't entirely academic, secretary Bill Manley walked in just then with a letter asking for the ruling on the same play . . .

The situations is this: one out and runners on first and third; the batter hits a fly or pops up trying to bunt on a squeeze play. That's the second out and the runner who was on third crosses the plate. The ball is thrown to first before that runner can get back and he's the third out. Is it a run or isn't it?

The rule says a run counts if it crosses the plate before the third out unless the third man out is forced or fails to reach first base . . . Of course, if the ball is thrown to third, the guy would be out for failing to return. That's the fourth out! Simmons mentions and National League umpires have ruled that it is necessary to keep the run from counting . . . No wonder they're planning to rewrite the rules.

Monday Matinee

Gus Lesnevich, who gobbled Eldridge Keeny's title in 31 seconds the other night, plans two more tune-up fights. "Then," says trainer Sodahl Miller, "we're going to open the cage and let the Hustin Hon out." . . . Report from the Midwest is that Ohio State is "actively entering into recruiting" since all Ohio football-ers turned up on Purdue's spring roster.

Sails Downhill At 60 m.p.h. to Win Championship

(By The Canadian Press)

Yves Laroche, ski instructor from Ste. Agnes, Que., sailed down Big Mountain in Montana Saturday at more than 60 miles an hour to win the United States Downhill championship.

Laroche's time was one minute, 39 2-5 seconds. The 25-year-old Canadian knocked off the world's top skiers who competed on the 2,800-foot Big Mountain run, which has a 2,800-foot drop from the peak to the finish, near the northwestern Montana town of Whitefish.

Observers described the condition of the course as "good."

Canada's famed Torpedo Line finished second and third in the women's downhill, won by Andrea Mead Lawrence, 16-year-old high school girl from Stowe, Vt. Miss Mead's time for the shorter 1 1-4 mile course was 1:30.2.

The Swiss team of Walter Diggelmann and Hughe Koblet won New York's international six-day bike race which ended Saturday night.

With an overflow crowd of more than 11,000 fans on hand, the battered and bruised Swiss pedalers completed 2,142 miles during the grind pedalled furiously to protect a lead they had gained early and going into the final hour.

The battle for second money on the race was won by Alvaro Georgetti of Italy and Henri Suratte of Belgium with 2,102 points. Irene Cyr of Montreal and Ferdinado Juarez of Morocco was third with 961 points.

Willy Slykhuis of the Nebelands scored up his United States campaign Saturday night by whipping Jackie Wiggs a 3-0 decision after a 10-minute wrestling session.

Slykhuis was given the verdict by policemen had to be called to separate both the participants and spectators.

It was the third flat-wrestling affair between American and Swedish players. Last week the Amateur Athletic Association sent a letter of protest to the American Embassy over the conduct of the United States puckstars. The United States players apologized.

The United States team won 2-0 and captured the two-game wrestling series, 4-3.

Pete Cooper rammed home six eagle threes on the last hole to win the $10,000 St. Paul Open Golf Open Sunday. His total for four rounds was 278, nine under par. His victory was worth $2,000. Carey Middlecoff, the Memphis dentist was second with 279.

At Mont Tremblant, Quebec Prance's daring ski winners, repeating their performances in last week's Dominion championships, captured the first five places Sunday in the famed Quebec-Kandahar race, but it was instructor Ernie McCullough of Lac Carling, Que., who stole the spotlight.

McCullough, skiing in the open class for professionals and not eligible for the Kandahar trophy, bested the entire field to win top honors in the Alpine combined with a sensational burst of speed in the slalom event.

McCullough whizzed down the flying mile on the upper level in 67 seconds on his second run, tying Franco's Henri Oreiller for the day's best time. Combined with his solid performance in Saturday's downhill, this gave him 663 points, compared to 660.6 for 19-year-old Georges Pralinet of the French team. Under the scoring system in vogue at the meet, lowest point total based on lowest times in both slalom, wins.

Peter Hugsted of Koneburg, Norway, was the Dominion champion at the ski tournament held on Nels Nelson Hill at Revelstoke B.C., with leaps of 247 feet.

The ski hill at 535 feet is said to be the highest in North America.

Noel Peal of Kimberley, B.C. was second with a best leap of 239 feet, well short of Hugsted, currently of Chicago, who holds the Olympic championship and the American national title which he won at Duneray, Colorado, two weeks ago.

Jumping conditions were considered poor because of warm weather.

Lee Millenbach of Detroit won the Canadian Open Ice Yacht championship on Lake Simcoe Sunday.

Several contestants were from the United States. Last week's mild weather made the ice sticky and some races became endurance contests.

Jack Leibel of Toronto, Canadian and Ontario squash racquets champion, successfully defended his Ontario crown at Toronto Sunday. He defeated Sid Heatherington of Toronto, 15-13, 15-18, 15-18, to retain the Beverley Matthews trophy.

University of Toronto graduates team retained the Ontario team title and the Herman Levy trophy with a 3-2 win over Hamilton Athletics. Members of the winning team were Dr. Elmore Mills, W. Hooks, W. Smith, M. Wilson and Dr. Richmond.

Ramblers Battle To Make Third Spot in Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

New Haven Ramblers have been standing in fourth position of the American Hockey League's eastern division since Christmas, but over the weekend they threatened to move into contention for a playoff spot.

First place in the loop has already been clinched by Providence, and Hershey Bears have a tranglehold on second. But the battle for third and the final spot is tight between Springfield and New Haven.

Springfield started the weekend fray with a six-point edge over New Haven. Now they have only two as a result of two New Haven wins, one a 3-1 victory against Springfield.

Sunday night, New Haven scored a 3-3 victory over the fifth place Philadelphia Rockets. A goal by Jerry Heffernan in the third period proved to be the winning counter. Bill Juzda and Bill Ramsay tallied for the other New Haven goals, while Harry Holmes, Bill Sarrazin and Krainger accounted for Springfield scores.

Buffalo, with little hope of entering the playoffs because of their poor showing in the western loop, knocked off the Providence-Clare Drakes, league leaders, 4-2. The loss prevented the Bearcats from breaking a second position tie with the Pittsburgh Hornets.

Lead Leads Parade

Joe Lund led the scoring parade with three goals and two assists. Les Douglas adding the other Buffalo tally. Fred Lavrick, and Bob Sollinger connected for Cleveland.

The Indianapolis Capitals, leading the same league, strengthened their lead Saturday night with Pittsburgh with a convincing 7-3 victory over the last-place Hornets in a game at the eastern loop.

Freddie Glover and Nels Podolsky scored two goals apiece to pace the Cap scoring while Paul Goodman, Bill Juzda and Jack Hamilton were the only Washington players who could pierce the Capital defense.

Eddie Brunetean, Eddie Nicholson and Don Metz counted for the other Cap goals.

St. Louis Flyers kept hot on the trail of the rest of the pack last night when they defeated Providence Reds, 7-4. The win leaves St. Louis one point behind Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

Sparked by goalie Red Almas, the Flyers put on a brilliant defensive exhibition. Then had the Reds scoreless for nearly four minutes in the third period while two St. Louis players were in the penalty box.

Billy McComb shot the puck into the Reds net twice while Vic Grieg scored the other St. Louis goal. Eddie Kullman and Roy Lapland notched the Providence goals.

On Saturday night, Pittsburgh defeated Buffalo 5-1. Cleveland won a 5-4 victory against Providence; St. Louis tied Hershey 3-3; and Washington stopped Philadelphia 8-4.

Gus Lesnevich Wants to Meet Freddie Mills

Cliffside Park, N. J., March 7—(AP) — Gus Lesnevich, getting coffee by boxing gubernators, has his mind set on one match—with Freddie Mills of England.

Mills took the light-heavyweight crown from Lesnevich last summer in England.

"I only loaned it to him," Lesnevich said. "Now I want it back."

Sam and Mrs. Lesnevich, Chancellati promoters, talked about a $75,000 purse for a return bout between Lesnevich and Joe Maxim, of Cleveland.

Lesnevich says he's not interested.

"I'll fight Mills if it takes forever, and when I do, I'll take my title back," he said.

Lesnevich has a contract providing a return title fight with Mills.

Mills meets Bruce Woodcock, June 2 in London for the British Empire heavyweight title.

WEEKEND STARS

Bill Durnan, Montreal goalie, who racked up his fourth consecutive shutout as Canadiens blanked Boston 1-0 Sunday night.

Bud Pelle, Detroit forward, who fired four goals as the Red Wings beat Chicago twice.

Dominion Spiel Gets Under Way At Hamilton

Hamilton, March 7 (CP)—The talk today was of brooms and ice, swings or keen, third men and leads as the Dominion's bantling curlers prepared for the first round of the 20th annual Canadian championships.

After a weekend round of social activities the curlers will straighten out the kinks with practice games this morning. First draw is scheduled to start at 2:30 p.m. (EST) this afternoon and then until the final round Thursday night, the curlers will hold the spotlight for devotees of the game across Canada.

Secretary of State Gibson is scheduled to give the 'spiel 'go' official send-off at the Hamilton Thistle Club. Members of the 10 provincial rinks—two from Ontario—will parade to the club from their hotel headquarters.

The draw, announced last night, put the highly-touted Manitoba rink, skipped by Winnipeg's Ken Watson, against New Brunswick, skipped by 64-year-old R. K. Galloway from Newcastle in the initial round. Watson is odds-on favorite to take the trophy to win his third Dominion championship—a feat yet to be accomplished in the history of the 'spiel.

Twogher Tonight

The 44-year-old Winnipeg insurance salesman is expected to have a tougher assignment this night in the second round when he meets the Saskatchewan rink skipped by 40-year-old Harold Horsek of Regina.

A highlight of the day's draw is the afternoon northern Ontario-British Columbia match. Her Stone of Trail, B.C., will defend the title won in 1946 by Fred (Frenchy) D'Amour, a fabulous low-tournamer and the Stone rink is "frenzy" for the title.

It also is the first bie 'spiel for the northern club, one of the most colorful in the field. Skipped by Jimmy Sutherland, all members are miners.

Pete Gilbert, 66-year-old skip of the Prairie rink from Chatham, meets Nova Scotia in the first round and Alberta, another powerful quartet, in the second. The Alberta rink hails from Blackie, a town of 900 population about 50 miles southeast of Calgary.

Skip of the Blackie rink is Theo (Frenchy) D'Amour, a dairy farmer—and "baby" of the quartet.

Quebec's representatives from Thetford, who have never before competed west of Quebec City, meet Saskatchewan in the opening round of the afternoon session. Tonight's draw, Quebec's skip is Rodrigue Cote.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, March 7 (CP)— At the risk of putting the big fat whammy on such a fine fellow as Canadiens' Bill Durnan, it seems timely to mention the feeling abroad these days that Goalie Bill is only a scant distance now from winning the Vezina trophy.

Herschecta Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll notes Durnan "has been terrific of late" having gone prior to weekend games, eight periods without being scored upon.

Dink is hesitant, too, about mentioning this and recalls the last time he wrote an epic on Durnan the roof fell in before it could get into print. New York Rangers belted nine goals past him.

Another Durnan Booster

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson also gives the nod to Durnan as the top pietman of the National Hockey League. Fergie looks askance as Coach Dirk Irvin of Canadiens says he gloomily fears Durnan won't be mentioned by coaches as the all-star goalie of the league.

"Bill has had only one bad game in 33 and this observer can't see how any selector could pick anyone else by Durnan, as standings are not a factor at present," says Fergie.

Here is what Irvin says: "In Toronto the other day, Hap Day of the Leafs declared Harper Mack Rayner of Hamilton was the greatest goalie in hockey, so I suppose he'll vote for Rayner. Other clubs will have other views. New York will go for Rayner and Durnan will get the double-shuffle—I think."

Snooker Players Advised to go To Great Britain

London, March 7 (CP) — A cue for Canadians who play snooker for cash: go east, my boys, go east.

There's no easy gold in British poolhalls. But the man who can put fevery pills to the tune of 100, plus snooker breaks has a future in British.

That's what Conrad Stanbury, formerly of Winnipeg, has found in 74 he potted this year to the Canadian professional snooker championship, and he will bet on it that he'll come from the series.

A few months later he sailed for England. There he found he good he didn't bother to return home to defend his title.

Conrad hasn't seen a British Isle in the 14 years he's lived in England. Each occasion has been a "near miss." Last month he met his latest Waterloo at the hands of Walter Donaldson of the world snooker championships.

Stanbury gloomily discussed with The Canadian Press his loss of form in a critical period.

"I don't get enough match play and I have been trembled by a stiff neck lately," he said. "I get a fair amount of practice when I teach my pupils but it's top competition I need."

The Canadian certainly has enjoyed better form. In 1939 he became the first professional snooker player to make a century-break. Since then he's "lost count" of the number of similar scores, but he does recall notching 20 centuries during a 10-week "top spell" in England.

After more than 20 years' experience round poolroons he's now 55 — Conrad feels there's plenty of time before he decides to hang up his cue for the last time.

The 1943 British championships are one reason to stick around.

"I hear the current Canadian enter for the title," said Stanbury, "and I'm glad. The referee said Demers replied: 'I thought it was an exhibition game.'"

Demers, Stanbury said, probably would be liable to a stiff penalty and any other action deemed necessary by Q.A.H.A. officials. The Sherbrooke team, sailing down second place in the Q.S.H.L., also might be penalized.

Referee Claims Demers Played In Int. Game

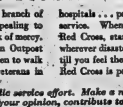
Montreal, March 7. (CP)— Tony Demers, star forward with Sherbrooke Jr. Francs' of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, played last night in an international-league 9 playoff game at Hempstead, Long Island, referee Charlie Denlet of Montreal who handled the game, said on arrival here.

Denlet said a player listed in the Dorjon team's lineups as "B. Taylor" was "definitely Demers." Dorjon won the Vezina-Lesdiguer League playoff game 6-1 over Ots, with B. Taylor scoring two goals for the winners.

Demers led the Q.S.H.L. in scoring for most of the season before being displaced two weeks ago by Ottawa's Eddie Dartnell. Last week he was named winner of the Syna-ol-Vimy Trophy for "gentlemanly play combined with best ability."

Denlet said he did not wish to comment further until he made a report to the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association later today.

Hempstead is 33 miles west of Montreal.



Demers played with Sherbrooke in their two week-end games with Montreal Royals, at Sherbrooke Saturday night and in Montreal this afternoon.

"After the game I asked Demers why he had played with Taylor," said Denlet. The referee said Demers replied: "I thought it was an exhibition game."

Hempstead, Denlet said, probably would be liable to a stiff penalty and any other action deemed necessary by Q.A.H.A. officials. The Sherbrooke team, sailing down second place in the Q.S.H.L., also might be penalized.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The minute I stick my nose inside the city limits of my native town, up bumps a bridge date at me, Lucky me. Think how I would feel if I were a speed cop.

After the audience session somebody whisks me over to their home. The midnight coffee pot and a pack of cards are dug up. Some of the neighbors drop in. And what could be nicer than people.

In a regular bridge game there is no time for detailed study of each bid and lead and discard and play. Or some grouch is always in a hurry to start the next deal.

Not so at these midnight sock affairs. Each is going to have every point explained. It is very complimentary to me. And it gives me a chance to bring out features that are often overlooked.

At a recent party like this came the deal you see below:

NORTH
	♠ None
	♥ J 9 5 4 3
	♦ A K J 3
	♣ J 7 6
WEST	EAST
♠ A K J 6 5 3 2	♠ 10 9 8 7
♥ A	♥ K 8 6
♦ Q 9 4	♦ 10 8 7 6 5
♣ K	♣ 10 9 5
SOUTH
	♠ Q 7 4
	♥ A Q 3
	♦ 10 7 3
	♣ 10 9 3

My partner in west was then dealer. He opened with one spade and the bidding went like this:

West	North	East	South
1 S	2 H	3 H	3 S
4 S	Pass	Pass	Pass

The west four spades was a stretch. It was done deliberately. My partner expected to be defeated at four spades. His hope was to take a trick that was less than he could make at game in hearts.

But south had an additional value not revealed in the only bid he had made here. Instead of doubling four spades, he decided to help buy the contract for his side.

This proved to be a wise decision. Despite our opening, who'll me they made a grand slam in hearts against us. It makes you wonder where all the tricks come from.

Hollywood, March 7 (AP) — Marie Wilson was in a sewer.

She was dressed in a slip for a movie scene when the studio censor stepped in and shook his head. "No," he said, "either bring the chorus girl's clothes back or take off the necklace, much too low."

Production was halted while a prim row of hats was sewed into the slip. Miss Wilson was insulted.

The unbashful blonde from Arkansas City, Kan., has a keen nose to hide her assets, which include an ability to bellow in her own inimitable manner and to be charmingly dumb.

Delayed Success

Marie's delayed success story is one of the most amazing in Hollywood history. Back in 1937, she was picked from a pack of sub-debby star as the girl who witted unwed mother in "Boy Meets Girl" with Jimmy Cagney in and Pat O'Brien. Then what happened?

"Nothing," she relates. "Warner Brothers shoved me into 'B' pictures and forgot about me."

She had rough going after leaving Warners. Finally, in 1942 she landed a stage job. Ken Murray whipped up a vaudeville revue to catch the wartime trade. Marie Wilson was included to give the service-men something to whistle at.

She is still displaying her form to men who have gone to war and come back, but there's a difference now to whistle.

A couple of years ago, Marie began taking part in a breezy soap operetta on the nighttime radio, Ivy Brown Irma. To everyone's surprise, the show has consistently placed high in the Hooper ratings.

Film Version

A film version was inevitable. After much sparring with Producer Hal Wallis, Columbia got Marie is now playing "My Friend Irma" before the cameras and has signed a term contract. Riding the crest again, she spoke seriously of her career.

"I didn't mind that disappointment at Warners," she told one, because I was so young then it didn't matter. But I wouldn't be able to stand that trick again."

Not content with the movie, an air show and ten stage shows weekly, Marie is panning for another film job, "Born Yesterday." She's not concerned about her lack of spare time.

GOOD SUGAR CROP

Durban, South Africa—(CP)—The second largest sugar crop in the history of the industry in Natal has just been reaped. About 200,000 tons of sugar are expected when milling is completed. The record crop of 614,000 tons was reached in 1944.

Sudbury Wolves Beat Swiss Team

Zurich, Switzerland, March 7—(Reuters) Sudbury Wolves Sunday defeated Switzerland 6-2 in an exhibition hockey game here.

Last Friday the Wolves, Canada's representatives in the world amateur hockey championships, downed Switzerland at Basel, 3-1.

Don Stanley, Johnny Kovich, Bud Hancock and Ken Thompson Russell and Barney Hillson scored for the Canadians.

Music was ordered off the ice for 10 minutes by F. W. (Dinty) Moore of Port Colborne, Ont., the Canadian referee, for tripping a Swiss player. It was the only penalty incident.

A crowd of 12,000 saw the game. Canada now has won 18 of the 22 games played between Canada and Switzerland since 1924.

The Wolves led 1-0 at the end of the first period and 4-1 at the end of the second.

Toronto Marlies May be Tough To Knock Off

By The Canadian Press

If Toronto Marlboros keep up their present pace, they'll be a tough club to knock out of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" playoffs.

During the weekend the Dukes went up 3-0 in the best-of-five semi-final series by defeating St. Catharines Teepees 4-3 in Toronto. Next game will be played at St. Catharines tonight.

It was the stellar netminding of little Tommy Lockhart that was the deciding factor for the Marlboros' win Saturday.

Lorne Pirie paced the Dukes with two goals while Ron Hurst and Johnny McKessock nipped singletons. Ron Switzer and Bob Evans tallied for St. Catharines.

Marlies took a 1-0 first period lead when Pirie scored on George Armstrong's goal-mouth pass but the Teepees drew back mid-way through the second period to tie it up when Switzer and Lockhart on a hard shot. Then Turst gave the Dukes the lead again on a solo rush two minutes later.

Early in the third period, McKennedy put Toronto into a four-goal lead but again the Teepees drove back to cut the margin. For some 10 minutes the Teepees had the Dukes hemmed in their own end but Lockhart came to the rescue.

Pirie broke the Teepees' offensive when he sneaked through on a breakaway and drew out net minder Don Campbell for the clinching marker at 18:46.

Feeling ran high between the two clubs. Some 12 penalties were meted out, including one misconduct and four majors for fighting. Tom Buck and Bud Evans got the majors for St. Catharines and Pirie and Murray Greake for Toronto.

Organized Baseball Threatened With Another Suit

New York, March 7 — (AP) — Organized baseball was threatened today with another legal headache — a multi - million dollar one — but an air of mystery surrounded the latest of the sport's spectacular developments.

John L. Flynn, New York lawyer, announced that suits would be filed against the major leagues by several players suspended for jumping to the Mexican League three years ago.

He declined to name the men involved but stated that $5,000,000 was a "low" estimate of the total amount of damages that would be asked.

He said the suits, like the Danny Gardella case which still is pending in the courts, would be based on the contention that baseball deserved the players of a chance to earn a living.

Gardella, pint-sized former outfielder of New York Giants, said baseball leaders for $200,000, contending the game is a monopoly and the reserve clause violates the anti-trust law. A united States court of appeals held last month that Gardella case should be heard.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch yesterday reported 20 players reported ready to file damage suits for an estimated $5,000,000 through Flynn.

The players were listed as pitchers Max Lanier and Fred Martin and infielder Lou Klein of St. Louis Cardinals; outfielder Luis Olmo of Brooklyn Dodgers; pitchers Sal Maglie, Harry Feldman and Ace Adams and infielders Roy Zimmerman and George Hausmann of New York Giants and Myron Hay worth, a catcher, who played with St. Louis Browns and Toledo of the American Association.

Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler, in Sarasota, Fla., had no comment on the matter. Other officials also were silent.

Marmora Midgets Hit 4th Round Take Keswick 9-5

Marmora — In defeating Keswick Midgets by nine goals to five in the home rink on Friday evening, Marmora midgets won the 3rd round of the OMHA playoffs despite their lost to Keswick at Consington and Wednesday evening in a heavy scoring spree in which Keswick defeated them by 13-12. The result of Friday night's game was in the balance until the end, both teams scoring three fine movements and giving the goalies no real rest period. Ash. Henry Sullivan stood out for the losers, with Mantle, Trumble, Brown and Stanley starring for the home team. Well over four hundred witnessed the game and prolonged cheers were accorded the winners.

Marmora: goal, Drummond; defence, Derrah, Nicholson; centre, Brooks; wings, Brown, Mantle; alternates, Jones, Paranuik, Hickey, McNally, Mumby, Knourr, Mumby, C. Trumble, Walker.

Referee, W. Holway, Belleville; linesman, S. Gordon, Deseronto.

Answer to Saturday's Puzzle

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop, and pop said, Yes gods, troubles never come singly. I just fell a twinge of my old lumbago, and here comes Admiral Tricker, and as usual he's probably full of the woes of the world and ready to bend them with statistics. If there's anything I hate, it's statistics, he said.

Well G, pop, if you think he's going to say statistics at you, why dont you say some at him first, before he has a chance? I said, and pop said, By golies I believe I will. I wouldn't be a bit surprised if that's how the statistic hounds keep from being moved down by one another, he said.

Which just then Admiral Tricker stopped going passed, saying to pop, Have you seen the frunt pages of today's papers? The news couldn't be worse! he said.

Statistics dont bare you out in that, Admiral, pop said. According to 19 out of 20 polls taken in 19 out of 20 countries, 19 people out of twenty agree that it will always be possible for the news to be worse until the last atom bomb blows up the earth's last square mile. I don't say they're rite, Admiral. I'm just giving you statistics, he said, and Admiral Tricker said, They talk about one world. Hah, one world, but how many peeces is it going to be in? he said.

Excuse me, was that a mockbig bird that just flew passed? pop said, and Admiral Tricker said, I didn't notice.

That proves statistics are rite again, pop said. Statistics say that only one man out of 48 notices herds, and even that one cant tell a humming bird from a lightning bug unless he happens to be one man in three hundred and forty. So it proberly wasn't a mocking bird, because at a conservative estimate I don't think I'm more than one man in a hundred, he said.

And he quick kept on going while Admiral Tricker was still a scratching his whiskers.

Defendants Make Pleas for Mercy And New Chance

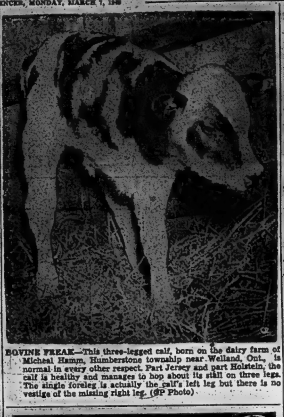
Sofia, March 6 (AP)—Bulgaria's trial of 12 Protestant pastors for espionage and treason ended today after all the defendants made pleas for mercy and a new chance to work for the Communist-controlled government.

Verdicts are expected Monday or Tuesday. The prosecution asked the death penalty for four principal defendants and long prison terms—up to life—for the 11 others. The main targets of both the prosecutors and defence counsel were American capitalism and American church missions, which got the blame for the position in which the defendants find themselves.

Four of the defendants, speaking to the court for themselves, burst into tears in their final pleas.

Seventh Day of Trial

It was the seventh day of the trial, which was marked by long public confessions from all the defendants, obtained while they were secret prisoners of the state security police for three months. All were accused of treason, espionage and, black market moneydealings.



Court authorities made motion pictures of the final pleas.

The longest and most emotional was made by the man regarded as the main defendant, Vassil Georgiev Zlapkov, 46, of the Congregational Church. He was one of those for whom the state asked the hanging penalty.

The other three who cried were Nikola Mikailov Naumov, 60, of the Baptist Church, who also faces a possible death sentence; and two of the lesser defendants —Ladin Ivanov Popov, 35, of the Pentecost Church, and Alexander Georgiev Zaharlev, 65, of the Methodist Church.

Zlapkov, through his tears, told the court:

"During this trial a moving picture of our dark criminal life has been portrayed. If you were a Fascist court, I would not expect from you other than simply a verdict, but since you are a Peoples' court I expect something more than a punishment, a chance to repair my errors."

BOVINE FREAK—This three-legged calf, born on the dairy farm of Michael Hamm, Humberstone township near Welland, Ont., is normal in every other respect. Part Jersey and part Holstein, the calf is healthy and manages to hop about its stall on three legs. The single foreleg is actually the calf's left leg but there is no vestige of the missing right leg. (CP Photo)

PRINCESS GREETS THE BALLERINA

The Duke of Edinburgh stands by as his wife, Princess Elizabeth, wearing crinoline gown of white satin, embroidered with crystals, congratulates Ballerina Moira Shearer after a performance attended by the princess and her husband during their three-day visit to Scotland. The concert was held in their honor.—Central Press Canadian.

104 YEARS OLD—Mrs. Lydia Gordon celebrated her 104th birthday Sunday, March 6, in a log house 150 years old, 15 miles southwest of Brantford, Ont. Despite her age and the fact she is blind, Mrs. Gordon still takes care of her room and does her sewing. The house in which she lives with her grandson, Lorne Malcolm and Mrs. Malcolm, is believed to be one of the oldest in Ontario. (CP Photo)

SPRING COMES IN FORM OF DUTCH TULIPS

Spring comes to Winston Churchill in the form of a great bunch of tulips presented to him by the burgomaster at left when he spoke at an open-air meeting in Brussels in support of the European union. Communist hecklers attempted to break up the meeting, but Winston refused to be side-tracked. Sixty arrests were made by Belgian police. Two of the arrested persons were senators. All were released later.—Central Press Canadian.

LIFE GETS TEDIOUS—Storm-weary railroad workers are silhouetted against a southern Manitoba skyline as they trudge along a rail be-hidden by heavy snow. The men have been fighting the cold wave with shovels and snowplows for most of the winter to maintain rail contact with isolated towns. Some localities have been cut off for weeks from all communication. (CP Photo)

OWES LIFE TO DOG—Mrs. Thomas Mahar, a survivor of a pre-dawn fire which claimed the lives of eight people in a Halifax tenement, Thursday, credits her dog "Rover" with saving her life. "I was asleep and my dog barked until I awakened," Mrs. Mahar said. She got up to find her room filled with smoke and managed to escape in her night clothes. Rover is shown here receiving a biscuit from Mrs. Mahar. (CP Photo)

Col. L.E. Jones Dies, Commanded 18th Batt. In First World War

Guelph, March 7 (CP) — Colonel L. E. Jones, C.M.G., D.S.O., retired Guelph industrialist and prominent military figure in western Ontario for many years, died suddenly Saturday.

A former vice-president and manager of the Armco Drainage and Metal Products, Limited, Colonel Jones served for three years on the Guelph City Council. He was president of the Guelph Red Cross Society for nine years and a member of the Kenneth Airport Planning Commission.

During the First World War, Colonel Jones commanded the 18th Battalion.

NEW BOMBER COACH! — Bob Masterson, coach of the University of Toronto intercollegiate champion rugby team, is reported considering an offer to become coach of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Western Canada Interprovincial Rugby-Football Union. Masterson, former U.S. pro football star, flew to Winnipeg to discuss his appointment with club officials. A decision is expected when the University of Toronto athletic board meets Tuesday. (CP Photo).

STRIKES "LAYERS OF GLITTERING STUFF"

George Shore, formerly of Hamilton, and now living at Blackbank, Mulmur township, Ont., was digging a well in the cellar of his home when he suddenly struck "layers of glittering stuff." His wife, three children and even the neighbors, have become excited about the mystery ore. Shore was going to sell his property but has changed his mind. Recent offers for property in Blackbank have been considerably higher than the asking price of a month ago. "I'm afraid to dream for fear it will blow up" is the attitude Shore takes.—Central Press Canadian.

Heads of Societies In Pakistan Protest Cardinal's Sentence

Karachi, Pakistan, March 7 — (AP) — A resolution protesting the life sentence of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty of Hungary was adopted Sunday by heads of Hindu, Moslem, Parsee and Roman Catholic societies here. The meeting conveyed the resolution to the Pakistan government for communication to the government of Hungary.

ROME REDS DECRY ATLANTIC PACT

Protesting the participation of Italy in the Atlantic defence pact and the European Union, Communist Party Speaker Angelo Boldrini (top right), former Partisan leader in the Romagna area, addresses several thousand demodstrators (below) in Rome. The crowd, made up largely of left-wing Partisans, also protested against "persecution of the Partisan movement" by the government. Denmark and Norway have decided to join talks for a North Atlantic defence alliance. Danish Communists condemned the pact and voiced solidarity with Russia.—Central Press Canadian.

Gasoline Rationing-Where? In Buenos Aires

Buenos Aires, March 7 (AP)—Gasoline rationing went into effect in Buenos Aires and Buenos Aires province today. The government petroleum company said private automobiles will be limited to 30 litres (7.92 gallons) weekly. Taxis may buy 60 litres (15.85 gallons) daily and buses 80 litres (21.54 gallons) daily. Rationing was imposed because of a shortage of dollars.

DROP MUTINY CHARGES

Mombasa — (CP) — Mutiny charges against 19 Mauritian soldiers in the Royal Pioneer Corps were dropped at general court-martial here. The men were acquitted.

Territorials Complete 'Exercise Pronto'

London, March 7 — (Reuters)—British Territorial (Auxiliary) soldiers from all over the west country and parts of southern England returned home Sunday night from "exercise pronto," the biggest operation organized by the Territorial army since the war. The exercise took place on a big estate at Dawlish, in Devonshire. It was designed to test new signal and communication technique.

EARTHBOUND GULL

Blanche, N.S. — (CP) — Reuben Smith and Glen Perry local fishermen, while on the job found a gull unable to fly, a mile and a half from shore. Investigation showed it had a muskrat trap attached to its leg.

TYPICAL OF BOOMING EDMONTON

This new oil refinery in Edmonton, Alta., costing $8,000,000, stands as a tribute to fast-growing, booming city which today is the hottest oil centre on the continent. Two other large refineries are planned to serve the area. Oilmen are pouring millions every month into search for oil on the broad Edmonton plains. — Central Press Canadian.

Bill to Shield U.S. Agents Will Be Presented

Washington, March 7. (AP)—A long-awaited bill to shield U.S. intelligence agents and give them some new powers drawn up by a committee headed by Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio) was introduced in the House of Representatives today in almost complete secrecy.

Committee leaders said it had to be that way. They arranged for strict limits on debate, with no opportunity for amendments from the floor and little time to inquire into its provisions.

Chairman Carl Vinson (Dem., Ga.) of the Armed Services Committee said no details will be explained to Congress.

The Bill would give the Central Intelligence Agency permanent statutory authority for the things it now does under orders from emergency powers of the president.

The agency, with the approval of the attorney-General, would have authority to bring up to 100 aliens into the United States every year in return for information from them.

The Bill also would authorize the C.I.A. to assign its agent for instruction, research or training to domestic or foreign institutions, regardless of whether they are public or privately operated.

Three other military Bills also were on the House schedule for action today or tomorrow.

They would:

1. Create the office of an undersecretary of defense, bringing the total administrative establishment of a $161,000,000 radar net to guard against surprise attack by bombers. Built in co-operation with Canada, a similar warning screen being constructed by the Canadian government.

2. Put the United States Air Force to work building a 3,000-mile proving ground for guided missiles. Cost of the range, with its base at Patrick Air Force Base, Cocoa, Florida, the continental United States has been estimated at $200,000,000.

Only Two Stores Involved in Sale Of Wine to Minors

Toronto, March 7. (CP)—The Ontario Liquor Control Board said Saturday only two Toronto wine stores were involved in recent reports of sale of liquor to minors.

The Board said in a statement it had investigated all retail outlets in Toronto following reports that teen-aged boys bought wine in retail stores in the city.

It said four clerks may be prosecuted.

Wine, beer and liquor salesmen were repeatedly instructed to demand proof of age when there was any doubt at the age of a customer, the Board said.

"As a result of the Board's investigation it was established that only two wine stores were involved and that there were four clerks who had allegedly supplied wine to minors," the statement said.

"These clerks were immediately suspended pending the outcome of the matter."

Daily Graphic Criticizes Govt. On Union Bill

London, March 7 (Reuters) — The Daily Graphic today criticizes the government for its handling of Newfoundland's future.

"Thousands of Newfoundlanders are arguing Britain of having sold them to Canada," the paper says. "Opinion is split wide open on the vexed question of union with Canada.

"In Britain a small band of people led by Sir Herbert have asked that Britain should first return responsible self-government to the island in accordance with the promise made 16 years ago.

"This done, they say, Newfoundland's future course could be decided constitutionally by her own parliament.

"That plan the government will not accept.

"What is important is the method by which Whitehall deals with our oldest colony.

"Minorities have always had a voice in the empire. A minority is Newfoundland of 70,000 certainly deserves that right."

RIGHT FOOT—WRONG PEDAL

Wallington, Surrey, England — (CP) — A motorist put his foot on the wrong pedal. The car mounted a footpath, crashed through a wooden fence, crossed a vegetable garden, knocked down a brick wall, put a street fish lamp out of action and came out on the next road. The driver, a novice, was unhurt.

MADOC

Day of Prayer

Madoc — On Friday afternoon a splendid representation of the churches in Madoc village attended the World's Day of Prayer service held in the Holiness Movement Church.

Mrs. Bowen of the Holiness Movement Church, took charge of the service, with Miss Vankleek of St. Peter's Presbyterian, Mrs. Poulter of Trinity United, Mrs. Wager of the Standard Church and Mrs. Smith of the Anglican Church assisted by members of the several churches taking part in the program throughout the service. Mrs. J. Hulin and Mrs. Jack Smith, sang a duet "The Man of Galilee", which effected very appropriately with the service. The address on the "Significance of the Day of Prayer" and "What Your Money Does" was given by Mrs. Bowen.

St. Peter's W.M.S.

St. Peter's W.M.S. held their March meeting at the home of Mrs. Sam Rollins on Thursday afternoon with an attendance of twenty. A Bible reading on the "Parable of the Prodigal Son" was given.

During the business period, a letter was read from the Presbyterial treasurer. Arrangements were made for the Day of Prayer and the Mission Band meeting to be held in the church early in March; when the members will present a pageant and be presented with the banner.

Mrs. Reslip gave a very interesting account of the religions of China. Mrs. Allan Johnson gave a sketch on "The Life of Robert Morrison". The geography and history of Formosa was then given, which proved very interesting. After an inspiring hour of missionary study Mrs. Curry assisted the hostess in serving afternoon tea.

Personals

Miss Marion Love spent the weekend with Mrs. John Moore, Queensboro.

Mrs. Ross Mureson of Pickering, Mrs. Johnson of Owen Sound and Mr. Wishart McGhee of Duluth, have been spending the past week in Madoc, being called home on account of the serious illness of their father, Mr. Robert McGhee.

Community Theatre In Every Big Town Ideal — Speaight

By GEORGE HEINTZELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Vancouver, March 7. (CP) — The dream of every Canadian community is shared by England's eminent drama critic, Robert Speaight.

"What this country needs," Mr. Speaight said in an interview, "is a community theatre in every big town—built and supported with the help of the community or possibly the provinces. That's the ideal to aim at."

Mr. Speaight, (his name rhymes with hate), greying, 42-year-old actor, author and critic, discussed problems of Canadian drama.

Informally dressed in a wrinkled, brown hound's tooth jacket with a frayed left elbow in contrast to his adjudicator's impeccable evening dress— Mr. Speaight decried Canada's dearth of legitimate theatre, and thought communities should begin building proper playhouses.

The Canadian theatre—particularly Canadian drama—"has a long way to go. It is in its infancy." But at the same time, native drama, at its best, "is extremely good."

"What I think is needed is a community theatre in every big town where a mainly professional company would be assured of regular popular support in a varied program of plays."

Two Teen-Agers are Refused as Catchers

Sudbury, March 7 (CP) — Two young aspirants to the position of dogcatcher were turned down by city council recently when it was learned they were in their teens. Denton Gagne and Ed Joseph put in a joint tender—the only one—and council decided to wait for more tenders. The jog pays 75 cents per dog.

Pastor Fails to Finish Marriage Service, Collapse and Dies

Los Angeles, March 7 (AP) — "I now pronounce you . . ."—but Rev. Thomas Harrell, 68, never finished the final words of a marriage ceremony he was performing. He collapsed and died as the couple knelt before the altar.

Universal Master.

Another minister completed the ceremony.

SWEDEN SANCTUARY

Stockholm — (CP) — The number of foreigners in Sweden increased in 1948 more than during any other post-war year. At the new year there were about 167,000 compared with 150,000 a year earlier.

Penman Strike In Paris Starts Eighth Week

Paris, Ont., March 7 (CP) — As the seventh week of the Penman Textile Workers' strike drew to a close here today, all was quiet on the strike scene, and no new developments were reported by either company or union.

On Saturday Mrs. Phyllis Thomson, charged Mrs. Mary Crewson with common assault, as the result of a picket line incident several days ago. The incident occurred while Mrs. Crewson, a non-striking Penman employee, was going in to work. Mrs. Crewson also charged Mrs. Thomson with using abusive language.

Tomorrow interest of the strike-wearing town will be centred on the courtroom where Magistrate Gillen will hear charges against several striking leaders and pickets.

Val Bjarnason, Ontario director of The United Textile Workers' of America (A.F. of L.) William E. Stewart and Mrs. Helen Muller, union organizer, and Miss Helen Murphy, secretary treasurer of Local 153, will appear Tuesday morning on a joint charge of being members of an unlawful assembly. They were arrested following a picket line demonstration on February 17.

Almost deserted fishermen's parades in Lake Simcoe these days. The usual large crowds of ice-fishermen from the city have apparently been mislaid by warm weather. Residents say the ice has always been more than thick enough to support a car since Christmas. — Al. Duco's point yesterday, emp cabins are scattered as far as eye can see.—Globe and Mail.

First ship out of winter quarters at Sarnia on Saturday was the Imperial Simcoe and the Imperial Cornwall (above) was first to moor cargo. The Cornwall is moving oil to storage a few miles downstream, but still within Sarnia's port limits, so no silk hats will be awarded for Saturday's movement — one of the earliest in the memory of port officials. Tanker movements to Georgian Bay and Lake Huron ports are expected to start about March 10. —Jarrett.

Car Swerving to Avoid Dog Hits Light Pole, Blackouts 1,000 Homes

Oshawa, March 7 (CP)—More than 1,000 homes in east Whitby township were plunged into darkness during the weekend when a car swerved to avoid a dog and knocked down a hydro pole. Thomas G. Robinson of Oshawa, driver of the car was uninjured. The lights were off for an hour.

BONY DISCOVERY

Kingston — (CP) — Kingston township's 102-year-old hall had a skeleton underneath it, workmen discovered on beginning renovations. Old flooring was ripped out to be replaced with concrete reinforcements and new flooring. A dog crawled in years ago and died.

MARMORA

St. Paul's, St. Andrew's Unite to Keep Day of Prayer

Marmora—Ladies of the congregations of St. Paul's Anglican Church and St. Andrew's United Church joined in the World's Day of Prayer service at St. Paul's Church on Friday afternoon, the attendance was the best for some years. The theme of worship was "The Lord is the Keeper."

Mrs. J. M. Brownlie took the call to prayer and the call to worship, was taken by Mrs. C. D. Young. This was followed by the periods of the service which was led by various members of both congregations.

Guest Speaker

Miss Coulis of the North Hastings Mission of the United Church in the Maynooth district, as the guest speaker, gave an address on running the race that is set before us. The collection which was in aid of the Inter Church Council of Canada was taken by Mrs. J. W. Hickey and Mrs. G. Jarvis.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Ellis and daughter Shirley of Oshawa, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. Vanvolkenburg.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Sharpe, and Rae, of Stirling, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. M. Vanvolkenburg.

Born on Thursday, March 3, 1940, to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Spry, a son.

Midweek Lenten services are being conducted at St. Paul's on Wednesday evening by the Ven. Rural Dean J. M. Brownlie.

Mrs. R. G. Winters, of Sutton, is the guest of Mrs. E. Hewitt, for a few days.

New Garage

The new garage recently erected by Mr. Arnold Walker on No. 14 highway near the south end of the village is now open for business and is a very modern garage in every respect.

The building is of cement block construction and is a one-storey structure built on a square design. There is room for ten cars. The office is a large well lighted room which when completed should be very attractive. There is a steam heating plant and flourescent lighting.

At the present time Mr. Walker has not put in any gasoline pumps as he is still operative the Imperial Oil Station at the intersection of No. 7 and 14 highways, but he expects to have the pumps installed at an early date.

14-YEAR-OLD BOY STEERS RUNAWAY BUS TO SAFETY

WINS DOW AWARD

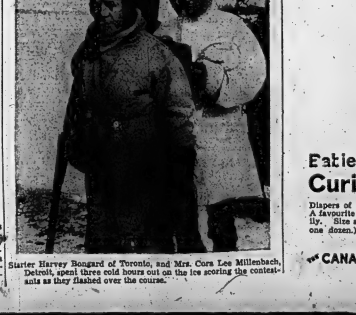
DONALD USENIK OF PORT ARTHUR, ONT. guides vehicle through traffic

A PASSENGER bus had sailed on a grade. While the driver was pleading, the emergency brake gave way and the bus started rolling down the street. 14-year-old Donald Usenik tried the foot brake but couldn't make it work. As none of the male passengers offered to help, Donald grabbed the wheel and started to steer.

After some narrow escapes in heavy traffic, the youngster swung the bus around a corner onto an incline. His courage won him The Dow Award for bravery.

1. As the bus started to roll down the busy main street, Donald ran to the front and tried to work the foot brake. It failed and he grasped the wheel.

2. Several times, as the speed of the bus increased, Donald had to swerve suddenly — once narrowly missing a line of parked taxis.



3. The gallant boy, who had had no driving experience, finally managed to bring the bus to a halt on a slight upgrade. No one was hurt.

Odom Sets Record Of 5,000 Miles For Non-Stop Flight

Sets Light Plane Down 36 Hours Out of Honolulu

Peterboro, N.J., March 8 — (AP)— Big Bill Odom soared in from Honolulu shortly after noon today setting a 5,000-mile world's non-stop record for light planes.

The 29-year-old former Second World War ferry pilot, already holder of the world-circling speed record, touched down his tiny monoplane at this North Jersey airport at 1:06 p.m. EST, 36 hours and one minute after leaving Honolulu.

The exact mileage of his long distance hop awaits an official check of his sealed instruments, but flight personnel estimated it between 4,999 and 5,010.

The plane was followed by an ambulance and two fire trucks.

Hundreds of persons immediately swarmed around the plane as Odom brought it to a stop at 1250 p.m.

Had One Sad Moment

Odom's first comment:

"I feel just like a business man coming home on a hazy trip. The only trouble I had was over the Rocky Mountains, where I had some bad weather."

"Once I let my tank go dry while I was watching a recording here in the plane, and I found my engine went dead.

The plane dropped down through clouds and I had a hellava time finding it and getting again."

The red and silver plane was surrounded quickly by the millionaire sportsman's office at the field to see the flier complete his record-smashing flight.

Men Hairdressers Make Job Lifework

Toronto, March 8 (CP)— Mrs. Lois Markle here has found out why men make better hairdressers than women. Head of the Hairdressing and Beauty Culture at Danforth Technical Institute here, she says the "young men who take up the trade intend to make it their life's work, and realize they've got to be good because it means their wife and butter - whereas girls hope to get married."

THREE GIVEN BAIL

Cornwall, March 8 (CP) — Charged with conspiracy to commit bribery, three Kingston men Monday were released on chinkset bail of $1,000 each and were ordered to appear for trial next June at the general sessions of the peace.

The accused, John Graham, 21, George Parker, 23, and Russell Parker, 23, were scheduled stand trial at the Supreme Court assizes.

They are to have obtained $625 from a district resident by threatening to involve him in a divorce action brought by Smyth against his wife, Marjorie Smyth.

One Killed, Four Injured in Car Collision

Sylacauga, Ala., March 8 (AP) — One woman was killed and four other persons injured, yesterday in an automobile accident on the Sylacauga - Talladega highway.

Mrs. Emma Mitchell, Detroit, Mich., was dead on arrival at a hospital here.

The other injured, all in hospital here, are:

Mrs. Lucy W. Logie (161 Howland Ave.), Toronto.

Mrs. M. Stone, Hanover, Ont., condition serious

Mrs. J. C. Ruswurm, Hanover, Ont.

Gth Curtis, Sylacauga, condition serious.

The automobile in which the four women were riding was in collision with another car.

Molotov Will Mark His 59th Birthday

By EDDIE GILMORE

Moscow, March 8 (AP)—V. M. Molotov, closest associate of Prime Minister Stalin, will be 59 years old Wednesday.

The authority of the Soviet Statesman, who succeeded as Foreign Minister by Andrei Y. Vishinsky last Saturday, has not lessened. He remains vice-chairman of the Council of Ministers Deputy Premier (Stalin) and a high ranking member of the policy-making politburo of the Communist party.

Says He Stole And Spent Money Betting and Drinking

Toronto, March 8 (CP)— Income tax collector Rose Robertson, 28, told police Monday night that he stole $740 from the government and spent the money on gambling and drinking.

With only 70 cents in his pocket, he telephoned a police station from a downtown beverage room and asked to have an officer sent to see him. After police heard his story, they arrested him on charge of theft.

FOUR ACCUSED PASTORS GIVEN LIFE SENTENCES

Bulgarian Court Also Fines Each $3,340

Sofia, March 8 —(CP) — The four chief accused in the trial of 15 Bulgarian Protestant ministers accused of espionage today were sentenced to life imprisonment.

They were: Vassil Georgiev Zlapkov, 48-year-old religious representative of the United Evangelical Churches in Bulgaria; Yanko Nikolo Ivanov, 48, Supreme Supervisor of the Methodist Church; Nikola Mihailov Nasmov, 49, president of the Supreme Council of the United Evangelical Churches and secretary of the Baptist Church Council; and Georgi Nikolov Chernev, 48, chief of the Adventist Evangelical Council.

They were also each fined 1,000,000 leva ($3,340).

The accused were convicted of having collected and given military and economic information to a foreign power.

The courtroom was more crowded than at any time during the trial started. Photographers worked furiously as the sentences were read by the president of the court.

Property belonging to these four was also confiscated.

Claim They Are Satisfied

The ministers, called "squealing little rats" by a government press department paper, refused to appeal the sentences while the three judges announced the sentences. All the defendants declared they are satisfied with the fairness of the trial proceedings.

Zlapkov broke into tears at the conclusion of the judges' reading of verdicts.

"I am satisfied. I promise to work while all my strength lasts to build the new man in myself and to help in the construction of socialism," he said.

Zlapkov, religious representative of the United Evangelical Churches in Bulgaria, also repudiated his past as being illegally trying to incite against the government and of five years of spreading false rumors.

Observers in Court

British and American observers were in the packed court when the sentences were read.

Presiding Judge Constantine Undjiev, who in 1947 sentenced to death Dr. Georgi Dimitrov's Nikola Petkov, told the defendants as he pronounced sentence:

"You have committed the worst crimes against humanity — not only against the laws of any country but against the laws of God. You will determine your progress toward peace."

Life term sentences in Bulgaria generally last only about 15 years, with time off in gratitude for good behavior and satisfactory work. Many of the prisoners are given work according to their intellectual and physical abilities. For instance, for two days work in prison, a prisoner is credited with three days time served.

East-West War Would Find Sweden Ultimately Fighting With Allies

(Editor's note: The following article, one of a series, describes Sweden's uneasy position as a buffer between Russia and the western world.)

By WILLIAM ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Stockholm, March 8 (CP)—The Swedes want peace and three cheerings to keep everybody happy — themselves, the east and the west.

"Neutrality" describes their foreign policy no longer. They want a substitute according to allies to friends and those who might one day be enemies.

An east-west war ultimately would find Sweden fighting alongside the western allies. But although she is traditionally antiRussian, Sweden, like her neighbors, she has not sufficiently dropped 133 years' "neutral" thinking to envisage outright allegiance with the west.

If she did, Swedes say, tension would increase in the north, Finland might be occupied by Russia and the chances of conflict in Scandinavia would be increased.

The Swedes want only to strengthen their defences but fear commitments that may antagonize Russia. Horror of war, dread of Russian occupation and the principle that "every day saved from war is a day gained" are given as reasons for staying out of a North Atlantic alliance.

Political leaders say that constitutional difficulties in the United States might prevent Finland even if she were a North Atlantic partner from receiving armed aid immediately if attacked.

"If we commit ourselves, we expect a pledge to aid — armaments in peace and armed help when war — not gold in time of war, not just the promise of liberation at the end of it."

The Swedes hardly favor a Scandinavian alliance and have been unhappy over Norway's apparent decision to join the pact.

They contend that a regional pact in Scandinavia would be out of war since Scandinavian bases would not be promised to the west or Russia.

Lone Swedish apostle of the Atlantic pact is Professor Herbert Tingsten, editor of the largest Swedish newspaper, Dagens Nyheter of Stockholm. He contends that Sweden's chances of keeping out of another war are so negligible that they would not be changed by membership.

Believed Religious Freedom Existed in Bulgaria, Pastors Now Sentenced to "Life"

Last summer George Forster, a Canadian Press staff writer, made a personal trip to a number of Balkan countries. While in Bulgaria he met a number of churchmen, who later were charged with offences against the Communist government there. In the following story he relates what they told him and lists possible reasons for Communist action against the churches.

By GEORGE FORSTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 8 — (CP) — Last July, Rev. Vassil Zlapkov told me there was more religious freedom under Bulgaria's Communist government than under the pre-war monarchy.

He told me, too, he believed that the Communists would raise the standards of living of Bulgaria's poverty-stricken peasants.

In short, he believed that Communism was a good thing.

Zlapkov, head of the Bulgarian Evangelical Church, was one of 15 protestant clergymen on trial since Feb. 26 on charges of espionage, espionage and black-market currency operations.

Dimitar Ivanov and Rev. Yanko Ivanov, head of the Bulgarian Methodist Church, was another defendant, while in Bulgaria on a holiday trip. Three months later, action that they both would be in jail within three months.

Sentences Given

They were both sentenced today to life imprisonment.

Zlapkov's and American-educated said relations between his church and the Communists were friendly. The government had given him permission to build a church when it was bombed in an air raid. The mayor of Sofia, Prime Minister Georgei Dimitrov, the country's No. 1 Communist, both went to the dedication.

Before the war he said, the Russian Orthodox Church was for the denomination in the country, was supported by the monarchy. He told of the close relative interference with the religious activities of protestant churches.

He said this ended when the Communists took over.

Zlapkov admitted that Bulgaria was a dictatorship of the Soviet Union but he said he was not a communist.

Were Puzzled on Failure

Both Zlapkov and Ivanov were puzzled about the future. But they told me there was a new optimism and a new spirit among their congregations. They attended services in both their churches. The halls were full a couple of all ages, but even a foreigner could see their devotedness and their enthusiasm.

At the same time, Dimitar Iliev, Minister of Education and religious Affairs in the Communist government, told me that Bulgaria was grateful for the financial assistance Western churches had given the hard-hit Bulgarian congregations. He told them — and since repeated —that there was absolute freedom of religion in the country.

The Communists now charge that the relief sent Bulgarian churchmen was payment for espionage by the Bulgarian ministers. Zlapkov said that the money they received was used at the discretion of foreign churchmen had repayed the information to their governments.

The charges against the churchmen indicate that the Communists, however, don't believe in the charges.

But why did the communists arrest Zlapkov?

The communists could get him out of the country by organized religion in Bulgaria.

2. Trying to remove the favorable impression western churches would create among Bulgarians when they visited Bulgarian churches.

3. Unable to understand that people in western Europe and the United States could be sincerely friendly to others without profiting and hardship behind the iron curtain.

4. That "People's Democracies" of Eastern Europe are suspicious of anything that is not Communist. Zlapkov said he believed that the rest of the world is plotting against them, but this is untrue. He said, they cannot understand how a methodist minister from North Carolina could want to help a methodist minister in Bulgaria.

Zlapkov's only relief going to Bulgaria is from Western churches. Some of the money collected in the relief has been diverted to the relief. Communist propaganda says that this is another suggestion that the capitalist west is giving money to the communist east with strings attached.

Pembroke Jeweller and Wife Suicide Belief of Police, Bodies Found in Bedroom

Pembroke, March 8 (CP) — The case of Pembroke's tax-opposing jeweller came to a dramatic end Monday when George J. Simpson and his wife were found shot to death in their bedroom apartment here. Police said it was double suicide.

Simpson, 48, who had staged a one-man battle with the Revenue Department since he was elected to town council here last November, was found dead in bed with his wife, Marjorie, shortly after noon.

Both had been shot through the head by an automatic rifle. The rifle Simpson still clutched when discovered about 12 hours after the shooting, which police said took place about midnight Sunday night. The rifle, reported purchased last fall, still had a price tag attached.

Double Suicide

Police Chief Dan Carnegie said he was "quite sure" it was a "double suicide" and produced a note found in the couple's apartment, scrawled in a key to Simpson's tax-free store. It read:

"Thanks to those who have befriended us. May those I have hurt forgive me. Please pray that God bless the righteous."

Coroner J. A. McKercher of Cobden said the suicide weapon was found in the hands of Simpson. The weapon apparently had held four bullets. One empty shell was found on the bedroom floor. Another empty shell plus the two unused bullets were found in the rifle.

A bullet was lodged in the right temple of his wife. Simpson's body was found stretched across the bed. The coroner said there were no indications that the couple had tried to commit suicide before.

Former Minister

Simpson, a former Baptist preacher who came to Pembroke several years ago, recently paid heavy fines to the Revenue Department for failure to collect the federal 25 per cent tax on his merchandise.

Throughout the trials in Debrecen, Hungary, of charges brought by the department, he protested that he was being taxed, saying that he refused to be an "unpaid tax collector for the federal government."

At the same time, windows in his popular shop were plastered with signs advertising tax-free goods. Simpson also was said to sell until the final sentence was brought down early last month, a sign reading "Save $100 now" and ordering him to pay the government that amount in taxes.

Since then, he had abandoned the tax-free sign, Chief Constable Vernon C. Munson, assistant deputy revenue minister, said the day after the bodies had been paid up "within a few dollars".

No Post Mortem

Coroner McKercher said it was unlikely a post-mortem would be held. His estimate that the couple had been dead about 12 hours preceding the report by Mrs. James Craig, wife of a local lawyer, who occupies the same building, that she heard a "bang" about midnight last night.

Mrs. J. C. Smith, the Simpson's physician, said both Mr. and Mrs. Simpson had been under a strain bordering on nervous breakdown. Mrs. Smith said Mrs. Simpson had been sick in bed for days.

Both were dressed in night attire when discovered by Mrs. Harold Richardson, who lives in the same building.

A native of Windsor, Simpson started his jewelry business here early in 1942, his first store being part of a frame building he and his wife lived on the fringe of the town's business district.

Later he built a brick steel store and later bought the property, opening a remodelled store late last November after extensive advertising of his tax-free policy which brought him a land-office business. He employed nine clerks in the new store and charged no tax on his merchandise from the time it opened until his assistance was handed down a month ago. He then reversed his policy.

NON-CONFIDENCE MOTION MAY STIR HOUSE MEMBERS

Throne Speech Debate Grows More Repetitious

Ottawa, March 8 (CP)—Debate on the speech from the Throne, growing more and more repetitious as it moves into its fourth week, may be interrupted long enough today to allow the Conservatives to vote on a motion of non-confidence in the government sponsored by the C.C.F. party.

More than 120 members of approximately half of the chamber's 248 members have spoken in the debate, traditionally long in preelection sessions.

The motion asked that the government be voted out of office because of failure to provide for orderly marketing of natural products, for failure to end discrimination in foodstuffs and for failure to provide for National Health Insurance.

There were no sensational developments yesterday as backbenchers kept the debate moving along at a fairly brisk clip.

Hon. Colin Cameron (CCF—Regina City) by-passed the usual demands for tax reductions and urged the government to adopt policy to urge that the Federal authority "assume a plan" providing Canadians with training in skills, arts, hobbies and crafts.

He attributed the increasing number of broken homes, nervous breakdowns among Canadians, as well as the emphasis placed on game-winning feats in international sport, to lack of means of filling leisure hours. He suggested that the country's national parks be made the playgrounds of the people.

Douglas Ross (PC—Toronto St. Paul's) devoted his speech almost entirely to criticism of the CBC, which described as a "glaring example of bureaucracy" in Canada.

Other Speakers Heard

Other speakers in the debate included D. King Hazen (PC-St. John-Albert), Ralph Maybank, (L-Winnipeg South Centre), and Thoy Hynka (SC-Vegreville).

Hospital Costs Much too High Says Alderman

Kitchener, March 8 (CP)—Alderman R. O. Bowlby told city council last night that some sections of the Kitchener-Waterloo Hospital cost from 85 to 155 per cent more than "comparable services" in other hospitals.

He said charges on hospital bills brought to his attention indicated "there must be something wrong in the figuring" and they brought to mind "something approaching fraud."

Hospital Administrator Gordon Friesen said the alderman had brought up "a controversial and contentious problem" in council for political purposes and "it should have been brought to the board where he'd been a chance to go into the matter" with him.

Old-Timers Ponder if Margarine To Bring Back Border Smuggling

Ottawa, March 8 — (CP) — The old-timers — on both sides of the Ontario-Quebec boundary today took a short snort of bootch and meditated about margarine.

Margarine, outlawed at this time has come again when there are things precious enough to smuggle across the Ottawa River.

Some 25 years ago there was — liquor. It was a one-way traffic then with Quebec as the source in the midst of prohibition. Nowadays, it may be margarine and the traffic will be reversed.

Quebec provincial police predict the smuggling will be under, joined at the capital by three busway bridges, will be the scene of police investigations for "contraband" oleo.

In Quebec, the Legislative Assembly has passed a bill banning the manufacture, sale and importation of margarine.

However, the legislation still must go through the legislative council, Quebec's Upper Chamber, and receive the sanction of the Lieutenant - Governor. Even then the provincial cabinet has the final judicial word.

Despite the legislative burdles Quebec provincial police are uneasy lump — Quebec provincial police in Hull are preparing for the worst. Inspector Lucien Lessard says:

"Every Hull housewife is a potential smuggler, and every customs car, bus and motor car will have to be searched to enforce the oleo ban."

Street cars on the Ottawa cross two of the bridges — the Interprovincial and Interprovincial — while the third, the Champlain bridge, on the western outskirts of the city, is now built for through automobile traffic.

In Quebec, however, Loan Lanthier, head of the provincial police, described Hull's looking ahead plans as a "little premature." The Quebec margarine bill, he added, has not yet been approved.

Some Other Foods Follow Butter In Price Decline

Flour, Certain Canned, Frozen Foods Affected

Toronto, March 8 (CP)— While butter prices have dropped two cents since Saturday, certain frozen foods, flour and some canned goods are also are on the way down.

Retailing through the winter at 73-74 cents, butter has dropped as much as two cents since Saturday. In the last week a seven-pound bag of flour dropped from 53 cents to 49 cents. Canned tomatoes and peas have also decreased about three cents, now selling at 18 cents.

Processing has dropped from 32 to 30 cents a pound, while lard is retailing at 20-21 cents compared with 25 cents a few weeks ago.

Frozen green peas were two to three cents less than a few weeks ago, with a similar drop recorded in frozen fruits.

Retailers throughout the city predicted meat and soup products would be selling for less shortly, as the majority of the retailers thought meat prices would remain stable.

Almost all storekeepers agree that the decreased butter prices could be traced to competition from margarine sales.

Orphanage Children Are Excited at Fire

Missing Puppy Saved

Charlotte, N.C., March 8 (AP)— Thirty-two sleepy tots padded calmly out of a smoke-filled orphanage before dawn Monday. Then excitement started outside when they found their pet puppy was missing.

Mrs. Blanche Wallis, home director, rushed back into the building and rescued the pup. That was the first excitement.

The source of the smoke, a defective mattress, was next dealt with, and everyone went happily back to bed.

Fluid Milk Sales Jump in Ontario

Toronto, March 8. (CP)—Ontario fluid milk sales in December jumped 1,700,000 quarts over sales in the corresponding month in 1947. The monthly dairy report of Ontario Department of Agriculture says commercial dairies sold 36,291,700 quarts of fluid milk at an average price of 16.3 cents a quart as against 34,579,600 at 16.3 cents a quart in December, 1947. The increase was 4.7 per cent.

OPERATING LOSS DECLARED

Toronto, March 8 — (CP) — The Ontario Stockyards said it had a net operating loss of $1,217 in 1948, according to a report tabled Monday in the Ontario legislature. The previous year the administrative problem" in council for political purposes and "it should have been brought to the board where he'd been a chance to go into the matter" with him.

ONTARIO BUDGET Critics to Have Their Innings

Expected to Charge Greater Surplus Should Have Been Shown

Toronto, March 8 (CP)—Opposition financial critics will have their day in the Ontario Legislature today as they take provincial treasurer Frost's budget apart nicely by nickel.

Leslie Wismer (CCF-Riverdale) will present his party's view and John Sloan, (PC-Ontario North) will speak for the Liberals. A. A. MacLeod (Toronto-Bellwoods) will represent the two-man Labor-Progressive party.

Other speakers are expected to charge that the Progressive Conservative Minister's bookkeeping should have shown a surplus of several million dollars instead than the $1,132,000 he reported.

Leslie Kennedy, who is anxious to adjourn the session before the end of the month, has announced there will be a night sitting tonight.

The Progressive Conservative member and three Liberals belted party traces Monday on second reading of a bill concerning Canadian Farmers Ltd., of Essex county.

The bill would permit the company to distribute patronage dividends as a co-operative under the terms of the Companies Act but would exempt the company from the Act's provision that a co-operative may not distribute more than 32-per-cent dividends on capital investment. The bill also provides that the company would not be required to use the word co-operative in its name.

The bill, sponsored by Progressive Conservative whip William Murdoch (Essex North) was given second reading by a vote of 52 to 16.

Rev. W. J. Feole (PC-Durham) was the only Progressive Conservative to vote against the bill. The Liberal group with the exception of three members voted

Home and School B.C.I. Club Holds Panel Discussion

At the monthly meeting of the Home and School Association at B.C.I. last night, an interesting and instructive panel discussion was given on "Religious Development of the Adolescent."

The discussion was led by Mrs. F.R. Harbeck who took the chair and the establishment of a home to religious development.

Mr. Harbeck spoke briefly on the contribution of the community to the development of religion of the adolescent, and that although comic books, magazines, and other publications of this type have at times a bad effect on the adolescent, it is the parents in the home who should be more aware and particular about what their children read. He maintained that no social activities should be allowed for the adolescents unless sufficient supervision is provided for these activities. Mr. Beech also said that every parent should send good reading material around the house it would help to prevent them from reading the wrong material that might have a serious effect on their life.

Special Courses Formed

Archdeacon Ven. Arthur Smith, who represented the church's contribution, showed that the Church has formed special courses in education and that these are much better adapted to the adolescents.

Miss Ruth Sylvester, French teacher, and Mr. Morley Hancock, history teacher of B.C.I. related the case of the schools' contribution. They said that the schools who have the religious training in the home are much better students but when parents have forced religion on the adolescent it usually makes them a less co-operative student and makes it a much harder job for the teacher to better the mind of this type of student.

The final meeting of the Home and School Association next month will be entitled "Citizenship" and will be summing up of all their past programs.

Police Blotter

Omitting to put away tires and oil which had been placed outside his service station for exhibition purposes, one service station operator "Jack Sharland, 24 Bridge St., lost one of two auto tires during the night.

Last night Jack Sharland closed his service station he went home and left several tires and a quantity of oil outside his service station. At two o'clock this morning police on patrol found the forgotten merchandise and notified the owner. Mr. Sharland came down to his service station only to find that two tires valued at slightly under $40, had disappeared.

Police were asked to be on the lookout for one Robert Castonguay, 37, prisoner at Kingston Penitentiary, who escaped from the hospital yesterday morning. Castonguay was sentenced at Sudbury for breaking, entering and theft. His release would have been up in September of this year.

In police court this morning a local resident was given suspended sentence for one year when he pleaded guilty to the theft of an electric motor from Monteith Dairy. The motor was recovered by police.

$50,000 Permit Issued For Hotel On Dundas St.

Construction of a new two-storey hotel at 171 Dundas Street East, at a cost exceeding $50,000 is planned by the city hotel with building permit for the structure issued here yesterday issued by the local building inspector.

Permit for the construction of the hotel was taken out by F. A. Martin wife, three members of the same family name, including one woman, as interested in the venture. George Hardy Ltd., construction contractors, are said to have been named as the building contractors.

Type of construction, other than the building will be two storeys, was not stated in the building permit.

Plans call for an L-shaped construction with 12 bedrooms to be situated on the second floor of the building. On the first floor will be dining room, kitchen and men and women's lavatory rooms.

No indication was given as to when it could be expected construction of the hotel would commence.

New Fire Hall On W. Moira St. Near Completion

First of two new fire halls projected for the city, the contract for construction on Moira Street West is well underway and is expected to be completed around the first of May.

Of concrete block and white brick construction the new fire hall is modern in every respect and when completed will be a credit to the city. Location of the fire hall on Moira Street West will serve the west side of the river without traversing the business area of the city.

Erected under the chairmanship of Alderman Orlif Lloyd of the city property committee, plans for the new fire hall were drawn by Arnold Thomson, local architect and embodies everything of the last word in fire hall construction. General contractor for the building is B. A. McEvoy of Stirling.

Three Entrances

"The main part of the new hall will provide for three entrances for fire-fighting equipment. These entrances are being fitted with overhead doors and the firemen's equipment can easily be accommodated. Also on the ground floor is a large dressing room running the entire length of the building. Heating plant will supply the heat for the ground floor, while upstairs in the living quarters the heat will be provided by steam radiators.

Contracts for offices for officials of the department are provided for in the plans and will be divided into small rooms instead of the one large dormitory as at present in the Front Street fire hall.

Completely Closed In

The new building now has been completely closed in and electricians and steam fitters are engaged in installing furnace and wiring.

The site for the second new fire hall property to be constructed has not been decided by council, but it is expected that the new building will be constructed some where on Moira Street.

The Moira Street fire hall was constructed on city property north of Moira Street between Cedar and Murney streets. The street running through the south part of Coleman Flats was diverted to enable the foundation of the new building to be constructed.

$5,616 Received By T.B. Assoc. For Field Work

Although the goal of $6,000 set by the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association for its Christmas Seal campaign was not quite reached, sufficient funds were received to carry out many of the work proposed by the Associa-tion for the current year.

This was stated today by Mayor D. L. Storey, president of the Association who said a total of $5,616.85 had been raised through the sale of Christmas Seals since last November. The campaign was just recently completed.

Work proposed for the organization this year will include a survey of every known case, in the city to determine if there is tuberculosis present.

In an effort to make the survey 100 per cent complete the Association will offer a prize to one of the Kinsmen Club of Belleville will make a house-to-house canvass commencing in April and will make appointments for persons to visit the Sanitorium for X-rays.

Last year the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association purchased an X-ray camera which has been set up at the Belleville General Hospital and commitments of the organization this year includes defraying of all expenses in connection with the operation of the camera. Cost of the X-ray operator, and all camera expenses will be taken care of by the Association.

Wage Proposals By Toronto Dairies Rejected

Toronto, March 5 (CP)—Wage proposals by Toronto dairies were rejected Monday night by a membership meeting of Toronto Milk Drivers' Union (A.F.L.).

They included an offer of a $5.50 increase in the minimum wage for inside dairy workers to bring the scale up to $42 a week, with a minimum increase for all employees in that category of $3.50 a week. Drivers were offered a minimum of $44, also an increase of $4.50.

In addition, the Prairies offered consisting of 1-3 cents a quart for every quart over 1,800 to 2,000 and two cents a quart over 2,000 delivered weekly. In addition, the companies offered to bring into effect on or about Oct. 1 a five-day week, and at the same time maintain seven-day delivery of milk.

At meeting which voted down the proposals were approximately 500 drivers and other dairy employees.

About 1,500 dairy employees are involved in the negotiations.

IN MEMORIAM

EMERSON—In loving memory of Henry Emerson, who died 6th, March, 1937, and a loving wife Annie, who died 10th, March, 1940.

Death tries to break but all in vain,
Our hearts are torn, but not the pain,
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart,
To part with those we love so dear,
But this they were cut never to fear,
For we shall meet them some days.

Ever remembered by husband and daughter, John Emerson, Mrs. Alma Morton.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank doctors and nurses of the Belleville General Hospital for their kindness to our mother and to Mrs. Ford Gerow for the use of her car and friend for their kindness during her illness.

Sons and daughters of Wm. Austin.

I wish to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to my friends, neighbors and relatives and to Rev. J. R. Mutton for their kindness during the illness and funeral of my husband.

Ever remembered by husband and daughter, John Emerson, Mrs. Alma Morton.

Urges Ban on Young Children in Pantomime

London, March 3 (Reuters) — Equity, the British Actors' trade union has asked the government to ban employment of children under the age of 12 in Britain's traditional Christmas pantomimes. A report to the government said that it had been the practice to have shows a week during the pantomime season and some of dressing-room accommodation was "extremely bad."

HUNT FOR SAFE-CRACKERS

London, March 3 (Reuters) — Police in counties adjoining the London area have joined forces to hunt for safe-crackers who have stolen several thousand pounds in recent raids on post offices and other office buildings. In the latest raid, more than £600 ($2,400) in savings certificates and stamps was taken.

P.U.C. Will Increase Water Rates 25 Per Cent April 1, Raise Revenue About $20,000

Commencing as of April 1st, water rates in the city will be increased by 25 per cent, it was decided by members of the Public Utility Commission at their regular meeting Monday afternoon.

The increase in water rates will be for additional estimated $20,000 in annual revenue which is needed to take care of current estimated deficit, the commission, it was stated. The additional money will be used to pay for extensions to the water utility including new mains and extensions to the filtration plant.

The increase in water rates will be effective for all users, including domestic, industrial and commercial and will apply on both flat rate and meters.

Water rates in Belleville, according to commission members, are among the lowest in the province and with the proposed extensions to the water services, it was impossible to continue longer under the current rate.

$82,500 Last Year

In presenting a financial statement of the water utility for 1941, Manager O. E. Scott stated that revenue for last year had been $82,500. Under the new rates an additional $20,000 would be added. This it was felt would be sufficient to take care of operational costs and for debenture retirement for work completed and to be undertaken this year. The increased rate was recommended by consulting engineers Gore and Storrie and was approved by the local engineer before being passed by the Commission.

Statistics given in the annual statement of the water commission showed that a total of 1,153,190,000 gallons of water was pumped here for the city last year. There were a total of 6,787 water users, including 4,356 domestic users.

No Action Taken

No action was taken by the Commission on a recommendation by Mayor Meyers to the effect that Commission sign an agreement to pay for all debentures for the water utility out of water revenues.

The Mayor also asked in his recommendation that the court case on whether water services in the Parkwood Heights area be paid under local improvements, be taken from the courts.

On question from Commissioner Frank Follwell, Commission chairman Russell Wotten admitted that it had been the policy of the Utility to pay for installation of water services to the property line, but pointed out if the Commission did not have sufficient funds from the 1942 estimates it had to be borne by the city.

"Signing this agreement to pay debenture charges out of water rates might give council a better feeling but if the Commission has not the funds available then the city has to pay," he said.

Hand Recommended

Mr. Wotten went on to say that consulting engineers Gore and Storrie had recommended raising water rates to pay for the new water main from the Moira River to Parkwood Heights, but warned if the Commission went further than this it might run into difficulty.

He said that the commission policy to install new mains to the property line had applied when the city was compact but that it was unfair now for mains in new areas to be installed under this policy.

For installation of water mains in a new area it was necessary that the annual revenue amount to ten per cent of the installation costs, it was pointed out.

To Meet Council Committee

Before any action is to be taken by the Commission with regard to the water commission members of the Commission will meet with the finance committee of city council. This will be the meeting was Friday afternoon.

The Public Utility Commission and the city will employ the same lawyer, city solicitor R. A. Pringle, to look after the interests of both the two bodies, it was decided. The appointment was made on motion introduced by Mayor Storey and was passed by the Commission.

Mr. Follwell made the suggestion that the local hydro office keep a record of all wells being the night for service calls. Mr. Scott said he would see that wells received did not warrant such a service.

It was noted that present time emergency calls during the night are looked after by the night duty hydro staff who make a special charge for each call after hours.

It was also noted that the Commission make application to the Department of Transport for a radio channel with the view to installing a radio communication for Hydro service trucks. Mr. Scott explained there was no intention of immediately purchasing such equipment but that provision should be made now for the radio channel.

Early Robin About Only Harbinger Of Spring Missing From the Scene

Won't somebody please report the first robin hereabouts?

Thus far we have received information of caterpillars esterwaiting on verandahs; pussy willows willow-ing along swamp bottoms; gulls croaking on rotting icefields in the Moira River; lawn mowers moaning in attics and garages; Izaak Walton rubdog fishing poles as they gaze fondly at winter-wrapped fishing tackle, and warm zephyrs sighing through the skeleton-like branches of trees.

Baseball enthusiasts and addicts are yelling for annual meetings. Shops are advertising the newest creations in milady's spring apparel. Men's furnishing stores are throwing out teasers of "two pair pants" for spring delivery; hardware stores, some of them are contemplating window displays of hoes, rakes, and other garden cultivation implements. Newspaper advertisements are preening cuts of rosebushes and other floral items. The Motto Driver to its mouth is as free of ice as the Kremlin is of capitalists.

Woman Wanted By Police on Murder Charge

Hull, Que., March 3 (CP)—Adjacent municipalities were being searched today for the apprehension of Mrs. Jacques Delisle, sought by police on a murder charge in connection with the death of 23-year-old Jacqueline Lambert of Hull.

Police from Montreal joined with police from this centre Monday night to search the district for Mrs. Gibson, believed to have formerly resided in nearby Aylmer, Que.

Miss Lambert, a patient at the Sacred Heart Hospital for the last three weeks, died yesterday, from what police believe was an illegal operation performed in mid-January.

A few hours later a warrant for Mrs. Gibson's arrest on the murder charge was sworn out in Hull police court by Sgt. Detective Ubald Legault of the Quebec provincial police at Montreal. Whereabouts of Mrs. Gibson was then unknown.

Middle-Aged Woman

Her name was linked with a police assertion that they were looking for a middle-aged woman, said to be a graduate nurse, and also a man, said to be a friend of Miss Lambert.

Although the illegal operation, believed to have been in connection with abortion, took place last January, the Lambert girl did not succumb in hospital until mid-February.

An autopsy was performed Monday night by Dr. Jean Marie Roussel, medical-legal expert of the Quebec Attorney General's Department.

Meanwhile, police began a search of the district.

Police joined in a two-hour conference with Crown Attorney Avila Labelle. He said afterwards he will continue questioning of witnesses today.

The illegal operation, police believe, had been performed at or near Deschenes, a little village just west of Hull.

Butter Prices Decline and Sales Fall Off

(By The Canadian Press)

Butter prices dropped and sales fell off in several Canadian cities Monday. Some wholesale dealers blamed competition from margarine, now plentiful in most places. Others said it was the law of supply and demand — retailers had ample stocks of butter and the market was "dead."

In Toronto, the drop ranged from one to 1½ cents a pound. No. 1 butter solids at 67 cents were one cent lower than a week ago; No. 2 solids at 60 cents were down seven cents. In prints, No. 1 was down 1½ cents at 69; No. 2 was down 7½ cents at 62.

In Montreal, butter was offered at 68 cents a pound, ½ cent below the ceiling. March futures were offered at 66 cents.

Three Saskatchewan points — Regina, Yorkton and Swift Current — reported declines of three cents a pound in prices for first-grade butter. At Halifax prices remained steady but grocers said sales had fallen off since margarine first made its appearance a month ago.

Butter offerings poured into Montreal from Toronto and western points, contributing to unsettled trading. This was blamed on margarine sale in other provinces. In Quebec, where sale of margarine is banned, demand for butter has remained steady.

To head off any drastic reduction in the butter price in Toronto, butter brokers, wholesalers, retail store executives and dairy officials plan to meet with the Board of Trade next Saturday. They said 2,225,000 pounds of butter were on hand in Toronto March 1.

The Ontario Department of Agriculture warned creamery producers to make every effort to improve the quality of their product. A spokesman said "first-grade butter has been the only butter in demand in the last month."

Cream prices followed butter downwards. In Toronto it dropped four cents to 70 cents for No. 1, delivered.

BOOST ADMISSIONS TO CASA LOMA

Toronto, March 3 (CP)—A 25-cent boost in admission charges to Casa Loma, Toronto showplace run by Sir Edward Clark of West Toronto, was authorized by city council Monday night. The trade brings the admission fee for adults to 50 cents and from 15 cents to 25 for children.

Every Mine Strike Means Foundation of New Community

Toronto, March 3 — (CP) — Every time a mine strike is made foundations are automatically laid for another Canadian community, K. A. Davis of Toronto said today in picturing what the prospector means to the life of the country.

He was addressing the annual convention of the Prospectors and Developers Association of Canada, attended by delegates from across Canada.

"Every trail blazed by a prospector may one day become a paved road, and the work of thousands of people living far from the mining country is from the results of the efforts of prospectors and developers.

"A vast series of operations lie behind the actual diamond drilling. For every foot of rock an operator drills, $2 has to be spent in the field and at the home base to provide him with the necessary tools.

"In 1947, 4,454,000 feet of exploratory work was carried out in Canada, an end-to-end footage of approximately 840 miles. Thus, the invested capital in the diamond drilling industry was more than $8,000,000.

"Behind this $8,000,000 is the huge capital investment in manufacturing plants and shops that make the equipment, steel and bits required for this work."

Beyond Expectations

In an address Monday night, V. V. Wansbrough, executive director of the Canadian Metal Mining Association, said the Federal Emergency Gold Mining Assistance Act is in its first year's operation has yielded results far beyond initial expectations.

"Cost-aid grants will amount to between $10,000,000 and $11,000,000. This works out to one thing like an average of $3.50 an ounce of gold produced.

"It's main purpose is being achieved; marginal mines are operating today who would certainly have been closed were it not for the act.

"The administration of the act by the Department of Mines and Resources, under the direction of W. B. Timo and his officers calls for special mention and commendation.

"There is an element of the miraculous in the fact that the act was ever brought to birth at all. The gravest objections were raised to anything which might be construed as increasing the price of gold or, by government action, stimulating its production. The Department of Mines and Resources and the Department of Finance deserve the greatest credit for their successful labor in this respect."

U. S. Gov't Interested in Gold

Mr. Wansbrough said that as a country with the closest ties with Great Britain and the United States, and dependent upon international trade, Canada must look immediately before she can run counter to the rules of the game as laid down by the new international bodies which she herself played a part in establishing.

"Furthermore, behind the international monetary fund stands the American government, deeply interested in gold, with some $24,200,000,000 in its possession and at the same time willing so far to accept all the gold offered to it . . .

"There are reasons for believing the whole post - war structure centering around the Bretton Woods agreement is due for an overhaul. Current conditions are in many ways quite different from those which the designers of the Bretton Woods agreement assumed.

"Whatever modifications are made in the operations and principles of the international monetary fund it is to be devoutly hoped that a basic reliance on gold as the international medium of exchange will not be impaired, or prejudiced. It is rather to be desired that on that basis more flexible conditions can be achieved so that Canadian gold producers may be worked out of their present dilemma."

May Compensate Farmers for Cattle.

Ottawa, March 3. (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the Commons Monday the government is considering legislation increasing the compensation for farmers whose cattle are found to be infected with tuberculosis and slaughtered, answering a question by A. E. Robinson (PC-Bruce).Mr. Gardiner said present maximum payments are $100 for pure-bred cattle and $50 for other animals.

WHEN TENTH PROVINCE JOINS

Canada will issue a new stamp to mark the entry on March 31st of the oldest of Britain's colonies into the Canadian Confederation. That will be one of the outward signs of the completion of the long-expected events which to most people seems the natural course on racial, geographic and democratic grounds.

This coming together in the bonds of confederation has been long in the process of maturing. As far back as 1864 before Confederation of the Provinces was achieved there was a great conference in Quebec where the framework of a federal union of the British North American colonies was drawn up. Newfoundland made no decision then but the British North America Act of 1867 provided for the entry at a later date of the Island, British Columbia and Prince Edward Island. In 1869 the question was shelved as the Newfoundland Government was defeated at the polls, union having become an issue in the elections. Confederation came up again in 1895 following financial difficulties in the Island but negotiations again failed. In the depression of the thirties the question arose once more and after a royal inquiry it was decided that responsible government be suspended and that the Island should be governed by a Commission. After the necessary steps the Commission Government took office in 1934. There was a national convention in 1946 and 1947 when it was decided to ascertain from Ottawa the terms of a fair and equitable union. Those terms were conveyed to the people of Newfoundland and discussed at a national convention and then submitted on the referendum ballot. On the first poll no form of government having received a majority, a second poll on the two forms receiving the most votes was held in which almost 85 per cent of the total eligible voters cast their ballots, confederation leading with 52,123, responsible government receiving 71,334 votes. Then last July Prime Minister King announced that the Government of Canada would be pleased to receive representatives to discuss terms on the basis of the proposal of the previous year. A delegation was appointed by the Governor in Council, which met in Ottawa in July last December a memorandum of agreement was drawn up.

Newfoundland when in the union may not be the last new province to enter as it has been suggested that parts of the Northwest may in time become provinces and part of the Canadian confederation.

The entry the consummation of Union, will be an epoch-making event for the British peoples as it will mark what has been called the most logical step of the British North American provinces now forming the Dominion of Canada and the ancient colony.

Canadians will be brushing up on their history of the large island discovered by one of the great figures in British history Sebastian Cabot who was the first to see the island in 1497 only five years after Columbus discovered America. That date would put Newfoundland as the first part of the greater Canada-to-be discovered by European explorers.

Very aptly the commemoration stamp will bear a reproduction of the "Matthew" under sail, the ship that Cabot sailed. Cabot was one of three sons of John Cabot, a Venetian, who had settled in Bristol, England, and as an explorer was the discoverer of North America's mainland in 1497 with his sons Lewis, Sebastian and Sancius. On June 24 of that year he touched Cape Breton Island and Nova Scotia. Sebastian Cabot, besides discovering the great Island of Newfoundland, is said to have sailed in search of the Northwest Passage. Sebastian Cabot who was a youth of 20 years, full of the enterprise of the explorers of his age, lived on until 1557 when he died in London. His career marked him as one of the great explorers of all time.

FOR TOURISTS

"Good care and good feeding of visitors so as to make them want to come again" and "tell their friends" is the secret of an expanding tourist trade, says the Ottawa Journal. The newspaper urges those in the business of purveying to the tourist visitors of Canada to create an "atmosphere" and improve the quality and style of food served as the next best thing to good decent roads. "Good meals at fair prices have always created a universal attraction and few things are more satisfying than a good bed in attractive surroundings after a long day's drive."

The Journal thinks the Ontario Department appears to need "a first class training school for operators of eating places and tourist cabins and hotels, a place staffed by people with imagination."

JUST FOLKS

THE WALKER

They call it a "walker." He isn't.
They call it a "walk." He is.
Applying the power with his two little feet,
And he goes round the room at a terrible pace,
Upsetting whatever I leave in the place.

"A trifle policious; seeded," I say,
"For your baby, dear daughter, is no rule will obey.
Not yet a year old, but so reckless is he
That a square is slow-moving for folks like me.

"Hey! Look where you're going!" I shout in alarm.
"If you're not more careful you'll do yourself harm
You've knocked over tables, scored varnish from chairs.
No! walkers aren't meant to be hidden down stairs."

They call it a "walker." But look at him go!
Where he's bound I cannot tell me
I have black marks to show.
And I think as I gaze at the damage he's done,
This place will be wrecked when he starts in to run.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

25 YEARS AGO

March 8th., 1923

Miss Monahan of London, Ontario, has accepted a position as millinery designer with Miss M. Campbell.

Mrs. Harry C. Hawkins, Stirling, has left to visit her sister, Mrs. McCoy and Dr. McCoy, Long Island, N.Y.

The talking moving pictures have been installed at the Capitol Theatre in Kingston. Several Bellevillians have heard and seen these "talkies" and were much impressed with the marvels of sound films.

Congratulations are due to Mr. Thomas Oliver, one of Belleville's well known and much respected florist, who today is celebrating the 45th. anniversary of his birth. He was born in Derry County, Ireland and for over seventy-five years has been a resident of Belleville. Many friends will join Island Lily in the well wishes and congratulations and good wishes.

25 YEARS AGO

March 9th., 1910

Messrs. Alfred and Daniel Deshane have returned to this city after spending some time in the United States.

Mr. J. V. C. Truesch, President of the Dominion Branch of the Postal Clerks' Association, has been appointed delegate to the Postal Clerks' Association convention which will meet in Washington on March 13th. to March 19th.

Mr. A. G. Todd of Campbellford is the guest of Mr. E. T. Austin, Cedar Street.

Mrs. R. Rehm has returned to her home in Warner, N. Y., after visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. Fred. Rehm, Hershimer Street.

At a meeting which was held in the library at the G. T. R. station, the Grand Trunk Amateur Athletic Association was re-organized. A committee was appointed the chair and the following officers were elected: Hon. President, W. D. Robb; Hon. Vice Presidents, J. H. McMillan, W. H. Turner and W. J. Tyrer; President, H. M. Gain; First Vice President, C. Staplin; Second Vice President, J. E. Laporte; Secretary-treasurer, H. N. Pringle; Trustees, —M. F. Dott, G. Frith and R. Fey; General Manager of Sports, W. Thomson.

Final Chapter Of Sensational Story Written

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

There has just come to my mind this final chapter of the story of a sensational French killer whom I encountered in 1936 during a never-to-be forgotten visit to France's notorious Devil's Island penal colony off the Guiana coast of South America.

There are three little islands in this group—St. Joseph, Royale and Devil's Island—the latter situated for imprisonment, for about them is a barrier of swirling and treacherous ocean currents. And great sharks patrol the shore strokes hopefully.

Few Prisoners

Devil's Island held few prisoners, since it was used only for those convicted of treason, Royale and St. Joseph were used for other great crimes like murder. Royale was the main settlement and there I was quartered in a huge hospital used for the prisoners.

The hospital was in charge of a French doctor who was serving a life term for murder. He was convicted of poisoning his wife for her money and then marrying her rich sister, whom he also poisoned.

The doctor's assistant was Joseph Philippoust, a huge fellow. He had been a chief of police in France limb from limb with his bare hands and was serving life there.

Philippoust was as mysterious as he was huge and was forever surreptitiously slipping me messages from other prisoners who wanted help for this, that and the other things.

From the Past

After my visit I heard nothing more from Philippoust until a few weeks ago when he wrote me from the prison colony, saying that he was to be released and asking if I could help him get to the United States. His letter came through the Salvation Army, which does a wonderful work in French Guiana.

Of course there wasn't a chance for me to get Philippoust into the United States, but I wrote to the Salvation Army for further details. Yesterday I got an answer from a French Army Major who had handled my letter in the absence of the Salvation Army officer.

The Major said Philippoust was being liberated and sent to France (the penal colonies are in process of being liquidated). The doctor, by the way had committed suicide by poison.

Philippoust figured a man with his record wouldn't stand much chance back home, and wanted to get a fresh start. He thought he would try to get to Canada and then apply for admission to the United States. The major said Philippoust probably would write to me in due course. Then came this postscript:

"I was about to sign and post this letter when an ex-convict brought me the news of the death of Philippoust. He was very well yesterday but died this morning in his room, of an apoplexy of the heart.

"So his future is all settled."

Open Cast Mining Adds 11,729,000 Tons to Industry

By ROBERT D. BROWN

London, March 8 (Reuters) Britain's bid to sell more coal in overseas markets has brought mining chiefs here bitter conflict with farmers and landowners.

One of the most successful aspects of the mining drive has been the production achieved by "open cast" working — mined strip mining in Canada.

Last year this method added 11,729,000 tons to the day-mined output total of just less than 200,000,000 tons. While the 1948 forecast target has been set at 13,000,000 tons.

For years this method of digging coal out from the surface was considered uneconomical. The war made that objective unimportant and in 1941 work began, with the aim of gaining 5,000,000 tons of coal. So far almost 50,000,000 tons have been obtained by open-cast working and some experts believe another 200,000,000 tons may be available.

The original intention of abandoning open-cast working at the end of 1951 is likely to be dropped. The date to be fixed is not expected to be reached before 1955.

By the end of 1951, 90,000 acres of land is likely to have been requisitioned, stripped of its top layers of soil and divested of the valuable minerals which lie below face. Most of the sites are in Yorkshire, the North Midlands, South Wales and Scotland — Britain's traditional mining areas.

Huge Machines

Huge machines are used to clear the ground, to scoop out the coal and to restore the countryside. After the machines have finished their work, government agricultural authorities take over, and crops are sailed to determine that the land is in good shape again for agriculture before it is restored to its owners.

But farmers assert the land is not restored to its original condition.

They are dissatisfied, too, with the compensation they get if their land is requisitioned.

Giving evidence to a parliamentary committee, the National Farmers Union objected that, "Agricultural land of considerable fertility-farmed land was found to have coal below it. It seemed clear there was an almost automatic decision that it should be taken for coal and not left as farm land. The N. F. U. feels there are cases where Britain's interests would be better served by leaving land in cultivation.

Farming

Farming, consequently, are opposing any move to continue open cast mining after 1951.

Car Accidents Claimed 740 Lives in 1948

Toronto, March 7 (CP)—Automobile accidents in Ontario claimed 740 lives in 1948, Highways Minister Frost announced today.

The toll is six more than in 1947. The number of persons killed was exceeded only twice before—in 1941 when 761 persons were killed and in 1947 when 740 persons were killed.

On the basis of Gallup travelled, the 1948 death toll was proportionately lower than any previous year, slightly less than 10 persons were killed for every 100,000,000 miles travelled. In 1947 the ratio was one non-fatally injured was 14.7 970 higher than any previous year and 1948 was the first year to exceed than in 1947.

Fewer children and old people and more drivers were killed.

NOW MANY A SKIN IS CHAPPED

Chapped means cracked, flustered, roughened.

Chapped lips are worse in women than in men because men have the advantage of physiological rest, which after shaving is a splint on a broken arm.

A common accompanying or forerunning symptom of chapped skin not mentioned in the definition (Webster's) but nearly always mentioned by women who complain of chapping is redness of the skin.

Men seem not to mind this redness so much, if the chapping doesn't get too blamed sore and bleed. Women seem not to mind mere fissures and soreness so long as the skin is not too red.

It is customary to "cuss the weather" as the cause of chapped lips or chapped skin, which-ever goes to show....

As I have explained here many times, it isn't the cold, it is the aridity of the climate that is chiefly responsible for chapping of lips or skin. The great indoor Sahara, that is, where most of you unteachables sojourn in the winter.

Fortunately there is something anybody can and should do about the weather that causes chapping —change it from arid (excessively dry, that is, dessert) to humid, mild (one-third to one-half saturated with moisture—33 to 50 per cent relative humidity).

In other words, by one means or another (or by combination of another talk) evaporate at least 1½ or 2 pints of water per day per room each twenty-four hours).

This lotion has been widely used by thousands of readers with gratification, for preventing and relieving chapped skin, sore, red skin and by many men as a cooling lotion after shaving:

Heat together till clear mucilage is obtained three tablespoonfuls of powdered gum powder—one heaping teaspoonful of triple-month alum (also powdered), a scant tablespoonful of glycerin and a wine glass of mild vinegar (white wine vinegar is best). Shake well and stir occasionally. Apply with a soft, perfectly clear. When it cools put in a pint bottle and label it Skin Lotion. Apply a few drops to the skin after washing before shaving. Rub on gently two or three times a day or as you need it.

Six months in the indoor Sahara is hard enough on the skin, but in many instances that is only the half of it. Occupational use of strong soaps, alkalis solvents, gasoline, and other cleaning agents removes the natural sebum or skin oil and aggravates the irritation and chapping. Mineral oil does so too. Friends who use various solvents for cleaning their work, and machinists constantly exposed to cutting oil suffer on "from irritation, inflammation and boils and pustules on hands and arms. These workers would suffer less if they would follow the routine:

Before beginning work, prepare your skin by gently rubbing in to hands and arms a mixture of equal parts of hydrous lanolin and olive oil, to replace the skin oil removed by hard chemicals, soaps, alkalis, solvents or inks. Wipe away the excess of oil with clean cloth and you are ready for work. When the days work or the job is finished, repeat the oil application after washing up, and wipe away the excess as before.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Cooking in Aluminum

In a letter to the editor a writer claimed that cooking in aluminum ware is not healthful, and that in hospitals who use food cooked in aluminum ware were operated on for cancer of the stomach—the poison them was found in their food. Editor — "Aluminum eats their brains. (Mrs. T. C.).

Answer—One pint, one ton. The food of our house has been cooked in aluminum ware ever since family life began, and we have managed to go on breathing. Except in the bathtub, I have felt light-headed at times, now that you mention it.

Vitamin D for Fuller Arches

Have you a pamphlet about fallen arches, cracked, sore feet. (Mrs. F. J.).

Answer—Send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope for booklet Care of the Feet.

Sugar With Grapefruit

My patient says she learned in Florida that sugar must not be added to grapefruit as it alters the food value, but a pinch of salt is added. Is it true that it brings out the flavor. (Miss C. W.)

Answer—Every one to his own taste. Neither sugar nor salt alters the food value of grapefruit.

Lay Cramps

I continue to have leg cramps in spite of taking calcium phosphate. (Mrs. F. F.).

Answer—Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask for booklet Muscle Philosophy.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

IMPOSSIBLE—BUT YOU DO IT!

Can any one of us gain a greater thrill than this one — to do something that we know we can do, but which people have said we couldn't do? Most of us experience just this, and then it is that we establish a kinship with the stars! It's always a pleasurable triumph.

The realm of the impossible keeps shrinking all the time. Comparatively, it was but a few years ago that Charles Lindberg flew non-stop from New York to Paris. Recently, however, a plane made a non-stop flight across the United States in less than four hours; and cross-Atlantic trips are now routine. Planes are now flying as fast as sound — which is quite some speed! Could it be that some neighbor on Mars may be now thrilled about what is doing on this Earth of ours!

What a fantastic dream television was but a few years ago! And the dreams ahead look even more impossible — but they will come true, for there are always those who like to get joy out of doing what people say can't be done.

Dr. Jehl, the last living man who was with Edison when he finally produced the electric light once showed me through the old laboratory of Edison's which Henry Ford created anew in the Greenfield Village at Dearborn, Michigan. He showed me dozens of inventions that Edison put his magic touch to — duplicating devices, typewriters, phonographs, storage cells, the talking machine, the phonograph — and dozens of others, I dare say Edison got more downright pleasure out of doing things that people said could have said were impossible than any man who ever lived. But he kept making them possible!

If we use our eyes and ears, we never know when we may catch the spark that may suggest some possibility that others may merely look upon as impossible. I once had a most interesting talk with the author of "Brains and Personality," the eminent physician, Dr. William Sadler, a book that whose death occurred soon after. This is what he wrote in his book which he presented to me: "It would be well if all persons, of both sexes, to pay greater attention to the many thoughts which are suggested to us as we travel our way through life."

The spontaneous and alertness alone we may become fathers to the possible things at others only look upon as the impossible.

GUERRILLA BAND TRAPPED

Athens, Greece, March 7.—(AP) —A spokesman of the Greek army general staff announced today that a guerrilla band known as the "scourge of the southern Peloponnesus" has been trapped in a mountainous region and is suffering heavy losses.

The Peloponnesus is the southern tip of Greece.

The spokesman said attacking army units had killed 47 of the band and captured another 97 up until last night.

The PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

It is not only our universities that are having trouble with the natural sciences, to use fancier words, between the humanities and technology. The split seems to run down right through the secondary into the elementary schools.

"A great deal of the uneasiness that is evident in education today is due to a deep-rooted confusion in their minds as to what they should be doing."

Here is an approach to the problem, not by way out the east and to restore the countryside. After the machines have finished their work, government agricultural authorities take over, and crops are sailed to determine that the land is in good shape again for agriculture before it is restored to its owners.

But farmers assert the land is not restored to its original condition.

They are dissatisfied, too, with the compensation they get if their land is requisitioned.

Giving evidence to a parliamentary committee, the National Farmers Union objected that, "Agricultural land of considerable fertility-farmed land was found to have coal below it. It seemed clear there was an almost automatic decision that it should be taken for coal and not left as farm land. The N. F. U. feels there are cases where Britain's interests would be better served by leaving land in cultivation.

Farming, consequently, are opposing any move to continue open cast mining after 1951.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

FIX YOUR MOUTH

A minister stood before a group of boys and girls and showed them in succession a number of crude sketches of human faces. One was the picture of a man whose mouth turned up at the corners in a jolly laugh. Another was the picture of a man, the corners of whose mouth turned down. Pointing to the latter picture the minister asked, "Now what's the matter with this picture?" and a little girl stole the show by calling out, "His mouth's upside down."

Nothing is more tiresome than to meet with some one who goes upon their faces after having read a book or heard a sermon or one of lectures that it always puts me in mind of the old Scotch lady who always detect that artificial, forced smile as soon as it appears, and who has no appreciation for what is indeed to behold.

But how different the person whose heart appears to be literally singing, and whose face is radiant with it. Smile as bright as morning sun and as beautiful as the flowers in the landscape in spring. There are some folk whose mouths naturally turn up. They may not be the salt of the earth, keeping the world's life from going rotten but certainly they are the sugar of the earth, keeping life sweet and in manifold complexities.

For many a person the word recounsel should be, "Brother, smile before a mirror and fix your mouth; fix upside down."

Meet Planned For Calcutta off, Ottawa Mentioned

By WILLIAM ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 8 — (CP) — Speculation increased today over the time and place where foreign ministers from the British commonwealth countries now will meet, since a Ceylon conference scheduled for May definitely has been cancelled.

Some say Ottawa will be the site.

With a western peace front rapidly approaching reality, nervous fears prevail in the East, where Communist influence is being consolidated by Chinese and Burma for further expansion.

London morning papers comment today links uneasiness in the Mediterranean and the East with reports of the cancellation of the Ceylon conference.

The inability of some Commonwealth foreign ministers to leave their capitals for lengthy talks in a relatively inconvenient location possible conflict with the timetable of the United Nations, and other undisclosed reasons have led to discussion among the Dominions on an alternative, site and time.

The Daily Telegraph today carried on its front page reports from Calcutta that: "Burma's situation worsens; complete disruption of communications"; Government unable to restore order."

Conference at Delhi

The newspaper says the present six-power conference at Delhi has dashed, at least temporarily, Burma's hopes of ending the war by a conference of Asian powers on the committee of three sitting there.

The Telegraph, which yesterday broke the story of the cancellation of the Ceylon meetings, today ventured to say that "a resumed meeting of the United Nations General Assembly might provide a suitable opportunity for the Commonwealth foreign ministers to meet, although the necessity of London or Ottawa talks now recedes.

The Times' diplomatic correspondent suggests that Ceylon may be revived as the site for a Commonwealth meeting next year.

The Times's dispatch says it would be wrong to conclude that "Commonwealth consultations on a high level will not take place this year." The desirability for such consultations has, if anything, increased over the last few months and some positive developments may be expected in the near future."

Last night informed sources said the consultations were "urgent." Both London and Ottawa were suggested as suitable locations.

PREMIER SUN FO

Fo is said to be closer to Li than to Chiang. He and the generalissimo have had an uneasy truce in recent years.

Announcement Sudden

Sun's announcement that he and his cabinet had resigned came suddenly at a meeting of the legislative Yuan, which has had his policies under fire. The legislators cheered Sun's announcement.

Sun, whose father was Dr. Sun Yat-Sen, "Father of the Chinese Republic," stepped into the premiership as Chiang's choice last Nov. 30.

Sun and Li had not seen eye to eye. Li has been seeking to end China's three-year civil war at almost any price. Sun had balked at stiff Communist demands.

Sun moved the cabinet to Canton after Chiang left in January, leaving Li in Nanking. Last month, Li flew to Canton to persuade Sun to keep his Nankin cabinet.

At the time, Li's close associates said it was the acting president's "final effort." They said if Sun did not return, it would force Sun from the premiership.

Despite their attitude toward peace with the Reds, Sun and his cabinet had been doing some spadework for forthcoming negotiations. Sun himself had been slated to head the government's 10-man delegation to the peace talks.

The Communists radio, however, has been sharply critical of Sun's activities. Only last Saturday it charged Sun, Chiang and other Nationalist leaders with preparing to recruit 2,500,000 more soldiers "behind the facade of peace."

FRANKFORD Carnival Held By Lions Club Decided Success

Frankford — The Frankford Lions Club carnival was held in the local arena Friday night, and was in every way a great success. Although the ice was soft, the events were run off on schedule. Queen Adrian Babcock dressed as a peasant girl, was chosen as Carnival Queen. Following the judging of costumes, a number of races and skating contests were held.

Feature attraction of the evening was a broomball game between the Trenton and Frankford Lions. Trenton won the game 3-1, although it is rumored that Frankford may protest the game, on the grounds that Jones, who scored the tie-breaking goal, raced from his own blue line with the ball inside his rink, knocked the Frankford goalie down, broke a broom over his head, and threw the ball into the Frankford net. During the game, James Connell of the Frankford crew, was stricken with a severe attack of something or other and Dr. Jones, Trenton veterinary was called in to perform an emergency operation. A stretcher was wheeled in and Doctor Jones set to work, with an assortment of saws, hammers and chisels. Several boards in the arena stadium were removed, and Connell, with a crowd, this brought many laughs from the spectators.

Trophies were given out to the children under twelve years of age. A perfect 10 skating followed, to complete the evening.

The merchants and citizens of Frankford co-operated magnificently on this project, and the local Lions Club states that one and all, that the proceeds will be well used in their plan for civic improvement this coming summer.

N. Atlantic Pact is Said To be 20-Year Pledge, Signing by End of March

London, March 8 (AP)—Diplomatic writers published Monday night what they said were details of the proposed North Atlantic defence pact. They said the treaty would be signed in Washington before the end of March.

The alliance is a 20-year pledge that all signers will resist with military force an armed attack on any signer, said Frederick Kuh, London correspondent of the Chicago Sun-Times.

Kuh said the draft recognizes, however, that only Congress can commit the United States to war by stating "this treaty shall be ratified by each of the parties in accordance with their constitutional processes."

Three Points Listed

W. N. Ewer, diplomatic writer for the London Daily Herald, organ of Britain's ruling Labor party, listed three points he said were in the treaty:

1. Immediate help to any member in case of attack.

2. Mutual aid in the preparation of defence.

3. Consultation if there seems any danger of attack.

The diplomatic correspondent of the Liberal News Chronicle said the United States, Canada, Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg and perhaps Norway would be the "foundation members."

Kuh said his digest of the pact's terms was obtained from "British sources."

He said one article "declares that the treaty will remain in force for 10 years, after which the parties may consult for the purpose of reviewing the treaty if necessary and may decide to terminate the pact after another 10 years."

20-Year Period

Kuh said this meant the treaty would remain in force for 20 years, after which it may be denounced by any signatory on two years's notice.

His summary said the first two articles of the pact dealt with an avowal of a devotion to peace, and pledged all possible elimination of threats to peace, including economic ones.

He said the text of the treaty provided the signers may agree among themselves to invite "any other power to participate, provided such country "is in a position effectively to strengthen the principles of the treaty."

The bill was passed in the private bills committee last week by a vote of 19 to 5. Only C.C.F. members opposed it.

Eamon Park (CCF-Toronto Dovercourt) said Monday the company should not be allowed to "masquerade" as a co-operative. The wording of the act did not prohibit the company from describing itself as a co-operative if it chose. The company had presently paid dividends of as high as 18 per cent on capital invested.

There Is No No-Man's Land

Agnes Macphail (CCF-York East) said the company either was or was not a co-operative. There was no no-man's land. If it were a co-operative, it should comply with all the provisions of the Companies Act applying to co-operatives.

Attorney-General Blackwell said that in order to become a full-fledged co-operative the company would have to be dissolved and assets of the distributed among 200 farmer shareholders. Much of this amount would have to be paid in personal income tax.

Income tax payments.

E. A. Silward (PC-Kingston) said the company had been organized in 1919 by a group of "dirt farmers" with the "vision and foresight" to invest their money in the company. The company should be allowed to operate as a co-operative without being taxed on the profits of returns on their investment.

Niagara Peninsula Shoreline Erosion

St. Catharines, March 8 (CP)—The problem of the receding shoreline—the north shore of the Niagara peninsula which has moved back one-half mile since 1870 — is the special worry of municipalities from Hamilton east to the Niagara River.

Farmers report much of their best fruit-growing land is slipping into Lake Ontario every year. Roads disappear into the water and rows of cottages and houses have been moved in preparation away from the encroaching lake.

To combat the erosion the communities are forming a conservation authority, which will tackle five other problems affecting the area at the same time.

These are: Soil conservation, flooding, stream pollution, recreation areas and reforestation.

A Baby is calling YOU

A wail of fire lays waste a village or a city block. A flood engulfs a whole community. From out the devastation a baby cries. The moan of a mother is heard. A child is suffering from burns or cold, or hunger. A score, a hundred or a thousand people are left homeless. Within a few hours the Red Cross has organized relief. Food, blankets, clothing are rushed to the scene of the disaster. Shelter is found for the unfortunate. The shock of disaster is eased. Tears give way to smiles.

This is but part of the great work YOUR Red Cross is doing. In Free Blood Transfusion Service is fast being extended to cover all Canada. It gives aid to crippled veterans. It supports Outpost Hospitals in lonely settlements. Its helping hand brings comfort to suffering humanity everywhere.

The Red Cross urgently needs YOUR support now. Give generously.

Red Cross services also include: Treatment for Crippled Children, Nutrition Services, First Aid Home Nursing, Canteen Assistance and Water Safety, Women's Work Activities, etc.

When you give to the Canadian Red Cross you help this year the Canadian Red Cross needs 8 Million Dollars—60% more than the previous appeal.

WEDDINGS

BLAIR—BELNAP

A wedding of interest took place in the chapel of the R.C.A.F. Station in Trenton, when Laura Belnap, second oldest daughter of Mrs. Manley Belnap and the late Mr. Belnap, of Rossmore, became the bride of Gordon Blair, D.F.C., only son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Blair, of Vancouver, B.C.

The bride was charming in a grey gabardine suit with black hat and matching accessories with corsage of pink roses and baby breath.

Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Joan Belnap, wearing a navy suit with white accessories and corsage of white carnations and forget-me-nots.

LAC. Stewart Blair, from Trenton Air Station, ably supported the groom.

After the ceremony the bridal group attended a wedding supper given in their honor by the bride's mother, who received the guests, wearing a black and white crepe dress with a corsage of sweetpeas. She was assisted by the two sisters, Misses Verna and Fern Belnap.

The bridal table was centred with the wedding cake, flanked on either side with silver candelabra with tall silver candles. Pink streamers led from the corners of the room to the bride's table, which was carried out in artistic effect.

Just before the buffet luncheon was served, Miss Jean Belnap, sister of the bride, sang very effectively "I Love You Truly".

LAC. Stewart Haynes then proposed a toast to the bride, to which the groom very ably responded in his most affable manner.

The gifts were both numerous and costly, among them being a cheque of sterling silver, the groom's gift to his bride.

They left amid a shower of rice, confetti, on a short honeymoon.

They will reside for the present where they will be glad to see their many friends on John St., Belleville.

MUIR—NOBLES

On Saturday, March 5, at one p.m., a quiet wedding was solemnized at the home, Rev. H. G. Eastman, Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, when Gertrude Ellen, only youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Nobles, Carrollton Road, became the bride of George Alexander Muir, only son of Mr. and Mrs. George Muir, Wheatland, Man.

The bride was becomingly attired in a street-length dress of sky-blue ribbon, with black accessories. She wore a corsage of red American Beauty roses.

Mrs. Fred Muir, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, wearing a light-blue flowered crepe with black accessories and corsage of red American Beauty roses.

Mr. Fred Rly, brother-in-law of the bride, was groomsman.

After the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents.

The young couple left for a short trip by motor and, on their return, the bride wearing a black ensemble with red accessories and corsage of red roses.

Upon their return they will reside in Belleville.

BLACK GULL RETRIEVED FROM LOWER NIAGARA R.

Niagara Falls, March 8 (CP)—A black gull, the first ever seen in this district, was retrieved from the lower Niagara River yesterday by game conservation officer Ben Mozma. The bird was probably swept over the falls during the night, Mozma said.

Carmel Group Presents Plays

The Carmel Comrade Group presented an interesting program on Wednesday evening, in Carmel United Church. The program consisted mainly of three one-act plays.

The first play "Henry's Mail-Order Wife" was presented by Group B, followed by the girls' chorus and then men's quartet each favoring with two numbers.

The second play "Mrs. Pinkie and the Dentist", was the second feature of the evening, being directed by Mrs. Merla Robinson and presented by members of Group No. 3. During the intermission Mrs. Carmel Orchestra entertained after which Group No. 2 ably presented "Judge Boyd An Orchid".

Mrs. Dewey took parts in the skits were as follows—

"Henry's Mail-Order Wife"—Carmen Dafoe, Lena Allison; Ken Clarke, Gladys Dafoe, Hilda Lawrence, Clayton Sullivan.

"Paul Ducks the Dentist"—George Robles, Glen Rose, Helen Barnes, Joyce Sheffield, Evelyn Chambers, Gaty Chambers, Hazel Dafoe.

"Buddy Buys an Orchid"—Clayton Rite, Clive Thompson, Rita, Grace Rite, Carl Cox, Thompson.

Much credit is due to Mrs. Merla Robinson, Mrs. Clare Hoover and Mr. Dee Tearne, who directed these plays and so contributed to a fine program.

Purse Presented On 87th Birthday

On Sunday afternoon, a quiet gathering of 36 immediate relatives assembled at the home of Mrs. William Arthurs, 23 Bleecker Street, to extend to Mr. W. Long Sr. their best wishes and congratulations on his attaining the years of manhood, on the occasion of his 87th birthday.

The dainty repast which the buffet luncheon was served was tastefully arranged in the lace cloth, and centred with a bowl of red Better Times roses.

For many years Mr. and Mrs. Long have resided in Marmora, they having moved here about 5 years ago. They have children, three girls and one boy, Mrs. R. J. Ferguson, Bancroft; Mrs. F. Wood, of Stirling; Mrs. William Arthurs, Belleville, and Mr. Harold Long, also of Belleville, and five grandchildren, and sixteen great-grandchildren.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Long are enjoying good health, and take an active interest in the news of the day. Congratulations are extended to Mr. Long in reaching this honorable distinction along life's way, and may they have many more birthday anniversaries together.

DIES SUDDENLY

Toronto, March 8 (CP)—Thomas Welsh, 62, died suddenly Monday night in a hotel room. Coroner Dr. F. W. Tickell attributed death to coronary thrombosis.

Women's Activities

BRIDGE STREET W.M.S.

The March meeting of Bridge Street W.M.S. was held in the ladies' parlor on Friday afternoon with the president, Mrs. W. H. Pinkie, in charge.

An appeal was made for canvas or used clothing for the needy people overseas.

Plans were then discussed for the Easter thankoffering meeting. The reports of the secretaries were received. The treasurer's report was read and adopted.

After the routine business session all the ladies adjourned to the church auditorium for the World's Day of Prayer.

WEST HUNTINGDON W.M.S

The March meeting of the West Huntingdon W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Mac Sarles with a good attendance.

The president opened the meeting, Mrs. J. S. Wilson read verses of Scripture from first chapter of Mark followed by the Scripture reading by Mrs. A. McCurry. Minutes of last meeting were read and approved followed by hymn 141. Call, singing of members and seven visitors present.

Mrs. Grant gave a reading on "World Day of Prayer" in other lands, and also the collect of the day. Mrs. Grant, an address she heard while in Toronto, by a missionary, Miss Taylor, who stressed the need for workers. Mrs. Grant also favored with a solo, "The Wayside Cross".

Mrs. G. Cooke answered to the Watch Tower roll call with a letter which stressed the need for money and workers.

The study book was very interestingly dealt with by Mrs. J. Wilson, "Doctors, Old and New" which dealt with the way medicine is used in China.

During the business part of the meeting, a quilt was completed in and it was decided to quilt them at a later date. It was also decided that the ladies serve the study book and outlines as before, and a social hour will be available were to go to Trenton to the convention in the fall.

Mrs. Day thanked the W.M.S. and W.A. for remembering Bill, who is in hospital, with cards and Mrs. Moorcroft for remembering Mrs. Benjamin.

Mrs. Clifford Elliott, of Frankford, a former member was present a few words of appreciation at being present.

The hostess served refreshments assisted by her helpers, and a vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Sarles for her kind hospitality.

ELDORADO-UNION W.M.S.

Eldorado—On Friday the Eldorado and Union W.M.S. held their meeting and observed the World Day of Prayer, which was held at the home of Mrs. G. Blackburn. The meeting was opened by the President, Mrs. Cecil Blackburn, with quiet music. Mrs. Ward Chambers presided at the piano.

Mrs. Hugh Baker took charge of the Worship Service, the theme of which was "The Kingdom Come". Mrs. Albert Empey had charge of the first period and Mrs. Cecil Blackburn had charge of the second.

The roll call was answered by a "Quotation on Prayer".

Treasurer's report was given by Mrs. G. Blackburn and Mrs. Albert Empey gave a short talk on "Stewardship".

Correspondence was dealt with. It was decided that a donation be made to be forwarded to the needy, also that Mrs. Elgin Post go to visit Mrs. C. D. McCann on April 14.

Mrs. G. Blackburn then gave a splendid reading on "Ten Ways to Kill an Association".

The study book was in charge of Mrs. Barker. The theme being "Work in China", with Mrs. L. Blackburn, Mrs. Albert and A. Poulter and Mrs. Elgin Post, assisting.

The World Day of Prayer program was taken by Mrs. Cecil Blackburn with the theme "The Lord is Thy Keeper". The program was taken from the missionary Monthly.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants and a social half hour enjoyed.

Club Activities

ENERGETIC CLUB

The regular meeting of Holloway Street Young People's Club was held on Friday evening. Following a short devotional period, Mrs. Davidson took charge of the lesson.

The speaker for the evening was Oscar Wager, who explained the Atlantic Pact, its meaning, and importance, and its obstacles which at the present, stand in its way. His talk was very interesting and on a subject in which everyone is deeply interested.

Mr. Gander then entertained with some very humorous selections which were much enjoyed. Then at the urgent request of the club Alec Gordon entertained with some old favorites.

After playing a few games, refreshments were served by Hilda and Larry Buck, and their group who were in charge of the evening.

The reading of the Tattler and Friendship Circle, brought the meeting to a close.

Child Welfare Subject of Talk At W.I. Meeting

RAWDON

Rawdon.—The March meeting of Rawdon Women's Institute was held on Thursday at the home of the President, Mrs. Percy Ultsman, with about forty members present.

Mrs. Chester Sills, Reg.N., of West Huntingdon, was guest speaker and gave a very interesting and enlightening address on "Child Welfare".

Mrs. Sills is well known in her home community when hardly a day passes but the doctor's car is seen by telephone re. some ailment, and she spends a great deal of time nursing in every emergency case of severe illness.

Mrs. Sills said in part that when a mother bird hovers affectionately over her sleeping infant, the contented look in her face tells her that she is gazing on the most precious gift in her possession. As the infant lies, charming, but helpless, in the mother's arms, so also for every living, proper nourishment, benefit of fresh air, and healthful comfort are dispensed above all a baby should be loved and wanted, and every day, if practically all cases the mother can give the baby the best and it will be a fit, as the child understands its mother.

Every born baby is very sensitive and Mrs. Sills gave explicit directions for how also for convulsions, etc.

She urged every mother to buy a good baby thermometer and if a child was ill put it in its mouth, under the naughty, give it plenty of fluids, a sponge bath in a warm room and no enema if a child was ill and mustard bath is very beneficial for convulsions or call the doctor.

First Aid Advice

The speaker also gave helpful advice re earache and advised using the ear drops in warm oil and warm flannel cloth wrung dry out of hot water.

Bathing should be bandaged and kept covered.

Measles is a great menace to children being highly infectious, and causing serious complications, bronchial-pneumonia, first symptoms, consist of running of the eyes, nose, throat and a dry cough. If your child is exposed to the measles, put a little in mouth where the first black spots with red circles will appear. Coax them to eat some sour milk, put child in bed and warm, and the rash will appear in three or four days. Give lots of fluid and pay particular attention to the bowels.

Mrs. Sills closed her talk of the afternoon with a poem entitled "Be Kind to Mother".

Mrs. Allan McDonnell read an interesting poem on "Health" written by Edgar Guest.

Mrs. Ralph Vandervoort, R.N., of Stirling, demonstrated "How to Make a Patient's Tray Appetizing". She said—"First, prepare your patient", and the speaker demonstrated how to invalid a bed, with bed rest, from a suit case; a bed table, with an ironing board and wash cloth. How to wash the patient's face and hands. A good tray cloth sparkling silver, pretty china, a wee flower and appealing food. She urged feeding the patient slowly and nerve-acting as if the nurse in attendance was in a hurry.

Mrs. Vandervoort also gave a list of foods suitable for convalescent etc. She stressed dainty meals between seven meals, brushing up the crumbs from the bed and sterilizing the dishes.

Mrs. Percy Usman presided over the business portion of the meeting, and the treasurer reported a total of over $15.

Mrs. Sills was very glad to have Mrs. Roy Bush in attendance at the meeting following a period of illness. Several letters of thanks were read by the Secretary, Mrs. Thos. Hanna.

An invitation to visit Marsh Hill W.I. was accepted. It was decided to forward $10 for the needy children's fund.

Mrs. John Kane gave a full report of the last three sunshine parties held at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Hanna and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Bush with $30 for the treasury.

The April meeting will be held at the home of Valley School-house in the form of an open meeting.

Mrs. Harry Vandervoort, the convener of Social Welfare, then took charge and all enjoyed community singing of Irish songs with Mrs. Ralph Hanna as pianist.

Sixteen members answered roll call, "A Good Home Remedy in Case of an Emergency" and from these "A scraped raw potato for burns", "Soda dissolved in warm water for croup", and "Hold your finger tight over a bleeding artery and keep it there until the doctor arrives", are worth a special mention.

Mrs. Vandervoort then introduced the guest speakers on her group and the ladies in attendance, several of them mothers with small babies, thoroughly appreciated all the helpful information.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen voiced the thanks of the Institute to Mrs. Vandervoort and the nurses, who had contributed so much to the afternoon and all who helped with the program, and refreshments.

The program and refreshment committee served toasted cheese fondue and other appetizing food and all enjoyed a delightful social half-hour.

BARELY ESCAPE WITH LIVES

Coldwater, March 8 (CP) — Awakened by smoke about 11 o'clock, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pritchett and four small children barely escaped with their lives when the home they occupied near Warminster was destroyed by fire Monday night. They escaped through a bedroom window onto a roof and dropped to the snow-covered ground in their night clothes and bare feet.

Indian Girl Returning to Native Land

Toronto, March 8 — (CP) — Shirla Alsop, 21-year-old Indian girl, is leaving the skirts and sweaters she has worn for the past seven years in Canada and returning to her native land to begin work in nursery schools.

Miss Alsop, daughter of Mr. R. Alsop, Indian Trade Commissioner to Canada, is now busy making garb to take back with her. But first she feels she must catch up on the Indian language.

"I do speak English, I also speak Indian at home," she says, "but writing Indian is a different matter."

A dark, attractive girl, she has never had a date here and doesn't regret it.

"When I see some of the complimentary people get into what have dates, I think I am lucky. It is an Indian custom that an unmarried girl never appears alone with a man."

Armstrong's Asphalt Tile, unlike most other home improvements, is easier to obtain—and easier to pay for—than it was 10 years ago. It actually costs less today than it did in 1939!

A new floor of Armstrong's Asphalt Tile can be installed right over the concrete subfloor in a basement room or in a home without a basement. It is one type of resilient flooring that is not harmed by moisture or alkalis seeping up through concrete that is in direct contact with the ground.

It can be installed quickly, with little or no inconvenience. And, because it is laid tile by tile, you can enjoy the thrill of designing your own colourful new floor.

Flooring contractors everywhere in Canada are installing attractive, durable floors of Armstrong's Asphalt Tile. Ask any Armstrong contractor or dealer in your locality to show you colours and sample floor designs, or to give you an accurate, free estimate.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Why beauty is that which is believed Dahlrymple?

Why anyone should think that a man who was faithless to one woman will be any more faithful to another one is a mystery. It seems to be, however, a great many women who subscribe to that entirely baseless theory.

Such as, for instance, the little 22-old girl who writes me the following letter. She says she's been two years ago she met a young man who had just been discharged from the service. He took her out a number of times and she felt that she was falling in love with him. He knew how she felt about him and she says she told her she felt the same way about her. However, by soon, not another girl and married her a few months later.

"I love him very much," the first girl writes, "and I told his friend that since I had lost him I would never marry. This friend went and told him what I said. When he heard that, he told the friend to tell me that he wasn't very happy and that he intended leaving his wife for about six months, so that when he got back he would probably divorce him. He wants to know if I would wait for him till he comes back.

"Should I see him and talk to him about this, or should I just wait for him?"

Now, obviously, everybody makes mistakes, but it is the kind of mistake, and the manner in which it is handled, that shows up the sort of character a person has. And in particular case it seems to me that the character of the young man in question shows up as a pretty weak affair.

In the first place, when he told the girl that he was about her as she felt about him, he was either lying to her or else his emotions are so superficial that he quickly lost whatever feeling he had for her when the girl he later married came along. Either way he doesn't look good to me.

In the second place, having persuaded this other girl to marry him, presumably making her believe he loved her very much, as he now, after only a few months, changed his mind and is planning to get rid of her through a trick. In other words, he is going to desert her for a conventional legal period in the hope that she will bring a divorce action against him.

There is nothing in this whole story to give me the least bit of confidence that this young man will make anybody a good husband. On the contrary, everything the girl says about him points to the fact that he is extraordinarily selfish, thinks only of himself and has very shallow feelings. It is my opinion that if she is wise, she will neglect discuss the situation with him nor wait for him.

New Surprise Damask

By PRUNELLA WOOD

COTTON damask is rather a surprise fabric, for fashion that isn't quaint, to begin with, and when the cotton is of the new plastic treated variety which sheds wrinkles before they can crease, it's a great big surprise.

Tina Leser put her talented hands on some of this new fabric, and made the sundress for sophisticated sun circles, shown above. The color may be turquoise, tobacco brown or the brightest geranium red, which is this department's choice, so handsome with the lighter red of its typical damask weave. The frock is simplicity itself and beautifully cut; a short jacket to match is part of the outfit.

Visitor to Scotland Found Women Better Dressed Than Expected

Mrs. Jack English, a member of the Melrose Institute of Ontario, who has been in Shotts, Scotland, has recently returned home, a month's visit with her sister, Mrs. Waterson, and has many interesting items to report.

During her stay there, she visited several Women's Institutes, and established a link with the Melrose Institute on the Borders, and had the occasion to shake hands with the Right Honorable Herbert Morrison at a meeting in Shotts.

From a clipping from the Daily Record, Scotland, which Mrs. English brought home with her, recounting her interview with Louise Petrie, it states that:

Contrary to her expectations Mrs. English found the Scottish women more smartly dressed than those of her home town in Canada, that fruit, though not in abundance, was not a thing of the past, as the first thing she noticed in the shops was a display of oranges. Mrs. English had brought with her some oranges, and had anas thinking these would be a treat.

"As for the meals I've been having," stated Mrs. English, "There's nothing to complain about. Maybe what's true of Shotts isn't typical of the bigger towns, and perhaps we've been making a special effort. Still I'm agreeably surprised." "So perhaps, we're not so badly off after all!" adds the Shotts Daily Record of Thursday, February 10th.

COPIES OF BOOK SEIZED

Brantford, March 3 — (CP)— Seizure of approximately 130 copies of a book as a result of public complaints of obscenity in its pages was reported by city police.

The book is Irving Schulman's "The Amboy Dukes" and the seized copies are now held in the police station pending further action.

Officers of the morality squad visited several Brantford stores and seized all copies of the book which they could find.

BEAUTY

By ALICE ALDEN

Spring figure problems

Spring fashions are busting out all over. The stampede for dry goods has started; soon it will be all your little girlfriends will be cute frock or a light weight coat. You'll be trying them on with your hair on end. Why is it that a woman never looks as terrible as when she is selecting clothes? Or maybe she just thinks so.

She may discover that her nose, smooth and cute as it is, is not quite what it used to be. Is it possible that her calves have developed a bit? The waistline may look a bit larger. Those full-length triple mirrors reveal everything! They don't just hint about figure defects, they shout them. And, of course, every little number that is brought out has been designed, cut and put together so that the feminine shape of normal proportions.

A woman can be aware of unsightly changes that are not for the better, but often she denies them. She will not face them, and she won't do anything about them. They're like a sensitive tooth. One's mind says that one should toddle to the dentist. Wishful thinking makes one believe that the nasty pain will stop. Well, it won't. Nor will the figure improve without corrective exercises.

In grade school, high school and college, physical education is considered important. But let a girl finish college and she is through with all that. At the age of twenty-two she needs exercise just as much as when she was a growing teen-ager. If she has exercise, the youthful figure will remain with her. She can look a fat cell in the eye and make faces at it. It will never catch up with her. On a sound muscular system fat tissue will not develop. There are millions of women weeping and bawling about their over-curves who could have prevented them.

The stampede for dry goods has started

Regard exercise as a tiresome, tedious chore and you'll be a fashion-sitter all your life. Consider it fun and you will enjoy it. The rewards will be wonderful. You will keep your circulatory system dancing, and that means that you will have sparkling eyes and a colorful complexion. You'll enjoy good food; you'll sleep well. You'll pick high spirits out of the air as you bike or play tennis or go swimming in summer or skate in the winter season.

Twenty minutes of calesthenics every day will keep one in form. Any movements that pull hard on the middle section will help keep the waist-neat and trim. When the muscles of the middle of the body are exercised, the organs beneath them are massaged by muscular movements. The processes of digestion are stimulated. Jittery nerves are soothed.

Stand tall; extend the arms out from the shoulders; swing them from side to side, palms downward; pivoting at the waistline.

Cotton Skirt And Blouse

Brown and pink combination

By GRACE THORNCLEVE

HERE IS a blouse and skirt duo that adds up to a feminine little costume in cotton. The skirt, box-pleated all around, is of dark brown cotton poplin. For a nice color scheme, the blouse is of mauve-pink cotton with dark brown eyelet embroidery and scalloped edging on the collar, and there is a flared cuff at the elbow-length full sleeve.

SMALL CHANGE FOR NORWAY

Oslo — (CP) — A new smelting unit to be installed at the Norwegian mint at Kongsberg will mean a 30-per-cent increase in the output of small change. This is expected to be raised to 100 per cent in April when new shipments of Canadian nickel will have been delivered.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Today's good hint for good manners: It takes good manners to be good company!

Compartment serving-dishes serve well

For today's informal luncheons, dinners, and suppers, the servantless hostess is always on the lookout for good-looking convenient items that speed up the service but also make it simpler, more efficient. Here's a letter from a reader who has been given a three-compartment serving-dish and wonders about its correctness:

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For a Christmas present I was given a very decorative pottery serving-dish divided into three compartments. (It can be used either with or without the cover.) All the entertaining my husband and I do is informal. We have several friends to dine with us or, on Sunday, brunch parties or luncheons. Would it be proper to use this type of dish for these informal meals for the serving of two or three vegetables, or perhaps two vegetables and sauted peaches and apricots or some similar item?

H. R.

Yes, this would be most practical, entirely correct. These two-division or three-division dishes are so very convenient that they are now made in various materials, pottery, china, sterling and plate, silver, aluminum and so forth. In buffet service they have many uses too, particularly for two or three kinds of hot or heated rolls or biscuits.

Junior bridesmaids may be early arrivals

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

(1) In my bridal party I would like to have a maid of honor and, as junior bridesmaids, my two nieces, ten and eleven years old. Is this correct, when there are to be no other bridesmaids? (2) Our wedding reception will be a small one, for the immediate families only. Is it necessary for the bridal party to be lined up in line at the rear of the church, even though our church is very small? (3) My mother and father are dead, and I live with my sister. Is it necessary for my oldest brother to give me in marriage, or may a dear family friend do the honors?

M. S.

(1) You may correctly have your two young nieces as junior bridesmaids, even though you are to have no adult bridesmaids. They would walk together, preceding the maid of honor. (2) It is not necessary or is it customary for the couple to receive in the vestibule of the church. But if you particularly wish to do this and if it is convenient to your plans, it is entirely proper. Generally, if the vestibule is small, only the couple receive, with perhaps the two mothers standing opposite. (3) If your sister is married and her husband has been like a dear and brother to you, you might have him escort you up the aisle and have your sister, who has been your guardian, give you in marriage. This would be in more appropriate taste than having a family friend give you in marriage. Or you might have your oldest brother walk up the aisle with you, and have your sister give you in marriage.

Fashion Flashes

FLOWERS BLOOM cleverly atop the newest hats, the blossoms handled with charm and originality. One hat has a sort of inverted flower bowl silhouette. The low, sloping, round crown and slightly turned-up brim is of pink lisse-crinkle straw through which tiny white primulas stand out sharply on both brim and crown. Flat ties with pink velvet streamers.

IT WON'T be easy to select a Spring suit, for never was there such a wide and excellent choice. Tale of the year: Tweed flannel is used for the trig jacket of a smart suit, with curved collar and shoulder yoke, deep pleats and lining of silk pockets in deep mar-coal gray to match the skirt.

TAILORED lines mark some of the new silk suits and two-pieces. Steel blue silk flannel suit, making a handsome, tailored suit, the jacket with a stiffened peplum enhanced by elaborate swirls of appliqued shirred self bands. The slim skirt has a fly front tuck.

EASY-TO-WEAR styling marks many of the afternoon and after-dark clothes. Simply cut as a coat dress is an afternoon dress of fine black lace over black taffeta. A double rounded capelet collar serves as sleeves and points up the deep, wide neckline.

DRESSY daytime silk suits are appearing under coats now ready to step out on their own come warmer weather. Black faille, with a woven broken dot motif in white, makes a handsome suit. The fitted jacket closes with rhinestone-rimmed pearl buttons and has a full peplum that is gathered and slit in back to tie in with the back interest of the moderately full skirt.

THE NUDE look continues to influence footwear and resort shoe designers. Very new and newsy is an open, strapped sandal of pink plaid patent leather combined with pink suede! The suede strip winds around the ankle and three narrow bands cross the vamp to form the front of the shoe. Back quarter and heel are of pink patent leather.

AFRICAN EDUCATION

Kampala — (CP) — A British industrial firm is providing helps for natives in East Africa who are taking courses in higher education, by giving two scholarships at Makerre College here. These will enable students in this area to take a two to three year course in arts and sciences.

Kingston Nylons Edge Diesels 7-6 in Thrill-Packed Battle To Take First Game "B" Finals

By GEO. H. CARVER,
(Sports Editor)

In a thrill-packed battle that had eighteen hundred fans on edge throughout, the Kingston Nylons, flashing a powerful offensive and a hard-checking defence edged the CNR Diesels 7-6 in Memorial Arena last night to take the first game of the three-out-of-five finals in the district Senior "B" group.

The second game is scheduled for the Jock Harty Arena, Kingston, on Wednesday night.

The game last night was productive of practically the entire quota of hockey. It packed plenty of goals, plenty of penalties the most of which were not called, game delays, some slipshod refereeing in which the chief official allowed a goal, reported it to the scorer, then changed his mind and disallowed it, and in the main fast flowing hockey for the entire sixty minutes that had the crowd-packed arena echoing with vociferous thunder.

Udall, The Hero

The hero of the piece especially from the Nylon point of view was bespectacled Udy Udall, sensational betwinder of the Nylons. His work was spectacular especially in the first period when the hard-shooting Diesels banged sixteen shots at him with but eight returns from his fleet-footed mate after time he hurled back the Diesels threats, while Ready Nylon forward divisions were playing the Diesels at their own game, checking both ways and taking advantage of every scoring break that came their way.

By the same token, Maurice LeFort, playing with a bruised hand also deserves kudos, although he was not as sensational as Udall. Diesels outshot Nylons 36 to 24 on the night's play. LeFort suffered a severe injury to the other hand when he received a slash over the knuckles from an opposing player in the dying minutes of the game.

The actual turning point of the game came with four minutes to go in the third period.

Nylons had grabbed a one-goal lead going into the second period with the score 3-2, registered home two more in the first six minutes of the second period before the floundering Diesels got their hockey legs. They subsequently finished life and six minutes had fired home three goals to even the count. Nylons got one back at the period close to lead 5-4 going into the third period.

Goal Disallowed

Diesels surged to the attack in the third period and after a minute of play Gerry Goyer-Sherry brushed their way through the Nylon defence, Leo Goyer's shot it is claimed went high into the net and bounded out. The red light flashed, Referee Ab. Grant, Toronto, skated to the score box and gave out the official information. The Nylon player surged around goal judges net, some of them poking their sticks at the guardian of that flimsy fort. Came a lengthy argument and the referee changed his mind and his decision and disallowed the goal.

L. Goyer Gets Two

Stung by the incident, Diesels roared to the attack and this time Leo Goyer made no mistake with a pretty goal. The same player put Diesels in the lead for the first time in the game with another nice effort at the twelve minute mark.

Ken Parris, who scored four goals for the Nylons flashed down the ice in a breakaway play with Catlin and Blake a minute later and again the score was tied.

Then came the bad break for Diesels. Clare Williamson drew a penalty and Nylons went in for the kill. Scarcely three times in for a minute then Vern Goyer was waved to the sin-bin and Diesels were two men short with three minutes to go. Nylons went up in a five man attacking wave and Parris scored from Gerow and Stevenson to give Nylons a six-five lead and what ultimately proved, the victory.

Parris Scores Four

Ken Parris was the outstanding sniper for the Nylons adding an extra bend to his hat trick with four goals. He was one of the outstanding players on the ice with Joe Catlin who scored one of the prettiest goals of the night when he rounded the Diesel pet and poked in the rubber. Blake and McKeown starred for the winners, Walt Gerow scored a goal and assisted on two others. McKeown got the remaining Nylon tally.

Jackie Wardhaugh played one of the best games of the night scoring on two great solo efforts despite the fact that he was interfered twice and had to be taken off for repairs. Leo Goyer also acquitted for the Diesels with a pair of goals and an assist while Jim Williams, with one goal, Gerry Mober, Barrett and MacDonald stood out on the front lines. Vern Goyer and Speedy St. Louis, the latter playing his best game of the season, Williamson and Storms did well behind the blueline for the homesters.

The game was delayed for over a half-hour due to the non-appearance of Referee Ab. Grant of Toronto. Further delays were caused by arguments and adjustments to one of the nets. Seven penalties were handed out, four of them going to Diesels.

Diesels yanked goalie LeFort in the last 40 seconds of the game in a futile effort to tie the score.

The teams:

Nylons: Goal, Udall; defence, White, Kerluk; centre, McKeown; wings, Harrison, Greenham; subs, Parris, Catlin, Gerow, Stevenson, Sweetman, Keys, Blake.

C.N.R. Diesels: Goal, LeFort; defence, V. Goyer, Storms; centre, L. Goyer; wings, Williams, Mober; subs, Barrett, MacDonald, Wardhaugh, Bastedo, Al. Meaghey, J. Schaefe, St. Louis, Flumley, Williamson.

"No Raiding" Rule Ignored By Some Teams

Kitchener, March 8 (CP)—Intercounty Baseball Association officials today were investigating charges that a new "no raiding" rule is being ignored by member clubs.

The charges was made last night by Bill Farquharson of London Majors who said that three London players, shortstop Don Cooper, second baseman Wacky McEachon and pitcher Tommy White, had been approached.

Although Farquharson declined to mention names, John Burgess of St. Thomas Saints, new senior entry, said the shift was obviously pointed at his club.

After denying that the St. Thomas Club had approached the trio he said that all three of them had been to St. Thomas to see what could be done about getting some baseball action here."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

THEY DOOD IT!

One down—and four to go. Last night's rejuvenated rollicking roughshod sample of hockey between the CNR Diesels and the peppy Nylons, proved, if proof were needed, a doubt that anything can happen in a hockey game or series—that schoolais records do not mean anything in a playoff series, and the whala caboose is not over until the final piccolo has tooted "Taps."

•

Nylons, playing by far the best game of the season, adopted the style of hockey that carried Diesels through the schedule undefeated, and it paid off, despite some very ordinary officiating on the part of Referee Ab Grant. Nylons flashed fifty-sixty-minute hockey, grabbed every opportunity of the first water and led by the canny Catlin and potent Parris and aided beyond all measure by Udy Udall in the twined citadel, took advantage of every opportunity to set doughty Diesels back on their roundheels.

•

To Mr. Udall go two of the three mythical stars. How the flying Diesels passed by Barrett, MacDonald and Wardaugh, did not score at least five goals in that flaming first period, is inconceivable. Udy threw out of this world and deserves the highest praise for a sensational effort. Up front his shock troops paid off with six goals. They played their positions well and their checking at occasional lapses of the Diesels defence is "cover their man."

•

At that, it was a nip-and-tuck battle after the Diesels flung back on their haunches by a Nylon three goal lead in the second period, finished back to score a trio to even the count. The disallowed goal which a lot of people claim was in the net—and a lot of others (Editor included) say it did not, was no help to the Diesel morale. It may have been a goal, and it may not have been. It's cased on the line judge's view was, and then listen to argument which changed his mind and decision. It seems to me that a referee, especially the OHA variety in important playoff games should at first ascertain variety in important playoff games should at first ascertain what actually happened, if possible then make his decision.

•

Diesels trek to Kingston on Wednesday night—and they'll need all that Wednesday afternoon to rest up if that team plays the same calibre of hockey as it did last gleaming. It should be a thriller—and the Diesels are grimly determined, after last night's setback, that their services will be all even when the smoke of battle has cleared.

JUNIORS TONIGHT

Tonight the Rockets Juniors take on the winners of the Kingston district and North place series in the Junior "B" group semi-finals in the first of a home-and-home series. Rockets are expected to be at full strength after the week's rest are ready to take on whatever the Kingston results produce. The Rocks are a battling team and when they're fired they're an important the city can give them. They are still undefeated and will go all out tonight to maintain that record. Let's get out and cheer the boys on to their first playoff win of the year.

•

Two years ago, or thereabouts we sat in the spacious sports hangar at the Trenton Air Station watching a couple of beak-busters go through their paces. Beak-busters, for the benefit of RCAF men was on the training, roaring, gesticulating, shaking fists at imaginary opponents in fact, going through all gestures of a free-for-all. Harvisbeak, Hurricane-jaded and looking for opportunities to convert live bodies into mangled corpses.

•

In the ring, terses airliners with sweat—pardon—perspiration, the two gladiators with the splendid names were going at each other with all the abandon of a couple of tom-cats tail-tied thing over a clothes-line. Occasionally one would wind up like a baseball pitcher and hurl a leather-encased fist in the general direction of his opponent. Sometimes it landed, sometimes it didn't. Overhead, throaty smoke-laden air with a sound like a "jet" streaking for the home hangar after a tough day in the circuit. Meanwhile both battle-jetted beakarees were going through terpsichorean manoeuvres in a wild samba-rumba, sno-step, conga effect that would make Fred Astaire look like a guy with two wooden pins.

•

The footwork was out of this world. Occasionally a glycol fist would career the sweat-streaked body, jaw or noggin of one of the swiftly moving fighters and the sound like the bass drum effects in a big band.

The boys whirled around the ring in streaks of white bodies, bared teeth, protruding eyes and wind-milling fists. It was the best show of the night and easily stole the flatfooting thunder.

•

The slashing smashing flashing pair of beak-busters were Glen Dafoe, the Pride of Trenton and Eddie Senos, a resident of the Sault and Canadian Air Force, a lot of whom are in this little ability. In fact he moves with all the slow indolent grace of a streak of lightning, and while you're watching his deft pedal manipulations, out of the blue will flash a leather-padded fist that gently but firmly caresses you on the button, or any other part of your anatomy that is at the moment vulnerable.

•

Glen Dafoe is well-known to the boxing fraternity here and in his home town of Trenton, for his windmill style of attack that he maintains consistently through the fight, has made him a popular fighter with fandom here. Some claim his roundhouse right that whirls through the air like an overgrown corkscrew and lands somewhere in the vicinity of the short ribs, is illegal. Others, including referees who should know, say differently. In any event its just as well to be visiting the neighbor door when Dafoe throws that dynamite-laden fist at you.

•

All this leads up to the fact that this pair of speedy lads will go at each other again in the forthcoming boxing show being staged by the RCAF at Trenton Wednesday, March 16th. Sergeant "Mike" Kelly, that ubiquitous man-of-all-sports at the station, informs us that the show will be the "mostest" that has ever taken place in the place. Besides the main bout between Senos and Dafoe, nine other scraps with boxers from the station, Belleville, Trenton, Kingston Navy, Picton Army and other camps in action.

•

The show will have all the color synonymous with Royal Canadian Air Force events. Aid by way of added attraction, if any is needed, the canary bird Lieut. Clint Small will be in attendance. Holders of lucky admission tickets will be presented with monogrammed shirts, six all told. There'll be plenty of fun and a grand evening entertainment is in store for lovers of the manly art. First bout gets under way at 8 o'clock. Don't mention it, Mike (Kelly, that is) You're welcome.

•

And just in passing, to revert back to young Mr. Senos who as present is stationed at Aylmer, Ont., he reached the finals trials for the Olympic boxing team. Dafoe has fought some of the best boys in the province and swings the boxing scalps of some well-known back-seaters on his belt.

•

The Belleville District Baseball League is holding its annual meeting in Elwards Cafe on Thursday of this week, with the conclave scheduled to start at 8 o'clock. Plans has signified their willingness to enter a team, while Lions is seriously considering fielding a baseball team this summer. Representatives of last year's squads are requested to attend. There will be election of officers and the usual business session.

CLUB APPEALS JUDGMENT

Toronto, March 8 (CP)— An appeal by four officials of the Goderich Hockey Club against the award of $4,893 damages to Murdock M. MacDonald, spectator at a hockey game in the Goderich rink, who tumbled to the ice when supports of a balcony gave way, will be heard today.

MacDonald was awarded damages last July but his action against the town of Goderich, owner of the rink, was dismissed. Harry G. Babb, operator of the rink, was included as a defendants when the award was made, but he is not appealing the judgment.

Appellants are Ivan Lounsbury, Walter Westbrook, Arnold Dusk and Don Paquette, comprising the Goderich directorate.

Norm Thompson Wins Decision Over McFater

Brockville, Ont. March 8 (CP)—Nimble-footed Norm Thompson of Brockville last night pounded out a unanimous five-round decision over Toronto's hard-punching Alan McFater in the main event of the Brockville Boxing Club's six-foot amateur card.

In five preliminary matches, between Ottawa and Brockville boxers, Ottawa came up with one win by George Labreque who scored a first round technical knockout over Jimmy Wise in a three-round match.

In the main bout, Thompson, who was decisioned by McFater, in his two previous meetings, came up with one of his better performances and was awarded four rounds by the judges.

Weighing in at 143 pounds, the local boy featured his flicking left hand that brought blood to McFater's nose in the second round. However, McFater, who weighed 139 pounds, rallied in the third and caught Thompson with some hard jabs. At one time he had Thompson on the ropes, but a flurry of right and left hooks failed to put him away.

LEGION WINS TWO STRAIGHT

Lindsay, March 8 (CP)— Peterborough Legion made it two straight in their best-of-five OHA senior B group finals by whipping Toronto Meteors 6-2 Monday night. Bill Crowley, with two Bert Hill, Joe Rocherlu, Bob Greenlaw and Bob Parnell were the Peterborough marksmen. Scott Bell and Robbie Robertson tallied for Meteors.

Amazing Durnan In Line For Three Trophies

Montreal March 5 (CP)—Spurring the Calder and Lady Byng trophies, almost every National Hockey League honor seems available today to goalie Bill Durnan.

The Calder trophy is the rookie award, and Bill, a veteran of six years with Montreal Canadiens is hardly that.

He could grab the Lady Byng award for the league's most gentlemanly player. While goalies aren't considered to have enough opportunity to show their polished manners in the welter of action, Bill ranks high in that department. But it's far from likely.

Here are the other top awards his-year-old Bill could grab as the basis of his record:

Hart Trophy, for the most valuable player to his club.

Nomination to the first all-star team.

These aren't empty honors. Each has a cash award of $1,000 to go with the all-winners.

Let's see how big Bill rates for those honors.

Almost Certain to Win Vezina

First, he's almost certain to win the Vezina. In 45 out of 50 regular league games, Bill has played. He's almost impossible to pucks. His nearest foe is Detroit's Harry Lumley with 38 games and 1,134 goals in 38 games. Durnan also has nine shut-outs.

What about the Hart? Well, Durnan has almost single handedly pushed Canadiens up into second place with the greatest individual performance of the season. A couple of weeks ago, Montreal was worried about gaining the last of the three playoff positions. Then Bill, good all season (except for one bad night when New York pushed nine pucks past him), started to warm up. He now has 27 straight shut-outs to his credit and has gone 283 minutes and 43 seconds

Doug Bentley And Conacher To Split Money

Montreal, March 5 — (CP) — Doug Bentley and Lorne Doer of the Monday decided to split an individual pot of gold in a last-ditch effort to help their Chicago Black Hawks into the National Hockey League play-offs.

Either Doug or Doug is a cinch for the N. H. L. scoring championship—worth $1,000 to the winner and $500 to the runner - up. The teammates have been playing tag with each other all season at the top of list and today Doug, who is second, holds a 18 point lead over the nearest threat — Sid Abel of Detroit.

Pete Chicago, a new team, isn't doing so well. With only five games remaining on the regular schedule, the Hawks are eight points behind Toronto Maple Leafs, who hold down fourth spot, last play-off berth.

Monday the Hawk management announced that Roy and Doug had agreed to split the $1,500 first and second money.

"They realized it would help the team to know that there would be no two-man race for points at a possible cost of missing the play-offs," Manager Johnny Gottselig said.

During the last week, Conacher picked up four points to run his total to 66 — 30 goals and 41 assists. Bentley got three points to hold second place nearly with 64 points — 25 goals and 43 assists.

Tread Certainties

Abel, best of the rest, has got 59 points and 25 assists for 84 points and, as both Detroit and Chicago have only five games remaining before the end of the regular season, that makes Conacher and Bentley virtual certainties to be picking up $750 cheques each as top men.

With one exception, Hawks and Wings dominate the whole top-scoring picture.

Three points back of Abel comes Jim Conacher of the Hawks. In fifth spot four men are tied — Ted Lindsay and Bud Polis of Detroit, Gus Bodnar of Chicago and Harry Watson of Toronto. Each has 41 points.

Conacher's 25 goals are the most scored by any player and Bentley has more assists than anybody else.

Bill Durnan of Montreal Canadiens tops the goalkeepers in all departments. Big Bill has allowed 119 goals in 45 games for a goals against average of 2.20. Next best is Detroit's Harry Lumley with a 2.44 percentage. Durnan also is top man in shutouts with nine.

Bill Reichelt still tops the penalty list. The Toronto winger has racked up 134 minutes in penalty time.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, March 5 — (AP) — Harry Mendel, who has a nose job as Joe Louis' publicity man, maintained it was Joe's own idea to go into fight promotions. All Harry did, he says, was to convince him it was better to hook up with wealthy backers — and make the connection with Jim Morris and Art Wirtz . . . Bill Dickerson, a pitcher who'll try out with Syracuse Chiefs in the International League this spring, started out to be an umpire. He soon found he was better as a pitcher, and got a 20-12 record for Miami in the Florida International last year.

Earl Torgeson, Boston Braves' chief laugh-provoker, wasn't exactly pleased when manager Nitty Southworth ordered sliding practice the other day . . . It was he who blamed hot . . . so when nobody was looking, Torgy lit a match and dropped it into the wood chips in the sliding pit . . . Doc Young, the grounds keeper, organized a volunteer fire department to extinguish the fire and, for punishment, Torgy had to make the first slide.

without permitting an enemy counter. That's the fourth best performance of its kind in N.H.L. history.

That would make him a pretty good candidate for the Hart, even though only one goalie (Roy Worters of the old New York Americans) has ever won the award.

Belleville Rockets swing into the first game of the Junior "B" group semi-finals in Memorial Arena tonight when they take on the Kingston winners of the second and fourth place series. The game will be the first of a two-of-three series and Rockets are favored to win. They swept the schedule in ten straight games and at full strength they should soon through to the group title. Above are pictured three Rockets stalwarts who will see action this evening. Roy Truesell, high-scoring centre; Tommy Schreider, hard-hitting defenceman and Bill MacKay stellar net guardian.

Training Camp Notes

(By The Associated Press)

General Manager Billy Evans arrived in Detroit Tigers' camp at Lakeland, Fla., today with continued optimism that Detroit still might make a deal for added pitching strength.

A couple of months ago the Browns rejected $140,000 cash, plus second baseman Nell Berry and outfielder Earl Rapp.

Ewell Blackwell is the big "if" of Cincinnati Reds in their first spring training season under manager Bucky Harris.

Little hope for improvement in the Reds' seventh-place finish of last season can be seen unless the ailing Blackwell, who reported at camp 15 to 20 pounds underweight, can gain a semblance of his 1947 form.

Thin and gaunt after undergoing a serious kidney operation as recently as Jan. 20, Blackwell probably won't be able to take a turn on the mound for six more weeks. But he's sure he'll be as good as ever.

Gene Woodling, outfielder up from San Francisco, stands a good chance to stick with the New York Yankees in the opinion of manager Casey Stengel. Woodling was Pacific Coast League's batting championship last year. Stengel says Woodling is "fast and he can field and throw and from the look of that average (.385) he has learned to hit, too."

One of the most promising rookies in the camp of the New York Giants is outfielder Gail Henley Harris, a graduate of Southern California. Henley has been described as "another Enos Slaughter" and is expected to fill the main slot in a few more years.

Boston's Red Sox now are all present or accounted for except outfielder Dom DiMaggio, hugger with the Southern Association's Birmingham Barons last season.

Ontario, B.C. And Manitoba Win Two Games

Hamilton, March 5. (CP)—The ancient game of curling is a non-betting sport and anybody who follows it wouldn't bet a nickel on Manitoba's chances of winning the Dominion championship. But rinkside experts at the 1949 competition figure skip Ken Watson is in.

Manitoba, now in a first-place tie with Ontario and British Columbia with two victories each at the end of two rounds, is tabbed the "surest" bet to end the four-day round-robin tournament in the No. 1 slot.

Watson isn't talking of his chances—"it's a slippery game and anything can happen," he says—but the form his rink has shown in Monday's opening day play stamps the Winnipeggers as the big threats. They are masters of the draw game, their chap-and-in style is the best shown amongst the 1 rinks (two from Ontario) competing for the title and followers claim their knockout style comprises favorably with that of any rink in the title hunt.

The Winnipeg foursome showed its style Monday when it pulled out with a first-round 17-8 victory over New Brunswick and followed with a thumping 15-9 decision over the strong Saskatchewan rink. The chips were down in the Saskatchewan game and an 11th-and five-rock coune by the Manitobans clinched victory.

Meet Quebec in 3rd Round

Up to that point it was a 10-8 game in Manitoba's favor and the way things were going it was touch and go.

Manitoba meets Quebec in the third round this morning and followers give the easterners little chance of victory. This is followed by an afternoon set-to with Northern Ontario.

Ontario and British Columbia tangle in the morning round while the B.C. rink meets Alberta in the fourth round and Ontario's fourth game is scheduled against Prince Edward Island.

The "Cinderella" rink of the tournament—Alberta's four-man combination from little-known Blackie in the southern section of the province—is the most popular outfit in the field but its supporters haven't had much to cheer about.

Skipped by Stuart Beagle, Alberta started the competition with a 10-8 loss to Prince Edward Island and bowed 12-9 to Ontario in the second. It now is in a last-place tie with New Brunswick and Quebec with two wins each, one slot lower than P.E.I., Saskatchewan, Nova Scotia and Northern Ontario to have a record of one loss and one victory each.

Ontario, skipped by the oldest competitor on the tourney roster, 69-year-old Pete Gilbert of Chatham, followed up an 11-9 first-round victory over Nova Scotia with its 13-9 decision over the Alberta foursome in the second day draw.

British Columbia stayed in the running with a decisive 15-7 verdict over New Brunswick, following up its 16-13 slam-bang triumph over Northern Ontario in the first round.

Wins First in Two Years

Prince Edward Island won its first game in two years of Dominion competition with its surprising 10-8 victory over Alberta in the first round but the rink couldn't stand success and dropped a 14-7 decision to Northern Ontario's hard-rock mining quartet in the second draw.

In their match with British Columbia's representatives in the first draw, the Northern Ontario's quartet scored four in the final end but their rally was too late to catch the west coast rink. British Columbia, matched Northern Ontario's knockout style of play throughout.

Northern Ontario had two three-ends and one four-end while B.C. came up with one four-end-er, one three-end-four twos.

Ontario's Chatham rink had a tough time before edging out Nova Scotia 11-9 in its first round match. Leading 10-8 going into the final end, it took the last rock of the game, tossed by Gordon Gilbert, son of the veteran skip to clinch the match.

With one Nova Scotia rock biting the button which would tie the score and force the game into an extra end, Gordon took it out with a beautifully-aimed draw shot to give Ontario the point.

The championships were officially declared open by State Secretary Gibson, assisted by Senator H. D. Haig of Winnipeg, who tossed two rocks—both cleared the House—and Hon. Thane Campbell, Chief Justice of Prince Edward Island who swished the broom.

Junior Marlies In Finals First Time in 20 Yrs.

(By The Canadian Press)

Today, for the first time in 20 years, Toronto Marlboros have a clear road to the Ontario Hockey Association junior 'A' finals.

Last night the Dukes disposed of St. Catharines Tigers 4-3 to win their best-of-five semi-final series in three straight games. They now will meet Barrie Flyers for the title.

And it was black-haired George Armstrong who was the big gun. The rangy right-winger garnered two goals and assisted on two others as he led his Marlies to victory.

Armstrong, always a spearhead of the Dukes' offensive, more than proved he was equal to the 50,000 Toronto paid Stratford Kreuthers for him early in the season.

It was Armstrong's third period goal that clinched the game, after he had tallied once and got two assists in the first period.

However, all the laurels won't go to Armstrong. Little Jerry Lockhart's sterling game in the Toronto nets aided in the victory, too.

Lockhart stopped numerous drives in the second period, and turned them away with the coolness and agility seldom seen in junior company.

The Dukes moved into a 3-1 lead in the first period. They were outscored 2-0 in the second but then got the only goal of the last session. Lorne Pirie got the other two Toronto goals, while Ron Switzer, Tom Buck and Chick O'Brien counted for St. Catharines.

Marlies went ahead before the first period was two minutes old when Pirie tallied on a three-way play with Armstrong and Howie Lee. The Toronto trio set Buck and Switzer got the equalizer minutes later on a goal-mouth scramble. The Dukes pulled away again when Pirie and Armstrong tallied.

In the second stanza, the Tigers turned on the pressure. Midway through the period they finally beat Lockhart when Buck got his goal—and less than three minutes later tied it up on O'Brien's marker.

In a hectic third-period the Tigers did everything but score and lost heart when Armstrong got his second goal before the mark.

No O. H. A. games are scheduled tonight.

Tomorrow night Toronto Marlboros Seniors meet Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen in the third game of their best-of-seven senior A finals. The Dukes lead the series 2-0.

CALUMETS EDGE VOLANTS

Ottawa, March 5 — (CP) — Sparked by Mickey Finnigan who scored two goals, Cornwall Calumets Monday night edged out Hull Volants 6-5 to take the lead in a best-of-seven series for the Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League championship, 3-2.

Cornwall coveted Hull in the first frame to chalk up a 4-0 lead with Finnigan's two-goal effort and goals by Samuelson and Gervais.

The Volants bounced back in the game when Gilles Bourdon scored the only second-period marker and Bilodeau, L'Esperance and Seguin scored singletons in the third stanza.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

It is no secret that only 13 tricks can be taken in any one bridge deal. Still, each individual hand could have a count of 13. So, a total count of 52 tricks could be in all four hands.

For instance, south could have 13 clubs, west 13 diamonds, north 13 hearts, east 13 spades. Despite this total of 52 in all, no more than 13 tricks can be taken by both pairs.

The tricks you count are good at your own trump suit. But at an opponent trump suit, even your aces and kings may not come home. Even if there is a light burning in the window.

Fear not the seeming danger of a preponderence of tricks in a pair. A sound system prevents overbidding. In Horse Sense this is averted by the four no-trump ace and king showing convention.

Out came this set of handz:

NORTH
♠ None
♥ J 5 4 3
♦ A K J 6
♣ A J 4 2

WEST EAST
♠ A K J 6 5 3 2 ♠ 10 9 8
♥ 10 7 ♥ K 8 6
♦ Q 9 2 4 ♦ 10 8 7 3 2
♣ None ♣ 8 7 6 5

SOUTH
♠ Q 7 4
♥ A Q 2
♦ 10 9 5
♣ Q 10 9 3

West was the dealer and opened with a spade. He had a couple of tricks more than called by his opening. And in competition he overbid his hand later in an attempt to sacrifice.

But opponents also kept bidding and finally bought the contract. They ended in hearts. When the final play was over, south and north turned up with 13 tricks taken by their side.

Opening lead from east was the spade ten. North ruffed and led back a small trump. This was successfully finessed with dummy queen. Declarer was returned, north intending to finesse.

The west king on this trick took the guess out of it. Club ace won and heart jack was returned. If east refused to cover, west ten would fall and the king would die to the ace on the next round.

When opponent trumps were gone, a diamond finesse stood up, too. Another break came when diamonds broke three and three. With all three horsehoes, declarer was in there pitching a grand slam.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 8 — (AP)— Paramount seems to be zooming ahead in the race to get a jet flight picture on the screen.

"Jet Fighter" is getting high priority on Alan Ladd's busy schedule. He may start the film after he finishes "After Midnight." Meanwhile R.K.O.'s "Jet Pilot" is still in the scripting stage and no starting date is announced for Warners' "Jet."

Gable and Goddard

Clarke Gable's vehicles being whipped up by Preston Sturges sounds like a dilly. Clark will play a tycoon who suffered a breakdown and is told by his doctor to slow down. So Clark goes to a small town for a rest. He ends up by reorganizing the town and working as hard as ever.

Paulette Goddard has been dropping hints that she'd like to play the dumb mistress in "Born Yesterday." It would mean a repeat with Brod Crawford, who is appearing with her in "Anna Lucasta."

M.G.M. rousted out its stars again for a portrait by a national magazine. To avoid any protocol, the names were seated alphabetically.

Two Smart Men

John Payne has a smart plan to fit current conditions. "Whenever I sign for a picture, I promise to help exploit it by tours or any other means," he tells me.

Charles Coburn keeps busy enough at 71. He goes from "The Western Story" to "It Had to Happen" to body Does It" at 20th-Fox to "Bodies and Souls" at M.G.M.

Norwood Ousts Frankford-Combines

8-4 In Valley Loop

Frankford — In the third and deciding game of the "B" series of the Trent Valley Hockey League playoffs, Frankford-Batawa Combines went down to defeat at the hands of the Norwood club, by a score of 8-4. Frankford-Batawa lead 2-0 at the end of the first period, but their team completely fell to pieces in the second period, in which Norwood banged home six goals. The third period was pretty well an even, each team scoring twice. Ross Mason led the Combines with two goals. The game, witnessed by a large crowd, almost half of which were supporters of the visiting team, was a very slow, dragey affair, as the ice was extremely soft.

The ironical part of this contest was the fact that Norwood is reported to have entered a protest against Frankford after the first period, for using Schmidt. Norwood had protested Frankford-Batawa that they would not protest their use of Schmidt.

Colorful Figure Sol Bloom, Dies

Washington, March 8 — (AP) — Representative Sol Bloom, who rose from a childhood of nearby-poverty to riches and world prominence, died suddenly Monday night.

The colorful New York Democrat, chairman of the foreign affairs committee of the House of Representatives and a familiar figure in the United States capital for most of his 70 years, was stricken with a heart attack almost on the eve of his 70th birthday.

The veteran legislator's death caught him at the top of a fabulous career. It included such varied pursuits as song-writing, selling, business enterprises — which are reported to have made him a millionaire before he was 30 — and finally a seat in Congress and a position as one of the most prominent makers of American foreign policy.

Thumb the record books and ask your memories because here are a couple of claims that might be hard to beat:

Sutton, Que. (population 967) on the shores of Lake Simcoe, points to its hockey team's defence combination of Ellis Pringle and Bud Gilbey as the heaviest-ever in organized hockey, amateur or professional.

The combined weight—without pads, that is—totals 505 pounds.

George Is Bashful

Insurance agent George Grant, 46, holds a defence position with the intermediate "B" Paisley Flyers Scotsmen in the Western Ontario Amateur Association. He's bashful about claiming a record—"Aw, I wouldn't go that far," he says—but the rest of the town will stack his career against anybody ... 86 years as an active hockey player.

George has just finished a 17-game schedule and, by gosh, he's played nearly 30 minutes a game, scored 14 goals and had "quite a few" assists. In 1918 he was with Chesley juniors in the Ontario Hockey Association—he was a left-winger those days—and played against the late Howie Morenz who then lined up with Stratford.

This is his last season, but Paisley residents wouldn't be surprised if he turned out again next year.

No Rough Stuff

Bud and Ellis play for Sutton Intermediate "B" club in the O.H.A. Bud, service station attendant and six-foot-one, goes 258 pounds and Ellis, six-foot-two resort operator who had a four-month fling with the now-defunct New York Americans of the N.H.L. in 1929, tips the scales at 245 pounds.

Feature Race May be Increased To Mile, 70 Yards

The distance of the Coronation Stakes, a fall feature run in Toronto for Canadian bred two-year-olds, may be increased to a mile and 70 yards. Present distance is one mile.

The Ontario Jockey Club originally planned to make the change for the 1951 running of the Futurity. When horsemen suggested that the distance be changed for this year's race, the club asked breeders if they would agree. Two-breeders' replies to a questionnaire still are awaited.

The National Boxing Association agreed to recognize the winner of a heavyweight fight promoted by Joe Louis as the world's champion to avoid "an endless and pointless scramble," Commissioner Abe J. Greene said Monday at Paterson, N. J. Louis has matched Ezzard Charles and Jersey Joe Walcott in June, with the winner taking on Lee Savold or Gus Lesnevich late in the year. Greene, of N. B. A.'s blessing on Louis' promotion didn't, however, head off a scramble. Within a few hours a variety of promoters had announced "tournaments for the world's championship."

A blow on the forehead from a hockey puck caused the death yesterday in Rolla, N. D., hospital of Fred Harlin Sarkisliahl, 15, a member of the Rolla High School hockey team. An autopsy disclosed the death was caused by a blood clot.

Sid Smith of Pittsburgh Hornets continued to build up his lead over Carl Liscombe of Providence Reds last week in scoring honors of the American Hockey League, it was announced at New York with only two weeks of the schedule left Smith has compiled 103 points to the 97 by Liscombe.

Some claim might be made about the playing poundage of George and Howard McNamara, the Sault Ste. Marie "gold-dust twins," but they were 23 pounds lighter than Sutton's quarter combine. Howard, now dead, went 245 and George, Toronto millionaire construction company owner, scaled 10 pounds less.

Ellis, 38, and Bud, 29, certainly don't toss the boys around like Taffy Abel and Ching Johnson rough roustabouts with New York Rangers in the late '20s, whose combined playing weight was 440 pounds. Taffy scaled 220 and Ching 210.

And the Eddie Shore - Babe Siebert combination with Boston in the '30s was another season in the pre-war years was a comparative lightweight twosome. Shore's weight then was 100 and the Babe's 182.

Hollander Wins Muddled Mile In Record Time

Montreal, March 8 (CP) — A lot of confusion and difficult looking today for the lost lap in Willy Slykhuis' Canadian Legion mile and for some fancy opposition to toss at Harrison Dillard.

Holland's flier won the muddled mile, the American Negro hurdler-sprinter upset Canadian records and mile crowd of 8,000 in Montreal Forum Monday night was happy.

Somewhere during the mile run some officials miscalculated on the number of laps around, and instead of going 13 laps the runners went 12 and a half. When bewildered timers thought Sylkhuis had set an undreamed of mark for an indoor mile.

The midgets and juveniles took the limelight in the early stages of the meet—the Canadian indoor championships—and a clever aggregation of youngsters from the North Track Club won the team championship.

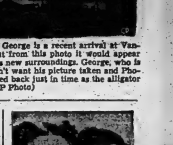
Dillard's graceful, speedy performance was won easily for him the 50-yard hurdles event. He broke in front at the start and won going away from Kim Kimbark of North Toronto and Ken Wagner of McGill University.

After lowering the Canadian indoor record of 6.2 seconds to 6.1 in his heat, Dillard galloped over the hurdles in the final in 6.2.

Wasn't Even Pressed

He wasn't pressed either in the 70-yard dash. He won his heat in 8.2, against the Canadian record of 8.3, and took the final in 8.3. Don Pettie of Calgary, trackman at Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa, was second and Don Stonehouse, North Toronto's former sprint sensation, was third.

Neither the crowd nor the runners appeared to know when or how the Legion mile shrunk from 1,670 to 1,618 yards. The runners simply kept going until the laps were flagged.



Tom Wittreich of Princeton University fought it out with Slykhuis on the final lap. The Hollander won by a comfortable height on and won by two strides. The announcement of the abbreviated distance was 3:54.7.

Gordon Haight of Hamilton, representing the Queen's University of Kingston, romped off with the 1,000 yards open title. Ed O'Connor of Tufts was second and C. Bracco of North Toronto third. Haight's time was 2:19.7.

East York's relay team from Toronto won the mile relay with six.

WHAT BIG TEETH YOU HAVE! George is a recent arrival at Vancouver's Stanley Park Zoo but from this photo it would appear he is none too happy about his new surroundings. George, who is four feet long, decided he didn't want his picture taken and Photographer Claude Detloff jerked back just in time as the alligator made a lunge for his hand. (CP Photo)

AT THE BELLE — Betty Garrett and Mickey Rooney add to the laughs and lilt of "Girls and Music," MGM Technicolor musical based on the lives and music of Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart. The spectacular film now at the Belle, also stars June Allyson, Perry Como, Gene Kelly and a host of stars.

AT THE CAPITOL — Richard Widmark plays the sailor who double-crosses Gregory Peck and Anne Baxter in "Yellow Sky," the taut and exciting 20th. Century-Fox hit now showing for the first time in Belleville until Saturday with daily matinee at 2.30 p.m.

McGill second and Queen's third. The winning time was 3:35.5.

In the team competition North Toronto was announced the winner with 40 points. Nearest was West Hill, Montreal, with 10, followed by Hamilton's C.C.I., with six.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

It was starting to go out with me to help her carry things home from the market, and all of a sudden-I remembered I stopped reading my new lybrery book rite in the middle of a chapter, and I thawt. Heck, I wish I knew the end of that chapter.

And I said, G. ma, I forgot something.

What, again? ma said. I hope to live to see the day you remember something for a change, she said, and I said, I'll be back in a second, ma, wait a minute.

And I quick ran up to my room and got my lybrery book and read the rest of the chapter as fast as lightning — by partly reading and partly skipping, and then I ran down again, saying, I had to do a guy a favor, ma.

I wish you wouldn't call people guys, and what guy are you talking about? ma said, and I said, Oh, a guy named Dick Manly. He's always getting in trubble and out again, I said.

What kind of trubble for land sakes? ma said. and I said, All kinds. For instance this tune he was a prisner in a submarine being taken to his execution, and he knew a way to get out, but there was sharks in the water all around, so it seemed like a bum way to escape, I said.

Do you mean to say you're talking about something that happened in a book? ma said, and I said, Sure, ma, but if it happened to you, you would not want people to stop finding out the result in the middle of a chapter, would you? So-I'll tell you what Frank Manly did, I said

Never mind, thank you, I dont care to know, now come on, ma said.

Which I did without telling her about Frank Manly overpowering the crew by opening a tank of sleeping gas and then steering the submarine himself till he reached frendly waters.

Vast Iron Ore Deposits in Labrador To Play Leading Role in Steel Industry

BY DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

St. John's, Nfld., March 8 — (CP)—Labrador and what it holds may change the face of the North American steel industry.

Vast deposits of iron ore in its interior bordering Ungava soon will be in production, replacing Minnesota's Mesabi range, fast petering out, as chief supplier for steel plants in the United States and Canada.

Work is being started on a railway to the north of the St. Lawrence and then carrying 10,000,000 tons a year should be rolling over it in about three years. When that day comes the American steel industry may be on the move to the Atlantic seaboard.

Since Labrador, as part of Newfoundland, is to enter confederation with Canada soon, many see the export of iron ore to the United States as helping to cure the Dominion's dollar shortage.

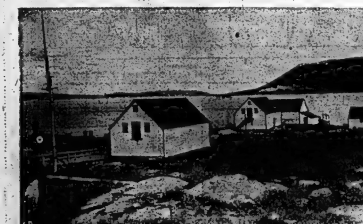
Labrador comes from the Portugese word "llavrador," a yeoman farmer. The name was originally given to Greenland in the first half of the 18th century and was transferred to the peninsula in the belief that it formed part of Greenland.

The story goes that the first person to sight Greenland was a Icelander from the Azores.

Largely Unexplored

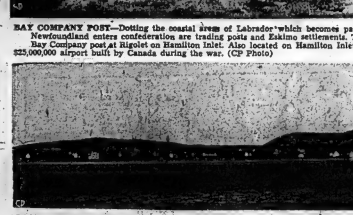
Comprising 110,000 square miles of forested, largely unexplored territory, Labrador—or "the" Labrador as Newfoundlanders call it—was the subject of a judgment of the Privy Council in 1927.

The Privy Council decided that the border with Quebec would be the watershed of rivers running into the Atlantic and the 52nd parallel of latitude. Quebec is disputing the boundary because the iron ore deposits lie athwart it.

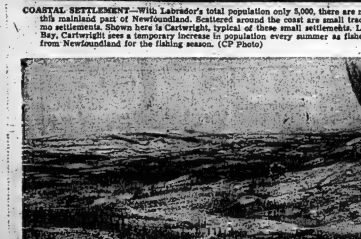


As the border now is laid out, the lion's share of the iron range is in Labrador.

But iron was not the centre of the dispute when it was taken before the Privy Council. For years Newfoundland fishermen had worked up and down the coast from Blanc Sablon to Cape Chidley. Ownership of the hinterland came into dispute over a claim by the Newfoundland government of the right to tax a lumber industry located on one of the deep inlets.



Not as desolate as it's said to be, Labrador is heavily wooded and



SOURCE OF POWER—Labrador contains abundant sources of hydro power in the surging rivers that dot the interior of the country. Many of these rivers are located near the iron ore bodies. Largest river in Labrador is the Hamilton River with the famous Hamilton Falls, one of the largest in North America. This is a photo of an unidentified river coursing through a canyon in the southern section of the country. (CP Photo)

BAY COMPANY POST—Dotting the coastal areas of Labrador which becomes part of Canada when Newfoundland enters confederation are trading posts and Eskimo settlements. This is the Hudson's Bay Company post at Rigolet on Hamilton Inlet. Also located on Hamilton Inlet is Goose Bay, the $25,000,000 airport built by Canada during the war. (CP Photo)

COASTAL SETTLEMENT—With Labrador's total population only 5,000, there are no large centres in this mainland part of Newfoundland. Scattered around the coast are small trading posts and Eskimo settlements. Shown here is Cartwright, typical of these small settlements. Located on Sandwich Bay, Cartwright sees a temporary increase in population every summer as fishermen move north from Newfoundland for the fishing season. (CP Photo)

POTENTIAL VALUE—Labrador which until now has been largely unexplored will see a new era dawning when vast deposits of iron ore are known to exist in the interior are developed. Exploration work has been extensive and work has started on a railway from the St. Lawrence to the interior to move out upwards of 10,000,000 tons yearly. This aerial photo shows typical country where this ore is found. This particular photo was taken in the Burt Lake area bordering on Quebec. (CP Photo)

NON-CONFIDENCE

Jean Francois Pouliot (Ind Lac-Temiscouata), D. J. McCuaig (CCF-Maple Creek), L. E. Cardiff (PC-Huron North), Wilfred Garlepy (Three Rivers), and Matthew MacLean (L-Cape Breton-North Victoria).

At the House opening, Trade Minister Howe announced that payments of five cents a bushel on oats and six cents a bushel on barley will be made to producers of the part out of surplus accumulated from export sales in the 1947-48 crop year.

Prime Minister St. Laurent disclosed that the Justice Department is studying a proposed measure to curb the activities of Communists in Canada and promised to call the department's attention to possible treasonable statements made by Tim Buck, leader of the Labor-Progressive party.

Health Minister Martin reported that a system is being observed be anterior poliomyelitis among Kahnawake Indians at Bay Caughlon, now appears to be under control.

Reference Minister Claxton said an incident aboard the destroyer Athabaskan, in northern waters involving an apparent breach of discipline, was "a minor one which has been settled by the commanding officer in short order and without difficulty."

In the debate, Mr. Probe drew attention to the growing Canadian hockey, football, basketball and tennis abroad and recalled the high percentage of Canadians rejected for military service during the war on medical grounds. Added to these, he declared, "physical softness" were the ever-growing number of Canadians requiring treatment for mental and emotional stresses.

Attributed to Changes

He attributed these deficiencies to the changing habits of Canadians which turned them from a simple, predominantly rural existence to a highly-specialized and mechanized way of living which called for little initiative and self reliance.

The Federal Government, he said, should provide free courses in hobbies, arts and skills, of a recreational nature. Grants could be made for the building of community halls and playground facilities in towns and villages and the Dominion could provide instructor coaches of team games and training facilities for Canadian entrants in international track and field events.

Mr. Rose said the control of radio in Canada should be taken out of the hands of the CBC and placed in the hands of an independent body. The CBC should operate as a public service without commercialization. Private stations should be allowed to operate a network.

Mr. McCuaig said he would not argue whether or not Britain should be given wheat at low prices, but he did not think the wheat producers should foot the bill. The other taxpayers in Canada should share the cost of supplying Britain with cheap bread.

Mr. Maybank said the Progressive Conservatives had indicated that it was opposed to the payment of Federal subsidies to the provinces and it felt that instead of the subsidies the provinces should be allowed to enlarge their fields of taxation.

But a widened basis of taxation would solidify and not help the progressive Conservatives knew it. Productive wealth was about equal in the Prairies and the central provinces, but there was no equality in taxable wealth. The central provinces had about $1.39 per capita in taxable wealth. In the prairies, it was only 38 cents per capita.

Railways Criticized

There should be some way, he said, of fairly distributing tax revenues from the profit of the production of all people in Canada.

Mr. Hazen criticized the Canadian National Railways for a reduction made some months ago in its freight rate to Portland, Me., contending it violated the principle that trade through Canadian ports should be encouraged.

Mr. Hlynka urged that farmers be given a fair share of the national income. Statistics showed, he said, that in only two years in the period from 1926 to 1947 had Canadian farmers received what could be called a "parity" price. In other years, they suffered losses.

He called on the government to disclose what it plans to do to obtain markets for Canadian products when European recovery program aid and credits to European countries are exhausted.

Mr. Cardiff blamed the government for the current high cost of living, because during the war it let contracts on a cost-plus basis.

Wants Tax Reductions

The more it cost the more a contractor made. Men who were getting $2 or $3 a day on a farm were offered $1 an hour if they were a minority and any minority which did not stand up for its rights was ready to disappear.

Mr. MacLean said he was ready to support the St. Lawrence deep seaways project if support was given to improved transportation facilities for the Maritimes. He might benefit Ontario and Quebec but would be of little benefit to the Maritimes.

He hoped to see a causeway built across the Strait of Canso to bridge Cape Breton Island with the mainland.

Old Country Letter: "Tom Thumb" Railways In Great Britain Likely To Close Due to Economies

BY NORMAN CRISHOLM
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 8 (CP)—Britain's "Tom Thumb" railways are shaking in their sidings over threats of economies.

Certain stations and branch lines over which the tiny locomotives pull their pram-like carriages are going to be closed as unresponsive to the British railways administration says.

Since January 1946, 10 branch lines and 25 stations and "whistlestops" have been closed altogether or closed to passengers.

Crab and Winkle

Of the 10 lines, three are being maintained for freight traffic only.

Of the many small railways still under private ownership, the quaintest is the 5 single-track Crab-and-Winkle Railway linking Kelvedon, Essex, with Tollesbury, a picturesque village on the lower reaches of the Blackwater river. Its chief performer is a "Puffing Bertha," a solitary and aged locomotive which takes an hour to haul two creaking and unwilling coaches and six trucks of goods with a little shunting on the way.

Bertha and Spiky

There are gates galore on the Crab-and-Winkle but no gateman. So each time one is reached fireman Jack Mullet drops his shovel and jumps down from the engine cab to open it.

Spanning the lonely Romney marches is the privately-owned Romney-Hythe-Dymchurch Railway with tracks only 15 inches wide. Over this minute line runs a small petrol driven locomotive and 12 tiny passenger coaches.

Others still not nationalized are the Eskdale line in the Cumberland Lake district, the smallest railway in the British Isles the three-foot-wide Isle-of-Man Railway and the Brighton Electric, running along the seashore for only 1 1-2 miles.

Most recently closed under the government's nationalization scheme was the Corris Railway covering more than eight miles between Machynyth and Aberllefenni. Monigomeryshire on tracks two feet, three inches wide. Its death was due to natural causes. The river Dovey has been gradually altering its course for years and last August large sections of the right-of-way were eroded away.

PICTON

Housing Project Taking Shape In County Town

Picton—Mayor William Henley at town council meeting referred to the likelihood that a substantial housing project is taking place to provide married quarters adjacent to the establishment of the Royal Canadian School of Artillery (A A). This, he said, came to his attention through the approach to the town of army engineers to determine whether sewage disposal from the station may be handled by the town's new sewage disposal plant.

The Mayor requested the town clerk at arrange a meeting between the town's engineers to discuss details related to the proposal. Following that, we will welcomes an approach to town council by officials representing the housing project, said the Mayor.

Tea Damage Claims

Ten claims for damage to cars due to rough spots on Picton streets, after excavation for installation of sewers, were received. These are passed on to an insurance company. An insurance adjuster urged bad feeling if it was pointed out that the earth sinks rapidly, but that the town would co-operate with the contractors in filling rough spots this week, the contractor donating his services.

Mayor Henley objected to the number and size of bills for repairs to the town trucks. There are plans for new trucks for the year, amounting to $3,910.

New Brunswick House to Meet For First Time

(By The Canadian Press)

New Brunswick's provincial parliament today starts its 1940 session, first since the province's 41st legislature was elected last June.

Assembly finds the province with the largest house in its history, a 52-seater body including four seats added in the election. Premier J. B. McNair's Liberals hold 41 seats to the Provincial Conservatives led by Hugh Mackenzie's nine.

Last of the nine provincial houses to hold this year's session, the Nova Scotia legislature assembles tomorrow.

Reconvening of the Dominion-Provincial conference, adjourned in 1945 after financial disagreement, was suggested in the Saskatchewan legislature yesterday by Bladwyn Minister J. T. Douglas. The C.C.F. member said Ottawa, on 1945 conference, could be laid to Progressive Conservative leader George Drew, then Premier of Ontario, and Premier Duplessis of Quebec. He added:

"I believe Mr. Drew so committed himself to the principle of Dominion Provincial agreement on taxation during his tour of western Canada last fall that this time he would be forced to co-operate with the other provinces."

Mr. Douglas also said the Federal government estimated the cost of building the proposed Trans-Canada highway across Saskatchewan at $18,000,000 half of which would be borne by the province. He said his government estimated that a similar road could be built for $8,000,000.

Report Tabled

A committee report tabled in the Alberta legislature recommended that the government "should not impose compulsory unemployment insurance." It said that if insurance companies do not lower their rates as a result of safety measures recommended in the report, the government should consider providing automobile insurance as a public service.

Remember That Night

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

Fifteen minutes later they were sitting opposite each other in a large, dimly lighted restaurant.

Karen pulled off her black gloves, declined the cigarette he offered, and looked about her. A group of people in evening clothes at seventy-five tables seated and waited. They wondered, she thought, why Phillip Ashley was with a girl in an inexpensive suit. They were accustomed, she thought, to seeing him with beautiful women in beautiful clothes.

With a band of cigarette smoke between them, Phillip leaned forward. Karen Mallare, whoever she was, was a disturbingly lovely person, he thought. You saw, but you forgot, that her clothes were cheap. A strong sensitive face, he saw, with a stubborn chin, creamy skin that would sunburn an even gold, and clear eyes of dark blue. He thought, "I'm glad I did this rather than going to Helena's big party." Sitting opposite a girl with dreams in her eyes was far more exciting than talking to people he knew too well.

"All right," he said. "What about the play? But the play isn't the thing in this case. Brenda Bond is. She could put life and fire into the worst play ever written."

Karen folded her hands. "I thought she was magnificent. I forgot everything. I kept thinking 'To be like Brenda Bond'."

"That's what everybody thinks. To her, you see. I owe everything. Three years ago I landed in New York with a college degree, a head full of ideas, and something less than fifty dollars. Oh, yes, and my first play. Somebody introduced me to Brenda, who read the play and insisted upon having it. She's been my pet idol and my dearest friend ever since. She's a grand lady. And speaking of grand lady, how would you like to meet her? Now!"

"You don't mean it!"

He laughed. "No, but I do. A lady named Helene Ward is having a party. She's always having parties. There'll be mobs there. And Brenda will be there. She told me tonight."

"But I'm not dressed for a party."

"You look fine. Besides, there'll be so many people there nobody will notice."

Jerry had been right, Karen thought. Anything could happen here!

Their coffee and sandwiches finished, they went out of the restaurant and walked to his car. The rain had stopped. Karen thought, "Is this real? Is this really happening to me?"

* * *

"Penthouse," Phillip said to the boy on the elevator.

A breathtaking ascent followed. As soon as she stepped from the elevator, Karen found herself in the largest, loveliest room she had ever seen, crowded almost to overflowing with elegantly dressed people. She was the only person here in street clothes!

She was grateful that Phillip put his arm through hers, a seemingly casual but thoughtful gesture, as the hostess, a tall, red-haired woman in silver, came up to them.

"Oh, Phillip, you did come!"

Introduced to Karen, Mrs. Ward smiled feebly and Karen felt her coldly scrutinizing the gray suit. Her hands felt weak, her forehead hot with embarrassment. Then Mrs. Ward moved to greet other guests arriving late.

Phillip said, "There's Brenda," and guided her through the throng.

All her life she would remember walking across the great room with Phillip while every pair of eyes in the room seemed to be concentrated on them. They were wondering why Phillip Ashley had brought an unknown young girl in a cheap suit to one of Helene Ward's more important parties. Karen wished the floor would open and she could drop through.

Phillip said, "Brenda, I want you to meet a new and charming friend, Karen Mallare."

Brenda held out her hand and took Karen's. The girl was trembling! Poor child! Didn't Phillip realize? Young and fresh and lovely, Karen Mallare was completely unlike the bored, sophisticated people here.

Simply, honestly Karen said, "I hope you'll like tonight and loved it."

"That's only the half of it." Phillip said. "Later I'll tell you what did happen. Only tonight did I learn what our public suffers."

A man spoke to Brenda. Politely she turned away. Then, in the brief awkward silence that followed, Karen heard a woman remark, "Since when has Phillip Ashley taken to picking up girls?" Laughter followed. Then a man said, "since Lilyan Kane went to England. Didn't you know?"

Turning her head, Karen saw the woman who had made the remark. She was tall and dark and dressed in red. She would never forget her. In a flash she understood! Phillip's bringing her here was not a gesture of kindness! He had just wanted to amuse himself, to do something different! He had known she would be made fun of!

Phillip had heard, too. His jaw sharpened as he saw color wash over Karen's face. Poor kid, he thought. It was his fault. He shouldn't have brought her. He should have known there would be a pack of snobs here! But he had only meant to be kind . . .

Karen looked at him. "I'm going," she said in a tight voice.

"So am I. I'm taking you home."

"That isn't necessary."

He took her arm. "I brought you and I'm taking you home."

On the elevator she kept her eyes down, fighting hot angry tears. "Since when has Phillip Ashley taken to picking up girls?" and the remark about Lilyan Kane went to England. Didn't you know?" Lilyan Kane was his mistress!

She was grateful that Phillip put his arm through hers, a seemingly casual but thoughtful gesture, as the hostess, a tall, red-haired woman in silver, came up to them.

"Oh, Phillip, you did come!"

Introduced to Karen, Mrs. Ward smiled feebly and Karen felt her coldly scrutinizing the gray suit. Her hands felt weak, her forehead hot with embarrassment. Then Mrs. Ward moved to greet other guests arriving late.

He took her arm. "I brought you and I'm taking you home."

On the elevator she kept her eyes down, fighting hot angry tears. "Since when has Phillip Ashley taken to picking up girls?" and the remark about Lilyan Kane went to England. Didn't you know?" drummed against her brain.

It had begun to rain again lightly. On the street they walked quickly to his car and when she was beside him, he turned to her. Her eyes were shining with tears. He didn't speak for a moment because he didn't remember when he had ever thought a girl beautiful when she was crying.

"Forgive me," he said. "I didn't know it would be as bad as that."

"But what she said was true: "I —I must seem very cheap to you." Suddenly her anger dried her tears. "You were only amusing yourself. You thought it was a joke to take a stage - struck girl to a big party and introduce her to Brenda Bond! You knew I'd be different and create a sensation! She was shaking. The staring eyes, the smiling mouths, the lifted brows were still painfully clear.

"I think you are being unfair," Phillip said. "You're using, I take you home."

All during the drive he wondered if he should offer to help her. It annoyed him that somehow he felt responsible for her. But there was nothing he could do for her now. Moreover, Lilyan might hear that he had been attended a lovely young girl. She might not hear the correct story of it and interpret it. No, better let it end tonight, and let Karen Mallare go her way. He would keep her in mind and make a note of her address. Selfish, of course, but that was the wise and sane thing to do.

There was no one in the apartment house lobby. Karen held out her hand and Phillip took it and held it. And all at once she knew that this was a magical moment, that this was unlike anything that had ever happened to her before. He was still falling in love with him! She would not! But already she knew that while he might walk out of her life tonight, he would never completely walk out of her heart. Deep in her heart she said. You can't deep it, her heart answered.

He smiled. "Are you still angry? I'm terribly sorry." He put his hand under her chin. "Keep it up, Karen. Keep it high. It's proud, fighting chin that goes with a proud, fighting heart." He would probably never see her again. Even if she were gifted, she would be lost among countless others also gifted who never made the grade. She would work at something else and meet a boy and get married . . .

Karen said, "Good night, Phillip." But she did not linger, knowing she could not bear to see him drive away.

Phillip went back to Mrs. Ward's party.

Karen knocked on the door of Roxanne's apartment. Roxanne, wearing a pale blue satin dressing gown, opened it.

"Oh, hello, Karen. Come in. I haven't been in long. I knocked at your door but got no answer. How was the show?" She laughed. "Small town girls shouldn't be out so late."

"More has happened to me tonight than happened in twenty years in Hamilton," Karen said. She took off her hat, ran her fingers through her dark hair, sank into a big brown chair, and told Roxanne what had happened tonight.

"Phillip Ashley!" Roxanne almost shouted. Then she laughed her husky laugh again. "Say, you don't need anybody to tell you how to get along! Landed in New York last night and tonight you meet a playwright, go to a party, and meet Brenda Bond. What kind of person is Brenda Bond?" "

Cost of Canada's Share in Project To be Estimated

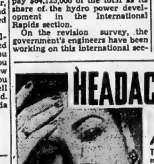
Ottawa, March 8 — (CP) — Canada's share of the cost of building the St. Lawrence seaway and power project is being brought up to date and the estimate should be available to the government within the next month or two, official sources indicate.

In 1941, the bill for the engineering and construction job that would open the way for ocean-going ships to penetrate to the heart of the continent was estimated at $544,000,000 of which the United States was to shoulder $280,000,000 and Canada $264,000,000. A tentative estimate in 1944 put the total at $610,000,000. Inflation has added to the costs.

The actual bill for the federal treasury was slimmed to roughly $620,000,000 under the 1941 figures for two reasons:

Canada had already footed $131,900,000 bill for the Welland Canal and Ontario had agreed to pay $64,125,000 of the total as its share of the hydro power development in the International Rapids section.

On the revision survey, the government's engineers have been working on this international section, a 47-mile stretch between a spot east of Prescott and a spot east of Cornwall. The other sections are either ready or the responsibility of the U. S. or recent costs are known. A new report on the Lachine section around Montreal, for instance, was issued recently.



To provide the desired continuous 27-foot navigation route throughout the entire Great Lakes - St. Lawrence system will require the completion of 40 miles of canals with seven locks and eight movable bridges between Montreal and Prescott and channel dredging from the Thousand Islands to the head of the Great Lakes. There is power potential of 8,000,000 horsepower in these works of which only one-third has been developed.

Prime Minister And Diefenbaker Tangle in House

Ottawa, March 8 — (CP) — Actg Irvine Minister St. Laurent assailed John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) Monday in the latest Commons outbreak over illegal entries into Canada.

At the House opening, Mr. Diefenbaker recalled that he had asked Resources Minister MacKinnon, in charge of immigration, to table all orders-in-council passed since July 1, 1945, "regulating illegal entries." He wondered when they would be forthcoming.

Mr. MacKinnon said there were two question Mr. Diefenbaker's banker and one from Douglas Ross (PC-Toronto St. Paul's) which remained to be answered. Consideration was being given to them and an answer would be made shortly.

Mr. St. Laurent jumped up when Mr. Diefenbaker made a retort which could not be heard in the press gallery. He attacked the retort and the form in which Mr. Diefenbaker had asked his original questions. This made him hard to answer but they would be answered.

There had been no legalizing of illegal entries. There were some orders-in-council which allowed some persons who had entered Canada illegally to stay here "but that's not the same." All persons under-in-council would be brought down. They had not all been tabled or made public.

The first 100 of the thousands of orders passed since July 1945 would be tabled and it would be shown just how they had been handled so Mr. Diefenbaker could see for himself...

Hundreds Fleeing From Flood Waters In Four States

Broad Acreage Inundated Bridges Gone, Roads Blocked

A new flood threat developed in Montana, and surging waters from swollen streams spilled over thousands of acres of land in Nebraska, Iowa, Montana and Louisiana.

Minor floods were caused north of Sidney, Mont., after ice 30 to 40 inches deep blocked the Yellowstone River and sent water over its banks. Some residents expressed fear of widespread floods if the ice gorge backed up for 20 miles. Farmers and ranchers along the river were urged to leave their homes and remove their livestock.

In southeastern Montana, the Tongue River was running bankfull and threatened to flood Miles City. The Missouri River is frozen from the mountains near Helena to the headwaters, and no immediate flood is threatened.

Schools Closed

Many Nebraskan communities battled the rising waters. At Scottsbluff, nearly 100 families were vacated as the big Blue River overflowed. Four of the eight schools in the city of 11,000 closed.

BUDGET DEBATE IN ONT. HOUSE ENDS THURSDAY

Opposition Claims Budget Surplus Should Have Been Higher

Toronto, March 9. (CP)—The Ontario Legislature hopes to complete budget debate Thursday and will sit Thursday night if necessary to wind up this phase of its session's business.

Premier Kennedy has indicated that he would like to see the session finished before the end of March. A farmer himself, he knows that, if signs pointing to an early Spring are borne out, farmer-legislators soon will be impatient to rise from their parliamentary benches and get back on the land.

The House turns today to considering estimates, probably those of the Agriculture department.

Opposition party spokesmen at Tuesday's afternoon and night sittings criticized the budget brought in last week by Provincial Treasurer Frost. Party viewpoints were expressed by Leslie Saunders, Toronto Riverdale, for the C.C.F.; by G. Brown, of Waterloo North, for the Liberals, and by A. A. MacLeod of Toronto Bellwoods for the Labor-Progressive Party.

All three opposition speakers claimed that the $1,132,000 surplus reported by Mr. Frost for 1948 should have been higher.

CUT OFF FROM FOOD AND MEDICINE

Sydney, Australia, March 9 — (AP)—Rain-caused floods have cut off 1,300 persons from food and medical supplies in a normally-arid section of New South Wales. At least three persons are missing, and may have been drowned.

Four to five inches of rain which fell within a few hours converted wide areas in the northwest corner of the province into a veritable inland sea.

KING GEORGE WILL SOON UNDERGO NERVE OPERATION

Will Improve Flow Of Blood to Leg

London, March 9 (CP)—The King will undergo a nerve operation soon to improve the flow of blood to his right leg which still is suffering from a circulation obstruction in the main artery.

This was disclosed, Tuesday night, when Buckingham Palace released a bulletin signed by His Majesty's six doctors. It was stressed that the operation is not serious and had been foreseen by His Majesty's medical advisers 3½ months ago when the King's ailment was diagnosed as a circulatory obstruction in his legs.

The decision to operate did not result from any sudden worsening of the King's health, court correspondents say, but the Palace bulletin said the monarch's general health is excellent.

The operation consists of making a small incision in the right lumbar region of the loins—to cut the nerve controlling the blood supply to the foot. This results in a dilation of the blood vessels and freer flow of blood. As much as possible of the nerve will be removed.

Two-Day Examination

The degree of success of the operation depends on whether the undamaged arterial system which surround the main leg arteries are able to take on the increased flow of blood.

The Press Association's court correspondent wrote that "the King had a two-day examination by specialists last Wednesday and Thursday. The operation was then decided upon. The doctors concluded that the necessary conditions for a successful operation have been established as the result of the King's long rest."

The operation likely will take place in Buckingham Palace and will last half an hour. It is probable the King, who is 53, will be under anaesthesia during that time.

The King's ailment, disclosed last Nov. 30, is known as thromboangiitis obliterans. The process causes a progressive tightening of the arteries due to inflammation inside.

Teen-Agers Break Into School For Basketball

Toronto, March 9. (CP)—Teen-agers here have taken matters into their own hands to get their own hands by breaking into the Bloor Street Collegiate Branch to play basketball. School officials said today the performance is repeated they will be charged with breaking and entering.

For month janitors have found the doors of the gymnasium and screens damaged and other evidence that someone had been entering the building after school hours. A trustee was informed last Monday and when he entered the gymnasium he found more than a dozen boys playing basketball.

Sweden Realizes War Involving Country Would be With Russia

(Editor's note: With an anxious eye on the international situation Sweden trains a defence force she hopes may never be used. The following article, one of a series, describes Swedish defence plans.)

By WILLIAM BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Stockholm, March 9 (CP)—Swedish service chiefs won't say so, but they obviously expect that any war involving their country will be against Russia and that Sweden would give a good account of herself.

The country's defence planning hinges about a possible "aggressor" from the east and "the opponents of the aggressor," expected to supply help from the west.

Only in private conversation will service higher-ups refer to Russia and the west as such.

No responsible Swede believes war inevitable, though a few say it is just five years away. All think Sweden can keep out briefly but that inevitably she will be drawn in with the west. None thinks Sweden would be a walkover.

The country can field an army of 700,000, supported by a powerful force of day, night and photo-reconnaissance aircraft. Sweden's navy is one of Europe's most efficient.

Czechoslovakia Planted Spies in U.S. Zone Camps Captain Tells Court

Munich, March 9 — (AP) — Czechoslovakia planted spies in refugee camps in the United States occupation zone of Germany, a former intelligence officer of the communist - dominated country testified today.

Capt. Vojtech Jarabek made the assertion as he testified for the prosecution in the trial of eight Europeans charged with collecting United States military information in Germany for an unidentified foreign power.

He said certain Czech agents were deliberately placed in refugee camps by the Czechoslovakian ministry of the interior and the Czech intelligence service.

Jarabek described the Czech intelligence service as "farming out" agents to officers who then gave them assignments and took reports.

Jarabek and another former Czech captain, Otakar Felfar, fled their country last Nov. 8, bringing with them secret intelligence files. Felfar already has testified.

Special protective measures were continued as the second former Czech army officer testified against his former colleagues. Armed military police watched over the small group of specialists.

Russia Seen Preparing Ruble Possible Rival of Dollar, Pound

By THOMAS F. WHITNEY

Moscow, March 9 (AP) — Russia is grooming her ruble as a possible competitor of the dollar and pound sterling in international economic affairs.

This apparently is one of the aims of Soviet monetary policy changes over the last two years.

Most recent step in this direction was proclamation of prize rates ranging from 20 per cent on 45 classes of consumer goods, including furs.

A fact apparently little noted abroad is that since Jan. 1, the ruble has been pegged to the prize medium in trade treaties contracted by Russia with Poland and Romania.

These were the first post-war treaties the U.S.S.R. signed providing that total commodity exchanges would be priced in rubles.

The official international value of the ruble is 9.30 to the dollar, a rate maintained unchanged for more than 10 years. A special diplomatic rate granted only to

ARTHUR COLE—Page 14

Arthur Cole, C.N.R. Engineer, Nominated C.C.F. Candidate For South Hastings Riding

Canadian National Railways executive engineer at Belleville and a party worker in this district for many years, Mr. Arthur C. Cole was chosen as the C. C. F. candidate for South Hastings at the nomination meeting held at the Hotel Quinte Tuesday evening.

Mr. Cole was chosen as the Federal candidate for the South Hastings riding on a motion made by Acting Edward Schliewert and Douglas Moxam, both of this city, who also nominated their names to stand for the nomination.

Three other party workers, Mrs. Kay Stevenson, Stanley Keon, and David Elliott, president of the local C. C. F. association, were also nominated but declined to stand for nomination.

Great applause followed the election meeting was Mrs. Alice Kincaid, secretary, who also conducted the nomination. Mrs. Kincaid is a member of the provincial executive of the C. C. F. party and has a keen insight into the party program.

Told of Party's Growth

Speaking briefly to the meeting prior to the nomination, Mrs. Kincaid told of the party's growth and expressed the opinion that the C. C. F. would be the official opposition to the next Federal government.

The speaker went on to say that Canada had a big responsibility in international affairs and in this was the belief of the C. C. F. party the only way to prevent another war was the extension of democratic socialism.

It was only through democratic socialism that "Operation Fear" which she said was a real part of Canadian lives could be abolished, could be done away with.

She said there was fear on the part of factory workers of losing their jobs, while farmers were constantly in fear of lower prices.

"To maintain a good standard of living we must continue to keep our houses in order and not be satisfied merely with periodic prosperity," she said. "And the only way to do this is through high employment which in turn is dependent upon planned economy or social planning."

Bulgarian Press Claims Pastors Had Fair Trial

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

Sofia, March 9. (AP)— Bulgarian communists today splurged stories contending that 13 Protestant ministers had fair trials in a Sofia courtroom which Tuesday sentenced them to prison.

In an attempt to prove their point, the newspapers quoted a British clergyman, Rev. George B. Chambers, as declaring in an interview that the trial was justified. Western governments and churches have denounced the trial as religious persecution by Bulgaria's Communist government.

Chambers, known as the "Red Vicar" of Carbrooke, Norfolk, England, attended the trial briefly as a self-styled "independent observer."

The newspapers quoted Chambers as declaring that, despite belief to the contrary in western countries, there is full religious freedom and no persecution in Bulgaria." (He was quoted upon his departure in London yesterday as having made somewhat similar statements.)

Chambers, who arrived here March 2, was escorted by government press department officials until he left shortly after giving testimony in the trial refused to disclose who paid for the trip.

Two R. C. Priests in Hungary in Prison

Budapest, March 9 (AP)— Two Roman Catholic priests today were convicted on imprisoned, one of them on charges linked with the case of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty.

Monsignor Janos Fabrian, archivist of the Primate's Court, was sentenced to one year on charges of concealing various documents concerning Cardinal Mindszenty's case.

NON-CONFIDENCE VOTE NOT LIKELY TO DEFEAT GOVT.

C.C.F. Amendment Will Be First Vote Taken

Ottawa, March 9 (CP)—Parliament likely will get the chance this afternoon to vote on whether or not it has "confidence" in the government—the vote deciding whether the government is to stand or fall.

From all visible indications, the government will stand.

The vote of non-confidence — one of a number of traditional motions available at this stage of the session—will come on a C.C.F. amendment to the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

The C.C.F. amendment will declare that the government has failed to social security measures and a number of other measures.

The vote will provide a break in the throne - speech debate which has been droning on through more than 120 members' speeches.

Still to come is a vote on another non-confidence motion proposed by the Progressive Conservative party.

After that one has been disposed of — or possibly before that — it is expected another non-confidence motion will be put forward by the Social Credit party.

At Tuesday's session, the House traversed a wide field in the debate on the throne speech and also heard a number of protouncements from the government benches.

External Affairs Minister Pearson said he would make an announcement in the next day or so on whether the government is negotiating with the United States on a new extradition treaty.

P. E. Cote, parliamentary assistant to Labor Minister Mitchell, said immigrants were not displacing Canadians in employment.

Fleeced at Cards Loses Over $800 Tells Police

Brantford, March 9 (CP) — Frank Barchuk, Harley, told police Tuesday that he was fleeced of more than $800 in a card game at a local hotel.

He said he was approached by a man on the market square and persuaded to join the game, after losing the money he had with him. Barchuk said he went to his home, borrowed $800 and returned.

He said he played with three other men and lost every time he "losing". When the latter and Barchuk were broke they set out for some friends.

His companion suggested that Barchuk return to the hotel to make certain the other two men left Brantford. Barchuk said he had fled when he returned to the hotel and the man with the bonds has not been seen since either.

Striking Grave-Diggers Back on Job To Avoid Suspicion of Communism

New York, March 9 (AP) — Striking grave-diggers at Calvary Cemetery have quit their posts to avoid suspicion which Francis Cardinal Spellman has termed "communist-dominated."
